INFORMATION ON REGISTRATION

(By F. H. DOBBIN, Registrar)

Some time ago the Registration Board, at Ottawa announced that a wide publicity campaign would be put on in the papers with regard to the registration that is to be finished on Saturday, June 22nd. So far as Peterborough is concerned this campaign has not materialized. So we must start in and give some information.

Descriptive writing is not required. Just shtort notes of what has been done in the way of preparation and will be done in the registration. All are asked to remember, so that as little inconvenience as possible will result. We never had this kind of thing before and may not again. It will be one of the war experiences.

Who Will Register.

All persons over 16 years of age. Both men and women. Male and female.

Birth or marriage certificates are not required.

Now, all means ALL. In cases of persons confined to bed, ill in a serious way, unable to go out to register, the friends will consult with the deputy-registrar (or any deputy-registrar) and make arrangements. An assistant deputy-registrar will go and take the registration at the home. But this privilege must not be used to an excessive extent, or to oblige people who think they do not want to come out. And those desiring the service at their homes will arrange to take the assistant deputy-registrar to the place and back again.

Special Provisions.

We have in the city peoples of foreign nationalities. These are provided for as follows:

Italians can register at the store of Mr. D. N. Minnicola, 410 1-2 George street. Mr. Minnicola will turn into English the statements of those who have not acquired the English tongue. Of course, Italians can register at any other place, if they can make themselves understood to the deputy-registrar. No charge whatever, for registration, at any place

Foreigners, speaking languages other than Italian and French, can register at the place provided the boarding house of the Leonard Construction Co., Hunter street, East City. This place will be in charge of Mr. Abram Lowe and his son, Louis Lowe. Mr. Lowe speaks fluently ten languages or dialects, Russian, Bulgarian, Polish, Bohemian, etc. He lived on the border of Austria adjacent to Russia, and acquired the assortment in doing business with a people of very much mixed nationalities.

French people who prefer to make their statements in the French tongue will go to the Separate school, on Lake street, where arrangements have been made to facilitate the work for all who may not express themselves in English fluently. There may be only a few so hampered, but the facilities have been provided. Mr. Popham and a staff of assistants will attend to the above detail, and in addition take registrations for all in the district who prefer to use that place.

It will be noticed, in the list that registrations will be made at several institutions. The reasons are obvious in that all hospitals, etc., will in many who could not make way for invalids brought to places. A deputy-registrar will take the registrations at the places as specified.

People of the Jewish faith have been requested to register before Saturday 22nd, that day being the Jewish Sabbath. No doubt the request will be complied with.

Make Registration Early in the Week

From Ottawa comes insistent request that so much of the registration as can be done should be gotten over before the Saturday rush. So people are urged to come out in the evening and register. Not only will it assist the work, but it will tend to give the several staffs facility in the work. Besides people might just as well make it a point to get the thing over. Merchants, workmen and all whose day engagements or employments are important will find the advantage one to be considered. Read over the list and then go there. Or go anywhere you choose.

Keeping the places open from 4 to 6 in the afternoon is largely a permissive condition. If it proves to be a convenience, then it will be followed up. All places may not be kept open for those hours, unless people come to take advantage of the opportunity. A card will be displayed, outside the place, and when that card is on view registration is going on. But always in the evening from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Every Opportunity Offered.

It will be noticed that registration will take place at many of the industrial establishments in the city Registration is not open to the public at these places, but only to those there employed and possibly, if they be acceptable for the wife and people of the workman, if permitted. Ample facilities are provided for general registration elsewhere. It is to be remembered that each person registering must get and keep a certificate of registration. Otherwise certain penalties may be exacted.

The Extent of the Work Involved.

The list below shows 121 places for registration. But that statement falls short of giving an idea of the facilities. In the larger number of places in the city, the schools, Sunday schools, Public Library, etc., as many as three to four tables, or writing positions will be available. These places are to be manned (largely womaned) by from one to three persons, all the time. It is expected that it will take from ten to fifteen minutes to complete each card. There are about 15,000 people to register in the city alone. Over 700 persons have volunteered for the service in the city, and the country staffs throughout the townships are ample. In all 1,400 persons will give assistance in this, the West Riding of Peterborough.

If you go to a place and find a waiting line, do not add to the line. Go to some other place not so well patronized and make use of the staff there. With the ample facilities provided there should be little delay, especially if the public will take advantage of the week night registration service

The Registrar is most sincerely indebted for much very efficient assistance from ladies connected with the many patriotic institutions and societies of the city. The membership of these formed depots from which good material could be drawn, and the help afforded has most materially lessened the work of preparation, though that has been onerous and critical. And when it is recollected that all have voluntarily offered service, the extent of the personal effort may be appreciated. The women, almost to a man, so to speak, have lined up with the greatest readiness and cheerfulness. All over the riding, and this no doubt applies to the country at large the women form the greater part of the working force.

Side by side, as a matter of fact in advance, with the work of the women, there is to be acknowledged the hearty co-operation and assistance from the teaching staffs of the schools. At the outset of the work it was intimated that, if properly approached, the teachers would give substantial aid. Either they have been approached properly (whatever that means) or their good loyal sense of duty has inspired, and they have been the first line of attack on the problem of assistance. The first to be appealed to. Lining right up heartily and cheerfully. The principals of the ward schools, the institute, etc., have taken some responsibility in making arrangements and the several staffs of teachers have cordially and helpfully come together to further the registration. It looks like a piece of imposition to throw on to the staffs a good share of the work, (as it expected that the schools will be popular places), but teachers, anyway, do a lot more than they get credit for. In this case the remuneration cannot be more than appreciation.

LIVER TROUBLE and HEARTBURN

CURED BY

MILLBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

When the liver is torpid and inflamed, it cannot furnish bile to the bowels, causing them to become bound and costive. The symptoms are a feeling of fullness or weight in the right side, and shooting pains in the same region, pains between the shoulders, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, water brash, etc.

"Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away the effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract. Hence they by far the best and quickest remedy for all diseases or disorders of the liver.

Mrs. A. Cummings, Manchester, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills some time, and can faithfully recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried a great many other remedies but they only relieved me for a time. I believe Laxa-Liver Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from liver troubles."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

greatest effort in the Metz valley for purposes of reaching Oise, above Compeigne thus forcing evacuation of the Entire Noyon salient whereat at the extreme northern point, Carlepont wood on the east side of the Oise and Mount Renaud on the west side have to date barred the German advance into the Oise valley.

Military experts consider it most probable that Germans will launch a second converging attack from east of Noyon with identical measures of attacking the Oise from the east and forcing the evacuation of the Novon salient.

Severe Crisis

From prisoners and other sources, it is established that the Boches are suffering a severe crisis in effectives. Many companies go into action with only eighty or a hundred men. The wounded are forced to return and fight as soon as they are cured. The losses in infantry officers are so great that cavalry officers are now substituted.

Among 200 prisoners interrogated a fourth were in the 1919 class while many were in the 1920 class. The prisoners also included minors and expert workmen who heretofore had not been sent to the front.

The divisions of Prussian General which is one of Germany's finest bodies of troops lost 50 per cent. of its effectives during March offensive on the Somme and lost thirty per cent. more in the Chateau-Theirry drive, it has been established.

French patrols, penetrating the regions of Vouty and Maercreux report heaps of German dead often lying in four or five successive windows, south of Faverelles 670 unburied German dead were counted.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

HOW DO THEY FEEL NOW?

(St. Thomas Journal.)

The members of the Commons, whipped into line by the Premier's threat of resignation, recently voted down a Conservative member's resolution calling for the granting of no further titles in Canada. To satisfy the Prime Minister's whim a majority of the members voted against their own expressed convictions. One wonders how they feel about it now.

BAD NEWS FOR HUNS.

(New York Herald.)

About a million young Americans, who have come of age in the last year and become available for military service, were registered yesterday — about sixty thousand in this city. Incidentally, about forty thousand negroes from nineteen States and the District of Columbia, were summoned to the colours. The steady flow of Americans abroad will continue until the Hun is smashed...

11 PER CENT. PATRIOTS.

(Toronto Globe.)

British and American capitalists offer to build a $15,000,000 packing plant in Canada if the regulation limiting packers' profits to eleven per cent. is rescinded. These men are only eleven per cent. patriots.

QUEBEC IN LINE.

(Montreal Star.)

Quebec is swinging into line with a quota of sturdy soldiers second to none.

Killed by Blood Poisoning.

Used an old razor for paring his corns. Foolish, because a 25c bottle of Putnam's Corn Extractor will cure all the corns in a family for a year. Safe, because purely vegetable. Use only Putnam's Extractor, 25c at all dealers.

Believed That rman Submarine Was Destroyed

n Press:

TLANTIC PORT, June 11.—A submarine was attacked and ily sunk by a British steam- week ago Sunday morning, off e British port, according to passen- rs on the vessel, which arrived here to-day. A United States army officer who saw a single shot fired at the U-boat, which was only 150 yards away, expressed the opinion it was a clean hit that had been made. Two destroyers which accompanied British liner, closed in after this one-sided combat and dropped depth charges at the spot where submarine had disappeared. The British vessel was met some distance from this port by a scout seaplane which escorted her here. The liner carried 176 passengers. She is a vessel which several times has been subjected to unsuccessful torpedo attacks and once was shelled by a U-boat.

Urges Labour To Renew Efforts In Support of War

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, June 11.— President Wilson to-day telegraphed to the American Federation of Labour and American Alliance for Labour and Democracy in the convention at St. Paul, Minn., urging renewed efforts in the support of the war programme. "The war can be lost in America as well as on the fields of France, and ill-considered or unjustified interruptions of the essential of labour in the country may make it impossible to win it," said the President's telegram to Robert Maisel, of the American Alliance for Labour and Democracy.

Judge Huycke Reffered To The Peril That Confronts The Empire

This Is No Time For Strikes Or Disunion, Remarked His Honour—Must Stand Shoulder to Shoulder.

Addressing the Grand Jury at the opening of the June sittings of the County Court this afternoon His Honour Judge Huycke referred to the recent request of the Provincial Government to discourage jury cases as much as possible in order to conserve labour. His Honour said he was very much saddened by the disunion between the city and country. "It is time the ranks were closed up and the various elements that make up our civiliation stand shoulder to shoulder." His Honour referred to a recent enactment in the United States conscripting every man in that country for such work as may be designated by the authorities.

A Real Peril.

"The British Empire never stood in such dire straits since history began as it has since March 21st. The fifth British army was crushed, no matter what they may say about a strategic retirement, and if the gap had not been closed, the Germans would not have been in Paris but at the Channel ports, and the Allies would have been swept into the sea. This is no time for us to talk about strikes and create discord in the land."

First Case Called.

The first case to be heard in the new court room was that of the Atlantic Fruit Company vs. W. J. Oke. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. G. N. Gordon was solicitor for the defendant.

The action of the case hinges upon a car of bananas shipped by the Atlantic Fruit Company to W. J. Oke, which, when received in Peterborough, were over-ripe.

SERGT. J. G. PERDUE IS SECRETARY OF GREAT WAR VETERANS.

Sergt. John Garvey Perdue, son of Mr. Thomas Perdue of Ennismore, has been elected to the important position of secretary of the Great War Veterans Association of the Province of British Columbia. The B. C. Veterans' Weekly has this to say about him:

"This week we are bemoaning the loss of one of the oldest members of the Shaugnessy staff in the person of Sergt. J. G. Perdue. The sergeam was one of the small party that arrived here last summer, and declared the place open for business; so he can truly be said to have watched and indeed aided in no small way the great development of the hospital. He now leaves us to fill the important post vacated by H. A. Lees, namely the secretaryship of the G.W.V.A.

"This is a position for which he is preeminently fitted as while with us he was untiring in his activities on behalf of this organization and succeeded in enrolling no less than 200 of the patiens as new members. Those of us who had the good fortune to be associated with him in his work here, while greatly regretting his departure, are glad to know that he goes to work in which he is deeply interested, and we feel certain that his new duties, congenial as they are, will be performed by him in a capable and efficient manner."

Sergt. Perdue is one of the "Originals," and was badly wounded at Courcelette. He has ever since been actively engaged in G.W.V.A. work since his reurn o Canada.

ALL BROTHER HAD NOTICED

Father Need Not Have Worried Over Possible Bad Effect of Movies on Little Son.

After all, it's hard to figure out correctly the effect of the movies on the child mind. It happened that mother and sister had gone to a concert and it was up to father to entertain little brother, age seven. Father likes the movies—some of them—so he thought that would serve the purpose. Of course you can not tell much about a film by the name or by the pictures out in front either for that matter. But father likes pictures of western life and he thought the horses and mountains might please brother. So when he saw the poster of a cowboy, in they went.

It wasn't a very good sort of picture as to theme, for it presented a ruthless outlaw and his gang of robbers. When a wagon train of gold seekers came across the desert he not only refused to give them water, but drove them off to perish of thirst on the desert. And there also was a dance hall scene in the West. Father had some misgivings as to his choice of movie and wondered whether, at its close, his son would elect to be the bold, bad bandit or the vice-enmeshed owner of the dance hall and gambling hell. He said nothing but anxiously awaited the verdict.

When "The End" came, brother whispered:

"Daddy, do you know who the cowboy looks like?"

"No, brother. Who?"

"Our milkman," was the reply.

GOT RIGHT POINT OF VIEW

Autoist, When He Cooled Down, Was Able to See Where Traffic Policeman Was Correct.

The autoist was waiting for the corner traffic man to give the signal to make the turn at the corner. When he thought he had been there long enough he began tooting his horn impatiently. The traffic man kept on taking care of traffic. The autoist became more impatient with his horn.

"You won't help matters that way, my friend," said the traffic man, as he waved him on.

"Aw, take me to jail, but don't bawl me out!" exclaimed the driver.

The policeman motioned him over toward the curb. "I could take your suggestion, but I won't. You are angry now, but when you cool off you will understand that the corner man has many problems to contend with," said the policeman. "We do not usually make explanations, but I am doing so in this case, because I think you should realize that you are in the wrong."

The autoist drove on, mumbling. A few days later he stopped in the same place. "Say," he said to the policeman, "I made a fool out of myself the other day. I had no right to be angry. You fellows have enough vexations without some one who goes across your corner once a day adding to them by smart remarks."

The policeman smiled and waved him on. That autoist today probably would fight for the corner man if necessary.—Indianapolis News.

Only One Hog Had Dollar.

A fat hog at the Omaha stock yards coughed up a dollar when "Snuff" Smith, an employee of a commission company, kicked it in the head. The hog was trying to run past him when he wanted it to go the other way. He gave it a vigorous kick. It coughed, gagged, sputtered a moment and then spat up the dollar.

Stockyard men throughout the rest of the day had a lot of fun about the incident. The commission company claimed the dollar. Smith claimed it. The owner of the hog claimed it, and as a result Smith spent it for cigars for the crowd.

A lot of the employees in the yards began to kick hogs right and left in the hope of shaking out another dollar. One employee said he had kicked 612 hogs during the day and hadn't got even a jitney.

Another Triumph for Woman Farmer.

Once again the adaptability and skill of women have confounded the critics—those incredulous critics, the farmers. They admit that in the recent efficiency tests at Maidstone, England, a very high standard has been reached. In the milking competition more than one-fourth gained over 90 marks. Two women thatchers, who had only been at the work for five weeks, secured the highest possible rating. The competitions were arranged by the Kent woman's agricultural committee. Mrs. F. Heron-Maxwell, chairman of the organizing committee, said there were 9,000 women registered as land women in Kent, also 300,400 members of the "woman's land army.

Tunnel Would Pay for Itself.

It has been proposed to construct a railway tunnel under the Firth of Forth, Scotland, paralleling the famous bridge now spanning that body of water, and to pay for the tunnel by making it largely a coal mining proposition. Mining engineers point out that coal is now being mined on both sides of the firth from the same seams and that much of this excavating is done under water. At this point the estuary is only about two miles wide and it is contended that a continuous passage could be made beneath it by properly co-ordinating the mining operations. In this way what would otherwise probably prove to be too costly an improvement could be made with profit.

CAN'T ALWAYS SIZE THEM UP

Former Acquaintanced One Meets in New York Must Not Be Judged by Their Appearance.

You never can tell who is who when you meet them in the White Light section. The other night a Pittsburgher ran into a former Steel Cityite who was wandering along the big lane. He wasn't so glad to see him, as he feared a "touch," because back home the man never seemed prosperous, neither was he down and out. His appearance hadn't changed since his residence here.

"How long have you been living in New York?" asked the visitor.

"Oh, about three years," replied the former resident.

"Then you know the town pretty well?" was the next query.

The former Pittsburgher admitted that he did, and gave the visitor some advice and warning about the big city. He listened. Then he asked: "What are you doing here, Bill?"

"Working for a bank down town," replied the other man.

The Pittsburgher didn't press his chance friend for details. He thought that Bill had one of those jobs down town where one starves to death amidst the wealth of the nation—die of thirst upon the fountain's brink. "Won't you take lunch with me?" he asked, and Bill said he would be delighted—some time.

The next day the Pittsburgher went to a bank down town to see about a check of a friend of his which had gone astray. "You will have to see the cashier," he was told, and there was the former Steel City man. He was in an office market "private" on the door and his name in gold on the side of the desk. He was cashier of one of the biggest banks in the world.

Sardine Shortage Expected.

Shortage of sardines this spring is expected to result from the severity of the past winter. Storms and great masses of floating ice have destroyed hundreds of sardine weirs, according to Henry S. Culver, United States consul at New Brunswick, who says in a commerce report that even the weirs not wholly destroyed are so badly damaged that it may not be possible to use them this spring.

There will be practically no catch of sardines this spring on the New Brunswick coast. The weirs may not be in condition for use until summer, and the catch for the year will probably be smaller than in any recent years. The past winter is said to have been the most severe the New Brunswick country has seen in 40 years.

Tibet Takes Up War Game.

Tibet is engaged in a looting expedition, just as she has been for centuries. She has invaded Szechuan, a border state of China. The only significance this has during the present world war, according to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, is that some thousand years before Solomon was born, Tibet boasted of a high state of civilization, as did her neighbor Szechuan. But ages of warfare have made Tibet the domain of half savage marauders. Tibet boasts the sacred city of Lhasa, the seat of official Buddhism, where squalor, art, religion and high pretensions are mixed in inextricable confusion.

Why Parrots Are Great Favorites.

Of all the members of the feathered tribes there are none which have been greater favorites and have been regarded with a greater degree of genuine attachment than parrots. The beauty of their plumage, with its wealth and variety of gorgeous colors, their symmetry of form and gracefulness of manner would alone have been sufficient to give them their popularity.

But the closest link they have established with our affections is, of course, found in their wonderful faculty for the repetition of spoken words and various familiar sounds, together with their possession, in many instances, of a reasoning power which suggests that they are not always mere imitators, but really understand the general sense of what they say. Combined with this power of speech, the fond attachment which they are capable of showing toward those who feed or are otherwise kind to them leads to their being among the most favored as they seem to be among the best fitted companions of human beings. This place of honor in the animal world they have held for many centuries.—Strand Magazine.

According to some of the old pictures, the patriarchs wore bath robes a long time before baths were invented.

Nearly every nation in Europe appears to feel that its neighbors are not up to the mark for self government.

In this mundane sphere it is not the woman alone who reserves the right to change her mind with or without provocation.

WEDDING BELLS

HOWARD—JAMIESON.

A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized this afternoon in St. Andrew's church at 2.30, Rev. Mr. Rowand officiating, when Annie M. (Bessie) Jamieson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jamieson, 314 Boswell avenue, was united in marriage to E. Clifford Howard Harrowsmith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard, of Toronto. Mr. W. A. Howard was formerly Fire Chief of this city. The bride, who was given away by her father, was charmingly attired in a tailored taupe suit with small hat to match.

The young couple, who were well known and very popular in the city, were the recipients of an unusually large number of beautiful gifts.

THE FRENCH AND AMERICAN TROOPS RECAPTURE A NUMBER OF IMPORTANT POSITIONS

Over a Thousand Prisoners, Taken Together With a Number of Machine Guns—Negro Troops Played An Important Part—Canadian Stationary Hospital Bombed.

BRITISH TRANSPORT TORPEDOED

WEDNESDAY MORNING BULLETINS.

PARIS, June 12.—The French, in their counter attack yesterday on a seven and a half mile front, between Rubescourt and St. Maur, recaptured Belloy, Genlis Wood and the heights between Courcelles and Mortemer, taking over a thousand prisoners and some guns. Negro troops played an important part.

PARIS, June 12.—The Americans, in recapturing Belleau Wood yesterday, took over three hundred prisoners and a few guns.

OTTAWA, June 12.—The Canadian Food Board will fix the prices of the wholesale produce dealers.

LONDON, June 12.—A Canadian stationary hospital, under Colonel Reason, was bombed a few days ago in the middle of the night. A number of the nursing sisters and officers were wounded.

NEW YORK, June 12. — The British transport "Ausonia," westward bound, was sunk by a submarine in mid ocean. Forty of the crew are missing.

TUESDAY EVENING BULLETIN.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 11.—The strongest effort made by the Germans last night and to-day in the new offensive was in the direction of the railroad connecting Stress, St. Denis and Montdidier. The Germans met with such strong resistance that they gave up for the time their attempts in this region. Negro troops, supported by Allied tanks, did great execution, delivered a counter attack in this vicinity, and recaptured the crest running south-west of Marqueglise.

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

The one great fate that touches our lives is the verdict of NOW.

Why I Believe in Nuxated Iron

As a Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron. It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; Physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monsignor Nannini, a prominent Clergyman, recommends it to all. Former Health Commissioner Wm. H. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician. Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor dep't.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital says there are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood builder but do not know what to take. In his opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, and other prominent people with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make the stools black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee every penny back if not entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Death Removes A Link With the Past

One of the old residents of the township of Smith was laid to rest in the Lakefield cemetery on Sunday afternoon followed by a large number of neighbours and friends of the deceased, in the person of Mrs. Coleman. She was the youngest daughter of the late James B. McEwen, who was one of the first settlers of the Township of Smith, and who came out about the year 1818 and settled on the Chemong road, when there was only an Indian trail from Peterborough to Bridgenorth.

Mrs. Blewett was born on the old farm 80 years ago. In after years she married Coleman Blewett, and they made their home on the 13th concession of Smith. They cleared it out of the woods and resided on the farm until her death. Mr. Blewett passed away about 15 years ago.

She raised a family of nine children, four of them having passed away and five remain. Mrs. James Davis, of the west, who was with her mother for some time before her death, and Mrs. B. Davis of Toronto, and James, Essie and Edna at home.

The Rev. Mr. Jull, of Lakefield Presbyterian church, held service at the home and was assisted by the Rev. Mr. McKee, of Bridgenorth. Mr. and Mrs. C. Telford sang the favourite hymn of the deceased, "Nearer My Home To-day."

Mrs. Blewitt was a member of the Lakefield Presbyterian church for many years. Her six grandsons were the pallbearers.

Mrs. J. N. Telford of Bridgenorth and Mrs. G. Jopling of Peterborough are half sisters of deceased.

NO CHANCE FOR THE GERMS

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. It's easier to keep well than to get well.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

KEEP HOEING

The gardener's best friend is the hoe—so keep it going. Nothing has done more to further the science of farming than the discovery of the fact that if you keep stirring up the soil around a plant it grows and produces better.

There is no necessity to hoe deeply—an inch is enough. Hoe every seven days at least and always after a rain or watering, in order to break up the crust which forms. The more hoeing you do the less watering will be necessary. This is because the dust or "mulch", as it is called, which is formed by the breaking up of the surface soil into fine particles, keeps the moisture around the roots of the plants from evaporating.

Another of the virtues of frequent hoeing is that it does not give the weeds a chance to make any progress. As they are the gardener's worst enemy he should make it a point to combat them for all he is worth. This is where the hoe will help him.

Since so many suffer disappointment, hoping to economize by buying cheap tea, it should be pointed out that inferior tea is actually an extravagance, since a pound of Salada yields so many more cups and, besides, has that delicious flavor.

UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN TO HOLD MILITARY CONVENTION

Suggested in Some Quarters at Washington That Russian Matters May Be Discussed—France and Other Allies Not Included

WASHINGTON, June 12. — State Department officials said they could not discuss "at present" the proposed military convention between the United States and Great Britain. Army officials professed to be in the dark about it, and Secretary Baker was not immediately available.

In some quarters it was suggested the convention would deal with Russian matters; and others that it was the matter of reciprocal drafting arrangement, or an agreement as to purpose in continuing the war till American-allied aims are achieved.

Still another suggestion was that the convention would deal with the proposed arrangement for an inter-allied war director, though this theory did not explain why France and the other allies were not included.

GRAIN MARKET

Unsettled and cooler weather probably had something to do with further strength in the corn market yesterday. Chicago closed 2 1-8c higher. The oats market was again very strong, reflecting the present strong spot situation. Spot offerings are easily absorbed at the existing premiums, mostly for export. The July option for western oats at Winnipeg closed 1 1-4c higher. For some reason (probably wire trouble in the west) the usual Winnipeg cash quotations were delayed to-day.

Manitoba wheat.—No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c. tax, in store, Fort William.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards.—Receipts yesterday were 22 cars, with 311 cattle, 211 calves, 153 hogs and 96 sheep and lambs.

There was very little business doing at the cattle markets yesterday. Receipts were very light and the holders were content to await to-day's market, seeing that there were but very few of the regular buyers on hand. A few scattered transactions, however, were sufficient to indicate that the market was holding good and firm at Monday's advance. There have been many brisk markets of late but Monday's was probably the best all round market yet, with the exception of the hog market, which has decidedly weakened in the past two weeks. Practically everything was cleared off the slate in yesterday's cattle offering and there were not enough fresh cattle in yesterday to make a fair market.

Packers were not keen after the small run of hogs offering and refused to deviate from the quotations sent out Monday on the basis of $18 fed and watered. A small bunch changed hands at $18 but the packers were perfectly willing to let them go at that.

LAKEFIELD HORSES IN A RUNAWAY

Three of Them Create a Riot in the Church Sheds

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, June 11.—There were three runaway horses out of the Methodist church sheds on Saturday night, one belonging to Mr. Percy McFadden, broke its halter and dashed out of the shed and was stopped at Mr. Harry Ingram's gate in Douro, about three miles away, with no damage to horse buggy or harness.

Mr. Willie Hunter's horse also broke lose about the same time, but was not so fortunate, as when his horse was going out of the Methodist church yards it overturned the buggy, damaging it somewhat, and broke loose, breaking part of the harness and whiffle tree and went straight home to his farm in Douro. The other belonged to Mr. Oscar Parsons, his horse being scared at the escapade of the other two, but was unable to break away, being tied by a heavy rope halter, but did some damage to the harness and buggy.

On Thursday Mrs. Wm. Simpson received a telegram informing her that her son, Gunner V. G. Simpson had been gassed. Gunner Simpson went overseas a year ago with the Cobourg Heavy Artillery. His brother Pte. T. A. Simpson, is at Camp Niagara.

Pte. Sweeting of Kingston, was home on week-end leave.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN GO TO THE MERCER

Mrs. Mary Rollo and her sister Lillian Weaver, were each sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Dunble to an indefinite term in the Mercer Reformatory, having been found guilty of keeping a disorderly house at 258 Antrim Street. Sergt. Blade, testified that he, Sergt. Reid, P. C. McIntosh and other members of the police force, had kept the house under observation for some time, and the evidence they adduced was convincing. It was confirmed by two young men who were fined $8.75 each for being frequenters. They happened to be visitors Wednesday night, and one of them admitted he had been improperly there before.

Heart Beat So Fast

Could Not Sleep

HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MERTON GRAY ARRIVES

CHAPTER XC.

Well whom do you think I just ran into?" George asked, when he returned from his walk.

"I don't know, I am sure."

"Gray! He says he is ready to finish that picture as soon as you can give him a couple of sittings. I told him you would attend to it at once. Might as well get it over with."

I felt puzzled and confused at the wave of pleasure that swept over me. Merton Gray was nothing to me, yet his coming where I was, gave me intense pleasure.

"I am ready any time you think best," I replied quietly.

"I'll telephone him in the morning. Then we can make arrangements. I am going yachting, so you would be alone. Perhaps you had better sit then. It will prevent your being lonely."

Already George was planning to leave me. The thought, perhaps, tinged my answer:

"Yes, that would be better than moping alone."

Anything would be better than nursing my bitter thoughts. I had been glad to leave Narragansett because I thought I should have George to myself. In truth, I had absolutely given no thought to the plan to finish my picture in Newport. If I considered it at all, it was as something to be done at some time during the summer, rather than so soon after our arrival.

The Next Morning.

George arranged everything. He fixed the hour and did the talking. As usual, all I had to do was to obey orders. So, about an hour after George left for his yachting trip, I walked slowly over to Merton's studio chaperoned by Celeste.

"Madame, is triste, this morning," the girl said, as we walked along.

My thoughts made be blush. I wondered if George would like me better if he saw that Merton Gray really cared for me. Deep down in my heart, I knew that I could very easily make Merton care for me. How I knew this, I could not explain. But that he liked to be with me—enjoyed my company—I knew now; it would not be a long step to winning his affection, I was positive.

I liked him, too. Would it be unfair to play him off against George? By the time we had reached his studio I decided, no, that I liked him too well to use him in any way, even to win my husband's love through jealousy of him. That there was any danger for me in my friendship for Merton, I never imagined. I realized that I enjoyed his society, but believed it was for the same reason that I enjoyed being with Kurts and Evelyn; he was young he was not critical, and I could be natural when with him.

So I went along, blindly—wanting to do right—wanting happiness and love. I have learned, in the years long past, that love is the common need of women; they cannot thrive and be happy without love of some kind—that of husband or of children. Without it, their natures are but half developed, and they go blundering along through life, reaching out for something to satisfy that craving, just as I was blundering and groping them.

A Quiet Morning.

Merton was unaffectedly glad to see me, and showed no disposition to hurry the sitting. But I was self-conscious, and very subdued. The thought which had filled my mind, on the way over, had made a peculiar impression upon me. It was as if I had planned to rob someone and had been caught in the act. I was glad when he finally commenced to work.

The studio was not large, and Celeste was able to see and hear. I was glad that it was so. I felt, someway, that she was a safeguard. Never before had I felt this way. Never had I so dissected my feelings toward anyone. I longed for Evelyn although had she been with me, I should not have told her of my emotions.

But Merton painted industriously while I kept turning things over in my mind. The picture was nearly finished—that is, the sittings were, and when I left (after refusing to walk along the beach with him), he regretted that it would so soon be unnecessary for me to visit the studio.

"It will give you more time for other things, but I shall miss having you," he said as I left.

"Yes, it will give me more time with Mr. Howard," I said slowly and deliberately. Why I should say such a thing, I don't know. Everyone that knew George, knew that he was a great man's man, a club and society man, and that, consequently, I was much alone.

Merton looked at me in a sort of pitying fashion, then said softly:

"You are a very brave little lady."

A STUBBORN ARTIST.

Richard Mansfield once asked Frank A. Nankivell to make a picture of him. The actor explained that he wanted an imitation of an old Roman coin with his own profile shown instead of Cæsar's.

"Do you want an absolute likeness, or shall I idealize it a bit?" asked Nankivell.

When the completed picture—a splendid piece of work that looks as if it were embossed—was shown to Mr. Mansfield he was not pleased.

"That is not my fault," said Nankivell. "You know that you said you wanted a likeness."

There was a further exchange of courtesies, and then Mansfield suggested that the artist try again. "Excuse me," said Nankivell. "Once will do me."

"Not a fix," said the artist as he rolled up the picture and prepared to go with a parting shot. "You don't want an artist to draw your picture; you want a lithographer. Good day."

A GENERAL'S BAGGAGE.

It may be laid down as a military axiom that a general's ability is not measured by the amount of baggage he takes to war.

It is said that when General Sir John French embarked to take command of the British forces fighting with the French against the Germans in northern France all the baggage he took was contained in a single suit case.

When "Stonewall" Jackson started out on a campaign he took along no personal baggage except a withered carpetbag of ancient pattern, and even this modest receptacle was but half filled. Both these generals bear distinguished reputations as successful leaders.

Contrariwise, when Napoleon III., emperor of France, left Paris in 1870 to take command of the armies which, he said, were going straight to Berlin he took along forty-eight trunks besides a most voluminous kitchen and bedroom equipage. The Germans got every scrap of it all at Sedan. His son, the prince imperial, escaped from Sedan and the besieguering Germans with his personal effects, which filled a special train of five cars.—Washington Star.

JUST WHAT BECAME OF POND

Foolish Questioner, It Is to Be Supposed, Was Satisfied With Explanation Offered Him.

Speaking at a dinner, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois referred to the propensity of some people for asking foolish questions, and told the following story:

One day a city man happened in a country community, and while rambling around he ran across a depression in the earth covering several acres. Some perplexed, he questioned a native close by, and was told that it was the bed of a lost lake.

"You don't really mean it?" returned the city man. "Whatever became of all the water?"

"It was this way," readily explained the native. "There was a picnic out here last August, and when night came on they had nearly a barrel of pretzels left, which they didn't want to cart back home, so they threw them in the lake."

"Yes, I see," interjected the other as the native paused, "but what had that to do with it?"

"Everything," answered the native. "The fish ate them, and the salty diet made them so thirsty that they drank all the water."

At this time of the year most people suffer from a condition often called Spring Fever. They feel tired, worn out, before the day is half thru. They may have frequent headaches and sometimes "pimply" or pale skin.

Bloodless people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the springtime of the year, should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alterative and blood purifier. Such a one is extracted from Blood root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Queen's root and Oregon Grape root, made up with chemically pure glycerine and without the use of alcohol. This can be obtained in ready-to-use tablet form in fifty-cent vials, as druggists have sold it for fifty years as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form.

WINDSOR, ONT.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Pleasant Pellets' are wonderful medicines for home use. I used to suffer with weak lungs, smothering spells and sick-headaches, but since I have taken the above mentioned medicines these conditions have left me.

"Such medicines as Dr. Pierce's are worthy of praise and I am very glad to add my testimonial to the thousands of others."—Mrs. ELLEN HARDING, 11 Erie Street, West.

Communal Kitchens.

The latest proposal for the elimination of waste in food and the supply of meals at minimum cost in England, includes, what for a better term is called, communal feeding. The communal kitchen has been proposed on several occasions but, save for a few spasmodic experiments, it has not been given a thorough trial. Lord Rhondda is interested in the new proposal and acting with a committee of social workers he is devising plans to give the scheme a real test. With so many women doing war work and with consequent neglect of household duties, some such plan as is proposed fill have to be carried out if the rising generation is not to suffer seriously in health.

War Helps Chinese Industry.

The European war and consequent cessation of imports of German aniline dyes is bringing about a revival of China's ancient industry of indigo making. China's fondness for this color has earned for her the name of the Land of the Blue Gown. Indigo growing is especially adapted to the Yangtze valley and southern China. The color is extracted by soaking the leaves in hot water and beating the pulp.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Widow, a Girl And a Bear

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, by T. C. McClure

Besides owning a farm of a hundred acres the widow Jenkins was the possessor of a one horned cow, a three legged sheep and a tame bear. All were curiosities in their way, but the cow and the sheep have nothing to do with this story. As the side show men say, they are thrown in without extra cost, and it is up to the bear to entertain the audience.

Besides owning a farm of nearly 200 acres, situated about half a mile below the widow Jenkins', Squire Davis was the proprietor of the only windmill for ten miles around and the father of a son twenty-two years old named Harry. The windmill was a good thing in its way, but it will be blown out of this story at once and make no reappearance. The squire was a pompous, aggressive sort of a man who wanted to do all the bossing and have other people do all the minding, while the widow was a woman with a mind of her own and didn't propose to be walked on by anybody. It thus came about that soon after she was left a widow she and the squire clashed. No lawsuit followed, but it was a bad thing for the cattle and pigs that strayed over the boundary lines, and there was always something doing to furnish the neighbors with talk.

The relations between the squire and the widow had been strained for three or four years when two new characters came into the cast. A smart, good looking girl named Betty Lee came to live with the widow, and she hadn't been there two weeks when Harry Davis saw and fell in love with her. The son had tried to stand neutral in the quarrel, though naturally leaning toward his father's side. Perhaps one reason why he couldn't be brought to think altogether ill of the widow was on account of her bear. She had bought the animal of a stroller who had been taken sick and shipped to a distant town. It was a big black bear, full of tricks and good nature, and it had taken a great liking to Harry. When the quarrel reached a certain stage of bitterness he had to part with the bear as well as the widow. The separation had lasted two years or more when Betty Lee arrived. A month later the young man was visiting the widow, the girl and the bear and enjoying each and every occasion. These visits were unknown to the father, of course, and he did not discover them until rumor said that his son was going to marry Betty and that the widow Jenkins had brought things about to spite him.

THE SQUIRE TURNED PALE AND SHOOK IN HIS CHAIR.

"Young man, is it so or is it not?" he demanded of Harry after inviting him out to the barn for a talk.

"I love Betty and am going to marry her," was the reply.

"You'll never do it with my consent."

"But I am of age, father."

"Then I'll cast you off. If you marry that girl you cease to be a son of mine and shall never get a cent of this property."

Harry didn't indulge in any heroics. On the contrary, he took the matter so quietly that his father chuckled to himself and believed that he had gained a victory in the first round. He let it be known that he expected Harry to cease his visits to the farmhouse, but at the same time he was prepared to close his eyes for a time and give the boy a chance to retire with dignity. Things went on for three months without anything further being said—that is, while it was said on all sides that Harry and Betty would be married on Thanksgiving day the talk did not reach the squire's ears until one evening in October. He was a man who acted on impulse. He determined to go straight over to the widow's and settle things his way within fifteen minutes of arriving.

The widow's bear had no particular grudge against the squire, but he was a watchdog as well as a bear. He had been turned out that evening to roam around and see that all was well, and when he suddenly discovered Squire Davis coming cross lots through the barnyard it was only natural that he should fasten his teeth in the farmer's trousers leg and conduct him to the door of the house. The squire didn't scare at bulls or tramps or mad dogs, but he drew the line at bears. He was in a cold fright when he reached the house, and the widow added to it by allowing the bear to follow him in and sit up before him and growl and show his teeth. Harry had come courting as usual, and of course the position was embarrassing for a couple of minutes. It might have lasted longer but for the presence of mind of the widow. She realized that the bear had dealt her a winning hand, and she proceeded to play it for all it was worth.

"I am very glad to see you," she said as she placed a chair for the caller. "I am Widow Jenkins, as perhaps you know. This young lady is my friend, Miss Lee, and the young gentleman there is your son Harry. The bear has introduced himself, but I wish to say on his behalf that he is aching to make mince meat of you."

"Harry, what are you doing here?" hoarsely demanded the father.

"Courting Betty, sir," was the reply. "We are soon to be married, and I was going to tell you of it in a day or two."

"Married to that girl—never! You will remember that I told you"—

The bear reared up and growled ominously, and the squire turned pale and shook in his chair.

"You must not talk so loud," cautioned the widow. "Bumbo has got one of his savage fits on, and I can't hold him. What's the matter with Miss Lee that you don't want Harry to marry her?"

"Don't you? Down, Bumbo! Well, as the two are in love and engaged, I think they will marry, and you will be very silly to interfere. Don't move your legs or Bumbo will have them!"

"Why don't you call off your blamed old bear when you see that he is ready to eat me?" shakingly exclaimed the squire as the sweat broke out on his face.

"I can't. He gets these savage fits on once in awhile, and there's no doing anything with him. If he gets his teeth into you I don't think we can save you. Have you anything against Miss Lee?"

"N-o."

"Don't you think she would make Harry a good wife?"

"I told you I didn't want— By thunder, are you going to see me eaten alive?"

"Bumbo, spare him a little longer!" appealed the widow. "Now, then, Miss Lee comes of a nice family and is worth $8,000, and she and Harry are to be married Thanksgiving day—that is, they were to be, but I have concluded to have the ceremony performed this evening. Squire Davis, you are a justice of the peace."

"What! Me marry 'em!" he shouted. But the bear started in to hug him, and he almost fainted away in his terror.

"Yes, you will marry them," quietly replied the widow after a bit. "It will be a neat, nice thing to do, and it will be a good joke on the people who expect you to make a fool of yourself. That's one side of it. The other side is that the bear is getting overanxious."

The squire fought against it for a quarter of an hour, but the widow, the bear and the girl, aided by occasional appeals from Harry, carried the day, and he stood up with the bear beside him and welded two souls according to law. Then the bride was kissed, the bear chained up, and as the squire nibbled his doughnut and sipped his glass of cider he was man enough to admit that he guessed it was all for the best—"gaul durn that bear!"

Industrial Courage
---and War

In the dark days of 1914 we, in common with many manufacturers, faced this problem:

Would it be wiser to curtail production, ship from stock when we had it, and manufacture only in so far as future contracts called for?

Or should we "carry on" normally and trust to the gifts of the gods to see us through?

On the one hand was apparent security from immediate financial loss. On the other hand were the tremendous hazards of overproduction in a falling market.

We decided to carry on.

We reasoned that for thirty years customers had relied upon us for prompt deliveries of their Power Transmission Machinery; and that if an industrial reaction followed the slump, and our stocks were down, the risk of loss of prestige from failing in prompt service, was far greater than the risk of financial loss from overproduction.

Fortune favored us.

When in 1915 and 1916 orders came pouring in we were able to maintain our reputation for quality of product, stability of price, and promptness and reliability of deliveries, under most strenuous conditions.

In fact, the access of business seemed but an additional spur to efficiency in all departments. Our men caught the spirit of it and responded nobly.

As a result 1915, 1916 and 1917 have been progressively the most successful years in our history.

Judging from the ample stocks of all units ready for shipment, we may say with confidence that we were never better placed to render good service than we are at the present. And when export markets open up again, the Dodge standard will be in the van of the race for Canada's share in Imperial trade.

Dog's Death Led to Suicide.

Mrs. Margaret Dugdale, wife of Norman Dugdale, J. P., of Dutton Manor, near Blackburn, was found dead with a bullet wound in her forehead in a field near the grave of her favorite dog, which had been destroyed on account of old age. Depression caused by its loss was suggested at the inquest as the cause of her suicide, says Lloyd's News, London. When found she was grasping a humane cattle killer, at her feet was a mallet with which she had discharged the weapon, and a loaded revolver was in a basket near her. She had fixed a mirror to the fence, and a note pinned to her dress gave directions for the disposal of her body. Mr. Dugdale said he thought the dog's death, which his wife had taken greatly to heart, was the cause of the tragedy, and the jury's verdict was that Mrs. Dugdale shot herself while of unsound mind.

She Thinks She Does.

CAN WIN BATTLES AT HOME

Housewife Finds Joy in Thought That She Is Helping to Defeat the Hated Boche.

"It's a funny thing," said the Man to his Wife the other night, "You used to like cooking, as I remember it. Breaking a new maid in was always a time of great trial and tribulation. But every night I come home to dinner you emerge from the kitchen almost as though you hated to leave the masterpieces you have evolved long enough to greet your hard-working husband properly. What's the reason?"

"Well," said the Wife of her Husband, "it's like this. It's a sort of game. I may not ever see my fighting but I feel that out there in the kitchen I am helping France, England and, last but not least, our own blessed boys. Every time I make a loaf of rye bread I feel like waving a flag. Every time I make my allowance stretch a little bit I feel as though I had won a battle. And so I have. I've beaten old General Highcostaliving. Every time I squeeze a War Savings stamp out of the food allowance I feel that I personally have fired a shot at the Boches."

"Good girl," said the Man patted his Wife gently. "Since I can't go and we have no one to give, the best we can do is to play the game over here as though we loved it."

Responsibilities.

"What are a diplomat's responsibilities?" said the inquiring young man.

"They vary," replied the experienced official. "Sometimes a diplomat is the man who starts the trouble, and sometimes he merely takes the responsibility."—Washington Star.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The Largest Nests.

The mound-shaped nests of the jungle fowls of Australia, in which the eggs are hatched by the heat of the decomposing vegetation, are sometimes 15 feet high and 150 feet in circumference. They are believed to be the largest nests made by any creature.

Million-Dollar Brain.

"Old Bostely says he has a million-dollar brain," observed the man who was always picking up information. "He's quite right," answered the other; "it would cost him fully that much to find out what's the matter with it."

But the Healing Fumes of Catarrhozone, Which are Breathed to the Furthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Sure Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief but will always cure permanently. Yours sincerely, (Signed) WILLIAM RAGAN, Brockville, Ont.

For absolute, permanent cure, use Catarrhozone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00, smaller size, 50c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Mounted Police and the Indians

THE North American Indian before civilization (?) corrupted him was pretty much of a man by man's measures. He recognized and practiced heroic virtues. He was ready to take without whimpering anything he would prescribe for an enemy. And he knew and admired a strong man whose word was trustworthy and who lived, rather than preached, the religion of a square deal. He naturally resented the coming of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police to disturb the ancient tenor of his ways. He chafed under the new regime of discipline and regulation. He made it as lively for the troopers as he could find ways to do so. Yet he soon learned to respect the red-coated riders and by degrees to give them his friendship and his support.

In 1879 the chance presented itself for the police — always tactful and humane administrators — to impress on the native mind that they and the great White Mother were friends as well as rulers. At last the buffalo herds failed, exterminated by the indiscriminate hunting fostered by a widening market for the hides. Starvation faced the red men.

It was the Mounted Police who came to the rescue and from twelve to fifteen hundred Indians were fed out of stores, the supplies being at one time reduced to six sacks of flour. The famishing Indians found that the policemen who would spend a week in the saddle, determined, resourceful and vigilant, to bring a lawbreaker to justice, would also go as far and farther to give food and hope to the dusky wards of the Government.

Later as many as seven thousand Bloods, Peigans and Sarcees were placed on rations by their police-protectors, beef and flour being distributed daily from June until October.

The great wall of distrust and suspicion that the police had ever found an impenetrable barrier between themselves and the native nations, if it did not crumble, at least had many breaches made in it afterwards. The abler and stronger chiefs began, too, to recognize the wisdom of official sternness in dealing with the whiskey trader, the smuggler and the outlaw; and as years passed, tribe after tribe aligned itself in support of police authority, simplifying the great task and once anew illustrating the soundness of that centuries-old policy that has made Britain the greatest colonizing power of any age or era.

It was largely through cemented tribal friendships that the work of safeguarding C.P.R. construction was simplified and ultimately accomplished with but a nominal clash between aboriginal wilfulness and the new authority in the land; and in 1883 the Government was able to transmit the official thanks and congratulations of the railway company upon the success achieved and the great reform accomplished in the breaking down of the whiskey traffic organization during the eventful railway-building period.

The police work had been strenuous, difficult, incessant. It had involved a display of courage, of stamina, of hardihood, of administrative genius that gave "the force" recognition and brought to it adventure-seeking recruits from Old Country families of nobility and ancient lineage, whose younger sons discovered to their joy that the scarlet tunic of the prairie rough-riders had become as recognized a uniform of high distinction as the historic blue of the famous Guards. There was breathing room for high spirits in the life, and inspiration in such tales as might be read between the bare-bones lines of scant official reports chronicling the day's work of the troopers, as when, in 1883, two of the self-sure constables were officially acquainted of the fact that Pie-a-Pots and his band of several hundred braves had camped on the right-of-way and threatened no end of trouble.

"Go out and move them back," was the order.

And the two policemen saluted, swung into the saddle, and sped to execute orders.

They found Pie-a-Pots and his people in ugly temper. They gave the Indians fifteen minutes in which to move camp; and when the reds displayed no obedient intent, the sergeant in charge brought matters to a head by kicking out the key-poles of the tepees.

It is axiomic of the police policy "when in a tight place—start something yourself."

In this particular instance it was a case of hundreds against two — but the two were clean-strain white men with will and nerves of steel.

So the Indians moved.

In years later it was Sergt. Fitzgerald who was called to headquarters one evening to be told that two northern tribes nursing an ancient vendetta had donned the battle paint and feathers and were facing one another with a thin ribbon of river dividing the camps, the stealing of a girl being offered as excuse for the making of war medicine.

"You will disperse both the forces and bring their chiefs back with you here," said the unblinking commissioner.

How he calmly and confidently informing the opposing chiefs that unless the tribes were dispersed, the war abandoned, and they themselves came down to headquarters to make required explanations and assurances, all would forthwith be arrested and taken in chains to prison is one of the epics of the service unrivalled by any of the fictional exploits of D'Artagnan or Gerard.

Motorcycles in War.

From the arrival of the British expeditionary force in Belgium in the late summer of 1914 down to the present time the motorcycle has steadily gained in importance in different branches of the military service. Its use has not been restricted to the allied armies. The best authorities place the number of motorcycles employed by the armies of the central powers at the time of the Battle of the Marne at 18,000. The British had at least 40,000 in service in the spring of 1915, while the French had about 11,000. The Italian forces up to present have 10,000 according to recent estimates, says Popular Science Monthly.

It has been figured that more than 750,000 motorcycles have been in use for military purposes by the belligerent powers since July 1914. This does not include those at present in the United States army service, for prior to our entrance in the great war the American army did not have more than perhaps 150 machines in all.

Pleasant Prospect.

"I say, Briggs, dine with me at my house tonight, will you?"

Women With Weakness Find New Strength

For all special weaknesses from which girls and women suffer, no surer remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they maintain that bracing health every woman so earnestly desires, they uproot disease and bring strength that lasts till old age.

Fuel Value of Coal Lessened.

Careful estimates made by the director of the bureau of mines and his associates indicate that while last year's coal output of 600,000,000 tons will probably be increased to 650,000,000 tons this year, the effectiveness of this fuel will be equivalent to a production of normally prepared coal aggregating only 570,000,000 tons. The reason for this surprising discrepancy is that much of the coal is not being prepared with the usual care. It is calculated that there is 5 per cent more ash content in this year's coal than in that of previous years. In other words, approximately 600,000 carloads of ash are being added to the burden borne by the railways.

It has been shown that the inclusion of 5 per cent more ash in the coal means a reduction in efficiency in the remaining good coal of 7½ per cent. Stating the case another way, the total reduction in the coal's effectiveness is 12½ per cent.

Daylight Saving Worked Well.

In the United Kingdom during the four and a half months that daylight saving was practiced in 1916, it is claimed that the saving in gas alone conserved 260,000 tons of coal. The expenses to consumers were reduced by $2,375,000. Electric light companies reported a reduction of about 20 per cent.

In France fuel used for illuminating purposes was 10 per cent less after the daylight saving program was adopted.

In Germany the Berlin municipal gas works reported in May and June of 1916 a decrease of 508,500 cubic meters, in spite of the fact that 18,000 new gas meters had been installed during the previous six months.

Easy Money.

Near Otis Hill, in Hingham, Mass., where once stood a target and rifle range, the highway road excavator has scooped from the hilly ground several hundred pounds of lead from bullets fired there, and one young man is credited with having obtained enough lead to fill an ash sifter, his first hour's work netting him $1.50.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES

Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

The Chief Justice.

"There are very few people who know the proper designation of the man who presides over the supreme court," said the secretary of the senate.

"Generally he is referred to as the chief justice of the United States supreme court. In fact, he is the chief justice. That's his official title. Most of our presidents in nominating men for this office have fallen into the error of giving him the long title. When George Washington nominated Oliver Ellsworth of Connecticut for this post he described it as chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. Andrew Jackson made the same error in nominating Roger B. Taney. So did Abraham Lincoln when he appointed Salmon P. Chase. Grover Cleveland was the first president to give the correct designation. When he appointed Melville W. Fuller he nominated him to be chief justice and nothing else."—Washington Star.

Aching Head, Pains In Back

Heart Action Was Weak and Nerves Greatly Exhausted—Now in Extra Good Health.

TWEED, Ont., June 11.—This is a cheering letter from Mrs. Wagar, because it describes the condition in which many women find themselves and tells how cure was effected.

Once the food cure was resorted to the system was gradually and certainly built up and reconstructed. The old symptoms disappeared, because the reason for their existence had been overcome. It is well worth while to give Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a troial when such results are obtained.

Mrs. H. E. Wagar, Tweed, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition, I could not sleep well, and was very nervous. I had frequent headaches and pains through my back, and my nerves used to twitch. I took weak spells, was short of breath and my heart action seemed weak. I was in very poor health generally. I went to a doctor and he advised me to take a rest, anod gave me medicine, but it did not help me. My husband got me some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, and this treatment gave me such relief that I took many boxes—I cannot tell just how many, but enough to build up my system and rid me of the old symptoms. I gradually began to get stronger, until I could get around and do my own house work. I am not bothered now with sick headaches and am enjoying extra good health. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

OLDEST DYNASTY IN WORLD

Distinction Undoubtedly Belongs to the Reigning House of Japan—Began With Emperor Jimmu.

The present Japanese dynasty is by far the oldest in the world, for Yoshihito claims to be the one hundred twenty-second monarch of an unbroken line, dating from the seventh century before the Christian era, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The early history of Nippon, as recorded in the holy book, Shinto, begins with the dynasties of the gods and is wholly mythical in nature. The dawn of real history begins with the reign of Jimmu Tenno, whose memory is revered today by all the sons of Nippon.

Jimmu the Great forced the savage tribes to accept civil institutions and extended his beneficent sway over the entire country. He established his capital at Kioto. He formulated a code of laws, established courts, encouraged industry, and laid the foundation for that marvelous advance made by the Japanese during the nineteenth century.

The title of mikado, which means "honorable gate," was derived from Jimmu. From the days of this ruler Japanese power in the Orient increased. The successors of Jimmu like the great emperor himself, were worshiped as gods upon earth. Women were not excluded from the succession to the throne, and there are many famous empresses in the history of Japan.

Cheap Gas Scheme.

Two poorly clad women were proceeding homeward after the mothers' meeting, and naturally they discussed domestic economy.

"Dae ye ken," said Mrs. Brown, "I'm due $5 for gas this month, and I dinna ken how I'll get it paid."

"Why not be like me," said Mrs. Green, "and use the nickel-in-the-slot meter?"

"But they say it's the dearest in the end. Ye get less gas for your nickel, ye ken, than I get for mine."

"Aye, but ye see, it's just this way wi' me—I never put in nae mair than a nickel at a time, and, ye see, a lot o' folk comes tae my hoose at night, and whenever the gas begins to go down I just let on I hinna got a nickel! An' there is aye somebody ready to stump one up. Oh, yes, it's far cheaper in the end."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

British Geological Pictures.

A committee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science has been engaged for many years in forming a national collection of photographs illustrating the geology of the British isles. According to the last report the collection now includes upward of 5,600 pictures. More than a thousand of these were taken in Yorkshire. A collection of the same character has been made by the geological survey of Great Britain, which has recently published a list of its Scottish pictures. Both the B. A. committee and the geological survey offer prints and lantern slides for sale, and printed lists of them are available. The Tunbridge Wells Natural History society offers prizes for photographs of scenery illustrating geological features.—Scientific American.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S HOUSE DRESS.

It is quite possible for your house dress to be just as smartly tailored as your street dress provided you choose the right style and make it carefully. A very new style which has a number of good features is shown in No. 8813. The shoulder edges of the back of the waist extend over to meet the fronts, which are gathered. The white linen or pique collar is very attractively shaped, and it follows the surplice closing to the left side front. The long sleeves are caught in plaits below the elbows and trimmed with buttons. If the shorter sleeves are preferred they may be finished with turn back cuffs. The skirt is unusually well cut for this type of dress. It has four gores, the front one being curved from hips to waistline, with inserted pockets.

The ladies' house dress pattern No. 8813 is cut in five sizes—36 to 44 inches bust measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. The 36-inch size requires 6⅞ yards 27-inch, 5 yards 36-inch or 3⅝ yards 44-inch material, with ⅝ yard 36-inch contrasting material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

Manufacturers Are Out For a Square Deal—"Tirade of Abuse Has Gone Too Far" Says President

OPENING SESSION

MONTREAL, June 12.—Pooling of resources between the United States and Canada is recommended by tariff committee which reported to Canadian manufacturers association at opening session today in Windsor Hotel here. The committee complains that behind the embargoes placed on certain raw materials by United States government, American manufacturers are able to dominate and undersell the Canadians in the dominion market.

The committee alludes to legislation passed at Ottawa last year as representing the opposite of protection and stifling domestic industry while encouraging importation on foreign manufacturers. The president's address delivered this afternoon said the time had arrived when the government and members of parliament and people of Canada must be fair to the manufacturers and not consider their interests as a football to be kicked about by politicans and others, or national interests are sure to be adversely affected. "The Tirade of abuse has already gone too far," said the president.

General Assembly Discuss Concentration Of Theologians

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 12.— The Presbyterian General Assembly this morning continued a discussion of the subject of concentration of theological students, in fewer colleges. President Murray, of the University of Saskatchewan, said that such concentration would be difficult owing to the fact that a larger number than ever of students were married. Rev. W. O. Mulligan, of New Bedford, Nova Scotia, indicated that he would bring in a resolution to do away with four or five of the theological colleges of the Presbyterian church.

Nineteen Year Old Youths May Not Be Called Until Fall

Seventy-one Thousand Men Have Reported Under Military Service Act

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA June 12.—It is now considered unlikely that any of the fifty-one thousand nineteen year old Canadians who have registered for military service will be called to the colours before September or October. It is thought that seventy-five per cent. of those registered will be in Category A physically, that means fit for overseas service. Up to date seventy-one thousand men of other ages have reported, or been ordered to report, under the Military Service Act.

FUNERAL WAS HELD YESTERDAY.

REMAINS OF THE LATE OSCAR McCOLL WERE INTERRED AT WOOLER.

Service was held at St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock, where high mass was celebrated by Dean McColl. The remains were then taken to Wooler, where Father John O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart Church blessed the body and Father McGuire preached an eloquent sermon. Other clergymen who accompanied the remains to St. Alphonsus church, Wooler, were Fathers Michael O'Brien, Ferguson and McGinty, and Dean McColl.

The pall bearers were Messrs, Jas. Lynch, F. Hourigan, E. Hickey, E. MacNamara, J. Hickey and Mr. McCarty.

The church at Wooler was filled with friends of the deceased who had come to pay their last tribute to a man who was respected and admired in the parish all his life.

HEAVY FIGHTING IS NOW IN PROGRESS ON THE WESTERN FRONT WAR OFFICE REPORTS

Violent German Attacks Have Been Repulsed by the French ---Sporadic Activity in the Region of Lens---Enemy Losses Are Very Heavy.

BRITISH AND FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORTS

LONDON, June 12.—An enemy raiding party last night attacked a British post in Aveluy Wood, but was repulsed, the War Office announced today. The British carried out a successful raid in the Boyelles region, capturing a few prisoners. There was sporadic activity by enemy artillery during the night in the region west of Lens.

THE STATEMENT READS:

The battle between Montdidier and the Oise continued during the night. On our right, attacks by the enemy against positions we had reconquered were broken. The French troops have made new progress east of Mery and Genlis Wood. Violent German attacks have been repulsed by the French on and around the front at St. Mur, the Loge Farm and Anthuile. The French troops have withstood the shock of all attacks and inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy, while holding their positions on the right. The Germans, in spite of repeated efforts, have not been able to debouch south of the Matz.

The French are holding that part of the field south of Chevencourt and Marest-Sur-Matz. According to new information from the battle front, the French counter attack yesterday occured while a powerful German attack was in preparation on the same front. French troops came in contact with heavy forces of the enemy and threw them into disorder. Prisoners taken by one French division, are found to belong to four different German divisions. South of the Aisne the Germans attacked this morning, between the river and village Villiers-Chateau Forest. Combats are going on along the front of Dommiers Cutrie and south of Ambleny.

ON THE ITALIAN FRONT.

Twenty-one enemy airplanes have been destroyed on the Italian front by the British air forces operating there, according to to-day's War Office statement reporting on British operations in this area.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, June 12.—The battle continued during last night on the front between Montdidier and the River Oise, without great change in the situation, the War Office announced today. On the French left additional progress was made by the French troops in the region east of Mery and Genlist Wood. Near the centre, along the Aronde front, in the region of St. Maur, the Loge Farm and Antheuil, the French repulsed violent attacks by the enemy. The French are holding in that part of the battle area south of Chevrincourt and Marest Sur Matz.

South of the Aisne, on the front between Soissons and the Marne, the Germans attacked this morning. Fighting is going on between the river and the Villier-Cotteres Forest. Violent combats are being fought on the front of Domieres Cutrie and south of Ambleny.

MILITARY CRITIC'S OPINION.

PARIS, June 12.—To-day's fighting probably will decide on which side victory will rest in the present battle, says Henry Bidou, the military critic, in reviewing the situation. He says the fighting is taking a classical form in which each side has won on one wing. The scales are now even. By their counter attack the French stopped the enemy from carrying out his plan, and at the same time assured themselves of a better line of defence. The Germans are now obliged, Bidou believes, to keep their effectives on the firing line and to dip into their stock of reserves for fresh divisions. The plan for the present battle, says Marcel Hutin, of the Echo De Paris, in reporting the statements of prisoners, included the attacking and storming of Compeigne by the cavalry, under Gen. Von Schoeler on Sunday evening. Now the Germans not only are not at Compeigne, but they show a great deal less vigour in their efforts except on their left.

Plans For The Formation Of A Russian Army Outlined To United States Representative

Bolsheviki Has Placed Moscow Under Martial Law—Plot to Overthrow Government.

SERVE FOR RUSSIA

(United Press Service.)
(By Joseph Shaplen.)

STOCKHOLM, June 12.—The action of the Bolsheviki in putting Moscow under martial law is probably due to the uncovering of a plot which was brewing when I left Russia, which aimed at the overthrow of the Bolsheviki by simultaneous uprisings in Moscow and Petrograd.

Prince Kropotkin, M. Savinkoff, and a number of the Cadet party leaders were involved in the plot.

Plans for the formation of a Russian army of workmen and peasants were outlined to the United States representative in a recent interview given by General Parsky, formerly commander of the Russian forces at Riga, but now military chief of the Petrograd district.

Future Plans.

"We are taking all measures possible for the defense of the country," he said. "Inasmuch as Germany can break the Brest peace treaty whenever she wishes. We have not yet fully developed a plan of training workmen and peasants, but in some places a tentative plan is in full operation.

"Universal military service is impossible at present. It will be possible only when order is restored. Until then we must adhere to the volunteer system endeavouring to form the neuclus of a new great Russian army. When the people are fully re-awakened and order has been re-established, we hope to organize effective resistance and regain Russia's sovereignty As long as the present government lasts we must submit and serve for Russia's sake."

Bolsheviki Must Go.

The new red army is worthless and everybody in Petrograd realizes this. The return of Russia to the war is inevitable. Either this or Russia will become extinct. But before anything definite can be done the Bolsheviki must go, according to the opinion of most Russian observers.

The separation Russia and Ukrane is purely artificial. Already the Ukranians are revolting against Germany and Hetman Skoropadski.

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, June 12.—An American coast patrol vessel has had one battle with a German U boat raider. From an unquestionable source to-day came this fact, together with the fact that the Navy has had a mass of reports from patrol commanders. None of those have been made public. Secretary Daniels has taken the position that only absolutely authenticated cases of sinking or capture will be announced.

247th Man Is Wounded

Pte. W. H. Hall, of Peterborough, who enlisted here in the 247th Battalion last year and went overseas as a member of the 235th, with which the second Peterborough battalion was amalgamated, is officially reported wounded. He was transferred to another Canadian infantry battalion.

RUMBLINGS OF PROTEST

Latest Figures Show Startling Increases in the Prices of Foodstuffs

A FEW EXAMPLES

(Special to Examiner)

OTTAWA June 12.—Rumblings of protest against the rapid rise of retail prices thoughout the Dominion and against the lack of action of the food board to prevent or stem it are reaching the Government from various parts of Canada. The labour departments figures continue to show startling increases in the retail prices of almost all the necessities of life despite "Price Fixing" in the case of certain wholesales.

News reaching Ottawa of the decision of the consumers protective association in co-operation with the Great War Veterans Association and other bodies to call a mass meeting at an early date to protest against the increase of prices and to call for a complete re-organization of the Canada Food Board on entirely different lines.

A Few Instances.

For instance eggs sell for 35c in Minneapolis and for 42c in Winnipeg. Bacon 27c per pound in Minneapolis and 45c in Winnepeg. Sirloin steak for 18 cents in Minneapolis and 1or 35c in Winnipeg. Butter as for 20c in Minneapolis, 40c in Winnipeg and 60c in Peterboro.

Similar comparisons it is stated, could be made between Canadian and United States prices all along the border.

The Canada Food Board has fixed prices, in the case of certain wholesalers commodities—or rather it has fixed the profits — notably in the case of flour, a report recently published states that the limiting of profits has not been limited at at all since the mills never made the profits allowed.

The profits of the packers have been fixed, but it has been followed by a decrease in the price of their commodites.

Consumer Pays.

As a matter of fact the Canada Food Board lays down the principle that price-fixing is all wrong. The retail dealers have been licensed but

LOSSES ARE VERY SEVERE

Military Authorities Estimate the Enemy Losses at 686,000 in the Big Offensive

AUXILIARY TROOPS

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 12. — German casualties in the big offensive to date, according to scientific military calculations total at least 686,000.

Having engaged 260 divisions in the original Picardy-Flanders offensive, 58 divisions in the Marne drive, and 20 between Montdidier and Noyon, the Germans have thus employed a total of 338 divisions (3,996,000 men) since March 21st. Military experts estimate the average enemy loss at 2,000 men to a division.

With a maximum of 210 divisions (2,530,000 men) on the west front, the above total means that a great number of divisions have been engaged two or three times, while the Germans still possess more than thirty fresh divisions (360,000 men) which have not yet been used.

The "Shock" Army.

Under the present organization of the German army in the west, the cream of the army both officers and men is concentrated in Von Putler's "shock" army. This army is counted upon to deliver the initial blows with irresistable force permitting less troops to pass through the breach thus created.

The "shock" army consists originally of 25 divisions (300,000 men). It opened the drives against Amiens and Chateau Thierry with heavy losses. It has encounted even more terrific losses in the present drive, five divisions (60,000 men), being replaced on the first day alone. Since the beginning of the war the consumption of German man-power has never been so great as it was in the last few months. Recent terrific losses have already precipitated the crisis in German effectives. They are filling up their depleted ranks with auxiliary troops which heretofore have been exempted on account of age or wounds.

NEW INDUSTRY HAS DECIDED TO LOCATE IN PETERBOROUGH

Will Employ Four Hundred Hands as a Starter—Plant of Metal Products Company Changes Hands.

The plant recently occupied by the Metal Products on Aylmer street, has been purchased by large Renfrew interests and for the time being will be devoted to the manufacture of eighteen-pound shells and other war material. At the conclusion of the war it is the intention of the company to manufacture other lines of metal products. The plant which was formerly erected by the Peterborough Cordage Company subsequently passed into the hands of the Bank of Ottawa and to this institution the city is indebted for the present turn of events.

The company have commenced to put the plant in operation and will employ four hundred hands at the beginning, increasing this number as the work developes. It is understood that a large number of girls will be employed by the new firm.

116th Annual Meeting Of Peterboro' Baptist Assoc'n Opens At Gilmour Church

Mission Circles and Bands Show Increased Givings Over 1917 Report—Need of Prayer To-day Emphasized in Addresses—Convention is Largely Attended and Delegates Were Hospitably Received.

REV. DOUGALD BROWN MODERATOR

The 116th annual convention of the Peterboro Baptist Association, opened yesterday in Gilmour Memorial church, Smith township with a large representation from the churches of the district.

In the afternoon the Mission Circle and Bands held their annual meeting which was well attended and revealed a year of increased missionary effort although many patriotic obligations have been generously met.

The need of a clearer vision in the church, of spiritual help for the people, and the value of prayer were subjects emphasized in the addresses of Rev. Dougald Brown of Park Street Church and Rev. Glen Wardell of Picton, to the general association. Both speakers dealt with plain essentials, and their sermons coincided in the stress they placed upon the need of power from Jesus in the church and the world today.

Rev. John Galt, pastor of old Gilmour church, assisted by the congregation, greeted the delegates and visitors with warm and solicitous welcome. The homes of the people were opened, and likewise their hearts. The pastors and members of the Murray and Park Streets Churches cooperated to the fullest extent, and their aid was most effective in the facilities of transportation. In short the convention opened auspiciously, and with the promise of fruitful sessions.

Rev. J. R. Webb, opened the evening meeting with devotional exercises. Rev. Mr. Galt, after welcoming the association on behalf of the convention church conveyed the regrets of Rev. George B. Nicholls, who had to attend a meeting of the Smith township council.

Moderator's Address.

Rev. Brown, who is moderator of the convention, discussed the purposes and work of the association. Its churches are united in the common purpose of promoting the kingdom of God. The church has too many members who may be described as half timers, and there is too much sensational preaching. Dr. John R. Mott, recently said that the need of the church is "to see the whole; to see together; to feel a oneness; to demonstrate a challenge" "If we do not see the whole", Rev. Mr. Brown continued, "we will be calling down fire upon some poor disciple because he follows not with us. If we do not see together, then will be no unity. The mission of Christ is a world wide mission; our Saviour is a world wide saviour."

"The purpose of Christ and the mission of the church is to change society from what it is to what it ought to be. Hence society must be clother with dighteousness. This ous task, and it requires unity and purity in the church. What this association needs today is to feel a world relation and obligation." Rev. Mr. Brown pointed out the unity of Governments for a world need. Every man must have his war garden, and as in the material world, and in the spiritual.

Miss Nicholls' Report.

The 22nd annual report of the Women's Home and Foreign Mission Circles, read by Miss M. A. Nicholls showed a total giving of $1419.47, an increase of $157.10 over that of 1917.

"In 1911 we first reached the $1000 work" Miss Nicholls stated, 'and then years ago it was suggested that we make $1500 our objective. We can get it easily when every woman is a worker instead of an onlooker."

The Circles gave last year $510.94 to home missions as compared with $423.52 in 1917, an increase of $87.42; and to foreign missions $544.46 against $376 in 1917, an increase of $68.46. Altogether the Circles contributed $1220.85 of which $120.50 was from Young Women's Circles. Thirteen out of twenty circles increased their contributions.

Of 21 churches in the association, sixteen contributed through Women's Missionary organizations. The Norwood Circle has been reorganized.

Farmers Stung Both Magistrate and Chief In Saturday Buying

Saturday last was a bad day for both Magistrate Dumble and Chief Thompson in their weekly purchases from the farmers. Every week-end they both get their supplies of butter and eggs on the market. The Chief bought four dozen of eggs last Saturday, and when he got home he found that he was half a dozen short. The Magistrate bought four bags of potatoes, paid for them on the market, but when the farmer delivered them to the house he collected a second time for the entire four bags. It these two farmers are wise, unless their acts were unintentional, they will keep away from the market for a long, long time.

Heavy Fighting Is Looked For

Total Length of the Battle Line Has Been Increased Fifty Miles—Germans Using More Boys

THE AMERICANS

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 12—Hindenburg's fifth blow is believed will not be long delayed. The first half of the summer's campaign must be considered as over. Several great but insignificant territorial losses have been created in the west front line, yet no positions of paramount value have been lost, meanwhile the total length of the fine has been increased some fifty miles. Henceforth Germany's armies must dwindle while those of our allies increase. The French talk of the splendid fighting quality shown by the United States troops in their latest battle, and what is expected of them in the future.

Heavy Fighting Ahead.

Up here, one hears much the same thing though the British by nature are less demonstrative. On the whole everybody expects a period of great stress is still to come. All seem to realize that all they need do for the next three months is to fight as they have in the last three days, and the crisis will be stemmed.

Hindenburg is now drawing on the Central Empires' man power to the utmost in order to hold his lengthened battle front and have huge reserve forces at his disposal for offensive purposes simultaneously. Thus for the first time this year an analysis of German prisoners shows more boys of the 1919 class than of any other. Recruits captured in March showed less than one per cent. in the line. In April they were less than one in forty, while in May more than a quarter of them were of the 1919 class.

Reports from the French front show that the British war planes are doing wonderful work. On Sunday between Noyon and Montdidier more than fifty thousand rounds of machine gun ammunition were fired by the low-flying machines who attacked and harassed the enemy so skilfully that in some places the enemy infantry was unable to advance.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12TH, 1918.

PAYING THE PRICE.

Paris, the goal for which Von Kluck tried in vain in the early days of the war is undoubtedly the objective for which Von Hindenburg is recklessly throwing away thousands of German lives. The latest offensive in the Montdidier sector has been a costly affair for the enemy. Correspondents speak of him "throwing division after division into the melting pot," while every foot of ground gained has been paid for in blood and suffering. Different from the opening phases of the Aisne battle, where surprise was an element that made an advance possible without abnormal casualties, this last attack has been a much more serious matter for the Germans who, in spite of the unequalled masses of men which they have been feeding into the battle, have only made headway with the greatest difficulty and at the expense of a wastage in man power that will be felt sooner or later by the enemy. The ground over which they have struggled is strewn with heaps of German dead, and fierce French counter-attacks everywhere have played havoc with the enemy's plans and compelled him to drop the tactics that were successful for him in earlier attacks. The wastage in the German strength in the past few days is not paid for by the territorial gains the enemy has made.

COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE.

Although the weather conditions have not been any too favourable, the warm weather of a week ago Saturday started the bathing season off with a rush and ever since that time a number of people have taken advantage of the facilities provided by the Nicholls Park trust to enjoy a dip in the river at Inverlea Park. The guardians of the Nicholls Parks have invariably shown an interest in the welfare of the public, and their latest effort at Inverlea is a most commendable one—setting an example to the City Council that the aldermen should not miss. Not only have dressing rooms for men and women been constructed, but a caretaker has been engaged to keep an eye on the safety of the little ones, while another precaution has been adopted in the securing of two large life buoys with long ropes, which should be a protection against accidents. These steps are in the public interest and will be appreciated by hundreds of citizens when the hot weather sets in.

The people who patronize Inverlea Park however, should remember that now that free dressing rooms have been provided, it will be necessary that they be used. The habit of dressing and undressing everywhere throughout the Park, which was a necessary evil when no accommodation was provided, will not be tolerated under the new conditions and the public is asked to bear that fact in mind.

The action of those in charge of the Nicholls Parks deserves the thanks of the community—it goes a long way towards solving the bathing problem.

THE RESTAURANTS.

"Canadian," writing to the Examiner on the restaurant situation, drags into the controversy the fact that most of the local eating houses are in the hands of foreigners. That is perfectly true, but has nothing more to do with the point at issue than the colour of the proprietor's hair or the size of the wedge of pie with which he supplies his customers. The writer of Monday's letter remarks that "there is no reason why that element should be a law unto itself, which no citizen of the country or of the Empire at large enjoys or asks for." Neither is there any reason why the citizens of Peterborough should be deprived of accommodation in restaurants on Sunday by legislation more drastic in nature than any enacted in any town or city in the Empire. Does "Canadian" know of any other place in Canada large enough to possess a restaurant, which restricts that establishment's selling hours on a Sunday to meal hours?

The fact is that the restricted hours will result in restaurants being closed altogether on Sunday. They opened at the new hours last Sunday at the request of Mayor Duncan, but claim that they will not do so in future, in which event conditions will be even worse than before.

The Examiner holds no brief for the proprietors of restaurants. They are frankly in the business for what they can get out of it, as are all other business men, but the legislation that has been passed re-acts against the public as well as against the restaurant owners, and for that reason this paper is of the opinion that the by-law should be rescinded in so far as it affects bona fide eating houses. This is a city of well over 20,000—not a country village.

THE TRENT CANAL.

The Montreal Gazette, usually a sedate, sober-minded journal, finds something humorous in the news of the formal opening of the Trent Canal. Our Montreal contemporary refers to the occasion in this sarcastic manner:

"The Trent Canal has been opened formally, and will at some future time be completed. It has been building for so long a time that the memory of man goeth not to the contrary. There has been a suspicion in some minds that the Trent canal was under construction before Columbus discovered America, but departmental records fail to support this theory. At the same time it is well known that Champlain passed up from Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay over much of what is now the Trent system. There is no reliable data as to any substantial expenditure having been made on the canalization of the system up to that time, but some has been spent since. The Minister of Railways and Canals in opening the canal, is quoted as having expressed confidence in its value, as a transportation route, and as a prospective reducer of freight rates. Also he never looked at finer scenry. It is to be hoped that the Minister is as right in his estimate of the economic value of the system as he is in regard to the scenery along its route. It is feared, however, that the scenery alone will not provide the canal with the traffic necessary to its success, or with the depth of water which is desirable for floating the traffic when it is secured. However, whatever doubts may exist as to the value of the Trent Canal in the future, there is no question as to its having served important uses in the past. It has carried many a government candidate to a seat in parliament, despite its shallowness, or perhaps because of it. Construction on the canal has proceeded uninterruptedly for more than a quarter of a century, with the exception of short four year pauses between general elections. For campaign purposes it entered Lake Ontario at both Trenton and Port Hope. Eventually it selected Trenton for reasons of its own. As many elections have occurred since the work of building the canal was commenced, several stretches of the system came to completion. It was unavoidable. But nobody could get into the completed portions from Lake Ontario or out of it at Georgian Bay, and the completion of the Georgian Bay end has yet to come. The canal has in the various offices of emolument connected with its administration afforded rest and comfort to many earnest and conscientious supporters of whatever government happened to be in power. Also its protracted construction involved the letting of contracts. Its formal opening synchronizes appropriately with the abolition of patronage."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Conscientious objectors will soon be a scarce article in the United States if many more twenty-five year prison sentences are handed out to those who refuse to don the uniform.

Two points to remember about registration are that you must register if you are sixteen years or older, and that it is not necessary to wait until June 22nd—you can register any evening next week.

Keeping British prisoners in towns likely to be attacked by allied airmen is a characteristic German idea. Why not keep a number of German prisoners around each British hospital?

All despatches from the battle front agree that in their latest drive the Germans are throwing in fresh troops with reckless prodigality and that their losses are terrible.

MAY ADOPT DECIMAL SYSTEM

England Seriously Considering Abandoning Its Antiquated Currency in Favor of Simplicity.

England may adopt the decimal system for its currency. The agitation for this reform appears to be gaining favor with the British people, and among the important agencies behind the movement is the Associated Chamber of Commerce of the United Kingdom. For generations schoolboys have been learning this: Four farthings make one penny, twelve pence make one shilling, twenty shillings make one pound, twenty-one shillings sterling make one guinea, twenty shillings sterling make one sovereign.

Then there were the symbols to learn—the capital "L" with a short line across the shank of the letter for the Latin "libra," or pound; the little "s" for shilling, or the Latin solidus; the little "d" for denarius, or penny, and the "qr" for "quadrans," or quarter of a penny, standing for farthing though latterly "far" came to stand generally for farthing. All American schoolboys have studied the table of English money in that part of their arithmetic dealing with "reduction," which is "the changing of numbers, either simple or compound, from one denomination to another without altering their values." Many men will probably remember that as boys they worked and labored over two kinds of "reduction," which were called "reduction descending and reduction ascending."

The decimalizing of English money is, of course, in the line of simplification. Some of the financial powers and papers are urging that parliament take the matter under consideration, and it is likely to come up for official treatment and discussion at any time.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Tennis Tea Was A Success

CLUB WAS FORMALLY OPENED LAST EVENING FOR THE SEASON.

The opening tea of the tennis club in the George street church was held at the Nicholls Oval last evening. Despite the cool weather it was a splendid success. Between 40 and 50 were present to spend a social time, and enjoy the good things which had been provided to satisfy the "inner man." Before and after tea the tennis courts were in full use, while others enjoyed a lively game of baseball.

The executive for the ensuing year is as follows:

QUIT BALL TO MAKE SHIPS.

CHICAGO, June 12. — Pitcher "Lefty" Williams and Byrd Lynn, a catcher with the Chicago Americans, both within the draft, have "jumped" the club to enlist in a shipbuilding yard at Wilmington, Del. When Chas. A. Comiskey, president of the club, learned of their intentions, he demanded the return of their uniforms and terminated their contracts. Joe Jackson, an outfielder, recently left the club to work in the yards at Wilmington.

Maple Leafs Won Two Games

NEW STAR, BRIGHTEST IN SOUTH EASTERN SKY

Peterborough Star Gazers Have a Chance to See the New Celestial Giant.

"It is a glorious sight and there is no mistaking that it is a new star," Mr. F. L. Blake, chief astronomer of the Toronto Observatory stated yesterday in describing the giant new star reported from Washington and which can be seen through the telescope of the Observatory.

"It is easily the brighest object in the south-eastern sky at night and may be seen with the naked eye. There is one other bright star which is only a few degrees from it, but the new star is by far the brighter of the two and is the more southern of the two stars.

"Those who are looking for the new star should look for it in the eastern sky. It rises about nine o'clock but does not appear above the housetops until it is ten o'clock. It attains its highest altitude when it is due south, and moves around and sets in the west, appearing in the eastern sky the following night.

"No name, of course, has been given to it yet but all new stars are called Novae and they are known by the constellation to which they are attached so this will be known as Novae Aquila. The star is close to the celestial equator and is on the meridian line between one and two o'clock in the morning. It is after midnight before it gets on the meridian line."

Caused by Collision.

"What would you say caused the new star?" Mr. Blake was asked.

"I would say that it was due to a collision between the stars. No star of that brightness could appear otherwise. When two stars travelling at from 20 to 30 miles a minute collide, their impact causes them to shine very brightly. The new star is an object of the greatest interest to astronomers as it is a most extraordinary thing. Every night now, all the telescopes will be turned on it and it will be examined for its composition, etc."

Those who followed the directions and traced a line from the North Star to Vega and then produced the line to the celestial equator would discover the new star. It is not in a direct line between the North Star and Vega, but almost so.

Great Distance From Earth.

The great distance which the new star is from the earth may be imagined when it is known that the distance of the nearest star to the earth, viz., Alpha Centauri, is 208,000 times the distance of the earth from the sun. The distance of the earth from the sun is 92 million miles.

The magnitude of the new star is 0.5 degrees and there are only seven stars known to have a greater magnitude. Arcturus, which is known as the giant star of the universe, has a million times the volume of our own sun.

Reason For Imposing Embargo On Machinery

((Special to Examiner)

OTTAWA, June 12.—It is stated that the embargo on the export of Machinery from Canada excepting under license of the War Trade Board, was imposed for the purpose of conserving machinery in the dominion which was needed for war work and was recommended by the Imperial Munition Board on the ground that various firms were being induced to move their plants across the border on representation that they could get United States army orders if they did so.

On the other hand the United States also has an embargo on machinery exports to Canada. In the case of exports from Canada, therefore none are permitted excepting under license of the War Trade Board.

In case of imports the War Trade Board has to make representation to Washington on behalf of the would-be importer declaring that the import is necessary to forward work hence the impression that the War Trade Board controls both exports and imports.

Requests of board to Washington have seldom been refused.

to what end it is difficult to ascertain. The licenses must be paid for, and no doubt that consumer pays in added prices, but there is no regulation of prices as a concomitant of the license system. A new situation has arisen through the system of import embargoes instituted by the Trade Board. The creating of a monopoly for Canadian productions and manufactories in the case of goods embargoed again gives the opportunity for exploitation of that monopoly to the detriment of the consumer. To offset this, it is announced that the Government has passed an order-in-Council designed to regulate the prices of gold and silver, etc., charged by the manufacturers.

It is hinted that this may be extended to other commodities included in the embargo order.

In any case the next few weeks may bring forth protests from various parts of the Dominion which will force the Government to inaugurate at least a modified system of price-fixing for the consumer.

Mix Wood and Coal in Making Gas.

At various points in Switzerland and France wood and sawdust are being mixed with coal in making gas, because of the coal shortage. For example, 10 per cent of sawdust is added to the coal in the vertical-bulb retorts in Geneva, while as an alternative for the sawdust, logs are sometimes used. In such cases the retorts contain about 260 pounds of coal instead of 1,240 pounds. The acid products from the wood have caused some trouble because of corrosion, but this has been largely overcome by alternating charges of wood with charges of coal. In another Swiss city, 375 pounds of sawdust is mixed with 68 pounds of coal in retorts that usually take 990 pounds of coal.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Hog Killing in Britain.

According to official figures secured by the United States food administration, hogs have decreased much more than any other class of live stock in the British Isles. The total decline for 1916 and 1917 was over 2,000,000, of which more than 500,000 were brood sows.

IMPOSSIBLE

(Toronto Globe)

Just now The Toronto News is in a state of excitement bordering on hysteria because a number of nasty newspapers are insinuating that Premier Borden's Governmental readiness to put the business of title-getting ahead of the business of war-winning was due to his natural desire not to grievously disappoint members of his own family and entourage. Really, now, how could they think such a thing?

MEXICO'S BOAST

(Rochester Post Express)

For the first time in many years Mexico can boast that relatively speaking she is in the list of peaceful countries.

BRINGS WAR NEARER

(Cleveland "Plain Dealer")

In a way the United States may be grateful to the U-boats operating off the Jersey coast. Hitherto the war has seemed so remote. We have been in deadly earnest, yet the war has been so far away that it has failed to impress us as it has impressed the democracies of Europe. The conflict is no longer an obstraction. It is concrete and real and near.

PIRATE PRISONERS

(Buffalo Express.)

We have some submarine prisoners now. We shall have more before the war is over. We went into the war because we held this form of warfare to be piracy and murder. When we agree to peace, Germany also will admit that it is piracy and murder and that under all principles of civilization those responsible for it must be treated accordingly.

READY FOR THEM

(Syracuse Post Standard)

The Germans have had their new fling at deviltry. The men in training for pursuit of undersea boats will now have new zest in patrol service. We shall see whether they are as adept at the game as the British trawlers. As they have weapons for hunting submarines, superior to any devised in the early days of submarine activity, we have no question of their efficient service. There is a heavy commerce along an extended coast to be guarded, but we believe they are equal to it.

NOTHING STARTLING

(Albany Knickerbocker Press)

If there is nothing particularly startling about the appearance of these pests there is also nothing that should be alarming. They will soon be taken care of, for the American navy is amply able to handle them. Current figures of submarine destruction spell nothing but doom for the pirates.

Too Busy to Make a Noise.

A Kansas City teacher of a kindergarten was incapacitated from work one day by the following incident. The subject of the lecture and object lesson was animals, birds and then more animals.

"Now, children," said the teacher, "I want each of you to think of some animal or bird and try for a moment to be like the particular one you are thinking about and make the same kind of noises it is in the habit of making."

Instantly the schoolroom became a menagerie, lions roaring, dogs barking, birds singing and twittering, cows lowing, calves bleating, cats meowing, etc., all in an uproar and excitement—all, with one single exception.

Off in a remote corner a little fellow was sitting perfectly still, apparently indifferent and unmindful of all the rest. The teacher, observing him, approached and said:

"Waldo, why are you not taking part with the other children?"

Waving her off with a deprecating hand and wide, rebuking eyes, he fervently whispered:

"Sh—sh—sh, teacher—sh! I'm a 'coster, and I'm a-layin' a aig!"—Kansas City Star.

Better Late Than Not at All.

The pastor of the little country church had been much annoyed by having the members of his congregation straggle in long after the service had begun. One Sunday morning, when he felt that further forbearance with this fault was impossible, he decided to rebuke some conspicuous offender. About twenty minutes later than the proper hour there entered a mild mannered little woman, one of the regular attendants of the church, but quite incorrigible in her tardiness. The minister looked up, fixed her with his spectacles and remarked:

"Sister, you are very much behind time. I hope you will not be so late in getting into heaven."

The little woman looked up, smiled sweetly and without a trace of confusion replied pleadily:

"I shan't care about that, doctor, so long as I get there."

And now the pastor feels that the smile that went round the church somehow spoiled the effectiveness of his rebuke.—New York Tribune.

"I met Mrs. H. the other day," said North Alabama street man, "and she asked about you."

"How was she dressed?" asked the wife.

"I really cannot say, my dear," said her husband, "there wasn't enough goods for sample."

The Proper Spirit.

"Don't you wish you had your boy to help you on the farm?"

"No," replied Farmer Corntossel, "but I wish it was some of me help over there to help out in the trenches."

HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE DISPOSED OF ONE JURY

The Court Fell In Line With the Policy Suggested by the Department—Theft Case Heard To-day.

JUNE SITTINGS

The June sittings of the County Court resumed this morning. At the opening of the Court His Honour Judge Huycke dismissed the jury in the case of the Atlantic Fruit Company versus Walter Oke of this city, claiming that the nature of the case hardly justified the services of a jury, especially in view of the recent request from the authorities advising His Honour to dispense with juries as much as possible in view of the labour situation. Argument in the case was reserved, and a charge of theft against Mrs. Edna Sexsmith proceeded with. Through her counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, the accused, who was the first to occupy the prisoner's dock in the new court room, pleaded not guilty. Mr. J. O'Brien appeared for the defence. Mrs. Sexsmith was charged with stealing seventy-three dollars from Dr. McGrath while employed at his house.

The First Witness.

Dr. Edward McGrath, the first witness called, said he was in the habit of carrying a sum of $73 in his pants pocket, two of the bills being Standard Bank notes of $10 each. Sometimes he put it in a drawer in the surgery and at night he was in the habit of putting it under his pillow. When he found that it was gone he at first did not suspect anybody and looked diligently in every nook and corner. He even looked in his motor car. He then began to suspect another person in the house and had that person under observation to see if the stolen money was disposed of. Failing to find the money he went to Chief Thompson on May 7 and reported the loss and described the bills and their mode of being rolled. On May 11 the Chief 'phoned him and showed him some money. He was almost sure it was his money but would not swear to it. Mrs Sexsmith was not the person that he at first suspected. Mrs. Sexsmith was in the Chief's office at the time and vehemently denied any knowledge of the stolen money. Mr. J. O'Brien, counsel for the defence, created some mirth when he asked Dr. McGrath how he laid his pants out at night.

The Search.

Detective Newhall was detailed to look into the case and had searched Mrs. Sexsmith's trunk at her residence on Olive avenue. Mrs. McElhiney, the police matron, was there before him and had a bag of Mrs. Sexsmith's which contained two yellow Standard Bank bills each of the $10 denomination, beside $5 bills and others. These bills were handed over to him by Mrs. McElhiney. From certain information he had received he went to the home of Mr. W. J. Hancock, auctioneer and there, in a roll of bills, had found a yellow Standard Bank note for $10. He marked all the bills at the time.

Mr. W. J. Hancock, the next witness called, said he saw the accused at the auction sale and that she had bought an organ for $23. He had no knowledge where he had received the Standard Bank bill. He had only the one.

Chief of Police Thompson said Mrs. Sexsmith was in custody when the money was brought in. She said that the $5 bills were given her by her husband and that he had $10 bills for some time. He 'phoned up Dr. McGrath and as soon as Dr. McGrath saw the money he said: "Where did you get my money." He was convinced the money was his.

A Previous Charge.

Mrs. J. A. McElhiney said Mrs. Sexsmith wanted her to go to her trunk and get some money in a little lace bag. She consented because she did not know of the theft and Mrs. Sexsmith was held on a charge of delivering liquor. She did so but met Detective Newhall at the house. Afterwards Mrs. Sexsmith asked the police matron if she would find out from the Chief if she could not pay $73, the sum which Dr. McGrath said was stolen, and thus save the family from unpleasant notoriety. She told Mrs. McElhiney that she wished she would get there before Detective Newhall because there was some liquor of her husband's in the trunk.

The first witness for the defence was Mr. Carl Hayes, accountant of the Bank of Ottawa. He said that he handled many Standard Bank bills ev-

The Husband Called.

John Sexsmith, a C.P.R. bridgeman, the husband of the accused, said he paid his wife every two weeks the sum of $25 for household expenses. Generally he paid her two ten dollar bills and a five dollar bill and very often they were notes of the Standard Bank. On May 4th, however, he gave her five $5 bills. He said his wife saved some of the money to help pay off a mortgage of $200 which was on their farm. His wife had received a check of $75 from the tenant of their farm.

Mrs. Sexsmith, the accused, was then called and said that the first she knew of the charge Mrs. McElhiney had told her. She generally got Standard Bank notes from her husband. She had a withdrawal of $30 from the Union Bank on May 16. This was her own personal account. She paid a rent of $10 every month to Alexander Turner, the landlord, but never received a receipt for it. She had known Alex. Turner for about eight years and used to work for him prior to that time. Sometimes she used to go out visiting with him. She denied that she ever introduced him to people as Wm. Miller. She admitted that at home there was a package of tea addressed to Mr. Turner, but contended that Mr. Turner had left it there. When she was fined $200 for supplying liquor she was going to pay it herself, but discovered that Mr. Turner had paid it.

She has always lived with her husband on good terms. She says she did not know that the whiskey was taken out of the trunk when she asked Mrs. McElhiney to get the money.

"Did you or did you not steal the money?" asked Mr. O'Brien.

"I did not," said the prisoner.

MANY WORSE OFF

High Cost of Living Looked at From New Angle.

Uncle Peleg Gave the Citizens of Bloomfield Something to Think About When He Bought His Frugal Sunday Dinner.

"I suppose the folks back home still manage to get a living in spite of the high cost of it?" said the dweller in the city to his boyhood friend, Reuben Sparrow, who had driven in from Bloomfield that morning.

"Why, yes," said Reuben, "they all seem to live along in pretty much the same old way. Of course there is some scaling down. Extravagant ones are tightening up a bit, and the close ones are a little mite closer.

"Take the Longleys for example. You know how they always used to do. Jim would get his pay Saturday night, and then they'd begin to live on the fat of the land. About Thursday, fund would give out, and then it would be pudding and milk, or whatever they could pick up, for the rest of the week. Well, they do just that same way now. First of the week there's nothing too good for them, and price is no object. Only difference is that now hard times begin with them 'long about Tuesday instead of Thursday.

"Then there is Eben Titus. He goes on altogether a different principle. Eben says that it doesn't cost him so very much more to live than it did five years ago. He was always a great figurer, you know. He's set what calls a fair price on each of the commodities. Of course he can't control the price, but he can regulate the quantity. So when sugar, for example, takes a jump of ten per cent, he marks down the amount to be used in just the same proportion and so keeps even with the game. You might suppose that the family would be on scant rations by this time, but Eben says not. According to his tell, not one of 'em has lost weight, and they never were healthier or happier. He says the generality of folks eat too much and too expensively and that we never can know how little is enough until we have put the question to the test.

"But most of our Bloomfield people do their fighting of the high cost of living simply by word of mouth. That was what I found a lot of 'em doing when I stepped into Elias Pride's provision store the other night. They weren't giving the monster a leg to stand on. They all agreed that it was unjust and outrageous and heartrending the way prices were mounting up; and that flesh and blood couldn't stand it much longer. Elias himself joined right in with the rest. He said it made him fairly sick to have to charge such prices, but what could he do?

"Just then old Peleg Dawes came to buy his Sunday dinner. I suppose Peleg was the only man there that you might say was actually feeling the pinch of poverty. He's past work, with not much to do with, and it was kind of pitiful to see him pricing one thing after another and then shaking his head. Finally he settled on half a pound of tripe.

"'A good piece of tripe, properly cooked,' says he, 'goes about as well as anything, this time of year. Some calls it a little tough, but I tell 'em it's tougher where there's none.'

"'Have to pay pretty high for anything we get nowadays, Uncle Peleg,' I says, as he started to go.

"'Yes,' says he, 'but that isn't so bad by half as not being able to get it at all. Sometimes,' says he, 'when I'm setting down to a good, square meal at home, I seem to see some of those hungry people across the water looking on kind of wishful; and it makes me feel real guilty, as if I was getting more than my share.'

"After the old man had gone out, conversation seemed to take a different turn. I guess we had all been reminded that there are some things in the world a little more heartrending than the high cost of living in Bloomfield.—Youth's Companion.

Praised for Devotion to Duty.

When the city of Norfolk, Va., was threatened with the complete destruction by fire of its thriving business section early in January, every available fire-fighting force at hand and from nearby towns was called into the battle. At the height of the fire the enlisted men of the United States navy on duty at the navy yard and in the harbor were called on to help not only in subduing the flames but controlling the crowds. To a man they gave a splendid account of themselves. Among these men was John Joseph McLoughlin, a chief boatswain's mate. Although he had worked all night, had narrow escapes and was drenched to the skin with ice-cold water, McLoughlin declined a relief when it was offered and remained on duty continuously until the danger was passed. For this conspicuous service he has been commended by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. McLoughlin enlisted in the navy in 1908 at New York.

Announcement To Young Women Wage Earners And Others

A Women's Department has been organized in the Central Ontario Branch Office of The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, for the purpose of dealing with applications for assurance on the lives of women.

An increasingly large amount of insurance of this nature is being effected and it has become desirable that the work be conducted under the direction of trained and capable women, who can deal effectively with matters of this kind. Miss G. D. Thompson has been placed in charge of this Department and personal and efficient service is assured.

TOY FACTORY NOW FOR BOBCAYGEON.

The Magnet Toy and Novelty Company has finally decided to commence operations in Bobcaygeon. The plans for the building have been drawn and a general meeting of the shareholders is to be held on Wednesday, June 12, in Toronto. Immediately after that building will be commenced. The sample toys which Mr. Potter carries are an exceptionally saleable lot, and include waggons, carts, sail boats and constructive wooden toys. These are only a few of the articles which are and may be made by the company. Another week will see important developments in the proposition here.—Independent.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

City Objects To Paying For Outside Patients Treated At The Queen Mary Hospital

even Patients From North Monaghan Cost the City Over Two Hundred Dollars.

WILL BE DISCUSSED

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton was warmly commended at last night's meeting of the Board of Health. Mayor Duncan, in voicing the sentiments of the Board, said that the way in which the grounds at the Incinerator had been cleaned up was very creditable.

The Board recommended that a sewer be laid on Stanley Street in the interests of the health of the citizens. This was carried.

The Isolation Hospital.

The main issue of the evening was the question of the cost of outsiders at the Isolation Hospital. Seven patients from the township of North Monaghan had been admitted to the Isolation Hospital. Besides the ordinary bill there was added a sum of $167.75 for the services and board of an extra nurse. This the North Monaghan Council refuse to pay. The Board of Health points out that an extra nurse had to be engaged for these patients, and that the township of North Monaghan should assume the cost.

"Because," said Chairman Langford, "we may close the hospital to outside patents. They seem to think that it is a Government institution, while as a matter of fact it is the same as a private hospital."

Dr. C. H. Amys, M.O.H., said the cost to the city of these patients was $6 a day for each patient. And yet the Township Council threaten to sue the city. Miss Reid at the hospital, told them of the extra charge but North Monaghan says they did not agree to pay it.

"I do not think that North Monaghan is asking for charity," said Mr. Murty.

It was moved by the Mayor that the City Solicitor arrange a meeting between the City and County Councils to settle the point. Carried.

Milk Tests.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton then submitted the milk tests, which were found to be satisfactory. A bill of $26.70 for the expenses of Dr. Amys at the Medical Convention at Hamilton was also ordered to be paid.

Sale of Chicken.

The Sanitary Inspector asked the Board whether chicken was required to be sold by the pound or at such a price for the fowl. It was found that each fowl must be ticketed as to its weight, and must be sold by weight. The scales will be put on a table near the centre of the Market Building, where any citizen may weigh his fowl.

The Sanitary Inspector was also instructed to have several notices printed, to be placed in the Market Building and on the Market to this effect.

To-night the Board of Health will visit the Isolation Hospital to look over some much-needed repairs.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM PTE. WM. LOCKIE, OF THIS CITY

Peterborough Soldier, is Enjoying Life in the Old Land in Spite of Many Discomforts.

Mrs. Lockie, 495 Chamberlen Street has receved the followng letter from her son, Pte. William Lockie of the 6th Canadian Battalion, now stationed in Sussex, Sexford, Sussex, England.

Dear Mother—

I guess you will wonder why I have not answered your letter before, I don't know what excuse I can make, only that I have so little time to myself. I hope you are well and enjoying life. I am O. K. The weather is very hot here now, I feel the heat more over here than I did in Canada. I sent a card to you from Belfast, one to each of the girls and one to Russell; I hope you will get them all right.

On Leave

Well mother, I sure did enjoy myself over on the old sod. It was a treat to get away from the camp for a while. We left here on the 6th of May at 8.30 a.m., for London, we were there at about 10.30. London is only about 58 miles from the camp. We stayed in London till 8.25 p.m., then we got a train for Hollyhead, where we took the boat for Dublin, Ireland; It took us about three hours and a half going over the Irish sea. we spent all day Tuesday in Dublin and saw the sights, Dublin is a very pretty city, there are some beautiful buildings there.

Home Rule

The time of that fight there about home rule two years ago, they blew buildings and private dwellings down is nearly as bad as Halifax. There were several big stores about the size of Turnbulls blown all to pieces, some places there is hardly the walls standing. The main Post Office which was twice the size of the one in Peterboro, was blown all to bits, these buildings have never been rebuilt on account of the shortage of material.

In Dublin.

Well mother I think you would have laughed if you had seen me riding through the streets of Dublin in an Irish jaunting cart. We hired an Irish man to take us around the city and believe me I felt like a fool sitting up high in one of those two wheeled carts, but we had a good time and enjoyed it immensely. Well we took the train for Belfast at 7.30 p.m., and got there at 11 o'clock, we went to the sailors and soldiers' club and got something to eat and a bed I had a good nights sleep, I didn't get up till 9 o'clock, we had dandy weather for our leave too. I was through the York Street Linen Mills, its one of the largest in the world, they make those baloons for the airships there. It was quite a sight for any one who had never been through a mill like it, the girls in the spinning rooms, go in their bare feet, it is so hot. We were in Belfast all week. Sunday morning, Harry Carr, one of my chums and myself went to the Rosebury Presbyterian church, we heard a dandy sermon, the minister was an old man with grey beard and believe me he could scare the fear of the Lord, into one, he spoke very plain and distinct, one couldn't tell he was Irish at all by his voice, he spoke more like a Canadian. We left Belfast Sunday afternoon at 3.45 for Kingstown, where we took the boat for Hollyhead, we were back in London early Monday morning, we had all day there and took in some of the sights: Charring Cross, Buckingham Palace, Parliament Buildings, The Strand, Leichester Square and Regent Park; we were through the zoo and museum of art, but I would rather have Belfast than London any time, it is a very pretty city, I hated to come back to camp after being away from it, it seems like leaving home again, when we left Belfast. The people over there are so good natured and friendly they will do anything for a Canadian soldier, the ladies that waited on tables at the club were all gentlemen's daughters and all the help was voluntary, we got a good meal for a shilling, all we could eat and believe me I certainly did fill up when I had a chance. We left London at 8.30 p.m. for camp, (May the 12th.)

Off Parade

Well mother I was very sorry to read in your letter that Mrs. Morrow is dead, I could hardly eat my supper when I read it everybody has their own troubles, Gods knows. We have been blessed so far and I hope this good luck continues, the last letter I had from Pearl, she said that Stanley Anderson had been wounded, that will be a hard blow on his mother. I have'nt heard from Bob lately, I hope he is well where ever e is. What is Stanley doing now, has he been called up yet? Write and tell me all the news. I must close now as it is near dinner time. I have been off parade this morning getting my teeth filled, I have a sore mouth; but I will try and stuff myself with something. I am sending you my picture that I had taken in Belfast. What do you think of the kid in uniform? I have some others coming too. I will send them as soon as I can. I'll close with love to all at home, hoping to hear from you soon, I remain as ever

Your loving son,

WILLIAM

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Peterborough, June 12, 1918.

Editor of The Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Editor,—I was very much interested in the correspondence between Mr. J. H. Burnham and his alleged Mr. Dobbin published in your paper last evening.

Under the circumstances and the allegations made by Mr. Burnham it would appear to me the proper thing to do, in order to restore harmony and avoid all possible mistakes, misunderstandings, errors and discourtesies, would be to dismiss Mr. Dobbin and appoint Mr. Burnham to his (Mr. Dobbin's) position.

Mr. Burnham's known, suave, courteous, bland and genial attitude toward all womanhood, as for instance he manifested preceding the late election, give ample proof both of his tact and wisdom, and the public could then rest assured that at least one branch of the service was being administered with amiability, dispatch and perfection.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours truly,

"ONLOOKER."

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Sir: I notice in your columns a number of articles on the new restaurant regulations of the city council.

Of course these regulations will not affect those who take their meals at their own homes, and who were born here, and have never left town since they were born.

However, outside of that class there are a great number of people who eat by necessity in public places. This is, in some cases, a boarding house; in others a hotel, and in other cases a restaurant. Besides these regular boarders the restaurants accommodate a large number of other people.

Hundreds of tourists and commercial travellers dine at these places, when they cannot reach an hotel at the regular hours. Also those who live in boarding houses go there when occasionally they are too late for the meal hours at home.

Also those who have picked a wife who cannot cook worth a cent, sneak in there on the quiet and get a square meal for a change.

Also a number of wives chase their husbands there when they are too tired to cook or when it is too hot to cook.

A number of people who eat in public places, do not feel hungry at the regular hours and put it off for an hour or two; especially on Sunday.

Camels may have extra stomachs to hold food and water when they need it; but the ordinary individual cannot drink until he is dry—and no more can he eat until he is hungry.

The council cannot regulate the appetites and people do not eat especially to offend the council.

And then crops up the "foreigner argument." Anyone who "hates 'em bad" can start a restaurant any day, even on Sunday, providing he starts at the "regulation" hours. Anyhow, until they do so, the foreigner often fills a long felt want at a critical time.

We have in this city a couple of restaurants comparing very favorably with the best in the country. One of these proprietors has spent fifteen or twenty thousand dollars in improving his place of business at different times.

As to the regular hotels, they would set a dog on you if you asked for something to eat at 10 p.m. It is not it their line of business. Keepers of a good guess they do not wish to make it their line of business Keepers of restaurants get about six hours sleep on the average out of twenty-four.

In reference to the sale of ice cream and cold drinks—it is about time people recognized their supply at all times as a necessity during the hot weather and not as a luxury

With this first real summer month comes a splendid display of those filmy dresses that are so much a part of every woman's summer wardrobe. As sheer as a cobweb they are, but surprisingly serviceable as well. Most of our new models, that we are now showing, have entrancing simplicity, developed in fabrics that perplex one as to which is the more beautiful—the model or the material.

Gingham dresses have won great popularity for this season. They are not the staid ginghams of yesteryear, the models we have stocked are marvels of design and color and made in such unique styles, they are quite inexpensive as well.

—Note the following.—

—GINGHAM DRESS made in "Betty Wales" style of fine quality plaid gingham. Collar and cuffs of white pique, broad belt, pockets and button trim. A charmingly simple dress, priced at..... $10.00

—GINGHAM DRESS, very smart, made in "Castle" style. Coat effect, high waisted with wide belt, collar and cuffs of white pique. A most attractive model and such good value for..... $7.95

—VOILE DRESS, made of excellent quality voile in an all-over, small floral design. Bustle style in back coming around to a pointed over-skirt in front. Long Winter Garden collar and deep cuffs of harvest green voile. Small pearl button finish. The price is very moderate $12.00

—VOILE DRESS in white with clusters of narrow colored stripes running through it. Square cut neck and Quaker collar of white organdy. Novelty cross-over belt and cuffs of organdy. Plain skirt with bias fold around the bottom. A stunning dress priced at $19.00

—WHITE DRESS of fine French voile made so simply and daintily. The bodice and lower half of the skirt are formed of small tucks, there is a narrow girdle around the waist of self material and a round collar edged with pretty lace. It is priced at..... $16.50

This is just one of delightfully varied array of white dresses, we will be pleased to have you come in and look at them.

DAILY CALENDER

Two good rules for life are—never be discouraged—never be a discouroger.

Peterboro' Ward Of The Children's Aid Society Has Been Located In Campbellford

Girl Has Been on the Missing List For Some Months Having Disappeared From Her Home in Toronto.

C. A. S. MEETING

Lillian Martin the ward of the Children's Aid Society who disappeared from a home in Toronto some months ago, has been found. Her mysterious disappearance caused a great deal of trouble, and no efforts made by detectives to locate her were of avail. However, she was finally located living in Campbellford at her father's home, where she had been since her sudden disappearance. She has been brought back to the city, according to the monthly report of Mr. G. W. Powell, agent of the Shelter. Mr. Powell's report was read, he being in Toronto attending a celebration given for Mr. Kelso in recognition of a quarter of a century's work for the Society by Mr. Kelso.

Other Items.

Other items reported by Mr. Powell were that the boys and girls in the home and out with foster parents are all well and in good spirits. He reported three applications for children, one child returned to parents, two complaints and thirty-five homes visited during the month.

Matron's Report.

The Matron's report showed eight children in the home varying from one year to seven in age.

Coal Supply.

The coal for the winter will be arranged for by Dr. King and Mr. Wearing. Mrs. Gibbs said that last year Mr. Scott had kindly tided the home over at a very critical period and sent coal, when it seemed impossible to secure any.

Alderman Edgar said that after July 1 the coal situation will probably become acute.

To Divide Orders.

Following Mrs. Gibbs' reading of the expense account, Dr. King suggested dividing the bread order amongst the other local bakers, all of whom contribute in the tag day, etc. Mrs. Read, the matron, will be advised to do so.

The Jackson Baby.

Nothing more has been learned of the parents of the Jackson baby, which is still in the home.

Late Arrivals.

Ald. Edgar ventured a few timely words on the fact that each meeting becomes later on account of impromptu attendance of the members of the board. His objection to this was placed on record.

Attended the Meeting.

Alderman Edgar occupied the chair. Others present were Mrs. Gibbs, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Evans, Mr. Wearing, Mr. Parsons, Mr. Cowan and Dr. King. Mr. Wearing welcomed Mrs. Knox and Mr. Cowan, both of whom had not attended previously.

In Good Condition.

The revenue of the home is in good condition at present, due to the good management and kindness of citizens.

BELIEVES IT HAS SAVED HER LIFE

The following statement, made recently by Mrs. Annie Pasco, 57 Spadina Ave., Ottawa, is not only interesting, but altogether remarkable:

"I have not only gained thirty-one pounds by taking Tanlac, but firmly believe it has saved my life, and all who know of my dreadful condition are astonished at my wonderful recovery."

Mrs. Pasco's husband is superintendent of the J. R. Booth Paper Pulp Mill.

"I had been bothered with stomach trouble off and on for about three years," she continued, "but it was only during the past year that my condition became so serious. I first noticed my appetite failing, everything seemed to taste the same to me, and I had no relish for food of any kind. Then I began to suffer from gas, sour stomach and indigestion after meals. I had terrible headaches, and felt weak and sluggish all the time. No one will ever know how I suffered, because I cannot describe it. None of my friends or neighbours believed I would live three months.

"I had fallen off from one hundred and seventy pounds to one hundred and thirty-two, and got so weak I couldn't walk from the kitchen to the front door without holding on to something. I had to spend over half my time in bed, and was so nervous I was afraid to be left alone, and I could hardly sleep a wink at night. I took so much medicine without getting relief I became discouraged and out of heart.

"Finally, I decided to try Tanlac, as I had seen it recommended so highly, and before I finished the first bottle I noticed a decided change in my feelings. My appetite soon got better, the nervousness and indigestion began to disappear, and I could feel my strength returning. Then I began to regain my lost weight, and now I weigh one hundred and sixty-three pounds — have actually gained thirty-one pounds, and haven't had a touch of indigestion or stomach trouble in six months. My appetite is fine. I can eat just anything I want without the slightest discomfort afterwards, and my nervousness is gone entirely. I am feeling stronger and better than I have in years, and am doing all my housework. I think it nothing but right that I should tell others about this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

116th Annual Meeting, etc.

second with 18 women in the church and 18 in the circle; Wicklow was third with 18 out of 22 in its circle.

Rev. Glen Wardell.

"We need a new vision of Christ today" said Rev. Glen Wardell, in his sermon. "Many see Christ as He walked on earth as He went to Calvary, even He was placed in the tomb and even as He arose from the dead, but how few see Him in the fullness of His glory as told in revelations. After the resurrection of Christ, He commanded the Apostles not to depart from Jerusalem to undertake their mission, but to wait for the promise of the Father. They were waiting for power from God."

The church lacks power today. It has all the equipment, but it needs power. Prayer, Rev. Mr. Wardell illustrated, as a generator of power, recalling a church whose members used to pray late on Saturday nights that their pastor might have power on the Sabbath.

When the Holy Ghost came to the Apostles after the days of prayer and after one sermon, St. Peter received three thousand persons and baptized them.

"Thomas proposed that they go out on the eighth day. I wonder what would have happened if he had not waited. His sermon would have fallen flat because he had no power like many sermons of today.

"If we trace great revivals, we find that they came about through a waiting church or individual. How your pastor would be strengthened and helped in his work by your prayers. If we would place ourselves in the breach between a waiting God and a waiting world those men and women who are in sin and danger of death would be brought to the solid rock of Christ Jesus."

The Women's Convention.

Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, of Peterborough, presided at the Convention of the Mission Circles and Bands. Despite the heavy calls that have been borne for patriotic purposes by church members the reports of the past year were decidedly encouraging, practically every circle showing increased giving and undiminished activity.

In addition there have been satisfactory increase in membership.

Mrs. James Young was appointed secretary.

In her address as president, Mrs. Scott referred to the feeling to-day that missionary effort is not so necessary as in the past, that every effort should be directed toward the winning of the war. "We do feel the primary importance of helping in the war, but the demands of the war have made greater missionary efforts on our part necessary at this time."

Mrs. Garbutt Mann, of Gilmour Mission Band and Circle, conveyed to the delegates a warm greeting and welcome, which was fittingly acknowledged by Mrs. W. H. Wallace, of Belleville.

Reports of Circles and Bands.

The reports of the work by the Circles and Bands showed a uniform activity throughout the counties.

Crahanie Circle was greeted as the banner with fourteen members, although there are only ten women as church members. Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. B. Davies, of Lakefield, were welcomed as new members.

Gilmour Circle gave $48 for foreign and $31 for home missions, Park Street Church sent $12.30 to each of foreign and home missions, and Murray Street Church $48.75 to the foreign field and $35.49 for missions at home. In the opinion of Mrs. Scott the reports were highly satisfactory and encouraging.

Nominating Committee.

The Nominating committee, composed of Miss A. Walton of Peterborough, Mrs. Snider of Picton, Miss Tapscott of Cobourg, and Mrs. Galt of Gilmour, reported as follows:

President—Mrs. W. D. Scott.

Directress—Miss M. A. Nicholls, of Peterborough.

Assistant Directress—Miss J. Jackson, of Port Hope.

The report was adopted.

This is the fourteenth successive year in which Mrs. Scott has been elected president, an honour she acknowledged by thanking the members for their confidence; but Mrs. Scott declared that she was but a figurehead, that the bulk of the work was performed by Miss M. A. Nicholls.

Following the President's lead, a vote of thanks was passed, recognizing Miss Nicholls' untiring labours as directress.

Mission Band Work.

Miss M. Darling, of Peterborough, gave a helpful address on Mission Band work, describing in detail ideas which had proved successful in making meetings interesting, and in generally promoting the affairs of the Mission Band. Prayer was essential, she said, and strongly recommended to leaders the need of preparatory prayer. The Band was an integral and an important branch of the mission work of the church, she said.

Support of Papers.

The invaluable help which the Link and Visitor bring to mission workers was dealt with in a brief address by Mrs. B. Davies of Lakefield. These papers keep the members in close touch with the progress of work in the various home and foreign fields, and Mrs. Davies urged a numerous subscription list in every Circle.

Address on India.

The address on Foreign Missions was given by Miss Baskerville, who served for twenty years in India. Since the revival of missionary work a century ago, the Christian church has evinced a realization of its responsibility to give the gospel to all the people of the world. In this giving the light to the nations the Baptist church has taken an increasingly prominent place since its first missionary went from Canada fifty years ago.

Only seven in every thousand women in India have any education at all, although there are some who are highly educated. Only 6 in every 100 girls of school age are attending school. This year the women here are appealed to to provide for a new school for little caste girls at Cocanada. Through the work of the schools the parents of the children are reached. According to the caste system the privileges of women are inversely proportional to their rank. Women are regarded as vastly inferior to men, and the bondage of caste seems unbreakable. To reach these women is a great difficulty to the missionaries. They may be met only in their homes.

The outcast women go about freely engaging in labour and in common pursuits. They help transplant the rice and perform other labour. They are easily reached and among them the missionaries have not only built a strong foundation, but also have helped these women, made them better wives educated them and generally improved their circumstances. Miss Baskerville emphasized the scarcity of schools and the very great need of them.

In India there are 153,806,427 women and girls; two out of every eleven of them are widows. Child widows are the curse of the country and in spite of the efforts of the British government to remove the evil of child marriage it is now a law that no girl may marry until she has reached twelve years. Christian girls have been told that they will not be recognized if they marry before they are fourteen years old. In India marriages are arranged by parents, and often are unhappy and lead to evil.

"We have now eighty missionaries working among four and one-half millions of people who have been allotted to us, and if they do not learn about Jesus Christ it is because we fail to tell them. Thus we have one missionary to 50,000 people. We have a Christian community of ten or eleven thousand, and each of them represent four or five more who intelligently know God, perhaps making a total of forty or fifty thousand."

In presenting an appeal for missionary support, Miss Baskerville suggested that had the people been more generous in their gifts of money for the spreading of the gospel, they might not now be in a state of war, and the vast sums would not be needed. In one year the whole of Christendom had given $100,000,0000 for missions, and the United States alone had spent $120,000,000 for soft drinks in that year.

Rev. W. F. Spidell.

Rev. W. F. Spidell's address was a thoughtful exposition of the uses which Jesus had made of men in His work, which he applied to present day opportunities for service that are offered in the church to those who see and feel the need and duty.

Comforts Provided.

The ladies of Gilmour church had forgotten nothing in their arrangements for the reception the care and comfort of the delegates. A pretty array of flowers brightened the platform in front of the president's table, and their fragrance touched the air with a suggestion of the spring outdoors. Rest rooms were provided in the basement, and the homes of members of the church and the parsonage were thrown open with a fine hospitality. The supper served last night in the refectory, the restrictions of the war, was all that could be desired.

The Billeting.

The Billeting committee reported as follows, the name of the hostesses mentioned first, their guests following:

Mrs. Gordon Mann—Rev. J. B. and Mrs. McCormack, of Norwood.

Miss Blanche Mann, "The Hawthornes"—Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs, of Norwood, Mr. Blackburn, of Belleville.

Mr. Edgar Burnham's Car Was Destroyed Last Evening

Accident Occurred at Corner of Park and Hunter Streets

With his new car just fitted with mud guards to replace those damaged on Monday, Mr. Edgar Burnham, 454 Weller street got into a second mishap last night which completely destroyed the car.

The Accident.

At 8.25 last night Mr. and Mrs. Burnham started down Park street on their way to Mr. Burnham's office. Mrs. Charles Ackerman was coming down Hunter street at the same time, and it is reported on the wrong side of the road. Nearing the corner of Park and Hunter street she saw the Burnham car and applied the brakes. It skidded on the pavement, catching the Ford broadside. Mr. Burnham's car, which was much the smaller, was jammed into the sidewalk and both front wheels taken off.

Immediately a crowd sprang from nowhere and gathered at the corner. Sergt. Blade, who was called, was thrilled by shouts from small boys playing at the corner, who saw the accident. They appeared to be desirous of imparting all the knowledge in connection with the accident that they possessed.

THE IMPERIAL LIFE'S NEW DEPARTURE

A new departure of interest having to do with the rapid growth in numbers of wage earning women in Peterborough is the announcement of a Women's Department being organized in the Central Ontario Branch of the Imperial Life for the purpose of dealing with applications from women for life assurance.

A buying community of very considerable proportions has been created during the past few years by the entrance of women to remunerative occupations, and piano dealers, motor car dealers and insurance companies are alike awake to the importance of this rapidly growing market. Perhaps it is more particularly in view of present conditions that the demand for life assurance for women has increased.

Miss G. D. Thompson has arrived in the city to take charge of this new department in the local offices of the Imperial Life.

Recruits Forced Into The Battle

Prisoners Taken by the Americans Are Happy Lot—Had Little to Eat Lately

POSITIONS RECAPTURED

(By Lowell Mellett—United Press Service).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 12. — American marines have entirely cleared the important Belleau Wood, five miles west of Chateau-Thierry, of enemy forces, it was established to-day.

Prisoners taken by the marines are the gladdest lot I have seen yet. Many of them are extremely youthful and look well cared for, though some of them said they have had little to eat lately.

Some members of a Prussian unit were drafted from all parts of Germany. Several who served on the Russian front said they liked it better than on the Western front. Many of the German regiments, they said, are recruited from Jews. These are unwilling to fight, and are compelled to go into battle by machine guns placed in the rear of their lines. After they have entered the firing line they are chained to guns and wagons.

PARENTS' CIRCLE ANNUAL PICNIC.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School, it was decided to hold the annual picnic on Friday afternoon, June 14th, at 3 o'clock, in the Jackson Park.

Supper will be served by the ladies of the Refreshment Committee.

Parents and teachers are cordially invited to attend, and each one to bring a cup and saucer and spoon.

The Order May Be Modified

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 12. — Premier Hearst and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson indicated in their reply to the Deputation of Western Ontario Manufacturers who asked that the order of Ontario Railway Board, prohibiting the use of natural gas for manufacturing purposes after July 1st, be not enforced that there would be some modification in the order. Premier Hearst assured the deputaton that nothing would be done suddenly in cutting off the supply of gas to manufacturers. In any event ample warning would be given. It is expected that the order will go in force before next October and may not then if it is found there is an ample supply of coal for domestic uses during the coming Winter.

MOLASSES SHIPPED TO BELLEVILLE.

Millions of gallons of molasses will be brought from Cuba and unloaded at the new Government wharf at Belleville this summer. The molasses will be used in making alcohol for war munition purposes at the Corby Distillery, which is working on extensive war contracts. Shipped from Cuba on large ocean steamers, the molasses is transshipped at New York into large barges and brought through New York State ship canal, recently completed and opened for traffic, to Oswego and towed from that port to the new Government wharf at Belleville.—Cobourg Sentinel Star.

THE BODY HAS SEEN RECOVERED.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE CHRISTOPHER FAGAN WILL BE HELD IN THE CITY.

Mr. Charles Fagan received word yesterday that the body of his father, the late Christopher Fagan, who was drowned on May 13th, had been recovered from Lake Nipissing. No details were contained in the telegram.

The funeral which will be held in the city, will be announced later.

Grocers May Close Thursdays

MEETING WAS HELD LAST EVENING TO CONSIDER THE MATTER.

At a meeting of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants Association held last evening in the Y.M.C.A., it was practically decided to close the grocery stores on Thursday afternoons during July and August.

It was also arranged to hold a Grocers' Picnic on Thursday, July 11th. These two suggestions will be confirmed at a later meeting.

GAVE ADDRESS.

Mr. T. Newton, a Toronto member of the Retail Merchants' Association, gave an interesting and instructive address to the large number of grocers who attended the meeting.

HIGHEST FOOD VALUE IN SAMMIES' RATIONS

British and Canadian Rations to Men in Training Provide More Fats.

CHICAGO, June 12.—A comparison of the rations of U.S. soldiers in training with those of other troops on the west front, was given here at the convention of the American Medical Association by Dr. John R. Murlin, advisor to the War Department on matter of diet. He said the American ration has a food value of 4,632 calories; the British 3,822; the Canadian 3,561, and the Italian also 2,551.

"The British and Canadian rations provide more fats; the French about the same amount and the Italian less than the American," continued Dr. Murlin. "The British and Canadian and American training rations provide about the same amount of proteins, the French slightly more."

FIRE DESTROYED A GRAIN ELEVATOR AT PONTYPOOL

GRAIN DESTROYED

PONTYPOOL, June 12.—Late last evening fire destroyed the grain elevator of C. Good and Sons, Toronto. The loss will be in the neighbourhood of $12,000, and is partly covered by insurance. The fire was caused by lightning. Traffic on the C.P.R. line was delayed for some time as a part of the line was blocked with freight cars that had been moved off the siding adjacent to the elevator. Two box cars were destroyed by fire. Other cars were moved by man-power in time to save them from destruction.

The loss to the building is estimated at four thousand dollars and to plant and contents at eight thousand dollars. Four tons of wool was destroyed, also seventy-five bags of flour, three hundred and fifty bags of feed, seven hundred bushels of oats and other supplies.

The fire marked the initial appearance of the Pontypool volunteer fire department, which is in process of organization. Mr. Lou Williamson, who is chief of the department, together with his men were able to save the Canadian Grain Company's elevator which was located several yards away. This is the third serious fire that has visited Pontypool in the past few months. The last one destroyed the church and a number of buildings.

WEDDING BELLS

FLETT—HARDWICK.

Quietly at Murray Street Baptist Church this morning at 7 o'clock, the wedding was solemnized of Mary Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Hardwick, 305 Frederick Avenue, and James Ernest Flett, son of Mrs. Flett, Fenelon Falls. Rev. Mr. Webb officiated.

Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Flett left by the C.P.R. for a honeymoon trip to the Pacific Coast.

REEVE—ALLISON.

At 7 a.m. on Wednesday morning, at the George street church, Florence Gertrude, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Allison, Water St., was united in marriage to Howard L. Reeve, of Port Hope. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Thomas.

The bride wore her travelling suit of mulberry satin with bouquet of orchids and roses. The groom has lately returned from France, where he spent two years on active service.

The happy couple left on the 7.35 train amid showers of confetti and good wishes.

MURRAY—HARRINGTON.

On Tuesday, June 4th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's church, Ennismore, when Miss Loretta Harrington was united in marriage to Mr. Patrick Murray. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McAulay. The bride was given away by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Harrington, while Mr. Thomas McAuliffe was best man. As the bridal party entered the church, Mendelsshon's wedding march was beautifully rendered by Miss Agnes Scollard. The bride looked charming in a dress of Georgette crepe, trimmed with white satin, and hat to match, and carrying white carnations, while the bridesmaid wore a dress of pink ninon with hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

After the nuptial mass the bridal party left for Lakeview Farm, the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served and a reception held. Speeches congratulating the bride and groom were delivered by Father McAuley, Father McLaughlin, Father Killoran Father Messrs. Wm. Harrington, Michael Perlue and John Collins.

A large number of friends and relatives were present to extend their congratulations and good wishes to the newly married couple. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a gold brooch set with cameos, and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside at Cherry Hill Farm Emily.

McINTOSH—BAILEY.

In the presence only of the immediate family of the contracting parties, the wedding was quietly solemnized this morning at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James H. Bailey 477 Bonaccord street, of Wilbert Stanley McIntosh, and Claudia Alice Bailey. Rev. Mr. Pogue performed the ceremony.

Mr. McIntosh returned recently from overseas, having been wounded at St. Julien. Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh will reside in Toronto.

THE MISSION BAND OF ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH HELD ENTERTAINMENT.

INTERESTING PROGRAMME WAS PRESENTED.

The Mission Band of St. George's Church had a very successful and well attended entertainment last night in the parish hall, when the following acceptable programme was given.

God Save the King.

Chorus, Rule Britannia, Mission Band.

Solo, Bonnie Scotland, Mrs. Pilling.

Piano selections, Miss Blake.

Recitation, "So was I," Miss Gladys Jay.

Duets, by Grace Bond and Miss Scott; Mabel Scott and Mary Lesure.

Those who assisted in preparing the programme and concert were Misses S. Kitchen, Isabel Reynolds, Mabel Scott, Mary Lesure, Doris, Mary and Mildred Lancaster, Barbara Simmonds and Grace Bond.

PRAISE DUE.

Congratulations are due Rev. Mr. Price, Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Jay for the splendid efforts they have made in helping the young members of the church; also to Rev. C. A.G. Spence, for his efforts.

VOTE OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks moved by Mr. Holmes, seconded by Mr. Herman Wilson, was passed to all who were in any way responsible for the success of the evening.

TWO NAMES WERE OMITTED.

In the report of Mr. F. D. Kerr's address at the opening of the Court House yesterday, by inadvertence there was an ommission of the speaker's references to the late Judge Weller and the death in action of his grandson Charles Weller (Barker) Dean. The names of the two sons of Lt.-Colonel Stevenson (a former member of the bar) and the two sons of Mr. A. E. Dixon, should also have appeared.

Unfortunate Chickens.

A farmer who has tried Shanghai fowls and found them wanting gives the following account of their peculiarities. Their true name, he says, is "shank high," and he pronounces them rightly named.

They have no body at all, and when the head is cut off the legs come right apart. I don't see how they can sit on their eggs. My jackknife can sit as well as they can.

They don't sit on the roost the same as other chickens do; not a bit of it. When they attempt to sit as other chickens do, they fall off backward.

They sit when they eat, I know, for I've seen 'em do it. And I've seen 'em try to eat standing, but they couldn't fetch it, for when they peck at a grain of corn on the ground they don't more'n half reach it, but their head bobs right between their legs and makes 'em turn a complete somerset.

I'd as soon see a pair of tongs or compasses walking about my yard as these shank highs.

They crow, too, a long time before day, when it isn't day, probably because their legs are so long that they can see daylight long before a common chicken can.

A Serious Charge.

LONDON, June 12. — Sir Joseph Jonas, Lord Mayor of Sheffield in 1905, a steel manufacturer was remanded in Bow Street Police Court on a charge of furnishing information to the enemy.

Meeting Of The Otonabee Council

General Business Transacted, Followed by Court of Revision

Otonabee council met when the following business was transacted:

Messrs. Robt. Chambers, R. A. Wilson, Sidney Bennett, David Spears, Alex. Huston, and James Thompson, were present stating that the gravel in W. T. Arnott's pit was very coarse and requesting that the stone crusher be repaired to crush the gravel.

Messrs. Anderson, Howson and Laurie were appointed to investigate with a view to having it repaired.

The township rate was fixed at 24-10 mills on the dollar, the same as it has been for several years.

The following accounts were passed: Alex. Wood, 34 1-2 rods wire fence $8.62, John Hewie, 8 rods, $2; Daniel Kelly, 50 rods, $12.50; Peterboro Hardware Co., acc., $1.85.

Council then adjourned to 17th of June.

The same day the council met as a Court of Revision. The following appeals were disposed of:

Robert Chambers appealed against over assessment. On motion the assessment was confirmed. David Armstrong, against income, changed from $500 to $450. Chas. Hewett was assessed for part of lot 12, con. 9, instead of Henry Knowles.

PROMINENT ENGLISHMAN IN TOILS.

LONDON, June 13.— Sir Joseph Jonas, Lord Mayor of Sheffield in 1905, and a steel manufacturer was in Bow street police court yesterday on the charge that with various other persons whose names were not known he "did obtain and communicate certain information prejudicial to the interests of the State and information useful to the enemy, and information relating to prohibited places and things therein."

How You Can Quickly Remove Hairy Growths

(Aids to Beauty).

A well known beauty specialist advises this treatment for the removal of hair from the face. Mix into a paste some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This method is quick and entirely safe. To avoid disappointment, however, it is well to make certain you get genuine delatone.

Young's Point Items Of Interest

YOUNG'S POINT, June 12.— Mr. Angus McPherson, Sr. Mr. James MacPherson, and Mrs. Thomas DeForge, of Peterborough, were guests of friends in the village on Sunday.

Hon. Dr. D. J. Reid and government party passed through Young's Point on Wednesday last on his inspection tour of the Trent Valley Canal.

Rev. J. McLaughlin, Rev. Jas. Cloran, Redemptorists of Toronto, who have been conducting a mission in Enismore during the past week, accompanied by Rev. J. V. McAuley, were visitors in the village on Thursday.

Messrs. W. Cox and J. Hughes of the De Laval, Peterborough, were in the village on Friday.

The members of the choir of the Murray street Baptist church, Peterborough, motored to South Beach on Thursday evening for supper.

A very successful and entertaining dance was held by a number of young people from Peterborough at South Beach resort on Friday night.

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENTS.

The cement sidewalk which was begun a couple of years ago, has been extended past the Lakeview House. This is the limit of operations for the present year. Mr. Walter Young is path master and Mr. Fred Hockaday is in charge of the cement operations. The appearance of Front street is materially improved.

Considerable excitement was caused on Friday last when a bush fire of small proportions was set out by Mr. B. Harvey. The extremely high wind which developed later fanned the flames to such an extent that the fire got beyond control for a time, and only for the speedy assistance of some neighbouring men might have resulted in serious damage. A line fence which lay in its path was demolished.

The following guests are registered at the Lakeview House: Mr. J. Wall, editor of the Catholic Register, Toronto and Mrs. Wall, Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Osborn, Toronto, and Mr. John Smythe, Toronto.

At a meeting held in the Young's Point cheese factory on Saturday it was decided by the patrons and cheese maker, Mr. Andrew Wilson, to instal a butter plant in the factory for the manufacture of whey butter. Mr. McMurray of Toronto, a graduate of Guelph Agricultural College, explained the advantages to the patrons and factory by installing such a plant. Mr. John Flood, of Enniskmore, was also present at the meeting. Mr. Walter Young acted as chairman. The patrons were practically unanimous in favour of installing the plant.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Anglesey and Mr. C. Forte, of Peterborough were guests of Mrs. Will Young on Monday.

At a meeting held in Young's Point during the week, of the Catholic Order of Foresters, it was decided to amalgamate the courts of Young's Point and Lakefield into one court. Rev. Father Meagher was elected delegate to the Toronto convention. Mr. Jas. Carroll was elected Chief Ranger of the Court.

Offered To Let The Huns Blindfold Him In Belgium

Hon. Dr. Beland's Proposition to German Prison Authorities in Berlin—Canadian Never Received Any Explanation of Wontonly Cruel Treatment.

RELEASED PRISONER TELLS OF DOCTOR'S LIFE

LONDON, June 13.—Wallace Ellison, recently released from the Stadt Vogtei prison in Berlin, where Hon. Dr. Beland, of Canada, was imprisoned, tells the current Backwoods' Magazine a moving story of Dr. Beland's captivity. He says:

"Shortly before the outbreak of war Dr. Beland married a Belgian lady and took up residence in the village of Capellan, north of Antwerp. He was surprised at the news of war while on a holiday in the Pyrenees and returned to Capellan, where he lived through the siege of Antwerp and witnessed the entry of the armies of Von Emmich. German officers were quartered in his chateau. Relying upon their word that he would not be molested in any way whatsoever, he remained there instead of crossing the Dutch frontier into Holland, only about half a mile distant. The officers who had given him this assurance left for service elsewhere. Other officers came who chose to disregard the word of their colleagues.

Offered to Go Blindfolded.

"Dr. Beland was arrested in June, 1915, and taken to Stadt Vogtei prison. There in one of the large corner cells, he was confined. Just before Christmas, 1916, Dr. Beland received a telegram from a doctor informing him his wife was lying seriously ill at Capelan, he having been distressed up to the date of the receipt of this news by letters from his family which led him to believe such an eventuality was imminent. He had repeatedly endeavoured to procure from the Berlin military authorities permission to return to Capeullan on parole or take up his residence with his wife at some German spa. Not one of these efforts was successful. He appealed to be allowed to go to Capellan for a brief visit, but did not receive an answer. He then received urgent messages from the doctor and his family imploring him to hasten to his wife's bedside as she was dying.

Bad News in Letters.

"He said one day to the lieutenant in charge of the prison, after he had received no answer to his frantic petitions: 'Take me, lieutenant, blindfolded if you wish. I want to see nothing of the state of affairs in Belgium. I only want to see my wife before she dies.' Lieutenant Block, the German officer, did all in his power for Dr. Beland at this crisis, but all his efforts failed. Dr. Beland was not allowed to leave prison, even to attend the funeral. On no occasion did he receive an explanation of this wantonly cruel treatment or any apology whatsoever from the military authorities in Berlin.

"On two or three occasions he was buoyed up by the prospect of exchange or release to England, but on each occasion his hopes were dashed to the ground. When I left the military authorities in Berlin had granted him one or two small privileges, somewhat alleviating the monotony of his captivity. He was bearing almost superhuman trials with splendid fortitude."

Ellison tells an amazing series of stories of almost incredible heartlessness and cruelty on the part of the Vogtei authorities towards their victims. Dr. Beland has not yet arrived in England.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

PULL UP THE WEAKLINGS

Thinning should be going on continuously these days. The war gardener must show himself to be merciless in getting rid of all weaklings for they serve no purpose other than to sap for themselves the strength which should be reserved for the stronger plants. It stands to reason that if too many plants are trying to take nourishment from the soil none of them will thrive as it should. Ordinarily in thinning it is better to pull out the plants in the centre of the bunches which have come up together.

The following scale is a good one to go by in thinning:

Carrots	2 ins.
Parsley	4 "
Radish	2 "
Spinach	3 "
Turnip	3 "
Beet	4 "
Parsnip	3 "
Salsify	3 "
Onions	3 "

Famous London Meeting Place.

Before the war Trafalgar square London, was the favorite meeting place of the suffragettes. The lions at the column's foot were frequently the platform from which Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughters addressed the London crowd. The shops along the Strand were often given the attention of militant women, with the result that for a long while most of their windows were boarded and barred.

Why Beauty Fades

The girl who returns home from school or from work thoroughly tired out will be fortunate if she escapes a physical breakdown because this getting tired so easily is probably the first warning symptom of a thinning blood that must not be disregarded, if her health is to be preserved.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the patient becomes thin, pale, haggard and angular. She not only tires out easily but suffers from headaches, palpitation of the heart, dizzy spells and a loss of appetite. This condition will go from bad to worse until perhaps fatal consumption sets in, if prompt measures are not taken to increase and enrich the blood supply. To make the rich, red blood that brings the glow of health, no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If given a fair trial their use brings rosy cheeks, bright eyes, a good appetite, and good spirits. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made thousands of pale, languid girls active and strong. On the first sign of poor, thin blood all mothers should insist upon their daughters taking a fair course of these pills. They will not only restore health but will save further doctor bills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Austro Warship Sunk, Another Was Crippled

All Italy is Thrilled by the News of the Feat

First side only

VENICE, Tuesday, June 13. —One Austrian dreadnought was destroyed and a second one damaged in the torpedo attack made by Italian torpedo boats upon an Austrian naval division near the Dalmatian Island on Monday, it was officially stated in a communication by the Chief of Staff of the Italian navy.

The attack, made by Commander Rizzo Luski de Milazzo, with two small Italian torpedo boats, was delivered at dawn on Monday.

All Italy was thrilled by the news of this feat, which is considered probably the most remarkable performance by any navy during the war, inasmuch as it was effected by such small means.

Whole of Austria In State of Siege

"Only a Few Regions are Excepted," Says Central News.

LONDON, June 13.—Practically the whole of Austria has been declared in a state of siege, declared a Central News despatch from Rome, quoting the Messagero. Only a few regions are excepted.

GRAIN MARKET

The markets yesterday closed strong on corn and oats. Corn in Chicago closed 2 1-2c up on the July option. The weather continues too cool to afford any encouragement to the bears, who after succeeding in pulling down the market about 1 1-2c were forced to beat a retreat before a buying wave which sent the market well above Tuesday's close. Oats acted strong, the market closing 1 1-2c to 3-4c up. Cash oats situation continues firm, with a good outlet for all offerings.

Manitoba wheat, — No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c tax, in store, Fort William.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday were 62 cars, with 627 cattle, 341 calves, 1453 hogs and 481 sheep and lambs.

The market for cattle yesterday was the strongest this season which is equivalent to saying the strongest market ever seen in Canada.

There was but a comparatively light run of cattle offering while the demand was apparently good enough for twice the number. Everything in the butcher cattle class was very strong.

Sheep and lambs were 50c higher.

Hogs steady but firm.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say the medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion, or they can eat as they please in reason, and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid, and prevent the formation of gas, sourness, or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully with out the need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate, and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you have ever had on "What to eat."

Utilizing Waste Heat of Gas Engine.

For a long time the waste steam from steam engines has been turned to good account, but there have been difficulties in the way of using the exhaust gases from a gas engine as they readily attack the metal of the conduits. However, the difficulty is being overcome for a New Jersey candy factory has an installation in connection with a 60 horse power engine which is used to heat the factory. The gases pass through an economizer made of cast-iron, with the passages to the different sections staggered so that all parts are heated for the whole length. Water circulates in jackets surrounding the gas passages.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A TALK WITH GEORGE

CHAPTER XCI.

I determined to have a heart to heart talk with George. He had brought me to these places where I knew no one, ostensibly to have a good time. Was he going to leave me alone, as he did at home? It was hard enough there, but here it would be unbearable.

I had retired when George came in from his yachting trip, but I was not asleep.

"Did you have a nice day?" I asked.

"Corking! I should have been in a little earlier, but we stopped for supper."

"Who went with you?"

"Oh, the yachting crowd." Then he added so quickly that it looked as if he wished to change the subject: "How did the portrait go?"

"Splendidly! It is nearly finished. I shan't have to go more than once or twice again. I shall be rather sorry—if you are going to leave me alone," I ventured to say, but dared not look at George. "You know Merton Gray is very entertaining, and it helps pass the time."

If I had hoped to get an expression of disapproval, I was disappointed. George simply said, "Yes, he is a clever talker," no more.

A Peculiar Arrangement.

I could not so easily dismiss the conversation from my mind. Far into the night, I lay, wide-eyed, thinking of what he had said—and not said. Evidently he did not care enough to be at all jealous; or else he trusted me.

Instead of feeling happy that he did have faith in me, I was distressed that he cared too little to be jealous. Remember, I was young, and I loved him. Faith and trust seemed small matters compared to love.

Then recurred the thought of his quick change of subject when I asked him who was in the yachting party. Were there ladies along, and did he not want me to know? He usually paid little attention to what I thought; perhaps just one woman was in the party, to whom he hated to call my attention — Julia Collins?

Of course, while she was staying over at Narragansett, she was so near that she could easily have joined the party. I recalled hearing her say she loved yachting — that she was never ill, no matter how rough it was. Before I went to sleep I had made up my mind to find out in some way whether she was with George, all that long day, while I had been left with Celeste.

"Come, Helen I am going to take a dip before breakfast! Want to come along?" George called, so awakening me.

"Of course I do!" I jumped up quickly, everything forgotten for the moment save that George wanted me with him.

We hurried down to Bailey's Beach, and raced and swam and generally acted like a couple of children. I was so happy to see George so affable so full of life when alone with me.

"I prefer to come down early, although the fashionables come much later," he said, as we started back to breakfast. "But you mustn't waste that bathing suit on an old man! You must come down later."

Happier With Him.

"Oh, don't say that! I had much rather come early, like this, and be practically alone with you; I am much happier than with a crowd of people with whom I am unacquainted."

"You'll soon get acquainted. We'll go to several affairs, later."

"I wish I didn't have to." I said so seriously that George laughed at me and declared that, after I had commenced to go, he wouldn't be able to hold me.

We had a jolly breakfast then he left me alone until luncheon. In the afternoon he took me over to the tennis courts and we played a game with some friends of his. I acquitted myself so well that he said he was proud of me.

"You play a wonderful game," one lady said, "you must have played a great deal."

"I used to (I have three brothers) but I have played scarcely at all since I have been married. I should have played better to-day if I had."

"Thank goodness you play no better! I have been beaten badly enough as it is."

On the way back to the hotel George said:

"I was very proud of you this afternoon. You really play a remarkable game. Now get dressed as soon as you can; we will go over to the casino for an hour."

I was so happy because of his approval, that I completely forgot to try to find out if Julia Collins had been one of the yachting party.

To-morrow—Unsought Information.

You Look As YOU FEEL

You know well enough when your liver is loafing.

Constipation is the first warning; then you begin to "feel mean all over."

Your skin soon gets the bad news, it grows dull, yellow, muddy and unsightly.

Violent purgatives are not what you need—just the gentle help of this old-time standard remedy.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS
Genuine bears Signature

Carter's Iron Pills will help this condition.

TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION
From 16 to 20

If the bowels are properly looked after there will be no constipation, jaundice, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, coated tongue, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will keep your bowels so regulated that in no time the constipation will disappear entirely.

Miss Emma E. Melanson, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I am now 20 years of age, and since I was 16 I have been greatly troubled with constipation, so much so that at times I would be in bed X or 4 days a month. I tried all the old-fashioned remedies, castor oil, cascara, etc., with only temporary relief, until my sister-in-law gave me some of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. From the first they seemed beneficial, and I gave them a fair trial. This was two years ago, and with an occasional dose I have kept entirely free from constipation for the period mentioned."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GREAT CHALICE OF ANTIOCH

There have been executed by Mrs. Margaret West Kinney a series of portrait heads, copied from those of the small figures which ornament the outer shell of the cup known as the Great Chalice at Antioch, which is owned by Kouchakji Freres of New York city.

It may be remembered that this cup was discovered in 1910 by Arabs excavating in the ruins of an early Christian church, where it had been buried since probably the fourth century, A. D. It consists of two distinct parts, an inner silver cup of crude workmanship, resembling the common drinking cups of the time of the Roman emperors Augustus and Tiberius, and an outer shell also of silver of exquisite design and workmanship of the first century. The most remarkable feature of the decoration of this outer cup is a series of twelve figures, which encircle the cup in two bands. After an exhaustive research the fact has been established that two of these figures represent Christ, the one at twelve years of age, the other at the time of the resurrection. The other ten figures are those of apostles, the identity of whom is now accurately affirmed.

The date assigned to this vessel seems to leave no doubt that the sculptor was a contemporary of these apostles, and the individuality displayed in their characterization points to the probability of these being actual portraits taken from life.

Because the figures are small—the heads are about three-eighths of an inch—and can only be properly seen with the aid of a magnifying glass, a replica of each one is to be etched by Mrs. Kinney. Six of these are now finished, and reveal not only wonderful skill in the characterization but also an accurate correspondence in type to all that is recorded of the attributes of the apostle represented. Thus, in St. Peter are shown the fiery impetuosity of the short, stubby man of nervous, excitable temperament, while Thaddaeus shows the refined intelligence of a man of good education.

That the inner cup is the actual "Holy Grail" in which the wine of the last supper was blessed is not actually affirmed, though the known facts all point to that assumption. But that these portraits are the work of a contemporary to whom the originals were familiar appears to be a fact established beyond a doubt. This makes these etchings of Mrs. Kinney's executed with faithful adherence to the details of the sculpture of the ring interest from a historical, religious and artistic point of view.

The other heads now finished, beside the two already mentioned, are SS. Andrew, James, Luke and Matthew. That of St. Paul is to be finished shortly.—New York American.

Hard for the Stork.

One Sunday afternoon when Jones, who had been visiting the zoo, came home, he announced to the family:

"They've got a new baby hippopotamus."

Whereupon his daughter, about fifteen, burst into a fit of uncontrollable laughter. When she had subsided somewhat the father growled:

"What are you laughing at?"

"I was just thinking," giggled the girl, "that that rather tells the stork story."—Harper's Magazine.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Procedure of Registration

On June 22nd every person residing in Canada, male or female, British or alien, of sixteen years or over, must attend one of the registration booths located in his or her district, and there observe the procedure explained below.

Where to Register.

Every person required to register has the privilege of registering at any of the public places provided for that purpose. The location of all such places will be specified in proclamations posted conspicuously.

In Cities and Towns, many of these places will be open for registration purposes prior to Registration day. Where such arrangements are made, the local papers will supply full information.

Large industrial and business concerns are being asked to provide facilities for registering their employees. Where they do so business will not be interfered with, and employees will suffer no loss of time.

How to Register

The procedure of registration is simple. The questions upon the registration card can be answered very easily, but they must be answered truthfully and fully.

The card shown in the illustration is a facsimile of the registration card for males. An advertisement showing the card for females appears in another paper.

Study the questions carefully so that you will be able to answer them promptly when registering. If you have any special qualification, or feel that your services would be more beneficial to the country in some other line of work, say so.

While all are compelled to register on Registration Day, it is not contemplated by the Government to force the sick, feeble and aged to turn out. If such persons will notify the Registrar prior to June 22nd of their inability to attend at a place of registration, an effort will be made to register them at home, provided the request is reasonable and justified.

Remember the Day—June 22nd—Remember the Hours—7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Register early and get your Certificate for your own protection.

FIRST NEWSPAPER IN BERLIN

The first Berlin newspaper was printed in 1661 in the reign of the Elector of Brandenburg. The paper was edited by Cornelius Bontekoe, a Hollander, physician to the Elector. Robert Voelker and Elias Lucker, booksellers, were privileged to sell the paper. It was a weekly and appeared Sunday morning; the clerks of the booksellers would sell the papers, in winter before, and in summer after church, which was held in the open from May to September. Those of the young men who could not get a seat were allowed to climb in the trees to listen to the sermon.

With his wife, Louise, and the children and the household, the elector went regularly to church. He would, as a rule, remain standing, while the electress and children would occupy seats under the trees. After the closing prayer the newspaper sale commenced at the entrance gate. Rupert Voelker, the first bookseller of Berlin, was allowed to give the elector a copy. After church the electress and children would return to the palace, while the elector would enter a palanquin and be carried to the Lustgarden. There he would read the paper, and then give audience to artists and other learned men.

One Sunday a man was introduced who entertained the elector (who believed in the appearance of the devil in some form or another) with a story which had happened to a farmer at the Berlin gate:

"At the Berlin gate," he said, "the farmer's horses stopped suddenly. He left his wagon to coax them to go, but coaxing and cursing would not take them a step farther. The farmer turned his head and saw an ugly woman on his wagon, blaspheming God and promising the farmer wealth. Then the farmer said: 'All good spirits.' The woman did not move. The farmer got angry and said: 'Will you ride? Then ride in Jesus' name,' and the woman, the devil, vanished from the wagon."

The elector was greatly interested in the story and ordered the physician-editor to have the story published in the next issue of the paper as a lesson to others not to be tempted by riches. Current news was not allowed to be published. Court functions and fables would find more favor with the Berliners. A bookseller from Leipzig came to Berlin to publish another paper, which was promptly forbidden by the elector, who considered one newspaper sufficient for Berlin.

Pass It Along.

Few of us have been so exceptionally unfortunate as not to find, in our own age, some experienced friend who has helped us by precious counsel never to be forgotten. We cannot render it in kind; but, perhaps, in the fullness of time it may become our noblest duty to aid another as we ourselves have been aided and to transmit to him an invaluable treasure.—Philip Gilbert Hamerton.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

TWO ALTERNATIVES

By W. Bert Foster

Copyright, by the S. S. McClure Company

"And now, Jack, what can I do? He follows me everywhere, and he stands around and ogles me with that detestable 'baby stare' of his, and—and—you're laughing, Jack! You are as mean as you can be to laugh when I come to you for advice."

"Irritation!" A world of emphasis entered into the word. "And just because I was foolish enough to let him propose to me!" she wailed.

"Well, of course," Jack said slowly, "you must expect to have your scalps cost you a little something, Essie."

"He doesn't say anything," exclaimed the girl. "If he did, it would give me a chance to tell him what I think of his dogging my footsteps everywhere."

"It certainly is a case of 'the villain still pursued her,'" Ormsby said. "What do you want me to do, Essie—call him out and plug him full of holes?"

"Ugh! Don't be so vulgar! I don't want you to do anything but tell me what to do to get rid of him."

Jack was almost the only man she knew well who had not proposed to her. Men had fallen before her charms, had said their little piece (and some said it rather well, she had to admit to herself), and gone their way, and until now no man had really been able to trouble her serenity.

"Do think of something, Jack," she pleaded. "It's been three months now since he—he"—

"Since he said the momentous words which made him—not yours, eh?" And Ormsby laughed, but his hands trembled as he shifted the cane a little.

"Don't be absurd! He doesn't want me any more than other men do."

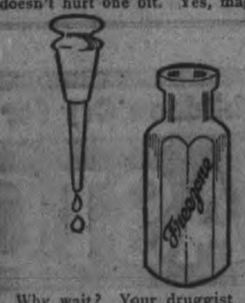
Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. It doesn't hurt one bit. Yes, magic!



Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

More Letters From Gananoque

GANANOQUE, Ont., May 29.—More evidence has come to hand today to prove the great good being accomplished in this town by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. R. W. Henderson, Main St. S., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a household remedy for about fifteen years, and for kidney and liver troubles have found them excellent. I have also proved that in a case of tonsilitis or severe cold, if given in time, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will quickly relieve the patient. I have had experience of this in my own family, and think these pills cannot be equalled."

Mrs. T. H. Harper, River St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "For quite a number of years we have made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home. They are an excellent remedy for kidney and liver troubles, and my husband finds they also relieve him of lumbago, from which he sometimes suffers.

"My husband used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching piles and in a very short time he was completely cured.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine when the children suffered from coughs and colds, and think it excellent. We have received such good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Remedies that it is a pleasure to recommend them."

"Don't be unkind. You know it's true," she said calmly. "Any woman with fluffy hair and blue eyes can bring men to her feet. Only you don't get foolish and propose to me, Jack."

"No, I don't propose to you," he said quite calmly.

"And that's why I like you."

"Then I'll try not to make you dislike me. But what can I do to poor Hallowell? A cat may look at a king"— But Esther interrupted snappishly.

"That's no reason why a calf should look at me all the time!"

"What sin have I committed?" she demanded, with conscious innocence. "Is it a sin to refuse to marry a man you don't want?"

"No-o. But how about—well, not exactly leading him on to proposing, but"—

She favored him with a frigid look. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Ormsby," she observed.

"Well, you needn't," he said quietly. "You expect plain talk from people whose advice you ask, don't you? No man will ever ask a woman to marry him if she doesn't give him the opportunity."

"That is different; but such remarks as you are making now are hardly in the nature of advice, Jack."

"Well, I don't see that there's much you can do," he drawled, and his eyes began to twinkle. "There seem to be but two courses to pursue, and two only"—

"Oh, here's your Sultan and the runabout!" suddenly cried Esther, clapping her hands and springing up. "Are you going to take me to ride, Jack?"

"Well, it's what I came around for, but your tale of woe about knocked it out of my head."

The negro from the stable leaped out and held the big bay's head. Esther ran down to the gate, forgetting the berumfled parasol lying on the veranda. Ormsby followed lazily.

"Feeling pretty gay, isn't he, Jackson?" he asked, pulling on a glove and looking at Sultan, who danced charmingly to the accompaniment of little squeals of delight from Esther.

"Yes, sah; he do, sah."

"Hop in, Essie," Ormsby said, holding out his hand to assist her. Then he added, "Speaking of angels, there's Hallowell now."

A fresh faced young fellow cantered by on a fine horse and lifted his hat seriously. A little way beyond he pulled in the animal and dismounted as though he would come back to speak to the couple at the runabout.

"Do hurry up!" exclaimed Esther under her breath. "What shall I do to get rid of him, Jack? You said there were two ways. What are they?"

"Well," and Ormsby buttoned the glove slowly and put one foot on the step of the runabout, "you might marry him to get rid of him."

"No, thank you!" she exclaimed, pouting and tossing her head. Then she started and looked toward the house. "Oh, Jack—my parasol! I shall want it."

Ormsby had already leaned forward to seize the reins. He glanced at the colored man. "Miss Dingley's parasol is on the veranda, Jackson," he said.

The lines had not been quite within Ormsby's grasp. His foot slipped from the step. He made a leap to reach the carriage, but Sultan swung into a long stride on the instant and fairly snatched the runabout from under his master's grasp.

Thank God, she knew what he meant and seized the lines before they slipped over the dashboard to dangle about Sultan's heels and drive him mad with terror. But the horse knew instantly that an unfamiliar hand held the reins, and he increased his trot to a gallop.

Esther told herself that she would not be frightened, and she drew the lines in firmly and said "Whoa!"

But Sultan saw no reason for "whoaing" just then. There was a long stretch of dusty, sunlit road before him, and he seized the bit in his strong teeth and bolted. He flew by Hallowell's mount with a rush and set that creature to dancing. Hallowell hung on to the leather and stared with round eyes after the runaway.

His astonishment was vastly increased when a second whirlwind reached him. Ormsby went at him as though he was playing football.

He snatched the bridle from Hallowell's hand, and that young man was sent rolling in the dust as Jack leaped astride and set the now frightened animal after the bolting Sultan.

The road for a mile was clear, but where it joined the boulevard beyond Ormsby knew the runaway would burst into a tangle of carriages of all descriptions, and the end would be serious. He didn't know much about the soundness of Hallowell's mount, but he would have made an asthmatic old car horse do stunts just then.

Like the wind he rode, and his mount's nose soon came up to Esther's shoulder. Foot by foot he gained on Sultan, and then, with a swift dive, Ormsby seized the reins, which Esther had continued to cling to with all her little might. A strong pull on both horses, and Sultan instantly recognized the fact that all his fun was over.

He slowed down and in half a block, and just before the junction with the boulevard, stopped, as gentle as a lamb. For a minute they gazed at each other.

"Well," Ormsby said at last, "you came near escaping the pursuit of the villain that time, Essie, for good and all."

Esther's eyes grew luminous. "And you dared suggest that I marry him!" she said, catching her breath.

"Well, you know there was an alternative."

"And that is?" still looking at him.

"That you might marry me to get rid of him. That—that would be effectual, wouldn't it?"

Another breath of silence, and then Esther murmured, "Well, Jack, dear, we might try it!"

This Doctor Recommends Nujol to his Patients

What remedy do you use as a precaution against occasional or chronic constipation? A distinguished southern physician gives his professional answer to this urgent question in the following letter:—

NUJOL LABORATORIES,
STANDARD OIL CO. (New Jersey),
BAYONNE, N.J.

Dear Sirs—

I beg to say Nujol is a wonderful product. I have quite a number of patients now using it, and all are pleased with it. You very kindly sent, at my suggestion, samples to several of my patients. So far as I know they are all now consumers of Nujol. One in particular had chronic appendicitis; now apparently relieved.

Truly yours,
Paul T. Jones, M.D.

5 Kennesaw Ave.,
Atlanta, Ga.

A SCORE or more of serious diseases and conditions begin with constipation! Therefore, keep your bowels clear, and protect yourself from the danger of a host of bodily ailments. Use Nujol to promote regular bowel-habits, without the least harm to the system. Use Nujol because it is a drug-free remedy, positively safe for all, from infancy to old age. Nujol relieves in a natural way—without affecting digestion, without artificial stimulation, without griping or disagreeable reaction. It is pleasant to take—pure and tasteless. To be "regular as clockwork"—use Nujol.

ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS

There are no substitutes—there is only Nujol

2000 Canadian physicians have asked for samples of Nujol, and are now convinced of its merit.

Sitting On Doorstep And Nabbing Titles

LONDON, June 12—The new list of honors of the Order of the British Empire has brought another burst of criticism. The Evening Standard again draws attention to the enclusion in the British list, a number of Dominion recipients, remarking: "It is most unfair that a few folk from overseas who happen to be on the doorstep, namely in London, sould ge rewarded in advance of their fellows. This clovenly way of doing things is likely to be especially resented in Canada, for Premier Borden has said that he has had no time yet to prepare a list of Canadian recipients."

The Saturday Review declares: "The more democratic we become the more insatiable grows the appetite for titles. The sterner and more logical Canadians frown on these weaknesses, but we are afraid some of their most successful men will slip over to the Old Country to end their days."

The Daily News says the thin stream of titles under the new Order has become a raging torrent in the noise of which it is impossible to hear oneself speak.

The Daily Chronicle declares the list loses distinction and honor for the deserving is diminished by the inclusion of many mediocrities.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

WHY DO YOU RESPOND TO MUSIC?

Why are so many "unmusical" people so musical? Why is the demand for music so universal while the strictly "musical public" is limited?. The truth is, music has a most uncanny way of interweaving itself into the texture of a man's life, regardless of whether or not he is given a musical education. Just as a scrap of melody associated with a certain character or situation is heard again and again in the course of a modern opera, each time with a new meaning, so a tune learned in childhood may become a sort of "leit-motiv," cropping up continuously and with new significance as the curve of a man's life rises to maturity and sinks to old age. "Silver Treads Among the Gold," heard in childhood is meaningless save a pretty tune that daddy sings. Later, when daddy goes the way of all flesh, it becomes a hallowed memory; and we may hear it often without its having any significance whatever until one fine day—well the silver threads begin to appear in earnest.

"Writing about music must be lots of fun when you have opera or symphony to write about," said a musical friend, "but how on earth do you swallow so much ragtime and popular music?" Swallow it? It is in some ways the most fascinating part of the job. Immersed in music from childhood, we know better than most that a symphony can appeal only to an audience predisposed to music as an art. A popular song belongs to everybody. It shakes the tired office-man out of his rut; it takes the stiffness out of a party of self-conscious guests: it is "camouflage" for the mating of the younger generation.

Take "Tipperary," for instance. Four years ago "Tipperary" was whistled or sung by everybody; some of us now might have difficulty in recalling the tune. Yet to many a man and woman in England it has become a holy thing—the last memory of some man who went away gaily on a sultry evening in August, 1914, never to return.

The part music plays in every man's life is a curious one. It seems that all through his life a man stands midway between a two-phase current, one sweeping forward to the future, the other reaching back to to those stored-up experiences which we call memory. From childhood to adolescence and a little beyond, the forward - looking currentt flows strongest—the future holds so much and the past so little. In maturity, the period of a man's fullest development, the two flow evenly side by side, so that a man looks behind and before him with a balanced judgment; and finally we come to dwell more and more upon memories of the past, beginning perhaps witth the romance period—the time when, as boys, we threw our school-books behind us and succumbed to the glamour of the "Great Whitte Way," or as girls we went to our first ball and quit wearing our hair in a pigttail. And the older we grow the further back we look, so that the childhood memories of a very old man are usually more acute than those of his maturity.

A music plays its part all through Seventeen-year-old Eileen, constantly straining forward, discards the melodies she learned at her mother's knee for the very latest, up-to-the-minute fox-trot. And her brother chucks aside the old school song-book with its "Juanita," "Last Night," "Old Folks at Home," fondly believing that he has done with it forever, not knowing that these tunes will come back to haunt him in after years, along with the first waltz e danced with some miraculous blue-eyed blonde, whose very name escapes him a year later—only to come back rose-tinted in a couple of decades. To us, this year's, popular favorite song sounds suspiciously but not to the youngsters. They find something about it just a little different and discard the former favorite with a contemptuous "old stuff." So it comes about that a popular song is never so defunct so as a year after it as been on everybody's lips. Yet its influence remains, and when memory plays its larger part, these tunes return like bread upon the waters. And still later the tunes from the old song-book are heard again.

Wells Doesn't See It Through.

An edifying little wrangle between Messrs. Wells and Jerome has been adorning the correspondence columns of the London Daily News. Mr. Jerome wrote something about a "League of Benson." Mr. Wells then saddled Mr. Jerome with the elegant reproach of "slobbering with love and forgiveness about the neck of the kaiser, the crown prince, Reventlow and the Krupp family." Mr. Jerome, very naturally, retorted that he had done nothing of the sort, whereupon Mr. Wells criticised Mr. Jerome for holding opinions which Mr. Jerome subsequently stated he did not hold. After a few more interchanges of compliments the editor of our contemporary has printed a further letter of Mr. Jerome's, despite a pressing invitation of his for further remarks by Mr. Wells, with the intimation, "This correspondence is now closed." This embargo places Mr. Wells in the unusual position of being unable to have the last word.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Haimge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr.Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days".

THEIR SOULS IN THEIR PURSE

That Is, If It May Be Admitted That "War Profiteers" Are Possessed of Souls.

An inquiring correspondent asks us to define a "war profiteer," remarks the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Now, as the soul of a man is really the essential and distinguishing part of him we may reach the required definition by turning to a little story told in the preface to that ingenious picaresque romance, "Gil Blas," by the worshipful Master Alain-Rene Lesage, one of the first of French story tellers, a true improvisatore, and the literary progenitor of the English Smollett, and Balzac and Flaubert.

Once upon a time (that is the good old way to begin) there were two students of Spain journeying together to Salamanca, the Madison of Castile.

At a halt by the roadside they discovered what appeared to be a gravestone, with this curious inscription:

Whereat they marveled greatly. For while the body or corporeal shell of a man is the frequent subject of interment and of the offices of the physician's shadow, the undertaker, who ever before heard of the soul of a man being thus disposed of by the gravdigger!

One of the students being of an inquiring mind and doubtless destined for what in our day is elastically called "research work," determined to look into the mystery and exhume whatever lay beneath the stone. A little digging and prying sufficed to get it up.

"Under it he found a purse of leather, containing a hundred ducats!"

And that was the "soul of the licentiate Pedro Garcias." His soul was in his purse. And the same may be said of the "war profiteer," who coins the necessities of the government and the nation into the extortioner's or the grafter's dirty profit.

Yours Is Coming, William!

Of the Russian peace he said:

"The complete victory fills me with gratitude. It permits us to live again one of those great moments in which we can reverently admire God's hand in history."

Did a more sanctimonious scoundrel ever cut a throat?

Ah, William! You rest on the knees of the gods, and far from safety. Any moment, over you may go, face down, and our turn will come to admire God's hand in history, applied with emphasis where it will do most good.—Life.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION.—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

Made Brave Rescue of Boy.

With a line tied about him and a lantern in his hand, M. Chiavetta, a driller employed in the New York navy yard, descended into a twenty foot tank and located a helpless boy who was lying on a stage in a semi-conscious condition. This act of heroism occurred on the United States steamship Standard Arrow. Although nearly overcome himself Chiavetta managed to secure the youth as well and, assisted by another helper, boy J. Goodlich, brought him to the air. O'Neill was revived and Chiavetta and Goodlich were given treatment by the ship's company and later by a dispensary attendant. In a report of the occurrence the assistant navy constructor in charge writes: "I desire to call attention to the conspicuous heroism of Chiavetta. He could have unlit, choking and almost overcome exhibited the most praiseworthy determination, judgment and bravery in finding and bringing out O'Neill. Chiavetta was himself under treatment for about an hour afterward and the further distinguished time it took in turning to work to be the last man the only driller who so remained on the job." He has been recommended to Secretary Daniels.

SAW REAL TRAGEDY

Movie Spectators Were Treated to Two Shows.

One Among the Audience Might Almost Be Called a Comedy, Unless One Had to Pay for Crushed Headgear.

My seat was directly behind those occupied by the trio who figured in a serio-comic accident that convulsed nearby spectators in a Broadway moving picture theater the other afternoon. I therefore am able to tell just what happened and give details that must have puzzled persons sitting a little farther away.

The two women were loaded down with parcels and small packages when, right in the middle of a thrilling drama they slowly and cautiously fitted themselves into two orchestra chairs near the middle aisle.

It was a tight fit, for neither of the ladies could be described as sylphlike in form, and the armfuls of purchased bundles contributed in no way to facilitate adjustment of the generous cargo nature previously entrusted to each. Parcels of various sizes slid from their knees into recesses under the seats in front and slopped into the aisle from the lap of one who sat nearest to it.

The theater was in semidarkness, and it was only by the groping of many hands, in response to whispered appeals, that the troubles of diligent hours spent in shopping were returned to them. They then apparently for the first time discovered that the adjoining seat—third from the side—was unoccupied, and into it they dumped their bundles and their hats.

Quiet in the immediate vicinity had scarcely been restored when a stout, middle-aged man arrived with coupon calling for the seat they had just converted into a sort of family catch-all.

Regardless of their exclamations of despair he inched his way in, while they with frantic haste struggled to clear off the place upon which he was to sit.

Peace finally descended again upon the neighborhood, and we had given ourselves up to undisturbed wonder concerning the fate of the film heroine should the villain penetrate her disguise as a French artillery officer, when one of the package-laden women said to the other:

"Mercy! I promised to be home by five o'clock. Lucy is going out and I forgot all about it."

While the speaker, who sat nearest the aisle, arranged her hat and pierced it with a couple of pins, her companion struggled to convert the fruits of their shopping into two portable pyramids. Suddenly she uttered a little scream, and then whispered to her friend in awe-stricken tones, "I can't find my hat. I believe that man is sitting on it."

"Gracious goodness," said the other. "Ask him."

"I can't do it," said her friend. "You ask him."

Thus appealed to, the holder of the two turned to the man, who appeared to have heard nothing of their conversation, and said:

"I think you are sitting on this lady's hat."

"I am not doing anything of the sort; why should I?" was the amazing reply she received.

"Sit down," cried several voices to the hatted and hatless ones, from whose arms bundles again began to leak.

"I am not sitting on your hat, ma'am," said the suspected male, "but if it will do you any good, I'll prove it."

Then he arose, and from under his ponderous body the hatless woman removed what had once been a towering millinery creation, with twin pinnacles soaring aloft, but which was now only a pancake of cloth and feathers.

A wave of mingled applause and protestation swept that part of the theater, as the shoppers departed, pausing every few feet to recapture some meandering parcel.—Madge Arthur, in Buffalo Courier.

B. C. 55.

"The next morning, as treacherous and hypocritical as ever, a large company of Germans, which included all the principal and senior men, came to his quarters, with a double object—to clear themselves (so they alleged) for engaging in a battle the day before contrary to the agreement and to their own request therein, and also by deceit to get what they could in respect of the truce." This is not an extract from an account of current happenings in Russia between that country and Germany. It is from Caesar's history of his dealings with certain German tribes in the year 55 B. C. Replying to the spokesman of these Germans (who had crossed the Rhine to invade Gaul) the narrative reads: "To this Caesar replied as seemed good; but the conclusion of his speech was as follows: He could have no friendship with them if they remained in Gaul." These extracts from a famous book are commended to the attention of powers that be.—From the Outlook.

FRENCH TROOPS HURL GERMAN FORCES BACK

Desperate Fighting Continues On The Western Front

Desperate Fighting Continues On The Western Battlefront

Hand to Hand Fighting—Several Hundred German Prisoners Brought In—Fight For a Village

FRENCH COUNTER ATTACK

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 13. — With the Germans now pushed beyond the Aisne and Fourst De Cotterets, which had been expected ever since the beginning of the attack west of the Oise, the entire battle now becomes a vast manoeuvre for the purpose of encircling the range of high hills and plateaus covered by the Laugue, Compeigne and Villiers-Cotterets Forest. These wooded areas extend for 50 kilometers (31 miles) between Noyon and the Ourcq. Their possession would permit the Germans a degree of concealment for future operations of the highest important degree. In their new attack against the Villiers-Cotterets Forest, the enemy again is endeavouring to utilize its numerical superiority for infiltration. But throughout yesterday the Boches found themselves constantly engaged in hand-to-hand combats with the French.

Pushing Enemy Back.

On the extreme right, along the Ourcq, where the Germans hope to encircle the Villiers-Cotterets Forest from the south, the American and French troops are steadily pushing them back. On the west side of the Oise, while the Germans were able to make a slight advance along the Matz which was practically nullified last night, the French continued to counter attack on the enemy's extreme right with continued success yesterday, leaving the final issue of the battle at this point still unsettled.

A Wonderful Story.

The defence of Courcelles on the left wing of the battle front by the French against attacks repeatedly day and night since June 9 makes a wonderful story of heroism. The village, which is most important, owing to its commanding positions, was for 48 hours almost surrounded by the enemy, but the French held on, and when a favourable opportunity came, sortied and counter attacked, repulsing the Germans from the village. The Germans tried every possible ruse, as well as force, to take the village. The growing crops on fertile land in the vicinity were a source of considerable trouble to the defenders, as the Germans could creep through them until they reached the edge of the village. The enemy also covered their helmets with clumps of grass and weeds and crawled slowly forward. They could not, however, shake the determination of the French to retain possession of the village. The spirit of offensive was so high among the Allied troops that they continued their advance on the left to-day, despite the fatigues they had undergone since the beginning of the week. Another batch of several hundred German prisoners were brought in to-day here, with numerous machine guns.

Survivor Of The Lusitania Joins The Army

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 13.—An English mother and many of her family documents went down on the Lusitania. Thomas Vivian Williams, her surviving son, who gives his age as 37, was arrested by the Dominion Police because he carried no birth certificate.

He appeared in the police court today and was sent to join the army until a new certificate could be secured.

POPE WILL SPARE NO EFFORTS TO END THE WORLD CONFLICT

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, June 13. — The Pope, writing to the Bishops of Lombard, deplored the misinterpretations which have been placed on his attitude regarding the war, it was learned. He declared that he would continue to spare no efforts to end the war.

New Peace Treaty Has Been Signed

Turkey Concludes Peace With the Transcaucasia Government After Occupying Number of Important Cities

ARMENIANS MASSACRED

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, June 13. —A peace treaty has been signed between Turkey and the Trans-Caucasia Government, says a telegram from Constantinople.

Previous to the signing of the Brest-Litovsk treaty between Russia and the Central Powers, which ceded the Provinces Kars, Batum and Erivan to Turkey, a separate government had been formed in the Trans-Caucasus region with the capital at Tiflis. Batum, Van and other cities were occupied by Turks and thousands of Armenians were massacred.

LONDON, June 13.—In the Commons on Tuesday next, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to move a war appropriation of two and a half billion dollars, making the total appropriations since the beginning of the war thirty-seven billion.

ANNUAL EXCURSION OF ALL SAINTS' CHOIR

The annual excursion of All Saints' choir was held yesterday to South Beach. The party, numbering some 45 persons, were conveyed in automobiles, kindly lent by members of the congregation. The use of the pavilion in connection with the hotel, was kindly placed at their disposal by Host Brooks, and in no small measure added to the comforts of the day.

Sports were engaged in by young and older, young alike and several records were broken, but that was all the damage accounted for, beyond a few blow-outs and punctures. The Rev. R. B. Grobb's presence added to the pleasures of the excursion, and one and all voted the safe arrival home the "end of a perfect day."

Those who kindly lent their cars were: Mr. Worth two cars, Cranfield Bros., Mr. L. Dobbin, Mr. P. Alexander, Mr. A. Webber, Mr. Rose, Mr. W. Buller whose kindness is gratefully appreciated by the choir.

PETERBORO' SOLDIERS RETURNING HOME

Mr. Dobbin has been notified that H. W. Bailly, 559 George street; H. Desault, 40 George street; H. Raynor, 171 Prince street; R. Sprout, 384 Stewart street; W. Whitney, 887 Water street, will arrive in Kingston to-day, from overseas, and if connections can be made, probably return to the city this afternoon, when they will be welcomed by the civic officials, at the 5.35 train.

THE SITUATION IN AUSTRIA IS AGAIN VERY SERIOUS

Conditions Revealed by Correspondent of Vienna Newspaper —Rations Have Been Reduced

POPULATION STARVING

(By Jos. Shaplen—United Press Service.)

STOCKHOLM, June 13. — The growing seriousness of the food and political situation in Austria-Hungary, was revealed to me today by an Austrian newspaper man, the staff correspondent of the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung. "The situation in Austria-Hungary is again very serious" he said. "The food situation is always worse than it is in Germany. The Austrian government under pressure of the January strikes gave the workmen many food promises. Germany has reduced the daily bread ration from 2 hundred to 1 pt. grammas (half an ounce). The price of flour in Austria is now 14 franc a kilogramme (about $1.40 a pound.) Butter is 40 francs a kilogramme (about $4.00 a pound.)

The Vienna population is not getting even 35 per cent of its normal rations. "The political situation is likewise critical as a result of the publication of Emperor Carl's letters. The meeting of the Reichtrass (congress) has been postponed indefinitely.

"Recently there was a severe battle between the Germans and the Slovaks in Vindish Gratz. There the most serious disturbances are at Leibach. The Austrian socialists are talking in strong language, but there is no hope of peace. Germany refuses to listen to anything about peace.

Strangled With Fear.

The Reichstag is strangled with fear because of the demands of the people for strong action against war profiteering of the Agrearians and the Capitalists and fair division of the coming harvest. It is only with the shadows of reform that the Government seeks to conciliate the starving and suffering population of Bohemia. Simultaneously however, new repressive measures have been introduced in the southern Slav provinces as a concession to the German Nationalists.

Austria is again in the clutches of Germany, due in no small measure to the traitorous attitude of the followers of Phillip Scheidemann (Leader of the German Majority Socialists) who refused to support revolutionary movement in Austria.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, June 13.— The Associated Press war summary to-day reads: German progress along the Oise river is being counter-balanced by French gains on the western wing of the battle front, which now has been extended to the north-east of Villiers-Cotterets. The heaviest fighting is taking place along the line from Rubescourt to the juncture of the Matz and Oise rivers, with the French having advantage on most of the sector. From Rubescourt to Dommiers is almost fifty miles, but in the centre between the Oise and Aisne rivers, where the Frenchh have retreated to a new line through Bailly, Tracy Le Val and Nampcel. The struggle northeast of Villiers-Cotterets, where the Germans apparently are attempting to force a passageway between the natural defence and the Retz Forest and the Forest of Compeigne, has not yet developed.

Teething Troubles

Baby's teething time is a time of worry and anxiety to most mothers. The little ones become cross; peevish; their little stomach becomes deranged and constipation and colic sets in. To make the teething period easy on baby the stomach and bowels must be kept sweet and regular. This can be done by the use of Baby's Own Tablets—the ideal laxative for little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Henry Bernard, St. Emile, Que., says: — "Baby's Own Tablets cured my baby of constipation and made his teething painless." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COW KILLED BY AN AVIATOR IN A FORCED LANDING

Special to Examiner:

TORONTO, June 13.—An aviator swooped down from the clouds this morning and endeavoured to use a cow's back as an aerodrome when he made a forced landing. The accident occurred about a mile south of Thornhill and east of Yonge street. The cow was grazing quietly and unaware of its danger when the machine struck the animal and killed it. As far as can be ascertained, the machine was only slightly injured and the aviator it is understood, escaped injury.

WILL PRAY FOR THE GERMANS ON SUNDAY, JUNE 30

Presbyterian Assembly Took An Unusual Stand This Morning--An All Night Session

OFFICE OF MODERATOR

Canadian Press.

LONDON, June 13.—Vexed question of throwing the office of Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly open to elders as well as ministers which took up all night session and led to heater arguments. In the assembly here was given the quietus this morning by being referred to subordinate Presbyterian to be voted on and reported at the next assembly. This announcement of the resignation of Dr. Shearer to accept the new position as general secretary of the Dominion Social Service Council also caused much discussion, some of the members expressing opinion that his services should be detained for Presbyterianism.

PRAYER FOR THE HUN

(Special to Examiner)

LONDON, June 13.—Taking the stand that prayer for the enemy is a christian obligation and not open to the suspicion of being pro-German in essence, the Presbyterian General Assembly went on record today, to include the Hun in the scope of the supplications to be offered on Sunday, June 30, the day appointed as a national day of intercession. The question of prayer for the Germans was brought up by Rev. Jas. Taylor of Braeside. "This suggestion," he said with earnestness "is not pro-German, it is pro-humanity. I feel that we should include in our prayers at all times all of our enemies both at home and abroad. I have felt strongly on this since the commencement of the war."

The suggestion came obviously as somewhat of a shock to some of the commissioners, but the spirit of Mr. Taylor's explanation commended itself.

Peterboro' Man With The Draft

TORONTO, June 13.—Fired with a desire to avenge the death of his parents and family, of whom he has heard nothing for about three years, Luke Radenich, a Serbian, who has already served nearly two years in the great war, is now on his way overseas again with the Canadian Engineers. Radenich enlisted in Omaha, Nebraska, through the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, and was one of many men enlisted in the United States who left with a draft of 200 for the Engineers' training depot at Brockville.

Although only nineteen years of age, R. Phipps of Auburn, N.Y., another man recruited through the Mission, and who left last night for Brockville, resolved to fight in the place of his brother, who was invalided home almost fatally wounded. Phipps formerly lived in Peterborough.

MAY SEND TROOPS TO THE RUSSIAN FRONT

MANY DIFFICULTIES

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The American government is striving hard to make some arrangements whereby aid —even troops—may be sent to Russia under a Russian-American treaty. The government plans to be able to announce July 4th, that a million men have left American ports for Europe. Thereafter it will have cut down on the pace set in the May and June record, so that ships and supplies can be forwarded. This will give the opportunity of aiding Russia with other troops. Many difficulties stand in the path, it is admitted, but Government leaders are doing their utmost to reach a solution.

Crop Acreage Increased By Over One Million

Condition of Crops Ahead of Last Year

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, June 13.—The first preliminary crop bulletin of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics issued to-day, shows an increase of more than one million acres of land sown to hay and grain this year than last, and that the condition of which up to May 31st this year, was generally better than last year.

LARGE CONTRACT FOR PETERBORO'S NEWEST INDUSTRY

Renfrew Despatch Refers to the Location of T. A. Low's Plant in Peterborough

RENFREW, June 13.—Contrary to expectation Mr. T. A. Low's new munitions factory will not be located in Renfrew. Because of the urgency of the large contract secured by Mr. Low, the question of ample electrical power, housing conditions and adequate labour had to be immediately considered by Mr. Low. So far as power was concerned Renfrew was prepared to meet Mr. Low, meantime, he had received a pressing invitation to take over a factory in Peterborough, already built and ready for occupation. He has made a personal investigation of the inducements offered by Peterborough and has decided to locate his new factory there.

The above refers to the plant that was recently occupied by the Metal Products Company, and which has been purchased by the firm of Low and O'Brien, from the Bank of Ottawa.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, June 13.—The market this morning was very steady in all lines, but trade was inclined to be slow, and prices were steady. Prospects for cattle next week promise to be steady and hogs easier. Receipts—371 cattle, 165 calves, 1,764 hogs, and 197 sheep. British Troops Advance Line On Flanders Front French Have Improved Their Positions—Prisoners Taken in Both Operations — Enemy Suffers Heavy Losses.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 13.—British troops last night advanced their lines a short distance on the Flanders front in the district south-east of Merre, the War Office announced to-day. The French on this front line have improved their positions near Ridge Wood. Prisoners were taken in both operations.

A successful daylight raid was carried out by us yesterday south of Arras, says to-day's official statement. Heavy casualties were inflicted upon the enemy. One hostile trench mortar was brought back to our lines and two others were destroyed. During the night local operations were undertaken by us successfully south-west of Merris and east of Dickebusche Lake.

In the former sector our line has been advanced a short distance with little cost and the number of prisoners taken in the latter area. French troops improved their positions in the neighbourhood of the Ridge Wood and captured thirty prisoners.

FRENCH OFFICIALS.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 13.— French troops last night struck heavy blows against the German forces which have been advancing on the eastern wing of the new front of attack. The War Office announced to-day that the French had hurled back the enemy to the north bank of the Matz river. Violent combats continue between the Aisne river and the Villiers-Cotterets Forest. The Germans have progressed as rfar as the ravine west of La Berain and north of Cutry.

Germans last night made a violent attack on the American sector between Thouresches and Belleau Wood, on the Marne front. The Americans broke up the attack and inflicted serious losses on the enemy, holding all gains. After violent fighting the enemy obtained a footing in Coreuvres and St. Pierre-Hasgle.

THE STATEMENT READS:

During the night the Germans did not renew their attacks between Montdidier and the region of Anthueil. French troops are consolidating their positions. The French, by a counter attack, hurled the enemy back to the north bank of the Matz river.

East of the Oise river the French have occupied their new positions on the heights of Croix Ricaria and Melicouq. Hundreds of prisoners and many machine guns remained in the hands of the French. Violent combats continue between the Aisne rivers and Villers-Cotterets. The Germans have made progress as far as the ravine east of Laversin. After violent fighting the enemy has obtained a footing in Coevres and St. Pierre.

An Attack On The Government

Manufacturers Condemn Manner in Which Government is Handling Railway Situation

TWO RAILWAY CRIPPLES

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, June 13.—The Federal government has treated the C.P.R. in an iniquitous manner by its railroad policy James A. Riordan of Toronto, chairman of the Transportation committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association stated at that organization's convention, which was continued this morning. Mr. Riordan made his statement while presenting the Transportation committee's report. Riordan followed up the contention of claiming the government has two railway cripples on its hands and is doing all that is possible to create a third by levying heavy taxes upon the C.P.R. at a time when it is difficult and costly to get the supplies it needs. The government was attempting to turn an asset into a liability, he said. The report expressed its appreciation of the determination of the government to build Canadian merchant marine.

W. J. BULMAN WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT

Steps Taken to Adjust Conditions After the War

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, June 13.—W. J. Bulman, of Winnipeg, was to-day elected president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association as expected. T. P. Howard, Montreal, was made 1st vice-president, and J. D. McKinnon, 2nd vice-presinent. A resolution was adopted favouring the Dominion Government taking action toward providing for after war conditions to the end that the employment of several hundred thousand people now in war industries may not cease.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL HAS ALREADY VISITED ELEVEN CITIES ON PRESENT TOUR.

Will Make Stay at Muskoka Before Returning to Ottawa.

OTTAWA, June 13.— The present tour of the Duke of Devonshire through the Province of Ontario is the most complete trip of its kind undertaken by any Governor General for many years past. Their Excellencies since leaving Toronto on May 25th have visited Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Welland, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Chatham, Windsor, Sarnia, London and Woodstock. They have been enthusiastically received at every point.

The vice-regal party is using the lines of the Grand Trunk Railway System in its tour through the Province, and before returning to Ottawa will visit several other cities and towns, including Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph, Owen Sound, Collingwood, Barrie, Orillia and Gravenhurst. The party will also spend a few days at Muskoka Lakes at the conclusion of the trip.

SWORN TO AND GUARANTEED

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, JUNE 13TH, 1918.

UNWISE REMARKS.

There has been a lot of wild talking in regard to the farmers' convention last week, and some of the worst of it can be credited to Inspector of Detectives Kennedy, of Toronto, whose remark that if he had known the speakers were criticizing the government, he would have stopped the meeting, savours more of Prussian methods than one would expect from an official serving under the British flag. Some of the speakers may have been hot headed and indiscreet, and these deserve censure, but in so far as legitimate criticism is concerned, the Inspector is taking too much upon himself in making threats as to what he will do in the case of another meeting. The farmers of Ontario are within their rights in meeting to discuss measures that are of vital importance, not only to themselves, but to the allied cause. Inspector Kennedy's remarks are as open to criticism as are the threats of J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, that the farmers would go on strike if their meeting was interfered with.

CLIMBING PRICES.

The complaints that have been heard frequently during the past few months in regard to the Canada Food Board's operations, especially because of the steadily upward tendency of food prices, will not lose any of their strength as the result of the latest order of the Board regarding wholesalers, especially if the opinion of a leading wholesale produce merchant is confirmed. "It is going to mean that the cost of provisions will be higher," is this man's comment on the new ten per cent. limitations of profit. It is complained that there will be an increase in the cost of living through the new order because the dealers claim that in order to balance losses the maximum profit will be charged which in many cases will be greater than the present profits which are made in certain lines of goods.

According to the Labour Department's figures the increase in food-prices from month to month is alarming and the agitation to have the Canada Food Board do a certain amount of price fixing is coming more and more to the front as the cost of food climbs. There is a variance between the prices in Canada and those in United States cities along the border that Canadians cannot understand, and complaints from all parts of Canada are becoming more heated as the days go by. So far the Food Board has refused to do anything towards price-fixing— in fact has frequently expressed its disbelief in the effectiveness of such a system. It is believed, however, that before long, if the pressure of public opinion increase the Board will have to reconsider its opinion.

DOING SPLENDID WORK.

The announcement that the Business Girls' Club of Peterboro are to hold a big garden party on July 18th, at "Holmwood Hall," at the end of the street railway line, brings into prominence the splendid work that this organization of energetic and patriotic young ladies has accomplished since the commencement of the war. One of the first of local clubs to begin war work, the Business Girls' Club has gone on steadily and effectively doing a vast amount of good for the cause of the allies without much publicity or sounding of trumpets. Not only have the members of the club assisted greatly the efforts of the Red Cross and made regular contributions to the Prisoners of War Fund, but on their own account are maintaining two British and two Belgian prisoners of war; have knitted large quantities of socks for Canadian soldiers, have supplied scrap books and other comforts, and this summer have added to their activities a war garden which they are cultivating on a large scale. This is a splendid record of achievement, which has meant the sacrifice of many hours that might have been divered to pleasure, for it must be remembered that the members of the organization are all employed in business and mercantile conderns, so that their war efforts have been carried on in what, had they been more selfish and less patriotic, would have been their leisure hours. For these reasons, it is to be hoped that their garden party next month will be a splendid success and liberally patronized by the public. All the money goes for the benefit of the "boys over there," and with the record of what has been accomplished in the past the Business Girls' Club should have no diffidence in asking for support from the public.

"WHOSE GOD IS THE BELLY."

(From the Presbyterian Witness.)

In his letter to the church of Philippi, the apostle Paul refers to certain persons "whose god is the belly." We fear the members of this cult are still alive on the face of the earth to-day. We are in the midst of a great struggle for our dearly bought liberties, the issue of which depends upon the endurance and the self sacrifice not only of our soldiers at the front, but of every man and woman in the nation. We have been assured by competent men who have made an expert study of the question that we are threatened wih a world famine by reason of the great number of men in all the belligerent countries that have been withdrawn from production since the beginning of the war, and that unless we practice the strictest economy, especially in the use of certain food products, such as wheat, meat and sugar, there is grave danger that our soldiers may not receive a sufficient supply to keep up their strength. And yet in the face of this peril and the sacrifices being made for them by our brave boys at the front, there are those among us who are apparently unwilling to deny themselves any luxury in the food line which they once enjoyed. * * * The sacrifice involved in a meatless or a wheatless meal or in giving up rich cake for a while for the purpose of conserving the supply of sugar is so paltry in comparison to the sacrifices and sufferings of the men at the front that it brings the blush of shame to be compelled to acknowledge that there are any among us, bearing the name which has come into such world wide honour, who are not willing to deny themselves even to this small extent. Our boys lying out in the trenches, in cold and mud and rain, enduring the unspeakable horrors of shell and poison gas and liquid fire, in hourly peril of their lives, may go hungry, but these devotees of the belly god must have their meat and wheat bread and cake as usual!

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Toronto people are complaining of the roaring of the sea lion at the Riverdale Zoo. And yet they stand for Sam McBride.

The weather man seems to be labouring under the delusion that the recent embargo on importations covers warm weather.

There are optimists still. Yesterday the Examiner discovered one—a merchant who, with the mercury hovering around the 80 mark, calmly filled his window with white duck trousers.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" Moved in amendment by the Toronto Telegram that this be changed to read: "What is so raw as a day in June?"

Hastings News

HASTINGS, June 12.—The weekly half-holiday on Wednesday afternoon will be observed locally through June, July and August.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized on Wednesday, June 5th, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hess, when their only daughter, Myrtle Annie, became the bride of Earl Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Watson, of Norwood. The Rev. Isaac Snell performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties, the wedding march being played by Mrs. S. L. Terrill, of Wooler. The bride was gowned in a pretty dress of white silk and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. At the close of the ceremony and customary congratulations the wedding party were invited to the dining-room which was profusely decorated with cut-flowers, and where a sumptuous repast was served. After ample justice had been done to the menu provided, the remainder of the evening was spent in music and social intercourse. The gifts to the bride were many and varied. Chief among them being a Victory Bond from the groom, a piano from Dr. and Mrs. Hess, a substantial cheque from Mr. and Mrs. T. Watson, and a jardiniere stand from the Epworth League of the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson will take up residence in Norwood followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

Communion Service.

The quarterly Communion service was held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, the pastor officiating.

Preparatory service was held on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Duncan Fife is the possessor of a White Leghorn hen which recently laid an egg weighing one-quarter of a pound. The egg measured eight inches around its greatest length, and seven inches around the centre. Quite a record for the little Leghorn.

Union service was held on Sunday between the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations. Rev. D. A. Thomson preaching at both services.

Mrs. W. Tate has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. Staples, of Lindsay.

The Ladies' Aid met on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Jos. Carter, Jr., and presented her with an address and a beautiful edition of the new Methodist hymn-book.

Moving to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter are moving their household effects to Peterborough, where they will reside. Their many friends here regret their departure and join in wishing them happiness in their new home.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Ostrander, who last week underwent an operation for appendicitis, is progressing favourably, and every hope is entertained for her full recovery.

The Solar Eclipse on Saturday was viewed by number of our citizens, the evening being ideal.

Mrs. Elliott, of the United States, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Jas. Buck, town.

Mr. B. F. Doxsee spent Sunday at Hoard's Station with his aged father, who that day attained his 90th birthday.

Reeve Hess is in Cobourg this week attending the County Council.

Mrs. Wesley Huycke, of Peterborough, visited friends here last week.

Impressive Addresses Were Outstanding Feature Of Baptist Assoc. Yesterday

THE WORK OF THE DAY

"We find the evaluation of all things just in so far as they move the soul toward God. That is the one work God is doing." In these words, Chancellor A. L. McCrimmon, M.A., LL.D., of McMaster University, at last night's session of the Peterborough Baptist Association, answered the perplexing questions that ran through his deeply thoughtful address which subtly set the minds of his audience to seek the meaning of life in its poignant phases that distress the world to-day, as in its common places of mere existence.

The largely attended meeting, many of the congregation representing city churches, closed the second day's conference of the Association, which had been replete with interesting addresses and deliberations on the needs and problems of the church; and this impressive address formed a fitting climax, the effect of which the moderator, Rev. Dougald Brown, decided would be broken by other closing service than the benediction.

Chancellor McCrimmon followed Mr. C. R. Sayer, who had discussed the problems that are growing in Western Canada in the assimilation of the comparative newcomers from European countries, and who had also pictured the failure of the church to meet the responsibility of spreading the Gospel to the peoples of the world. "What is the meaning of all these movements of people from one end of the world to the other?" Dr. McCrimmon asked as he opened his discourse, and other questions in rapid succession quickened the minds of his hearers to an impatience for the explanation. What is the meaning of the world struggle the nations are waging? why are foreign missions propagating the faith? why have home missions their problems? what is the interest in evangelizing Canadian life? what the intent in broadening Christian leadership these days?

"You have only one life and there is only one God. That is the problem of existence. Life as you get it, over against God." The lives of the best of us run to only three score and ten years, and many are going at twenty-two. What does it matter whether it be 70 or 22? There is only one work. We must conquer over the powers of the enemy in our individual existence as in national life. We must not dream that we are in some ethereal regions. We have got to live in concrete situations.

"You must bring back your soul and mine to His own heart. All roads of perfection lead to God. How we toss about in the affairs of life thinking of this dividend and that return. The evaluation of all things is only in so much as they move a soul toward God. That is all. God is the home of every trusting heart. Men are driven hither and yon, but the great work is bringing the wandering soul of man back to the Father."

Chancellor McCrimmon departed slightly from his main theme to state that society must be founded on righteousness and truth. Baptists were inclined to be individualistic as a body, but it was the duty of their members who were fitted for public life to enter into civic and political affairs.

Returning, he said that the farm could bring man close to God or drive him far away. "As you turn up the sod you may not be more moved than the clod. As you walk the fields you may be thinking of your bank account, of the corn it will buy, of the more hogs it will feed, and the more lands it may bring you. But that is all. You get out of life what you put into it. That is the simple philosophy.

And it is beautiful after all. Man is the only one in the animal kingdom who may follow in the footsteps of God. He is the only one into whose heart may come the grace of God. What a responsibility, what an obligation!"

Institutions Too Often Only Forms.

Chancellor McCrimmon declared that civilization, "German civilization if you like—at the heart of it is barbarism pure and simple." Education without God is only a shell. Science that does not realize the aptitudes of the human soul is only unrelated truth, and unrelated truth is no truth. God's love too is verile and dynamic. "He went to the extent of sending His only begotten Son to die for you and me. And this power and conquest is before us. This work should fill every thought.

Religion is not personal. A selfish religion may be the worst kind. Religion does not stop with the person, but sallies forth among the children of men. It has a work to do. Christ didn't stay on His throne in glory above. He came into this world of iniquity and depravity. So we must go into the thick of it. We must stop the slaughter of innocents whether by the first Herod or the last Kaiser. We must go into the slums, and bring comfort and peace to those we find there.

Christianity is no little jewelled, garlanded casket. It is full of blood, and life and living relationships. We must strive against the impure thought, the leer, the pestilential story, and white slaving that robs the home and despoils virtue. Christianity is the fight of the ages for the freedom of the soul. The idea of Christianity is a kingdom of saved souls. Wherever you find things that despoil, you must strike. You must strike for righteousness and for the spirit of justice. "In battling for a righteous peace we are fighting for Him who is the Prince of Peace.

Motive of Enlistment.

"How can you bring about this enlistment in service. Sometimes it comes consciously, sometimes subconsciously. There must be right motives and consecration. Many men perhaps are working for greater production because they can roll up a bank account in these times.

Chancellor McCrimmon gently rapped the pessimists, and reminded the people that God is still reigning over all. The world has been going to pieces many times. Philip II., Napoleon, Louis IXV, all passed, and God will be here long after the Kaiser has paid the debt.

Get the proper perspective. Realize what it all means. This struggle is but symbolic of other great struggles in the past. Cyrus, Darius, and others said they had divine power because of the strength of their armies. When the young cadets of Greece, the only democratic power in that time, donned their amour they vowed that they would never disgrace their Grecian arms. "They went against the Persians and foremost fighting fell."

With this perspective, with the power that comes with understanding the purpose of God and with enlistment comes vitality to the soul.

It is but a symbol of the enlistment of Jesus Christ Himself.

Dr. McCrimmon sketched in deft and vivid strokes the shadow of death that hung over Christ's birth. The young Greeks before Platea performed the funerad rites for themselves. Mazzini called the young Italians not to have a good time but to come and die." So Kosciusko called the Poles. They went out to die. We all go out to die.

"The Flag and The Cross."

Mr. C. R. Sayer, of Toronto, Secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada, sketched some of the problems that are developing in the west and indicated the importance of effecting an early solution of them. More than one million emigrants from Eastern Europe are to-day settled throughout Canada. "Two or three of these nationalities depend upon the Baptist Church to minister to them. Arriving here, Russians turn from the Greek Catholic Church to the Baptist, which was the only other church they knew at home. We should co-ordinate our efforts to reach these non-English peoples. It is from their young men, Swedes, Russians, Hungarians, that recruits must come to lead them to the Christian Church and ministry. India will not be evangelized by white men, nor China, nor other heathen nations. John R. Mott has said that only through the men of their own race will they be brought to God."

In the same manner, the peoples in Western Canada must be ultimately brought into the church through their own representatives.

Mr. Sayer referred to the problem involved in the movement among groups of emigrants to establish themselves in separate districts or colonies in the west, retaining their languages, and even defying the provincial governments to enforce the teaching of English.

Districts entirely German and Ruthenian openly challenged the Government. They were determined that their children would be taught the language of their fatherlands. "We would then have in the west," Sayer continued, "a little Poland, a little Germany, and so on. This was the question behind the big meeting held a short time ago in which English-speaking school trustees carried the day. But that problem confronts you, as it does the west. We are glad to have these men. They are promising settlers, but they must be Canadianized and Christianized."

Failed In Our Duty.

"We have a choice to-day between the religion of Christ and a religion made in Germany. We must see that the fight is kept aggressive and victory won, no matter the cost. And I am not unmindful of the cost. I know something of what it means. (Mr. Sayer's only son, Lieut. C. M. Sayer, of the Royal Air Force, made the supreme sacrifice). The challenge comes to us now, in the words of Rupert Brooke—

"If you break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.'

And because between and beyond those crosses we see that other cross on the hillside of Jerusalem, we get some faint idea of the great sacrifice of God, of the love God had for the world, when He gave up His only begotten Son."

Mr. Sayer declared that the church had failed in its responsibility to fulfill the mission God gave it. One-third of the population of the world do not yet know there is a Jesus. The church forgot the command or had not taken it seriously, "and the tragic part is that many men are not turning a hand to help carry out the Divine command to give the Gospel to the world.

The Stewardship of the Gospel and of Money.

"The Two-Fold Stewardship" was the subject of the afternoon address by Rev. C. H. Schutt, M.A., B.D., of Toronto.

"I want to emphasize two things, the stewardship of the Gospel and the stewardship of money. What would this old world be, with its burdens resting upon it, if it were not for the unspeakable gift of the Gospel. We are stewards of the Gospel. St. Paul realized this, and in the early church the people used daily to preach and teach Jesus Christ.

The Gospel is not only of word but also of life. Are we faithful trustees; are we living as Christian people ought to live? Is our life a witness whereby we may be known as Christians? Oh, to live and go about testifying Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Schutt regretted that there were some men in the church who are supposed to be Christians, who profess to be such, but whose lives do not testify Christ, who, instead of being exemplary members of the church, are a scandal to it.

From the churches, such as those of the Peterborough Association, must come the workers in the church, the missionaries for home and foreign fields. Mr. Schutt urged the people to become great Bible Christians. "Many persons read endless papers and books, but do we read the Bible as we should. Many even read books on the Bible." Some of the greatest preachers have been the most diligent readers and students of the Bible.

Stewardship of Money.

"I would emphasize two words in connection with this stewardship, namely ownership and sacrifice. Some men talk and think as if they were the owners of their money. The money in the possession of any child of the Lord belongs to the Lord as surely as that child belongs to Him. The question a man should put before himself is how much of the Lord's money may he retain for his own use.

"Sacrifice—oh, how the world is being called to suffer. We see the lessons of sacrifice on every hand, and victory depends upon on whether we are willing to pay, and how much. How much are we willing to sacrifice that this world may know Jesus.

"The Jews gave one-third of their revenues in tithes and offerings. Surely we ought to give not less than one-tenth of our money. Some people when they have thousands do not honour the Lord with what belongs to Him more than when they had mere hundreds."

Rev. Mr. Schutt referred to the necessity of supporting missions. Stewardship must see a broader horizon than local church work. The Peterborough Association gave $2.25 a member last year; this, it is hoped, will be increased to $3.10 this year; just one cent a working day.

Home Mission Board Report.

"We are short of about forty pastors, who could be used if available," Rev. J. R. Webb stated in presenting the report of the Home Mission Board. "It may not be generally known but it has been a matter of discussion at the Central Board whether we might not employ certain women to assist in the work."

The Home Mission Board was assisted in the securing of the Cobourg Parsonage. The church there is becoming more thoroughly established. Encouraging reports have come from Picton of increased attendance at the services. The report specially mentioned Rev. J. E. Pettit's work at Brighton and Cramahe. The pastor walked sixteen miles to prayer meeting during the winter. The superintendent of Home Missions will visit Bewdley and Baillieboro, and make a recommendation regarding these churches.

The givings of the Association to Home Missions is 15 per cent higher than two years ago.

Foreign Mission Board.

Rev. Dougald Brown in his report of the Foreign Mission Board, said: "It is impossible to give a full account of the work in India because of the activities of the enemy submarines. The war has affected the work there very much. This may be gleaned from the decline of Baptisms from 1,100 to 407 in the first year; in the second year they rose to 605, and last year they were up to 864. These with 12 from Bolivia made a total of 876.

The death of D. Lazarus, principal of the Reid school for 40 years, has been a great loss, as was the death of Rev. C. N. Metcalfe in Bolivia.

The every member canvas has given the Board the largest income in its history. Five families are home on furlough and three ladies are on the way. Up to May 31st the Board had

New Finnish Government Is Forming An Army Of 100,000 German Trained Soldiers

The Russian Bolsheviki Have No Foreign Policy—They Believe That Germany Will Be Undermined by Revolution.

ENEMY INTENTIONS

(By Joseph Shaplen—United Press Service).

STOCKHOLM, June 13.—The Russian Bolsheviki have no foreign policy. They are simply ostrich like in their naive faith that Germany soon will be undermined by a revolution.

Meanwhile Foreign Minister Tchitcharin is constantly protesting to Germany against violations of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, while swallowing the sedative diplomatic pills doled out by German Ambassador Mirbach. Premier Lenine called this policy "forced retreating while preserving the Soviet power. This is a joke." I am authoritatively informed that the new Finnish Government is forming an army of 100,000 German trained soldiers. Of these 35,000 already are under arms.

When I stopped in Helsingfors Harbour, en route here from Petrograd, I learned authoritatively that 40,000 German troops now are in Finland. Personally, I counted nine big German transports. The question is, why these preparations. Most assuredly they are for the occupation either of the Murhan Peninsula or Petrograd—probably both.

received from all sources $05,296.89. On that date the Board had a credit balance of $3,604.63. Quite a large number of missionaries are due to sail for duty this year.

Peterborough Association contributed $1,624.15 as compared with $1,506.61 in 1917.

Western Mission Board.

Rev. W. F. Spidell reviewed the progress of the Western Mission Board last year. Three of the provinces have missionary evangelists at work, and a fourth is preparing to appoint one. Meetings have been held at six points in one province with 189 conversions. The missionary effort among the Western Slavs showed fine voluntary contributions last year. The same was reported from the Scandinavian, Hungarian and other groups. The total budget was secured.

Grande Ligne Work.

The churches of the Association contributed $517.76 and the Sunday schools $87.84 to the Grande Ligne Mission last year. The total was $605.60, as compared with $380.11 for the previous year; the increase was $225.49. Feller Institute at Grande Ligne, 34 miles south of Montreal, had 160 students last year. It needs $40,000 for a manual training department, laundry and homes for its employees.

Rev. J. B. McCormack, of Norwood presented this report including a review of the work by Rev. E. Bosworth, Secretary of the Mission; the pastoral work and colportage in the cities and rural sections was detailed.

Sunday School Board.

In the report of the Sunday School Board, Rev. Mr. Galt that, under the Standards of Excellence, four out of twenty churches in the Association reached the highest grade. They were Gilmour, Indian River, Belleville and Picton schools. Rev. Mr. Galt explained the application of these Standards of Excellence and the requirements for placement in one of the three grades.

Committees Appointed.

The following committees were appointed:

Arrangements — Rev. Dougald Brown, Rev. John Galt, Mr. Harry Goodwin.

Resolution of Sympathy.

The Association telegraphed a special resolution of sympathy to Mr. J. Russell and his family, Woodstock College, expressing regret in the recent distressing news that his son, Donald, is officially reported missing at the front, and also hoping that later information may discover him safe and well.

Education at Woodstock College.

Mr. G. E. Reaman, M.A., of Woodstock College, briefly presented reasons why Baptist parents should send their sons to that institution for their education.

Woodstock College has just completed 60 years of teaching service, and now recommends its newly opened lower school department for which a special building is provided. The curriculum is that of the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools, and ends with Honour Matriculation. Mr. Reaman asserted that this department gives a special training that is not provided by the High Schools. The life of a boy is rounded out at Woodlife of a boy is rounded out at Woodmanhood.

"Two boys who graduated from us two years ago, were declared by the Commandant to be the best all-round boys at the Royal Military College last year. We look after their mental, religious and physical training in a way that can't be done in the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools. Mr. Reaman remarked that parents should consider the special advantages, the "plus" advantages of education, at Woodstock. The physical work is in charge of a returned soldier who has been getting excellent results, the organizations of religious life are maintained.

Temple Fund Report.

Mr. R. C. Read, of Peterborough, submitted the report of the Montreal Temple Baptist Church Fund. The total subscriptions here were $525.05 with expenses of $25.05, leaving a balance of $500 which was forwarded to the Temple Church. This assistance brought very grateful acknowledgement from the Montreal congregation.

CONVENTION NOTES.

The Association paused for a short time yesterday afternoon to pray in silence for victory in the present grave crisis of the war.

In the report on Mission Circles and Bands at the Women's Conference, Circles were only credited with the contributions of the Childrens' Bands, whereas the Murray Street Church Circle gave $169.41 for Home Missions and $222.81 for Foreign last year, and Park Street Circle showed $18.50 for Home and $44.10 for Foreign Missions.

The singing of the Gilmour Church Choir at the evening sessions has been generally commended.

The increased cost of fine teas has tempted some to try cheap, inferior teas, to their sorrow. It is a real economy to use Salada tea, since it yields a far greater number of cups to the pound, and, besides has that unique, satisfying flavour.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her very much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend its preparation too highly."

Tribute To Work Of Local Contractors

R. Sheehy and Sons Complete Erection of Handsome New Church

Mr. R. Sheehy has been in Kingston for the past few days attending the dedication of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Wolfe's Island, of which church Mr. Sheehy was contractor.

A Tribute.

In speaking of the ceremony, which took place on Tuesday, June 11, the Canadian Freeman pays the following striking tribute to the contractors:

It would be ungenerous to omit including in the congratulations the very efficient firm of contractors, R. Sheehy and Sons, Peterborough, to whom this worthy addition to the church architecture of the Archdiocese will ever be an enduring monument. This firm has probably the widest experience of any similar firm in Canada in this particular work. Many of the splendid churches in the diocese of Toronto, Hamilton, Sault Ste. Marie and Peterborough have been erected by R. Sheehy and Sons, but we doubt if the Wolfe Island edifice has ever been surpassed for the outlay, which is in the neighbourhood of $80,000.

WELL-KNOWN TRAVELLER DIES

KITCHENER, June 13.—Edward Marrin, one of the best-known travellers in Western Ontario, and a life member of the Commercial Travellers' Association, died Tuesday night after an illness of two years. He was born in Barrie in 1861 and was on the road for Randall & Ross, wholesalers, of this city, for more than twenty-five years. He is survived by his wife, two brothers and one sister. Interment will take place at Mount Hope Cemetery in Toronto on Friday.

Mr. Marrin is well-known in Peterborough and district, having visited here many times.

"Not Guilty" Was The Jury's Verdict In Sexsmith Case

Knapman Case Was Proceeded With in the Afternoon—Accused Was Employed as Book-keeper.

THE COUNTY COURT

The charge of theft preferred against Mrs. Edna Sexsmith and dealt with at yesterday's session of the June sittings of the County Court, occupied the attention of the court for the greater part of the day. Late in the afternoon the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, after deliberating for about 30 minutes.

Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution and Mr. J. O'Brien, of the legal firm of Gordon, Widdifield and O'Brien, appeared for the defence.

His Honor Judge Huycke agreed with the jury on their finding.

THE KNAPMAN CASE.

The next case called was that of J. S. Knapman, who is charged with stealing a large sum of money from the William Lytle Cartage Company, while in the company's employ as a book-keeper.

THE JURYMEN.

The following jurymen were sworn in for the case: Joseph Hamilton, Dummer; David Leahy, Douro; Wm. McClellan., 331 Rubidge street; Jas. Miles, Dummer; George Humphries, Douro; Wm. Thompson, Otonabee; R. Mowry, Park street; E. Puttick, 531 Park street; J. W. Stockdale, Harvey; A. Mowry, Peterboro; Charles Magee and Andrew Magee, Peterboro.

Crown Attorney Hatton was counsel for the prosecution, and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence.

THE EVIDENCE.

In the evidence for the prosecution Mr. W. H. Lytle was the first witness called. He said he had been away behind in his work and had neglected the work in the office. "I engaged Knapman, at first temporarily, and left all the work to him," said the witness. "This was in September, 1916. When the work was taken over by Mr. Knapman from T. C. Quartermaine, the former bookkeeper, there was a small cash balance. Then the Department of Highways offered us the motor license agency for Peterboro at 25c commission on every marker. Knapman had absolute charge of this section of the work. Instead of 550 licenses, we sold 1200, and I opened a separate bank account at the Royal Bank for the reception of this money. Knapman was in the habit of depositing this money. Every week we made remittances to the Department at Toronto. I then got word from the Deparment that we were short in our remittances. This was in the month of June, 1917. Mr. Bickle, the chief bookkeeper of the Automobile Section of the Department of Highways, then came down and had a consultation with Mr. Knapman. Knapman told Bickle that he had not the money then but that he would have it on Friday. This was on a Wednesday. Bickle was then given a cheque for a first instalment. I asked Knapman how much money there was in the bank, and he said $1166, but later said, 'Not as much as you think there is—only $121.96.'

"I asked him where the rest had gone; he said he did not know."

MONEY IN THE SAFE.

"There was also I should say about $1000 in the safe. This money I could never find again. It was never deposited; it was not left there. I then went to Mr. Fortye of the Auburn Woollen Mills with my trouble, and with him went to Toronto on June 10. Bickle said that Knapman's accounts were correct, and that he (Mr. Lytle) was short. After my return to Peterboro I asked Knapman to produce everything in the books, and show everything."

"No; I never got the commission; but I got experience," said the witness.

Mr. W. R. Morris, a chartered accountant, was then engaged to look over the books.

"Are you aware," said the counsel for the defense, "that Mr. Morris has made the statement that Mr. Knapman's books are perfectly correct?"

SELF-SUPPORTING.

"I say my business was self-supporting," said Mr. Lytle, "in spite of Mr. Morris. I won't accept any statement based on Knapman's books I afterwards ran across things that were not in Knapman's books at all; and which I concluded that he stole.

"Registered letters were also sent to Lytle but never reached him, according to Mr. Lytle. Lytle said that he had made out some of the applications himself at all times. With Mr. Knapman went home to lunch Mr. Bert Cook usually made out the applications.

"The cartage business, I say, was self-supporting, at least, because there was no other source of revenue," reiterated Mr. Lytle.

Mr. Lytle said that he told Mr. Knapman that if the shortage was from the Cartage he would not open up in the morning.

The carriage money was kept in one drawer in the till and the license money in another. Altogethr Knapman had stolnn $3637.50, said Mr. Lytle.

To-day's Session.

The Knapman case was resumed this morning. The first witness called was Mr. W. H. Lytle, who had been in the box the previous day. Examined by Mr. Gordon, witness said that he never looked at office books for nine months. The company could always pay its debts. I myself used to collect only the larger accounts. The small ones were left to a boy. I remember collecting from the Peterborough Planing Mills, and I will not accept Mr. Menzies' statement that I collected money from the Peterborough Planing Mills and that it was not shown on the books.

(Mr. Menzie was in charge of the Peterborough Planing Mills.)

Certain moneys that the Peterborough Planing Mills owed me were collected by Knapman, and as he was the bookkeeper I did not collect from him.

"Do you think that there is any man in Peterborough who would not know what moneys is passing through his hands for nine months?" queried Mr. Gordon.

"Yes, I believe that there is a number of business men in town who do not know," said the witness.

A Lawyer's Fee.

"A lawyer would charge $4.00 to fill out one of these license applications," said Mr. Gordon, after carefully perusing one of the license applications.

"I know, but the farmers know enough to come to town with them filled out," said Mr. Lytle, looking significantly at the jury.

Mr. Lytle further said that anybody that can read or write can make out the applications.

Mr. Lytle explained his transactions with the Quaker Oats Co., and said that his profits were from $200 to $300 clear every week, yet this was at a time when I went behind with Knapman as bookkeeper.

Chief Clerk Called.

James E. Bickell, Chief Clerk of the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Government, was the next witness. He said a daily report was required to be made by Lytle of the licenses issued, and also a weekly remittance of money collected. He informed Lytle by letter that he was behind when he discovered that the remittances did not come in. On July 9 he came to Lytle's office and found everything in the utmost state of confusion. Between Knapman and himself they looked all over the office for reports and found about 800. He asked Knapman why they had not been sent in, but Knapman only said that because of the rush of other business it had been delayed. However, he received a creque for $3,404.25 from Lytle for the full amount. Knapman said that he did not think there was enough funds to cover it just at present, but wait for a day or two. A little while after that Lytle came to Toronto and said that there was not nearly enough money in the bank to cover the cheque, and asked him (Bickell) to hold it over until he investigated. Lytle has made three or four payments, however, and has reduced his debt to the department to $2,437.50.

Mr. Gordon showed that the report of the department was different from Lytle's report, by nearly $20.

Reports Mutilated.

Mr. Bickell explained this by saying that some of the reports were so badly mutilated, when found in Lytle's office, that they were unrecognizable.

'He appeared very nervous and not in a condition to do much."

Mr. W. R. Morris, chartered accountant, the next witness called, said he had examined Lytle's books carefully and found a total deficit of $3,610.93. These he enumerated carefully to the court. The total amount received by Knapman for licenses was $10,090. The deposits in the Motor Licenses account in the Royal Bank was only $6,479.70. This was on July 10, 1917.

Bookkeeping Was Bad.

"But the cartage books were hopelessly deficient," said Mr. Morris. "There was not an entry on the disbursement side of the books at all while Knapman was in charge. In answer to questions from Mr. Gordon he said that he did not find any license money in the cartage business and that Knapman was not in the office when he audited the books. Four checks, made out to Knapman, endorsed by Knapman, and deposited in the Royal Bank, were then produced. They were made out by A. W. Clysdale. Two of them are marked C.G.E. pay money. In his accounting Mr. Morris said he did not find any trace of checks.

"The bookkeeping was about as bad as I could possibly imagine," said the witness.

Big Submarine Sighted Off The American Coast

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, June 13.—A big German submarine, carrying two deck guns, was sighted last Tuesday, 300 miles off the American coast, heading eastward, by passengers arriving here to-day on the Holland-American liner Nieuvw Amsterdam. The submarine made no effort to halt the liner. It is now believed that this U boat is the one that held up the Norwegian steamer Vindeggan off the Virginian Cape and looted her copper cargo.

The submersible is evidently en route back to Germany with the spoils.

SIR THOMAS WHITE OFF TO WASHINGTON

Will Discuss the Exchange Situation

OTTAWA, June 13.—Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, will again visit Washington for the purpose of discussing the exchange situation. He will confer with Lord Reading, British Ambassador in Washington, and with the United States Treasury Board. The Minister will leave almost immediately. Since the last conference was held on the question in Washington, the Government here has taken certain steps towards curtailing imports. The amount involved in the embargo, however, is bu infinitesimal as compared with the unfavourable balance of trade as between Canada and the United States, which is computed at about $400,000,000.

The Board Of Works Will Improve Public Bathing Place

Stumps Will Be Removed From the Water Adjacent to Inverlea Park —Meeting of the Board of Works.

GENERAL BUSINESS

At a meeting of the Board of Works committee of the City Council, held last evening it was decided to recommend the construction of a new sidewalk on the south side of Chamberlen street from the end of the present sidewalk to the C.P.R. tracks.

Ald. J. Saunders' motion to have the sidewalk constructed through to Park street, failed to get a seconder, as the aldermen were of the opinion that the cost would be excessive owing to the extra drainage that would be required at that particular point. With a 24 inch sewer pipe at two dollars a foot, the cost of pipe alone would be nearly a thousand dollars, with nothing in the Board of Works' appropriation to cover it. This gigantic scheme occupied the attention of the committee for the best part of an hour.

New Sewers.

The Board will also recommend that sewers be constructed on Rogers street and Stanley avenue. Mr. Albert Tivey appeared in the interests of this work.

Mr. Archie Barbeau wants a sidewalk constructed on Gladstone avenue in front of his property. The Board will recommend that the sidewalk be constructed. "Taxes are high enough we ought to have a sidewalk," observed Mr. Barbeau.

Will Establish Rights.

A letter was received from Mr. G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor, recommending that the Council institute an action to secure an order to remove certain encroachments alleged to have been placed on the government reserve road located at the rear of the Green property which is situated at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets.

It was moved that action be taken at once to establish the city's claim. This was carried.

"The matter has been before the Council for the past ten years," remarked Mayor Duncan.

Will Remove Stumps.

The Board of Works will undertake the removal of fourteen or fifteen stumps in Inverlea Park to facilitate bathing operations. The Nicholls Park Board has spent over a thousand dollars to provide bathing facilities for the public. Sergeant Cooper, a returned soldier, has been placed in charge.

A New Sidewalk.

Mr. J. J. Duffus wanted permission to construct a coal bin under the sidewalk in front of the new garage which he is constructing at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets. The Board approved of the request and also recommended the construction of an eight foot sidewalk in accordance with the request of Mr. Duffus.

MORE MEN NEEDED

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Features deduced from the deliberations of the National Coal Association, which held its convention in this city are:

The promise of more coal for this winter.

The expectancy that anthracite will be diverted from a number of the Western States which can depend upon bituminous.

The necessity for more men to work in operating the mines.

It was the general consensus of opinion that should the war last any great length of time radical changes in mine management must be made to increase the output of anthracite coal, either by increasing the efficency of the miners or by training other men to take the places of those who have been called to the front. There must also came a marked increase in the use of bituminous coal.

Four States, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, which last year received 627,965 tons of hard coal, will this year get none, by order of the Fuel Administration. A number of other States will find their apportionment reduced. Among these are Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, which last year received a little over 5,000,000 tons of anthracite. This year the have been alloted 3,381,945 tons.

IT IS NOW REVEALED THAT VENUS COTE IS NOT SUCH A MARTYR

Parading in Man's Attire a Trifle to Other Charges Made.

KINGSTON, June 13.—It transpires that the Cote woman, popularly known as "Venus" Cote is not serving two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for wearing male attire, as was first reported. The story was that she was sent to the penitentiary for two years for posing as a man while working as a log driver on the Restigouche River, and on the strength of this, application has been made to the department of justice for her release.

The facts of the case are that the woman was sent up for five years for theft, she having broken into a house and stolen a quantity of silverware, clothing ,etc. In addition, she broke jail after her arrest, and was not captured for several days. At present she is confined in the women's prison at the penitentiary, and seems to be very quiet. She will be taught to sew and do other feminine work, but at the present tiem she scarcely knows what a thimble is for.

MARRIAGE.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain markets weakened yesterday in corn and oats under pressure of ideal weather and other bearish conditions, which even a strong bull sentiment in the market, which sought to ignore all bear factors could not altogether withstand. The market, therefore was weak. July corn at Chicago, after going well above Wednesday's high, closed 1 1-8c below the previous close. Oats also weakened, closing 1 5-8c to 2c lower than Wednesday. In the Winnipeg market July oats closed 1 4c lower and October 1c lower.. Cash oats, C. W.'s, are quoted 1 1-2c lower, in store For William, and Ontario oats are 1c lower Ontario barley is quoted 1c lower and the market is very weak.

ITALIAN COMMANDER TELLS OF GREAT FEAT

SCORED GOOD HITS

VENICE, June 14. — Commander Rizzo, whose remarkable exploit in sinking the Austrian battleship in the Adriatic has thrilled Italy, tells a graphic story of the encounter in which he took part and during which another Austrian battleship was either badly damaged or destroyed by another motor boat in charge of Commander Millazo. It is possible that 2,000 sailors were lost during the encounter.

"I am sorry for the sailors who lost their lives," he said in beginning his story, "But I am glad that we got the dreadnoughts. Why they had ventured out of Pola harbour no one knows, but it was certainly foolish for them to do so.

Thought He Was Chased.

"I was on patrol scout duty as usual off the Dalmatian coast near Pass Selve, between the islands of Asimello and Preluda. I had just completed my patrol, and, as it would soon be daylight, had turned for my base when about ten miles away I saw a great enveloping cloud of smoke. It appeared like a blot through the early light. I thought at first it was some boat which had discovered me and was giving chase. I determined that the safest course was to turn back and get it before it got me. Here is where my luck, as my friends call it, looked like misfortune, as it is no fun to be chased.

"Anyway, I determined to make the best of a bad fix. After turning back I said to my two crews of ten men to each boat: 'Fellows, the Italian scout boats have been waiting for two years, and the whole Italian navy has been trying to destroy Austrian ships for three years. Are you willing to risk all on a chance of obtaining glory and the country's gratitude?' They all answered "Yes."

How It Was Done.

"We were speeding back with our motors muffled when, to my amazement, I discovered two battleships surrounded by a number of destroyers, which I later counted as ten. I assigned the second battleship to the other motor boat while I took the first.

"I slipped inside the line of destroyers between the third and fourth of these craft. I was not noticed in the light fog. The water was smooth and my torpedoes got off nicely. My first, with a 500-pound charge, struck the first dreadnought between the two funnels, while the second struck her just aft the second funnel. As the torpedoes exploded I saw the mighty ship tremble, two great fountains of water rose high in the air and black smoke welled up from the rents in her side.

Escaped From Destroyer.

"Then I ran for it, escaping between the second and third destroyers in the line. I was discovered by the fourth destroyer, which gave chase at a distance of 150 yards and firing on me. I was too close however, to be hit. Then I dropped a depth charge bomb such as is generally used against submarines. Fortunately for us, it exploded under the destroyer. I saw her leap into the air, turn sharply and then stop, giving up the chase and permitting us to escape. The other destroyers were busy trying to save the lives of the sailors on the dreadnought."

War News From Western Front Is Very Encouraging

A Number of Enemy Attacks Were Repulsed, With Heavy Losses For the Germans—It is Believed the German Drive in the Noyon Sector Has Been Checked.

ALLIED TANKS DID GOOD WORK

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards: Receipts yesterday were 52 cars, with 371 cattle, 165 calves, 1764 hogs and 197 sheep and lambs

There was but the usual light run for the week end market; prices closing good and strong for everything in the butcher cattle class. There were several small lots in the extra choice class, but these are gradually becoming scarcer as the stable fed cattle are about cleared out. Three extra fine fed steers, 1120 pounds, were sold on Wednesday by Dunn and Levack at $17.25. They were fed by Robert Reid of Alliston. Several sales went over the $16 mark and most of the choice butcher loads around $15.50.

Cows and bulls were firm at $13 to $13.50 for the best.

All the small meats were firm at this week's top prices excepting the hogs, which are not more than holding their own at $18, but prospects said to be lower for next week.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

PREVENT GRASSHOPPER DAMAGE.

In districts where grasshoppers are abundant farmers and gardeners should cooperate and arrange to fight the insects at the same time. The young hoppers hatch in May, the exact date depending upon local meteorological conditions. As soon as they are noticed to be destroying the crops, either of the following mixtures should be used early in the morning, about the time the insects begin to move about after their night's rest: (1) Bran—20 pounds; Paris green or white arsenic—one half pound; cheap molasses—2 quarts; oranges or lemons—3 fruits; water—2 to 2 1-2 gallons. The bran and poison are mixed thoroughly in a wash tub while dry. The juice of the fruit is squeezed into the water and the pulp and peel are added after being cut in fine bits. Then add the molasses and when the whole is thoroughly mixed, pour it over the dry bran and poison, stirring constantly so as to dampen the bran thoroughly.

The other mixture is as follows: (2) Sawdust—20 pounds; Paris green, one half pound; salt—one-quarter pound; water—3 gallons.

The quantities given here would make sufficient for a fair sized community, and it might best be handled in this way.

Lakefield Picnic Was A Success

Miss Park Severs Her Connection With the Lakefield High School

LAKEFIELD June 14.—On Tuesday afternoon and evening the A.Y.P.A of St. John's church gave a picnic in honour of Miss Park, who has been a faithful and useful member of the society during the three years she has been in Lakefield. It is a matter of regret that Miss Park severs her connection with the Lakefield High school at midsummer. The picnic was held at Hague's Point and after supper a game of baseball was held which was followed by various sports.

The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Gallata, that where a landlord terminated a tenancy at will of city lots, the tenant was entitled to growing crops as against the landlord and a subsequent lessee with knowledge of the first tenancy.

The court said: "The general principle is that where a person is in possession of land under a title that may be determined by an uncertain event not within his control, it is essential to the interests of agriculture that such a termination of his lease shall not prevent him reaping what he has sown and we see no reason why a tenant should be denied the right to emblements by the act of the landlord where the crop is raised on a city lot rather than on a farm."

Meat In Saxony.

Camel meat, dog meat and horse meat are being eaten in Saxony by the poorer classes, according to the Berliner Tageblatt of April 7, a copy of which has been received here.

The camel is being sold in Zwickau and comes from the mohair camels of the Hagenbeck Menagerie, which gave a show in Zwickau in March. The camels were sold to a butcher because of lack of fodder. The larger camels gave from 300 to 400 pounds of meat.

Consumption of dog meat and horse meat has increased greatly owing to the war-time scarcity of meat and the price also has gone up. Dog meat sells for 2 marks 75 pfennings a pound and horse meat at 1 mark 80 pfennigs.—New York Herald.

In almost every neighborhood in America are women who have tried this standard remedy for female ills and know its worth.

Athol, Mass.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a world of good. I suffered from a weakness and a great deal of pain every month and nothing brought me any relief until I tried this famous medicine. I am a different woman since I took it and want others who suffer to know about it."—Mrs. ARTHUR LAWSON, 559 Cottage St., Athol, Mass.

San Francisco, Cal.—"I was in a very weak nervous condition, having suffered terribly from a female trouble for over five years. I had taken all kinds of medicine and had many different doctors and they all said I would have to be operated on, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me entirely and now I am a strong well woman."—Mrs. H. ROSSKAMP, 1447 Devisadero St., San Francisco, Cal.

For special advice in regard to such ailments write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its many years experience is at your service.

CHAPTER XCII.

We had been in the casino but a few moments when a Mr. Barry, a friend of George's, came over to our table. We were sipping a cooling drink and George after presenting him to me, asked him to join us.

"Where's the lovely Julia?" he asked; "I rather expected to see her here this afternoon."

"I believe she went to Narragansett, George said coldly.

"Has Mrs. Collins been over?" I asked.

"I'd like to know of a yachting party she didn't join. I believe she'd get out of a sick bed to go yachting," Mr. Barry returned. "She's game, too; never sick."

"So you were of the party, too?" I queried, paying no attention to the frowns of George.

"Rather! It was my yacht. We were sorry not to have you with us. Next time make George break any previous engagement you have made, and bring you along. We had a great time."

"So Mr. Howard said," I replied, with all the dignity I could manage. "I shall be careful how I make engagements hereafter if they are to interfere with such good times," I added. Just for a moment I saw that gleam of something like pride in my husband's eyes but it soon passed, leaving only an angry, annoyed expression.

LIFE TOO COMPLICATED.

WHAT did it all mean? Life, for me was becoming too complicated. I had had no engagement; George had made it deliberately for me, AFTER he had known HE was to spend the day on a yacct Why did he do it?

On our way home, neither of us spoke. I was too busy with my own thoughts, trying too intently to straighten things out in my mind.

We were to dine at the hotel quietly.

"Aren't you going down to dinner?" I asked after waiting past our usual dinner hour. I was young, had played a strenuous game of tennis, and in spite of my unhappy thoughts, was hungry.

"No! I am not going down to have dinner. If you want any dinner you will either go down alone or have it up here! I'm going out!"

"But you said we were to have a quiet dinner together, to-night. What is the matter, George? You are angry with me for something—what is it?"

"If you don't know, I won't tell you! The very idea of you, a child, quizzing Barry as to whom he had invited to his yachting party. Will you never learn" he blurted out, so telling me after all why he was angry with me.

"But, I didn't quiz him!" I answered spiritedly, recalling that fleeting expression I had seen on George's face, and taking courage. "Mr. Barry was the one who did the quizzing! If you remember he asked about the 'lovely Julia.'" Then, as he didn't answer, I added; "He seemed to think you should know all about her."

George flashed angrily.

A LONELY DINNER.

At first I thought I couldn't eat anything. But I was young and healthy, so I called the waiter and ordered a simple dinner. In spite of my loneliness and my jealousy—yes, I was horribly jealous—I enjoyed it. And why should I punish myself by going to bed hungry? George never did anything so foolish; he was probably over to the casino dining with his friends.

Was it ever going to be possible for me to please George? I wondered. Was there another man living who was so unjust? He was unjust. Then, too, aside from being jealous, I was puzzled because of his attitude towards others, toward Julia Collins, and toward Merton Gray. Merton was a very handsome attractive man; had George no fear that if he so openly let me see his liking for Julia Collins that I would retaliate in kind or was he so little in love with me that he did not care?

Mother and father would be shocked, I know, had they the slightest idea of my struggle after happiness. They were old fashioned and would not be able to understand this new way people had of living, the husband going his way; the wife hers.

Did he know before we left Narragansett that Julia Collins was to be with him almost as soon as we got to Newport; and did that explain her covert sneers that day when we bade her good-bye? Oh, how I wished that I could understand all those things that so bothered me. If Merton Gray had been older I could have taken my troubles to him, I thought, but he was little older than I. He was too young to appreciate my position.

I went to bed before George came in. My last waking thought a wonder if he would ask me to go bathing with him in the morning.

There is a little old bridge in Paris, in an out-of-the-way part of the city, that is being trod by many Yankee feet these days.

The Eiffel tower is about three-fourths of a mile away, and the distance between the tower and the little bridge is about as unattractive as you could find in Paris. Nor does the bridge—called the pont de Grenelle—lead you across the Seine to any sight-seeing place.

But that bridge supports in its center a statue of the Goddess of Liberty, the same glorious lady who holds aloft her flame of righteousness in New York harbor. A great many Americans have learned on this bridge that the Goddess of Liberty was a gift from France to America. The description on the pedestal records this fact, and there follows in French an exerpt from the letter of acceptance of Vice President Morton.

The figure is only about 15 feet tall, but the disparity in size as compared with the original permitted one imaginative Yank to close his eyes half shut today and declare that the effect was of steaming into New York harbor with the gigantic goddess looming up in the distance. And while he was looking up, enjoying this odd effect, several large gulps could be distinguished as they passed down his throat.

Limited Choice of "Stinks."

The late Father Stanton, one of the most loved Anglican priests of the latter part of the nineteenth century, once entered into a conversation with a visitor to St. Alban's, Holborn, who had attended the service for the first time. Mr. Stanton asked him what he thought of the service. The stranger replied that he liked it very well except the incense, to the use of which he strongly objected.

"I am sorry for you, my friend," said Mr. Stanton.

The other, not unnaturally, asked "Why?"

"Well, you see," said Mr. Stanton, "there are only two stinks in the next world—incense and brimstone—and you must take your choice between."

Belgium's Belfries Silent.

Silence, even more intense than for the past three and a half years, has fallen on Belgium, for no longer is the voice of the bells in the old bellfries heard in the land, and even the organs are mute in the churches. M. Emile Cammaerts, the Belgian poet, writes in the Spectator of this the last cruel stroke inflicted on his country. Cynical indeed is Germany's purpose. The bells and organ pipes are being sent to Essen to be converted into engines of destruction. "They must be thrown to-day in Germany's melting pot, and their golden song, which floated over the peaceful meadows of Flanders and in the cool and shady streets of quiet towns, will become the rough bark of the guns." In the ears of a deeply sympathetic world nothing could be more eloquent than this quenching of the voice of a once free and independent Belgium.

Imitation.

Aetna! in our hours of ease
Uncertain, coy and hard to please;
When peaceful tourists sought your brow
Your stunts you oft refused.— but now
To teach us how to strafe the Hun
You simulate a long-range gun.

The most remarkable salmon is the "chinook." It occasionally reaches an enormous size, fish of 100 pounds having been taken. The average weight, however, is much less—from fifteen to twenty-two pounds.

First Mention of Silk.

The only undoubted notice of silk in the Bible occurs in Revelations xviii., 12, where it is mentioned among the treasures of the typical Babylon.

Salesmen Must Be Healthy.

"The vital action of the brain depends on the physical being and the mental attributes of salesfolk are the results of health. Every man should have a rod or a hobby, something that will give him exercise to prevent that drowsy feeling that inactive men invariably have. If a man gains weight after he is thirty-five years old he should become alarmed. The first requisites to make a real man is to give the boy a good physical heredity."

These were some of the statements made by Dr. M. J. Bliem at the Salesmanship club at their noon luncheon in San Antonio.

"We ride today when we should walk for the exercise," Doctor Bliem said. "A short system of exercise every morning will keep one active in business and enhance his prospects of success."—San Antonio Express.

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Camouflage.

"At the Grand Central station," he said, "one young man was seeing another off, when three very pretty girls got in the Pullman.

"The departing young man was smitten by the three girls' charms, and so he muttered to his friend:

"'Look here, to oblige me, you know, won't you put your head in at the door just as the train pulls out, and shout in a loud voice, "Then I'll close the Fifth avenue house, sir, and store the silver on the yacht."'

"The other chap agreed to do this, and the one smitten with the girls sat and waited for the thing to come to pass, his eyes fixed on their pretty faces.

"Finally the whistle blew. The obliging chap outside leaped up on the back platform, stuck his head in at the door, and yelled:

"'Hey, you, tell your boss if that suit of mine ain't home on Saturday night I won't have it at all!'"

Kipling Poem Called Insult.

Canon Knox Little was an Irishman who had the reputation of always saying what he thought and of saying it in the most forcible manner possible. It is related that he once very unmistakably disagreed with Rudyard Kipling on the subject of the latter's "muddied oafs" and "flannelled fools." The canon happened to have three sons fighting against the Boers, and he told Mr. Kipling that his words were not poetry at all but just mere insult. Another line to which the canon objected, and, as events since 1914 have proved, rightly objected, was: "Sons of the sheltered city—unmade, unhandled, unmeet." The sons of the sheltered cities have so thoroughly vindicated themselves as neither to care what poets have said about them nor even to need that anyone should take up the cudgels on their behalf. But it is evident that even poetry will have to submit to the general revision which is to mark the close of the war.

QUALITY NOT SIZE.

Small States Have Done Great Work In the World.

Who can doubt but that the small states have as much to contribute to civilization as the greater ones? Will any one contend that the Maent Kultur of present-day Germany is a greater contribution to the world than the culture of a hundred years ago, when a score of capital cities, like Munich, Dresden, Frankfort, Cologne and Weimar, competed with one another in education, in art, in the refinements and amenities of civilization? Will any one familiar with the history of Holland, Belgium, Denmark, and Switzerland contend that their contributions to the world would be greater if they were passed under the hegemony of Germany, as the Pan-Germans suggest?

A study of any one of these states will show that they have contributed as many men of distinction in proportion to their population as have any of the greater states. They have given great capital cities, like Brussels, Copenhagen, and the cities of southern Germany. They have contributed political ideas. They point the pathway to other powers in many lines of endeavor. Belgium, close packed with people, was, before the German invasion, the home of internationalism. She had developed a wonderful transportation system. She had the highest export trade per capita of any country in Europe. Even though a free-trade country, none of the greater powers had been able to outsell her at home or abroad. Holland, too, has a splendid history. She has been the cradle of religious liberty. Her cities have charm, and her people enjoy a standard of living higher than any of the surrounding powers. Switzerland has given political democracy a new significance. In her mountain fastnesses she has safeguarded the right of local self-government and of individual and personal liberty, and to-day is one of the most contented and prosperous countries of Europe. Denmark is the world's agricultural experiment station. She has democratized her Government. She has put an end to the old feudal regime. She has distributed the land among the peasants, and reduced ignorance to the vanishing point. She feeds England and exports cattle to Germany. In some respects her educational system is the most remarkable in the world. No country in Europe enjoys a higher standard of comfort or more universal education, or possesses a greater sense of personal dignity than does this neglected northwest corner of Europe.

If we could free our mind from the imperialistic conception of the state which has sprung very largely from present dynastic ambitions, we would see that there is little justification in the assumption of the superiority of the great state.

Gulls as Food for Man.

"The flesh of gulls," says one of the best-known "encyclopaedias," "is rank and coarse." So it is. You have only to shoot a gull and cook it to find that this is the case, and that as a dinner dish it is a complete failure.

Yet in Iceland gull flesh is one of the principal winter foods of the people. There, in early summer, when the cliffs swarm with nesting gulls, parties are organized, and men are let down over the lofty precipices by ropes. They catch young gulls, which are as fat as butter, and send them up to the top in sacks. The moment they reach the top the birds are skinned. A great cauldron of boiling water is ready, and into this the bodies are dipped and held for a few seconds. This completely does away with the fishy taste, and the birds are then taken home and hung in smoke until they are thoroughly dried.

When winter comes they are cooked and eaten, and are as delicate as any chicken or game bird, but far more fat and nourishing. This spring it is to be hoped that steps will be taken along the English coast to secure a good supply of young gulls, which should be treated in the Icelandic fashion.

Lest We Forget.

We too often forget, wrote Herbert Spencer, that not only is there a soul of goodness in things evil, but very generally a soul of truth in things erroneous.

THE SPRING DRIVE

Our boys are going "Over the top" and into "No man's land" this spring. No one has any doubt of their ability to get there. There will also be a spring drive on this side of the ocean, because March is the year's "blue Monday." It is the most fatal month of the year. March and April is a time when resistance usually is at lowest ebb. It is a trying season for the "run-down" man. But medical science steps in, and says, "it need not be"! We should cultivate a love of health, a sense of responsibility for the care of our bodies. Do not allow the machinery of the body to clog. Put the stomach and liver in proper condition. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to be had at most drug stores in tablet or liquid form, tablets fifty cents a vial, composed of native herbs. This puts the stomach and liver in proper condition. You may be plodding along, no spring, no elasticity, no vim, but as soon as you have put the body into its normal physical condition—oiled the machinery, as it were—you will find new vim, vigor and vitality within you. A little "pep," and we laugh and live. Try it now. Send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10c. for trial pkg. The prime necessity of life is health. With spirit and energy you have the power to force yourself into action. The Golden Medical Discovery is the spring tonic which you need.

WHERE SOLDIERS ARE BETTER

In an interview with Surgeon General Gorgas for the American Magazine, about the chances your boy has to come back alive, the author says, referring to another army officer for the moment:

"Major Crile said another thing which every mother and father ought to learn by heart. He said: 'The thing which affects a wounded man's chances more than almost anything else is physiological resistance. That is where the soldier puts it all over the civilian every time. When a man goes out from the worries, responsibilities, anxieties, and irritations of civil life to the peaceful pursuits of war—'

"He stopped and laughed. Then he went on seriously:

"'I mean that! I've seen these sallow, pasty young clerks get out and turn into men! I've seen young chaps who were little more than flabby human jellyfish transformed by their life in the trenches into husky fellows that were grit clean through. They laughed at things which would have finished them completely before they went into the army. They had developed the biggest factor in a wounded man's chances—physiological resistance. And it was their life as soldiers that gave them this new possession.'"

Severe Pains In The Back

Told of Kidney Trouble—Was Unable to Work, But Finally Found a Cure by Using This Well-known Medicine

Gananoque, Ont., May 18. — There is plenty of enthusiasm in this town for Dr. Chase's Medicines, and many people ready with good reports of cures effected.

There seems to be no treatment for kidney derangements which proves effective in such a large proportion of cases as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is because the liver and bowels are usually involved as well as the kidneys, and this medicine overcomes the disease because it acts directly on these organs.

Mrs. W. Higgins, John St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "My husband has made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last thirteen years. Previous to that he had several attacks of kidney trouble, accompanied by severe pains in his back. He became so bad that he was unable to work. Finally he started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the results were splendid. He quite recovered, and by using an occasional Kidney-Liver Pill he wards off recurrent attacks, and has never had any trouble since. We also use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home and find it an excellent salve."

Mrs. James Bishop, Stone St. N., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home for some time, and find them an excellent remedy for pains in the back. They seem to help the stomach and kidneys to do their work more effectively. We are pleased to recommend them to others."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

LIQUIDATES DEBT TO FRANCE

California is generously sending a million and a half two-year-old prune trees to help in restoring the French orchards, and enough seed beans to plant 60,000 acres. Canada is undertaking the planting of thousands of Canadian maples in France. It is pleasant also to know that there is to be no lack of outside help for the devastated towns, observes Christian Science Monitor, in stating these facts. English and American architects are at work on plans for new buildings to replace those razed by the guns, both in Belgium and in France.

The Indianapolis News sees sentiment in the prune tree transaction. It says: "These trees are expected to convert 15,000 acres into bearing orchards in two years. It was France which, in 1856, gave to California her first prune trees. The prune, which since then has filled many a gap on the table of the American boarding houses, and has borne the brunt of many a jest, keeps right on proving its worth."

Troops Suffered From Thirst.

Some of the hardships experienced by the British forces in Palestine are described in a letter received by a friend in Montreal from a priest. The letter, written shortly before the fall of Jerusalem, tells of a day early in November when a camel convoy from Beersheba was unable to reach the men then fighting for the deliverance of the Holy City from the Turk.

"There was a hot wind blowing," wrote the priest. "A tumbler full of water was left in my bottle, which I divided between four officers whose lips were split and covered with a green slime. That afternoon I had a burial service, and literally I could not articulate without keeping my hand to my mouth and pulling my lower lip off my teeth, while bullets from a concealed sniper whizzed past us. In the evening water came in enough to give each one bottle quite inadequate."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

WHO STARTED THE WAR?

German Documents Are Now Supplying the Answer.

Until the Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Ludendorff become quite certain that the allied Governments have published all the documents they have captured, it would be better for them not to make rash statements. They have been breaking out lately with repetitions of the pretence that Germany was taken by surprise by the war, and that the war was forced upon her. Thereupon the British Government, relieving Secretary Lansing for the moment from his monotonous occupation of exposing German treachery, produces some of the captured correspondence of Capt. von Papen, lately the German Military Attache at Washington. One letter received by von Papen from the Ministry of War in Berlin calls upon him to investigtae Mexican train-wrecking methods for use "in the event of a European war." Four months later, after due investigation, von Papen makes his report from Mexico City.

The interesting thing about these letters is the date. The request from Berlin was made March 12, 1914. Von Papen, at the end of his four months' investigation, replied in July. War broke out August 1. It was on the day before, on July 31, that Kaiser Wilhelm said, in his speech from the balcony of the palace in Berlin:

"A fateful hour has fallen for Germany. Envious peoples everywhere are compelling us to our just defence. The sword is being forced into our hand."

On August 6 he issued the proclamation in which he said:

"In the midst of perfect peace the enemy surprises us. Therefore to arms!"

The enemy did not surprise von Papen. He had been at work for four months finding out how to blow up railroad trains "in the event of a European war," he had been disgusted to find that the Mexican methods were not up-to-date enough to be of much use in Europe. The enemy did not surprise that sagacious gentleman in the Berlin War Office who, in March, had directed von Papen to make the investigation. Von Wild his name was. He foresaw in March that the sword would be "forced into our hand" in August. And that was strange; for the war, of course, was over the murder of Franz Ferdinand at Serajevo, and Franz Ferdinand was not murdered until June. How did Mr. von Wild, in March, know that Franz Ferdinand would be murdered in June, and that Russia would iniquitously make this a pretext for mobilizing against poor, unsuspecting Germany, and thus "compel us to our just defence" in August.

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

FASED BY SECOND DOSE OF Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Startled the Tailor.

A London tailor was once measuring Dr. Parker, who had a quaint sense of humor, for an overcoat, when suddenly the doctor broke forth in his most sepulchral voice:

"Can you measure the ineffable?"

The assistant looked up and saw that the doctor was extremely grave. He said:

"I beg your pardon, sir?"

The doctor raised both his hands with a grand upward sweep and said:

"Can you measure the ineffable? Can you comprehend the infinite?"

"We'll make you a nice coat, sir," returned the puzzled assistant. Tapping the doctor's shin he said:

"That's about the length, sir?"

"Longer!" ejaculated the doctor in despairing tones.

"There, sir?"

"Longer!" thundered that great man.

The tailor remonstrated. As a sartorial professional he could give points on tailoring to any preacher that ever wore a head.

"If you have it any longer, you won't be able to walk," he remarked conclusively.

The doctor looked on him compassionately and, once more extending his arms toward the skies, said confidentially:

"I don't want to walk; I want to soar!"

A History Making Trifle.

It was but a trifle that gave Spain for so many generations the lordship of the new world and enabled her by the wealth which she derived from that source to become the most powerful nation in Europe. It is well known that Columbus, discouraged with the refusals which he met at so many courts, dispatched his brother Bartolomeo to ask aid from Henry VII. of England. But on the way the messenger fell into the hands of pirates, and by the time he reached London was so destitute that he had to try to earn the money to clothe himself in proper style before he could be presented at court. But by that time it was too late. Even the fact that Ferdinand and Isabella furnished the funds to equip the expedition was mainly due to the accident that Juan Perez de Marchena, the queen's confessor, happened to be passing when the weary mariner was knocking at the door of La Rabida monastery to beg a little bread and water for his boy Diego and was impressed with the noble face of the dusty traveler. Had Bartolomeo reached London in time, had Columbus been a little later or earlier at the monastery door, the fate of Europe might have been changed and the destiny of the Anglo-Saxon race altered.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Women in Britain Cut Legs.

A quarter of a million women in England are now working more or less regularly on the land, says the London Observer. The great majority are village women who go out from their cottages and work for the farmers. Seven thousand are in the new Land army, which employs women who are recruited for a certain term and sends them wherever they are required.

The women in the Land army enlist either for twelve or six months. In case of twelve months they receive two complete outfits free; consisting of a dress, corduroy breeches, strong boots, leggings, overalls and hat. They also get for the year one jersey and one mackintosh. They are given four or six weeks' free instruction at a training center. Their pay on the farm ranges from $2 to $5 a week.

For a girl who joins the army for six months there is no training. She goes straight away to the land and begins on the work requiring less skill. Services of women enrolled in the Land army are available for timber cutting and hay baling.

The Goose That Walked.

A Canadian soldier, whilst serving on the western front, received a parcel containing amongst other eatables portions of a cooked goose as a special luxury. By an error the parcel was sent on to Italy to another section of the same unit. In the fullness of time it was returned to France, having been some weeks on the trip. The soldier, writing home recently, said: "I had a big surprise today . . . for the parcel you posted to me in November last turned up in great style, having performed the latter part of the journey on foot. When I summoned up enough courage to open it, the noble bird simply formed fours and departed at the double. . . . I should say it had quite an exciting journey round Italy and France."

Dog Hair Wool Substitute.

The keeping of dogs may be regarded as a patriotic duty instead of a wasteful luxury, if the dog be of the long-haired species.

It has been demonstrated that an exceptionally high-class wool can be spun from the hair of all breeds of long-haired dogs. Samples from Chows, Pekingese, poodles, Bergers d'Alsace and sheep dogs have been submitted to wool experts, who are emphatic in their commendation.

To popularize the discovery and turn it to good account the British Dogs' Wool association has been formed with the countess of Gosford as president and Lady Algernon Gordon-Lennox as chairman. The dogs' wool, so far as the association can control it, will be turned over to the British Red Cross.

Meanwhile short-haired dogs are discredited and in peril of destruction unless it can be proven that they, too, may be utilized to help win the war, otherwise than as camouflaged sausage meat.

Thoughtful Willie.

Freddie watched mother set the alarm clock ahead one hour so as to bring it to "summer time." On Monday the family discovered that they had been awakened one hour earlier than was necessary. Finally Freddie said: "Well, mother, don't we have to set the clock an hour ahead every night? I fixed it last night to save you the trouble."

China and the Great War

PARTICIPATION in the war was a subject of controversy in China long before it was actually undertaken, and indeed was one of the causes leading to the crisis which incidentally made possible the short-lived Manchu restoration of last July. Those who favored such participation argued that it would give China a recognized place at the peace conference and enable her to secure two important and long-sought concessions, viz.: (1) the remission, or at least suspension, of the so-called "Boxer" indemnities, and (2) a substantial increase of customs duties.

As to the first, several Western Governments long ago recognized the justice of the claim by remitting its entire share of the Boxer indemnity; and this was done not as a mere act of generosity, but as one of justice. In other words, civilized men became convinced after investigation that the sum exacted from China by the Powers in 1900 was more than reimbursement for losses actually suffered by them, and amounted to a fine imposed upon a then helpless nation.

As to the second concession sought, it will no doubt surprise the ordinary reader to learn that China must obtain the consent of the Powers in order to increase her customs duties. This is because that branch of her public service, while technically Chinese, is really administered by foreigners (i.e., non-Chinese) in order to insure payment of interest on China's foreign loans. Indeed, it would hardly be inaccurate to say that the Chinese customs service is a creation of foreigners. The late Sir Robert Hart devoted his life to it; and while the treaties require that the Inspector-General shall be a British subject for some years to come, representatives of other nationalities, including our own, have contributed materially to its upbuilding and successful administration. Men like Morse and Merill, now retired, as well as Carl and Bryant, still in the harness, have worthily represented our country in a branch of China's Government service which has been honestly and efficiently administered, and which, with the "Salt Gabelle," or monopoly, similarly operated, affords an important if not the principal source of China's public revenues.

But the control of the Powers extends to the fixing of the amount of duty, and at present this is only five per cent. Considering that the gravest obstacles of the Chinese Government in recent years have been financial ones, it is not strange that its officials have looked to the customs as a source of relief and have regarded the present limitation as not only entirely too low, but as framed in the interests of foreign exporters rather than in those of the Chinese people. Moreover, those foreign representatives who have been most insistant upon retaining the so-called indemnity are also the ones who oppose an increase of duties; and to the Chinese, it seems the extreme of injustice to be forced on the one hand to pay these heavy exactions and on the other to be denied the full benefit of a legitimate source of revenue to meet them.

As to these points, therefore, China's case appears to be entirely just and reasonable. To what extent she will participate actively in the war which she has now voluntarily entered remains to be seen; but it is not unlikely that her most effective contributions will be labor. I may cite as an earnest of this the fact that the ship which brought me recently from China to America carried nearly a thousand Chinese laborers for the Western front, entraining at Vancouver for the rail trip across Canada and thence transshipping to France. Large-limbed and brawny, these coolies were the pick of Shantung Province; and it is safe to say that for trench digging and all the heaviest work of warfare each is better fitted than the average soldier. It is interesting to note also that the plan works well for the coolie, affording him better wages, food, and clothing than he would have at home and insuring provision likewise for his family in China. This augmentation of allied resources has now been in progress for months and may prove a not inconsiderable factor toward that victorious outcome of the war.—Review of Reviews.

Think Milk Is Dear.

Milk at seven cents a quart is so dear in Switzerland that the country has been talking about little else for months past, and a general strike is threatened if any increase is attempted. Since last summer the state has been paying the cost of the last increase. Now the farmers insist on a further increase to about nine cents a quart, and it is doubtful whether the state treasury can afford the expense. The Socialists say they will call a general strike if the price to consumers is raised. The milk producers say they will stop all supplies unless they are allowed to charge more.

Watering Plants.

A French botanist who has experimented with vegetable raising has determined the exact amount of water necessary for the best growth of various plants. In general, he found that a supply of water administered uninterruptedly drop by drop brought better results than even systematic drenching.

Railways In China.

The Government-owned railways and telegraphic service in China showed profits during 1917 of $13,500,000 and $2,800,000, respectively. The deficiency in the postal service for the same period was only $110,000. This leaves a net profit in the three departments of $17,190,000 for the year.—East and West.

MADE PEACE OVERTURES.

German Professor Had Rigmarole of Cant and Deceit.

A story of how an attempted German peace offensive directed toward President Wilson was turned down ignominiously by Prof. Heron, an American living in Geneva, is told by the Swiss correspondent of the London Daily Mail.

The German Government, according to the correspondent, tried to get peace offers sent to the President through Prof. Heron, who was visited on April 19 by Prof. Quidde, of Munich, a friend of Count von Hertling, the Imperial German Chancellor. Prof. Quidde was accompanied by the Dutch pacifist, Dr. Jong van Beck.

Prof. Quidde said he had come to prepare the way for a meritorious peace, and gave Prof. Heron to understand that he spoke for Chancellor von Hertling and the German Foreign Office. He assured the American professor that the peace party in the Reichstag was about to gain predominance in Germany. Germany, Prof. Quidde said, was willing to make the folowing terms:

First, to grant autonomy to Alsace-Lorraine within the limits of the German empire, provided the allies would not broach the subject of Alsace-Lorraine at the peace conference.

Second, the Brest-Litovsk peace treaties not to be discussed at the peace conference, although the allies might submit claims for the revision of them and Germany might make certain concessions.

Third, no economic war against Germany after the war.

Four, German colonies to be restored.

Prof. Quidde asserted that the present offensive in France had the ultimate objective of achieving a durable peace.

Prof. Heron, the Daily Mail's correspondent writes, after listening to the German professor, exclaimed: "I wonder that you have the effrontery to ask me to lay such a rigmarole of cant and deceit before the American people. The United States intends to continue the fighting until the Prussian military power and, if necessary, the Prussian State along with it, is extinguished forever as a power for evil, whether it takes one year of ten."

The Prof. Quidde referred to above is probably Prof. Ludwig Quidde, a historian of the University of Munich, the Bavarian capital. He was a delegate to the 20th Universal Peace Conference at the Hague.

Belgian Judges Imprisoned.

"A short time ago we reported that the Belgian Government in Havre had sent a notice to the judicial authorities in Brussels to bring charges against and arrest two members of the Flanders council on account of their activities toward Flemish independence." That could, of course, only be considered as a demonstration, since it was impossible for German authorities to permit any such interference by an enemy Government, which had, even according to the laws of the people, nothing more to say with regard to the execution of justice in Belgium.

"According to the Wolff Bureau the general movement has now directed that the persons arrested shall be immediately set free and that all further punishments shall be forbidden. Furthermore, the members of the court of appeals who took part in the decision have been forbidden the further discharge of their duties, and three of the four presidents of the Court of Appeals have been taken into custody and sent to Germany.

Reaction from Infirmities.

In certain persons a curious reaction from physical infirmities has been observed. Napoleon's inordinate ambition and enormous egoism were probably exaggerated by the fact that he was physically small and insignificant. Tamerlane, who made himself master of nearly the whole of Asia, was lame, and, according to one of his biographers, "deformed and impious of feature." Pope, with his deformed body, became "The Wicked Wasp of Twickenham." Byron, doubtless spurred by his clubfoot, swam the Hellespont. The Kaiser, with his arm withered from birth, Treitschke, stone-deaf from childhood, and Nietzsche, with years of brain disorder leading to paresis, were the unholy trinity of the new Teuton religion which has driven a whole nation into irresponsible fanaticism and almost wrecked the planet. King Richard III. exclaimed:

"Then, since the heavens have shap'd my body so,
Let hell make crooked my mind to answer it."

—Dr. Frederick Peterson in Century.

A Patriotic Cockerel.

A cockerel owned by F. C. Fyson, of London, which has been sold 6,670 times and has raised $35,000 for the Red Cross and kindred funds, was bought in for $725 at a gift sale at Maidstone on behalf of the Red Cross and the Kent prisoners of war fund. This sale, with subscriptions, realized nearly $30,000.

Rare Stamps Are Costly

THE element of rarity provides one of philately's greatest fascinations. Every stamp collector cherishes the hope of one day unearthing from some forgotten store of old letters a Post Office Mauritius of Circular British Guiana, and the knowledge that such finds are still to be made is an incentive to the philatelist's predilection.

Those unversed in the gentle art of philately may perhaps experience some little difficulty in accounting for the high prices that are from time to time paid for certain stamps, writes Douglas B. Armstrong, in "The Boys' Book of Stamp Collecting," and a question often asked by the non-collector is: "What causes a stamp to be rare?"

The answer is, of course, that the value of stamps, as of any other commodity, is governed by the law of supply and demand, and it is not merely that the number of known specimens of a given stamp is limited, but that there are a large number of philatelists anxious to secure copies of it whenever they come on to the market. Popularity has perhaps more to do with the market value of a stamp than its actual scarcity as regards numbers.

The Post Office Mauritius is undoubtedly the most popular of all postage stamp rarities, yet there are many stamps of which fewer specimens are known to exist that are worth only a fraction of the price commanded by one of these.

Other causes that contribute to the rarity of a postage stamp are: Limited population; small number printed; restricted period of currency; destruction of a portion of the issue, etc. Often a combination of circumstances are responsible for the relative scarcity of a certain stamp or issue.

Many early stamps are rare merely because, in those days, little or no regard was paid to them, the notion of collecting and preserving foreign postage stamps not having a vogue at the period of their issue, and consequently the majority of specimens were destroyed together with the letters which they served to frank.

It does not follow, however, that all the earlier postage stamps are rare, although such would appear to be a common fallacy amongst the uninitiated, but chiefly those emanating from the smaller and more remote countries, where the volume of postal business was inconsiderable. A number of the earliest postage stamps are, in fact, quite common—a characteristic example being the line-engraved Red Pennies of Great Britain.

Pride of place amongst the many valuable and unique specimens known to the stamp collector belongs to a singularly unpretentious and sorry-looking stamp, issued in the colony of British Guiana, in 1856, for provisional use, pending the arrival of a fresh consignment of the regular postage stamps from England. It is of the denomination 1 cent, the design being crudely set up from ordinary printers' type at the office of the Official Gazette, with the central device of a sailing ship taken from the heading of the shipping advertisements in the paper.

The single known copy of this rarity reposes in the world-famous collection of M. Philippe de la Renotiere of Paris, and its intrinsic value, in the unlikely contingency of its ever coming on to the market, is certainly not less than £2,000, and probably a great deal more. A report on this unique stamp by Mr. E. D. Bacon, the celebrated expert, states that "The copy is a poor one, dark magenta in color and somewhat rubbed. It is initialed 'E.D.W.' and dated April 1, the year not being distinct enough to be read."

Nevertheless, it is the rarest stamp in the world.

The Post Office Mauritius, than which there is no more familiar nor popular philatelic gems, is chiefly notable for having commanded the highest price ever paid for a single stamp at auction. An unusual stamp of the 2d. value was offered for sale at Puttick & Simpson's, in 1904, where it was eventually knocked down for no less a sum than £1,450, now constituting one of the most desirable items in the collection of King George V, this stamp with its companion the 1d. was originally engraved on a copper plate, the size of a lady's visiting card, by a local watchmaker of Port Louis, named Barnard, the two values with their unflattering likeness of Queen Victoria and the erroneous inscription "Post Office" in the place of "Post Paid" being engraved side by side, and printed off, one at a time, by hand. A total of only 500 copies of each value was printed, and the greater part were used on invitations sent out to a ball at the Government House.

Only 26 copies are known to be in existence to-day, and, in used condition, these stamps are valued by a standard catalogue at £7,000 and £2,000 respectively, whilst a pair in unused condition recently changed hands at the record price of £3,500.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HIS CRACK JOB

By Jeannette Benton

Copyright, by the S.S. McClure Company

Occasionally the gov'ner did society. He seldom went into any but the best, because there he found the "smart" young women who emphasized their social standing by minute accounts of their mistresses' diamonds. The gov'ner had often materially increased his bank account by those financial pointers.

One Tuesday night he dropped into Wiley's. It was sometimes a little mixed there, and he met almost immediately a flirtatious young woman who, he found, was general housemaid to a young couple in the suburbs. She prattled interesting things while they were sitting out a dance.

"I am dead tired tonight," she confided. "We had a 1 o'clock luncheon today—twenty-four covers laid, an' the tables one glisten of solid silver an' cut glass. We are 'it' when it comes to solid silver."

"You must have the coin," the gov'ner remarked casually.

"Oh, not special. It's weddin' presents. They've both got rich folks, an' they give them just scads an' scads of solid silver."

The gov'ner regarded her with beaming interest.

"A gauzy butterfly like you oughtn't to wear themselves out with work. What's your push out there?" he inquired tenderly.

The gov'ner rescued her head.

"Just me an' him an' her an' the baby, an' he gone half the time."

She unconsciously lowered her voice. "He's gone now, an' she thinks I'm in bed. I am goin' to Mulhall's party tomorrow night too."

"Suppose the crooks do the house, an' her alone?" he suggested.

Miss Nellie squealed.

"Mercy me! You don't think I'd fight 'em if I was there, do you? Oh, she's got a telephone right in her room. She could get help easy enough."

The gov'ner smiled. It was a leisurely matter to finish a job and get comfortably away after the telephone bell had called for help. It was surprising no one had got on to a dead open and shut job like that.

Three o'clock the next morning found him padding gently up the stiff half country street. Just ahead of him were the dim outlines of a large lawn heavily shaded with trees.

He vaulted the fence and strolled leisurely up through the trees. "Not even a bloomin' dog!" he murmured pityingly.

Ten minutes later he walked quietly into the house and found his way into the hall. He generally found the hall first and radiated from there.

He had hardly stepped in when a door on the upper floor opened sharply.

"Nellie! Nellie!" called a frightened voice. "There is something dreadful the matter with the baby, and the telephone won't work! Nellie!"

The voice rose to a shriek of terror. There was a rush of muffled footsteps through the upper hall.

The gov'ner listened sympathetically.

"Nellie is at Mulhall's an' good until 5 o'clock," he murmured.

There was an instant's silence, then the voice broke out afresh in deeper terror:

"Oh, she's dying—she's dying!"

The gov'ner scratched his head distractedly. He hated to see folks in trouble.

"Baby! Baby!" The voice was heartbreaking. "Isn't there anybody to help me?"

"Can I do anything for you, ma'am?" he inquired politely. "I heard you as I was passin'."

A woman knelt by the bed. She was very childlike looking. She swept the hair back from her face and regarded him with terror stricken eyes.

A baby lay on the bed. Little rings of dark hair curled damply on its pallid forehead. Its little face was ghastly blue and pinched. Suddenly its head drew back more violently and its limbs commenced to twitch in long, convulsive shudders.

She clutched the gov'ner's arm and shook it fiercely.

"Can't you do anything?" she demanded.

"I don't know," he said; then his face cleared. Heaven knows from what recess of his life he drew the information, but he found it.

"I know," he said briskly. "It's hot water. Go get some hot water in somethin' big enough to put the kid in."

There was a sudden splash in the hall, and the girl mother came breathlessly in with a small tin bathtub.

"Got its duds off!" he said authoritatively. "This water ain't hot enough but it'll have to pass now."

The poor little mother's fingers were trembling, so they were nearly useless. She turned great, imploring eyes on him.

"Please put her in!" she half whispered. "I am afraid to lift her."

"Blest!" murmured the gov'ner; then he stooped and lifted the tiny convulsed body into the water. He felt it relax slightly in his hands as the water submerged it.

"Throw a blanket or something over to keep in the heat!" he commanded. "Then skin out, can't you, an' get some hotter water? Get a move on you too."

She had already gone.

He knelt by the chair, regarding the small face he was supporting above the blanket anxiously. It was less pinched now and lay limply on his hand, small and pathetic.

"Such a little kid," he said softly—"such a bloomin' little kid!"

The long lashes slowly lifted, and the dark eyes gazed into his. Slowly the purpled lids closed again, and a tremor shook its body.

He swore softly. "Ain't she ever comin'? This layout will freeze the kid in a blasted minute!"

He gathered the baby up in the blanket and commenced to pace the floor, watching the tiny face with strained attention.

The blue shadows deepened under its eyes; the tiny waxen nose pinched closer and closer; the small mouth seemed settling into a terrible calm.

He swore as he walked. In that way he managed in a measure to relieve his feelings.

"Is she dead?" asked a choked, breathless voice at the door.

The girl mother's face was ghostly, but the only thing he saw was the steaming kettle in her hand.

"Naw," he snarled; but he was not so sure.

He lowered the child carefully into the water.

Ten, fifteen, minutes passed.

A faint white glimmer of life commenced to tremble across the baby's face. The blue shadows slowly faded, and the wax white nostrils filled.

The gov'ner heaved a mighty sigh.

"She's comin' through," he announced triumphantly. "Now give me a dry blanket."

He wrapped her warmly in it and laid her, weary and sleepy, but palely pink, on the bed.

Then he shook himself like a man coming out of a trance. He suddenly remembered his burglar's kit in the lower hall. Dawn was breaking, too, and it might not be so easy getting back with it to town.

The girl mother looked at him with moist, grateful eyes.

"You are so good," she said, with quivering voice. "Baby would have died if you hadn't"—

She hesitated. Some way she could get quite place him. He did not look like a workingman. He was not a gentleman. She dimly remembered that he had sworn at her dreadfully.

She went to the dresser and picked up a little steel meshed purse. Inside lay a ten dollar bill and a dollar.

"Would you mind," she said desperately, "if I gave you a dollar? I wish I could give you more, but it is all the money I have, and Fred won't be back until the last of the week."

Her small, tremulous fingers clung to his an instant, and a tear splashed down on them.

"I can't thank you. I can't thank you," she sobbed.

The gov'ner looked at her helplessly, at the $10 in the purse and the little heap of diamonds over on the dresser.

Then he went down stairs, the dollar in his hand.

REMINDER OF PAST DAYS

Author's Depiction of "Tourist" Printer Will Be Recognized as Drawn From Life.

Thrilling adventures of the old journeyman printers are continued in "These Shifting Scenes," by Charles Edward Russell. These wanderers roamed from town to town, denouncing everything outside of New York as unfit for consideration, and returning by way of freight trains once a year for a visit to that Mecca of journalists. Mr. Russell describes a typical member of the guild, one "Scotty."

"This solid and sorry ragamuffin had so often escaped violent death that he was convinced of a destiny to the effect that he was not to be drowned, and was far more fearful of drinking contaminated water than of riding on car trucks. Once as he clung to the bumpers of a freight car a mad or intoxicated Bulgarian had fired five revolver shots at him and every shot was whipped or gone through Scotty's [illegible] coat.

He was probably convinced that he had seen a ghost, leaped from the train and was killed.

"Several times Scotty had been in train wrecks. Once the car was on fire and he was pinned down by a pile of joist, but two brakemen worked with frenzied zeal until they freed him and saved his life; and then pursued him down the track pelting him with coal for stealing a ride.

"His walking experiment was made in 1874 when business was depressed and the country was full of tramps. He joined a colony of these, and so great was the terror they inspired that the farmers used to come every morning with presents of chicken and milk; but as a matter of fact the tramps were the most harmless of men. One had been a clergyman and used to reprove the others for swearing."

Hot Baths.

A German physician advocates in a German paper the frequent taking of hot baths. These, he urges, are much more healthful than the cold plunge, which he thinks few systems can stand. The water should be at a temperature in the beginning of 108 degrees F., this to be increased until the water is as hot as can be borne. The length of the first bath should not be more than five minutes, and at no time should it be longer than is agreeable with no sense of discomfort apparent.

The writer cites in support of his theory the practice common in Japan among all classes of his people of taking these hot baths. The porter walking along with his load and fatigued to the point of exhaustion, drops it for ten minutes while he takes a hot bath at some public bathhouse. He emerges refreshed and strengthened and goes on his way rejoicing.

The writer considers that there is no danger of taking cold after a hot bath and does not even advocate the use of a cold shower to follow the bath. Hot water is known to be an excellent cosmetic for the face, and it is only fair to assume that its revival of skin tissue is not confined to that part of the body.

NINE BOILS
Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood has be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

Gulls "Spot" Submarines.

"Seagulls, like the land birds on the western front, do not appear to fear the sights and sounds of war. The booming of cannon and the turmoil of conflict do not create any alarm in their feathered breasts. From time immemorial," writes a correspondent to the Scotsman, "sea birds have apparently considered ships as universal providers of food, and observers have reported that after a heavy sea-fight the seagulls collect in housands and dash down, quite undeterred by the conflict, to feed upon the vast quantities of small fishes that, killed by the concussion, float upon the surface of the sea. Even before the battle is over the screaming gulls settle down to their feast amid the drifting wreckage and horrors of a sea-battle. Seaplanes and airships cause them no fears, and after the battle of Heligoland the British rescuers of the German sailors said that overhead the Zeppelins floated in mid-air raining disaster upon their boats, while all around them the gulls fought and struggled for the fish that dotted the surface of the sea quite unheeding the boats or airships. If, however, airships do not alarm the seagulls, they are considerably perturbed by the presence of submarines. In fact, it is possible to tell by the behaviour of gulls where a submarine is passing under water. Their greatest danger lies in the depth of the sea from sharks and such marauders of the deep, and no doubt to them a submarine is an enormous shark. A flock of gulls will wheel and scream over the spot, flying off suddenly with every evidence of dismay, and will not return until the intruder has departed."

Sparrow as Firebug.

A smouldering cigarette picked up and carried by a sparrow to the belfry of the main hall, on a university of Valparaiso, Ind., set fire to the structure, and almost resulted in its destruction. It was only through strenuous efforts on the part of the fire company and the students that the building, an old landmark, was saved. The belfry was used by a large number of sparrows as a place to build their nests. One of the students threw away a lighted cigarette, and an inquisitive bird, searching for something with which to line her nest, picked it up and flew to the tower. A few minutes later students passing the building saw several of the nests ablaze, and the birds were flying about screaming.—E. Suffolk Gazette.

STILL IN BUSINESS

The drastic order of the War Trade Board prohibiting imports of Fruits and Vegetables has been greatly modified on strong representations of deputations from the Wholesale Fruit Houses. The final result is more encouraging, otherwise for 8 or 9 months of the year very little, if any, fresh Fruits or Vegetables would have been available.

MORE HUN BRUTALITY

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT ON CRUELTY TO PRISONERS.

Men Who Had Been Captured by the Germans Were Used Behind the Lines In France, and They Were Starved, Frozen and Whipped Until Death Ended Their Sufferings — Treated Worse Than the Horses.

BY those laws of war agreed upon at The Hague in 1907, which seem now so far away, belligerents are forbidden to employ prisoners of war upon war operations. Other regulations are that prisoners must be humanely treated and not overworked, that their personal belongings not of military use remain their own, that their captors are charged with their maintenance, and that in default of pacific agreements between the belligerents they are to be rationed, quartered, and clothed on the same footing as the troops of the Government whose captives they are. Not only did Germany agree to all these things, but in the German War Book the military authorities laid down strict laws to that effect.

The British Government Committee on the Treatment by the Enemy of British Prisoners of War has just issued a report upon the Germans' treatment of British prisoners of war behind the firing lines in France and Belgium. The report is the latest of a series, each dealing with some specific phase of the war prisoner problem. It throws light upon a condition of real frightfulness—the employment of half-starved, half-clothed men on military operations against their own country, within range of their own army's guns, and the keeping of these men dirty, verminous, sick, shut off from any communication with their own people, from whom they received no letters or parcels. These men were not subject to neutral inspection.

In January, 1917, the German Government informed the British Government that British prisoners would be kept at work close behind the German lines, in reprisal for alleged similar treatment of Germans by Great Britain. No such treatment, the report states, existed; but even if it had, evidence showed that Germany had had British prisoners at work within range of British guns behind the lines as early as August, 1916. In reply to the German note, Mr. Balfour stated that the British were under strict orders to employ no prisoners in handling munitions or within range of the enemy's guns. But in April, 1917, an agreement was concluded between the British and German Governments that prisoners of war should not on either side be employed within thirty kilometers of the firing line. The report contains evidence up to the end of 1917, which shows that Germany disregarded this agreement; it may be a dead letter still.

Part of the evidence is from the reports of prisoners and of men who had seen and talked with them, part of it from German documents. On April 15, 1917, the following notice, "Concerning Prisoners of Respite," was handed to a British non-commissioner officer to be read out to his fellow-prisoners at Lille:

"To the German request to withdraw the German prisoners of war to a distance of not less than thirty kilometers from the front line the British Government has not replied, therefore it has been decided that all prisoners of war who are captured in future will be kept as prisoners of respite.

"Very short of food, bad lighting, bad lodgings, no beds, hard work beside the German guns, under heavy shellfire. No pay, no soap for washing or shaving, no towels or boots, etc."

The notice goes on to state that the prisoners must let their relatives know how badly they are treated. As the official British report comments:

"These documents definitely commit the German Command to at least a threatened course of conduct for which the committee would have been slow to fix them with conscious responsibility. As will presently appear, this document certainly did not err on the side of overstatement."

The treatment of prisoners here threatened had, however, begun many months before. Furthermore, the German Command does not officially acknowledge the existence of prisoners in occupied territory, and not only are they not visited by neutral inspectors, but their whereabouts may not be disclosed. For months before the command to "write home" quoted above, prisoners of war had been kept in secrecy behind the firing line, with none of the safeguards of ordinary prison camps — bad as some of these might be. Following are quotations from the report:

"The treatment in question commenced to be systematic not later than August, 1916. The prisoners of war, it seems, kept in large numbers at certain places in the west—Cambrai and Lille are frequently referred to in the evidence — but in smaller numbers they were placed all along the line. Their normal work was making roads, repairing railways, constructing light railways, digging trenches, erecting wire entanglements, making gunpits, loading ammunition, filling munition waggons, carrying trench mortars, and doing general fatigue work, which under pain of death the non-commissioned officers were compelled to supervise.

"This work was not only forbidden by the laws of war, but it was also excessively hard. In many cases it lasted from eight to nine hours a day, with long walks to and fro, sometimes of ten kilometers in each direction, and for long periods was carried on within range of the shellfire of the allied armies. One witness was for nine months kept at work within the range of British guns, others for shorter periods. Many were killed by these guns; more were wounded; deaths from starvation and overwork were constant. The men were half starved. One of them at Cambrai says:

"'If it had not been for the French civilians giving us food as we went along the roads to and from work we should most certainly have starved. If the sentries saw us make a movement out of the ranks to get food they would immediately make a jab at us with their rifles; but conditions here were not so bad as at Moretz, where if a man stepped out of the ranks he was immediately shot. I heard about this from men who had themselves been working at Moretz and had with their own eyes seen comrades shot for moving from the ranks.'

"'The German sergeant in charge at Ervillers,' says one prisoner, 'was very harsh. Twice I saw him' (this prisoner was there for a month only) 'using a dog whip, and heard of his doing so on another occasion. He used it mostly on men who were slow in getting out to work owing to weakness.'

"To add to their miseries, the accommodation provided for these prisoners was in many cases pathetically inadequate. The witnesses recur to this again and again. One sleeping place, for instance, for a large party was a barn with no roof. The rain poured in upon them. They had to sleep in their wet clothes and work in the same clothes. They had no change of any kind. And yet some of these prisoners, if they survived so long, were kept behind the enemy lines for over a year. One of them thus describes their quarters at Cambrai:

"'We slept about twelve in a room in our uniforms without either greatcoats or blankets. There was no fire, and it was very cold. We lay on loose straw, which was full of vermin. We could only wash in a bucket of cold water without either soap or towels.'

"Another adds: 'The Germans did not supply us with any clothing, and, as we had to work in all weathers, conditions were very hard. It was terribly cold, also. We asked for clothing, but never got any.'"

An army chaplain reports:

"On Feb. 16, 1917, there arrived in Minden Hospital sixteen men who had been working behind the Western front, attached to Camp E. K. 5. The thermometer registered 10 degrees, Fahrenheit, below zero. They had walked seven kilometers from the station. Their clothing consisted of tunic, trousers, and thin shirt, boots and socks, and an old hat—no coat and no underclothes. They had been two days and two nights in the cold train with very little to eat. Two of these men died later of consumption in Minden. They had all been captured in November, and their relatives did not know even that they were alive. These men report, too, that they are brutally treated; human life is not worth so much as horseflesh. They are worked until they either die or so completely collapse that they are useless. They said it was nothing to wake up in the morning and find the man sleeping beside you dead. I got the names of several who had died and wrote to their people to inform them."

Holland's Sugar Surplus.

Recent reports of a probable scarcity of sugar in Holland are now dispelled by official statements that not only will the 1917 production be ample for domestic needs but will leave a surplus for export.

The reports about scarcity, says the American consul at Amsterdam, were due to the fact that sugar beets were being fed to cattle owing to the lack of fodder; but it is now authoritatively announced that a considerable part of the 1917 crop may be fed to cattle, still leaving an abundance for the production of sufficient sugar. This is in spite of the fact that the sugar beet area in Holland was 20 per cent. less in 1917 than in average recent preceding years, the excellent crop offsetting that shortage.

The annual production of beet sugar in Holland in recent years was between 230,000 and 300,000 tons, of which about one-half sufficed for local requirements. The 1917 production is not yet stated, but apparently it was fairly normal.

The Government controls the sugar supply and has fixed a price which brings sugar to the consumer for 12 to 15 American cents a pound, according to kind. This is only about three cents above ante-war prices. Half the retail price of sugar in Holland consists of the excise tax. However, it is stated that the Government loses about a cent a pound on the price it has fixed; that is to say, sugar cannot now be produced and marketed at the Government price with any profit, and therefore the Government pays the dealers a fair compensation. This it also does in respect to various other articles of which it has fixed the maximum price.

BRADSHAW HAS GAINED 15 POUNDS

Spent $500 For Medicines But Tanlac Is Only Thing That Helped Him

"Well, there may be other medicines as good as Tanlac for troubles like I had, but have never been able to find them, and if I have spent one dollar during the past nine years, trying to get well, I have spent five hundred." Edison E. Bradshaw, who made this statement, is a contracting painter and decorator and lives at 593 Jane street, Toronto.

"My appetite seemed to be fairly good," he continued, "that is, I could eat but I couldn't digest my food properly and always suffered with indigestion after meals. Gas would form and bloat me up and press on my heart so at times I felt like I was smothering. There was heavy feeling in the pit of my stomach like my food had lodged there in a lump. I was bilious all the time and often had headache and severe pain all through the back of my neck. I was also very nervous, couldn't rest well at night and felt tired, worn-out and unfit for work all the time.

"I lost weight all the time, and when I began taking Tanlac I was off more than twenty pounds. But I have already gotten back fifteen pounds and have just finished my fourth bottle of Tanlac. I haven't had that tight uncomfortable feeling in my stomach and chest since I began taking it, and the sourness and gas have disappeared entirely. My food seems to digest perfectly, and I can eat and feel nourished and refreshed from it. I'm not bilious any more and am feeling much stronger and better in every way. Tanlac has convinced me that it's great medicine and I take pleasure in recommending it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

WILL FIGHT FOR LIBERTY

Regiments of Bohemians Have Joined With Allies.

Bohemian hopes of independence from the domination of Austria-Hungary assumed a more concrete form recently in a large city near the Italian front, when a regiment of Bohemian troops received a battle flag on the eve of their departure for the fighting line. Under their own red and white banner, and their own officers, the Bohemians are now ranged in the rank of the Entente allied forces in battling against these oppressors.

The formation of the Bohemian regiment gives a definiteness to the recent congress held in Rome of representatives of the various Slav elements which seek to throw off the Austrian yoke — Serbs, Croats, Slovenes, Czech-Slovaks and Poles. The Serbs, Croats and Slovenes have an independent national organization known as the Jugoslavs, while the Czech-Slovaks and Poles, the northern Slavs, also are working toward independence. All are bound together by the bond of Slav sympathy, and are animated by the aspiration to throw off the tyranny of Austria.

In addition to bringing all the Slav elements into accord, the meetings in Rome have also brought the Jugoslavs and Bohemians into closer accord with the allies. The close relations established between Italy and the Jugoslavs are of special importance to the harmony of the allied cause, for together the Italians and Jugoslavs completely encircle the Adriatic. Italy predominates on the west, and her aspirations extend to beyond Istria. The Slav element is strongest in Croatia, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Montenegro. This extensive Slav frontage on the eastern coast of the Adriatic is now in complete harmony with Italy and the allied cause.

Albania was the only one of the Adriatic communities not represented at the recent congress. The Albanians are not Slavs, but are an ancient race with a language of their own. An Italian army now sustains the burden of holding back the Austrians in Albania, and the Italian Government, by road and bridge building and other public works, is doing much to open Albania to civilization.

The simultaneous action of the congress of oppressed Slav nationalities in reaching an agreement with the Entente, and the giving of a battle flag to the Czech-Slovak regiment, were parts of the same great convulsion going on among the Slav communities, as they seek to throw off the rule of Austria and establish an independent existence.

The Military Salute.

The form of the military salute of subordinates to officers — the hand lifted level with the brow—is said to date back to the time when "knighthood was in flower" and men rode in tournaments for empty but brilliant social honors. The contestants, upon entering the arena, rode up before the box of the "queen of love and beauty," and veiled their eyes with lifted hands, as though shielding them from the radiance of her charms.

The explanation may or may not be correct—very probably it is not, but it is a pretty conceit and fits in with the glamor that gives a tinge of romance to war.

Labor-Saving Devices.

Whether conditions after the war will be better or worse, for the average man in the United States, than they were before the war is a question that cannot be decided until the war has been over for some time, says the Christian Science Monitor. Ominous signs are, however, appearing here and there. For example, somebody has invented a device which enables one man to do two men's wood sawing. This does not look encouraging, but perhaps it will be compensated for by the invention of a device which will enable two patient and industrious men to fill out one man's income tax blank.

Green In Hospitals.

Green uniforms recently replaced white ones among British hospital surgeons, and British hospitals are also being fitted in green instead of white, because this color is easier on the eyes of patients.

NERVES ARE EXHAUSTED

When you have frequent headaches, feel discouraged and down-hearted, cannot rest and sleep well, and find appetite feeble and digestion bad, you may know that the nerves are in bad condition. Don't wait for these symptoms to become chronic but start in early with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and head off disaster.

PECULIARITY OF LOST HAND

That He Should Be Able to Feel It Alternately Open and Close Puzzles Soldier.

A British soldier writes: Most people, I think, know that when a person has lost a limb, that person still retains the "sense," or feeling, of the missing limb. As a case in point, I might mention that a friend of mine, who had lost a leg in the war, in an unthinking moment took a step on the missing leg and came to grief. I myself had the misfortune to lose my left hand on the Messines ridge last June, and all the pain I have suffered from the wound has been in the hand which I no longer possess. Now, the peculiar part of it all is that on alternate days the fingers of the missing hand open and close; that is to say, yesterday they were closed; today they are open. Tomorrow they will be closed again. Can this be explained? This change takes place during sleep, and once or twice, on restless nights, I have actually felt the change taking place. I was lefthanded, and during the attack I carried my revolver in the missing hand. When the fingers are closed they are exactly in the same position as if they were still grasping the revolver. That I can understand, but why should they open on alternate days? The only explanation I can offer is that what remains of the hand after I was wounded was amputated exactly twenty-four hours later. Also, I was wounded somewhere about 4 o'clock in the morning, and was operated on about the same time the following morning, and the opening and closing of the fingers takes place about this time.

Bank Responsible for Error.

An interesting decision has been made by the Missouri court of appeals, relative to holding the sender of a telegram reponsible for a mistake in transmission. A Wyoming bank telegraphed a brokerage house, offering a carload of potatoes at $1.35 a hundred pounds. The telegraph company's mistake in transmission made the price 35 cents a hundred. The supposed offer was accepted by the brokers and the potatoes were shipped. When payment was tendered at the rate of 35 cents a hundred the Wyoming bank refused to accept the money and brought suit for the full amount. The Missouri court of appeals ruled that the bank had made the telegraph company its agent in forwarding the telegram and that as the brokerage house acted in good faith it could not be compelled to pay more than the amount quoted in the message.

MELTING POT FAILS TO MELT

Trouble Is, According to Writer, That the Stoking of the Fires Is Neglected.

This melting pot of ours has been asked to melt up more different kinds of stuff than the department of mineralogy ever heard of. It's got more things in it than a New England boiled dinner, or a rummage sale, Porter Emerson Browne writes in McClure's. And to have gotten all these ingredients properly melted would have meant that every second man was a stoker and every first a coal miner.

But instead of that, every second man has been a motorcar manufacturer and every first an open market.

And the result has been that so far from melting these different ingredients, we haven't done anything with them at all. They have just been dumped in and lain there, here a pile of Armenians, there a bunch of Germans, over yonder a pile of Jews, and beyond that a chunk of Chinese. And New York, which has been our biggest receiving station, has come to take on the appearance of one of those dishes of hors d'oeuvres that you strike in Italian restaurants—sardines in one compartment, olives in another, sausage in a third, anchovies in a fourth, and so on, all separate, distinctive and individual.

And as the United States comprises 48 states, so does each of our states comprise 48 or more cities, and each of our cities 48 different colonies of unmixed and often unmixable nationalities.

FIGHTING HAS DIED DOWN ON THE WESTERN BATTLEFRONT

SEVERAL ENEMY ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

GERMANS USED AS MANY AS FIVE DIVISIONS ON A THREE MILE FRONT

Present Effort to Break Through the Line Has Failed—French Are Extremly Active.

SUBMARINE WARFARE

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 14.—The Havas correspondent at the front says indications are that the Germans have exhausted themselves on the Montdidier Noyon front, which fact is compelling their inactivity, whereas the French are extremely active in this area. Regarding the German effort to get through Villers-Cotterets Forest he estimates that the Germans used as many as five divisions or nearly 70,000 men on a front of 3 3-4 miles and declares that this operation, which was to decide the issue of the present German offensive has already failed.

Submarine Operations.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 14.—(Via Reuter's).—Enemy submarine operations have lessened greatly in Western and Central English Channel since the blockading of Zeebrugge and Ostend. The number of submarines operating has also appreciably diminished owing to severe losses in recent months.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S COUNCIL MEETING HAS REACHED THE RESOLUTION STAGE

Canadian Press

BRANTFORD, June 14.—Resolution advocating the Government licensing of all boarding houses as well as hotels so that the tendency to immoralities in some of them might be eradicated also along the line of providing voluntary workers to protect young girls, on the streets and other places were strongly endorsed and passed by the National Council of Women ere today. It was intimated by several speakers that legislation along these lines were much needed at present.

HAD A DISSOLUTION ORDER FROM THE GERMAN EMPEROR

Berlin Newspapers Reveal the Methods Used in the German Reichstag to Deprive the People of the Franchise.

FEARED TO OPPOSE

United Press Seervice.)
(By Joseph Shaplen.)

STOCKHOLM, June 14.—The complete story of the defeat of the universal franchise bill in the German Reichstag is given in the Berliner Tageblatt showing the triumph of the reaction in Germany and the utter contempt of the government for its own people. The Tageblatt asserts that Chancellor Von Hertling previously warned the leaders of the Opposition that he had an order for dissolution of the Prussian Landtag from the Kaiser and would not hesitate to use it if necessary. The conservation and reactionarlistic bloc was completely victorious in the fourth reading of the bill by a vote of 235 to 164 a large number of centrists flopping to the opposition. Likewise there were many members on the right who feared to oppose the Government.

Countless Sacrifices.

"The reactionary majority puts the patience of the people to a super-human strain," the Tageblatt says. "In these bitter hours when there are countless sacrifices at the front, there are political men who dare to deny the people the most elementary political rights and seek to split the people into opposing groups in order to disenfranchise the whole nation in favour of an industrial clique. No word of protest is strong enough for condemnation. We will not stop until the remotest corner of the country learns of the robbery of the franchise from the people."

SERIOUS FOOD RIOTS IN LEMBERG

The Police Are Powerless and 5,000 Troops Have Been Asked For

SHOPS PLUNDERED

Special to The Eaminer:

ZURICH, June 14. — Serojus food riots occurred in Lemberg last Saturday, it was learned to-day. Mobs plundered shops and military lorries loaded with supplies bound for the Italian front.

The police were powerless and troops were called out. Numbers of casualties resulted. The authorities asked for 5,000 additional troops.

A report was received to-day that the Austrians have executed M. Podtiolkon, president of the Peoples Commissaries of the Don Republic. Martial law has been proclaimed in Roston, it was said.

Thirty peasants were killed in a battle between peasants and Austrians in the Jampoul district. The Austrians have occupied several villages.

EMPLOYEES' DAY AT CRESSMAN'S

As a war measure and following out the idea inaugurated by some of the department stores in New York, and other large American cities, the Cressman Company are turning over to the "Welfare League" of the company, which includes every employee, 20 per cent. of the entire sales of Saturday, June 15th. The managers of the 21 departments of the concern have been given considerable latitude in putting on "specials" for this one day, and the result should be a very substantial amount to be divided among the seventy odd employees.

The idea is an attractive one, and quite original on this side of the border. It breathes of the spirit of cooperation, which is so much required at the present time.

STRAYED FROM HOME.

Little Girl's Adventure In the Down Town.

Mary McKee, three years old, wandered away from her home at the corner of McDonnel and Reid Streets this morning and was noticed by Mr. J. Gates near the Post Office. He took her to the City Hall, where the young ladies in the City Clerk's office kept the child until her mother called at the Police Station.

A NEW POLICEMAN.

Daniel Boyd Joins Police Force—Has Had Experience.

Daniel T. Boyd has been taken on the strength of Chief Thompson's force. He has had considerable police duty, having been senior detective at Regina. He was recently superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company at Orillia, but decided to return to police work.

OFFICIAL DESPATCHES

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

Canadian Press.

LONDON, June 14.—A strong enemy party this morning attacked one of the posts recently established by the British south west of Merris, on the Flanders front, the war office announced. The attack was completely repulsed. The Germans left some prisoners in hands of the British. Activity by the German artillery in region of Villers Bretonneaux to est of Amiens as well as in Scarpe valley east of Arras is reported.

The Statement Reads

Early this morning an attack was made by strong parties of enemy upon one of our new positions west of Merris. It was completely repulsed. A few prisoners remained in our hand. The hostile artillery has been active in the villers Bretonneaux sector, the Scarpe valley. During the night successful raids were carried out by us in neighborhood of Neauville Vitasse and Givenchy les La Basse. Patrols encounters took place to our advantage southwest of Gavrelle and northwest of Merville. As result to these different encounters, we captured several prisoners and two machine guns.

FRENCH OFFICIAL

eCanadian Press.

PARIS, June 14—Fighting on the front of the German attack has died down there being only local operation last night according to today's official. Between forest of Villers Cotterets and Chateau and Thierry, there was artillery fighting during the night. The German attack north Antheuil east of Oise completely broken up.

The Statement Reads.

During the night there were local sections along the front of the German attack. The French made many successful incursions into anemy line north of Grivesnes and in region of Coucelles. They took 30 prisoners. Near Longe Farm they captured prisoners. A German attack in the region of Antheuil was completely broken up. Between the Forest of Villers Cottersts and Chateau Thierry, heavy artillery fighting continues during the night. French patrols took prisoners in the region of Bussairs and west of Rheims in the Champeigne battle area.

A Cunard Line Steamer Ashore

Vessel is Breaking Up—Crew Taken Off

NEW YORK, June 14. —The Associated Press carries the following despatch as a bulletin:

St. JOHN, Nfld., June 14. — The Cunard Line steamer Ascania with passengers, ran ashore near Rose Blanche off the south-west coast of Newfoundland early to-day, and reports to government authorities here to-day indicated that she was breaking up. There were nine passengers aboard and all were taken off safely with the crews.

Will Not Weaken British Allegiance

Fortunes of War Have Reached a Critical Stage

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 14.—Speaking at a luncheon of the Aldwych Club to-day former Premier Asquith said there was no use in cloaking the fact, or minimizing its gravity, that the Allies had reached a most critical point in the fortunes of war. But nothing that had happened on the Western front since the last week of March, he added, would in the slightest degree weaken the British allegiance to the great purpose for which the British people were fighting or their determination to press on to a final accomplishment of their aims.

THE DRIVE IS STOPPED

The Germans Have Been Hurled Back From Their Original Positions Near Noyon

COUNTER ATTACKS

(Henry Wood—United Press)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 14.—Just five days after the hour that Hindenburg opened the battle for the French forces there was every indication that his drive had been stopped at least temporarily. The terrific French counter attacks launched Tuesday and kept up since then not only have prevented the Cermans from advancing, but have hurled them back from their original positions of advance between Noyon and Mondidier.

Sir Robert Borden May Spring Another Surprise

Premier is Now in England With a Number of Camp Followers —What Will Happen When He Returns?

THE REGISTRATION

(Special to Examiner)

OTTAWA, June 14.—To what use the registration of the man and woman power of the Dominion which will take place on the 22nd of the month of June is to be put, has not yet been officially announced.

No doubt the census will provide some sort of an approximation of the available labor of the country which may be used as a basis for the further conscription of man powtr for the front. But every declaration of the Premier and members of the Government on record so far is to the effect that the conscription of labour is not in contemplation. It has been iterated and reiterated that alien labour is not to be conscripted.

Now in England.

However, Sir Robert Borden and several of the collagues are at present in England. They will see there to what extent since the Premier's last visit labour has been placed where it best belongs and to what extent women have taken the places of men. The last time Sir Robert Borden left for England, he had no intention of putting conscription for war purposes into force. When he came back, he announced that conscription for war purposes was to be enacted. On the present occasion he probably has no intention of drafting labour, where it is most needed. He may very well change his mind after he has been in England for a time and another surprise may well be anticipated.

PETERBOROUGH CITIZENS CAN REGISTER ANY DAY NEXT WEEK.

The public is again reminded that facilities for registration will be provided, commenong on Monday next, so it will not be necessary to wait until Saturday, June 22nd, as is commonly supposed. The registration booths will be open each evening from seven until ten o'clock, where registration certificates will be issued. This is being done to offset the possibility of a rush on June 22nd, which is the last day for registration.

EXPLOSION KILLED THREE HUNDRED

Seven Hundred Persons Were Injured in Explosion Which Was Heard 150 Miles Away

A GUN WORKS

((Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, June 14—An explosion in the Skoda Gun Works near Pilsen, on May 25 killed more than three hundred persons and injured seven hundred according to information received by the Journal today. The explosion was heard 150 miles away.

Victory Loan Next October

Two Hundred and Fifty Million Will be the Objective.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, June 14.—This year's victory loan campaign to be opened in Canada next October will aim at raising two hundred and fifty million dollars in sale on bonds to Canadians of all classes. The Department confidently expects the people to subscribe twice that amount. Arrangements for the floatation is now being perfected.

H. H. DEWART WILL BE CANDIDATE

Will Run in Ontario County.

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, June 14.—Hartley H. Dewart, K.C., now a member of the Legislature for South-West Toronto, is to be Liberal candidate in the Northern Ontario Federal by-election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Col. Sam. Sharpe. It is said he has been promised the farmers united support.

ADS. IN PERIODICALS TURNED TO PURPOSE OF GERMANY'S SPIES.

London, June 14. – The French military authorities have taken an important step with the object of checkmating the operation of enemy spies. General Dubail, the military governor of Paris has issued orders forbidding the sending abroad of newspapers and periodicals containing advertisements. If journals wish to retain their foreign connections it will be necessary for them to have special editions in which advertisements are blocked out. In taking this measure France is following Italy which began to block out advertisements six months ago after the Austro-German offensive.

WARSUMMARY

NEW YORK, June 14. —The Associated Press War summary says: Repulsed in their efforts to reach Compeign and to drive the French back from Montdidier region, the Germans are increasing the weight of their attack north-west of Villerst-Cotterets with the apparent hope of forcing a passage between Villers-Cotterests Forest and the Compeigne Forest and thus overcoming the French resistance east of the Oise. The German offensive west of the Oise is now in its sixth day and the enemy has made slower progress in the present movement than in any of other three thrust carried out since March 21.

RESISTANCE STRONG.

French resistance has been growing stronger as the days have passed. Thursday the Germans, despite heavy attacks against heights position around Mery, were unable to gain and suffered severe losses from the French fire. Along the Oise he has been thrown back across the Matz and his efforts to regain the south of the river has been unavailing. South of the Aisne, on a front of three miles the Germans have pushed back the French about one mile in two days. German official statement make no claim of any gains west of the Oise and report says the situation is unchanged with fighting continuing south-west of Noyon south of the Aisne and south of Ypres.

PETERBOROUGH'S GALA DAY

Just a word if you please, sir.

This is the right time, before Dominion Day, to order your summer suit, two-piece or three-piece as the case may be. Would like to show you our full line of smart materials, imported direct—a better lot of loom patterns than ever had before. The wholesale houses would jump at the chance of buying up every pattern in the house owing to the great scarcity. But we have a duty to perform in protecting our patrons. Buying as we do from "Mill-to-Man," our customers must have the benefit of the savings. It will be to your interest to "Let us tailor your new clothes. BISHOP FALLON'S REPORT.

"During my tour in France I met tens of thousands of Canadians, under all conditions, and I did not see one man under the influence of liquor." This statement by Bishop Fallon on his return to England after visiting the Canadian Corps in France is an emphatic refutation of the slanders that have been circulated, "wholesale charges of drunkenness" Bishop Fallon describes them, against our soldiers overseas. The testimony of His Lordship will be gladly heard in Canada and welcomed as a complete denial, although none was necessary, of the libel against Canadian soldiers. Bishop Fallon points out that the strength of the character of the Canadians in France is evidenced by the fact that although there were facilities for drinking, inns and canteens being at hand, he had not encountered one drunken Canadian soldier in France and only one in England—surely a record to be proud of by the people at home.

THE FIRE LOSSES.

The report of the Insurance committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, presented at the annual convention, calls attention to condition of affairs that all municipal councils should carefully note. Peterborough's aldermen, in view of the revised building by-law at present under consideration, should especially carefully study the report of this committee and its findings in regard to fire losses during the past year when fifty million dollars worth of property was destroyed, largely the result of carelessness and deplorable unpreparedness.

The Manufacturers' committee find among the principal causes of fires are faulty building construction and lack of adequate fire prevention laws, with those that do exist indifferently enforced. The by-law before the City Council, which was blocked at the last meeting, is intended to cover the first of these causes and to do away as far as possible with faulty construction methods. The aldermen may find the following extract from the report of interest.

"Deplorable as is the effect of fire waste upon Canada's domestic affairs, in the present crisis it assumes an immeasurably greater significance. Other countries are to a large extent depending upon Canadian production. Our Governments are making strenuous efforts to stimulate food production and curtail home consumption. Yet practically nothing is being done to protect from destruction by fire that which has been produced. During the three years of 1915, 1916 and 1917, fires have damaged or destroyed no less than 146 grain elevators, 45 flour and grist mills, 59 bakeries and confectionery factories, 23 packing houses and cold storages, 36 canneries and butter and cheese factories, 334 warehouses and storehouses, and 3,746 farm barns. The aggregate value of the food products rendered worthless by these fires exceeds $16,000,000. At a time when the future of Canada and her allies is dependent upon the conservation of every ounce of food and productive energy such waste is of the gravest importance. Not only self-interest but the higher motives of patriotism, imperatively demand that effective measures be immediately taken to prevent fire and its further endangerment of the cause for which are fighting. As President Wilson has truly said, 'Preventable fire is more than private misfortune; it is public dereliction.'

"Your committee, as a result of its careful study of the problem of fire waste, summarizes its conclusions as follows: That the loss of fire is primarily chargeable to:

"(a) Carelessness, due largely from a sense of security created by the present system of fire insurance.

"(b) Faulty building construction.

"(c) Arson.

"(d) Lack of adequate fire prevention laws, such as exist being indifferently enforced.

"(f) That the only possible solution of the national fire waste problem lies in the adoption of compulsory measures which, by reducing to a minimum the fire hazards in all communities and properties, will prevent the occurrence of fires.

"(g) That the cost of fire insurance and fire prevention is, in a large measure, determined by the amount of the fire loss, and cannot be expected to decrease except as the fire waste declines.

"(h) That, owing to the failure of local authorities to deal adequately with the situation, the Provincial Governments should undertake the removal of a burden imposed upon the whole people and should safeguard the lives and property which, in the final analysis, constitute the true wealth of the country."

The aldermen are asked to remember these facts when they vote again on the building by-law.

ABOUT THOSE TITLES.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

We are glad to announce that a Methodist Conference has recently put itself on record for the abolition of titles save for valorous and distinguished service on the field of battle, and at the same time we wish to call attention to one or two rather significant matters in respect to the latest King's birthday honours. It is not too much to state that the large majority of Canadians were deeply disgusted when they picked up last Monday morning's newspapers to see staring at them another list of safety-first honour holders. It is a significant fact that when Sir Robert Borden bulyragged the House of Commons into not passing an anti-honour resolution by threatening to resign, and thus bring on another war time election, which no one desired, he at the same time had full knowledge of the honour list which was to be sprung on the public coincident with the King's birthday. The Premier's warm personal interest in this matter in which he went entirely beyond the realms of decency, was at the time a subject of much wonderment. It is that no longer; the list speaks for itself. George Foster is given another letter to his name, a sort of companion for old age, as it were, and possibly foreshadowing his retirement from public life. Then there is John D. Hazen, who was the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and now Chief Justice of New Brunswick. He got a K.C.M.G., possibly for not kicking up a fuss over being turned out of the Cabinet to make room for the Hon. Mr. Ballantyne.

And then you come to the real milk in the cocoanut. Those entitled to use the initials C.M.G. after their names are, it is to be noted, Austin Ernest Blount and John William Allen. Mr. Blount was formerly a private secretary and general handy man for the Premier, and also, I am informed, his business partner in numerous financial transactions. The John William Borden mentioned is, of course, a brother of the Premier, and he has been dying for his country at Ottawa for a considerable period as accountant and paymaster of the Militia Department.

Thus it is that we see this pest of honours perpetuated in order that Premier Borden may pay some of his private obligations, look after his worn out political hacks, and, of course, take care of brother John.

The Premier, in the course of the honours debate, said something about taking the members of the house into his confidence in respect to this matter. The confidence imposed upon them was apparently not such as would keep them awak o' nights.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With beef so high there is nothing surprising in the announcement that a cow has been killed by an aeroplane.

The method chosen by one veteran British skipper to celebrate his birthday is worthy of note. He marked the day by sinking a German submarine.

Put the name of Commander Luigi Ruzzo, Italian Navy, in your honour roll of allied naval heroes. Commander Ruzzo sank the Austrian battleship Wein six months ago, and Sunday torpedoed an enemy dreadnought.

A quarter of a million Sammies a month are pouring across the Atlantic. The Kaiser is asked to note this fact, as he counts up his losses in the recent fighting.

SATISFACTORY REPORTS.

The returns of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in regard to this year's crops in Canada, are most satisfactory. In spite of the labour difficulties, the figures show that there is an increase of 1,324,950 acres in the land sown to wheat and oats, an increase of nine per cent. over last year. The acreage of wheat, oats, barley and rye is the highest on record for Canada. In the prairie provinces the area sown to wheat totals 15,106,300 acres, as against 13,619,410 acres last year; oats 8,767,000, compared with 3,659,500 last year, and barley 1,845,500, as against 1,850,000 acres in 1917. Nearly all the provinces have materially increased their acreage under spring wheat. The bulletin reports show that the condition of the crops on May 31 was generally better than on the same date last year.

Millbrook Happenings

MILLBROOK, June 12.—The Millbrook Agricultural Society met in the Town Hall on Saturday, June 8, when committees were appointed. The Exhibition, to be held on the first Thursday and Friday in October, will be more attractive than ever.

Mrs. Albert Brown has returned from a pleasant visit with Uxbridge and Orillia friends.

Cadet Lee of the Royal Air Force, was home over Sunday.

Rev. W. H. Higgs returned from the Bay of Quinte conference on Tuesday. He was elected chairman of the Peterborough district. This is an important appointment and we congratulate Mr. Higgs on being chosen for this high office.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles took in the Wardens' excursion to Rochester yesterday and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Williamson.

Bowling Club.

A meeting of the Millbrook Bowling Club was held on Tuesday, June 11, when the following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Dr. Lee.
Pres.—Mr. Root. Devell.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. B. McCririck.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. G. W. Sayles.

Several energetic committees were elected. Next Tuesday skips will be chosen.

Miss Alice Elson of Peterborough, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Elson over the week end.

Mrs. John Steele called on Peterborough friends last week.

Mr. J. H. Walker, of Port Hope, was in town on business Monday.

Mr. Frank Whitehouse of Peterborough, called on his Millbrook friends Friday.

Miss Carrie Trenbeth of Port Hope, is spending a few weeks with her cousin Miss E. F. Gillott.

Mrs. Henry Harcourt of Port Hope, was a guest of her cousin, Mrs. William Mullen, over Sunday.

Miss Helen Wedlock of Peterborough, was a guest of Miss Eva Gillott, on Sunday.

Wounded Three Times.

Sergt. William Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Murney, of South Monaghan, who enlisted three years ago, with the C.C.D.., E. Co., has been wounded three times, once with a ball in the shoulder, once with shrapnel and again with a ball in the neck. He is back again in the trenches. He has been promoted to serjeant and has been awarded the Military Medal for special bravery on the field. We are pleased to learn he was well when the last letter came a few days ago and hope he will be spared to return to his home and friends again.

Mr. Ed. McConnell, of Lindsay, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nattrass.

Messrs. Don Vance, Tom Armstrong and Basil Richards were in Peterborough Tuesday.

Mrs. A Ferguson is visiting friends in Port Hope.

Mr. George Murney of South Monaghan, was in town on Tuesday. Mr. Murney is father of Sergt. W. H. Murney, who has been on active service three years, wounded three times and is back to the trenches again.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ingram and family motored to town on Thursday and were guests of her father, Mr. Richardson, Anne street.

Married—On Wednesday, June 5th, 1918, at the Methodist parsonage, Cavan, by Rev. W. H. Clarke, Lillian Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fair, to Mr. Joseph Henry Earle of Ida.

The Late Jane Faills.

On Sunday, June 2nd there passed away at the home of Reeve A. J. Henderson, Faills Line, Cavan, a most highly respected lady, in the person of Jane Faills.

Deceased was in her 86th year and was one of the best beloved women of the township of Cavan. Her Christian character won the hearts of all her friends. She is an aunt of Reeve Henderson and he and Mrs. Henderson were to her all that a true son and daughter could be to a mother.

The funeral to Gardiner's cemetery on Tuesday, June 4th, was very largely attended. Rev. W. H. Higgs conducted the services. He referred to the many excellent qualities of mind and heart of deceased lady.

Two Aviators Killed When Machine Collapsed

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 14. — Captain E. Pearson and Lieut. Rousseau, French aviators, flying from France to Hounslow, England, were killed when their machine collapsed within two hundred yards of the landing station it was announced to-day.

It is presumed that the two fliers were engaged in the mail service between Paris and London, which was inaugurated a few days ago. Hounslow is a suburb of London.

Regular Meeting Of Lakefield Council

There were present, Rev Moore and Councillors Young, Porter, Smith and McDonald.

The following accounts were presented by the Finance Committee:

A. G. Clysdale, tile	$5.40
Sam McConkey, hay	36.46
James Morrison, wages	45.00
Robert Graham, wages	34.00
John Charlton, plank	2.50
Lakefield Elec. Light Co., light	62.05
F. J. Moore and Son, 1mth pumping	10.00
	$195.41

It was moved, seconded and carried —to ask the Electric Light Company to furnish power for lights an hour earlier in the evening than they have been doing.

Councillor Smith gave notice that at the next regular meeting of the council that he would move that a special tax to pay for street watering be imposed on all property along the streets enjoying watering privileges.

Registration Notes

The meeting of Tuesday night at the Collegiate Hall brought together a remarkable fine gathering of people, earnest, capable and ready to do the very best to make the national work of registration a success. The hall was well filled with the deputies and assistant deputies. A general review of the size and character of the work as a whole and the feature of responsibility developing on the workers, was given by the registrar. Following a detailed statement of information, anticipating many questions that would have been asked, while falling in some respects short of what it could have been the meeting was instructive and illuminating, to those assisting in the work.

Can it be impressed on all to endeavour to register in advance of Saturday. Do not postpone the duty. There will be enough to do on that day. Make use of the public places for registration to any extent. Those who prefer to register among their own church people will find in the several Sunday schools competent people to attend to the detail. Others who wish to go to the day schools will make each its own registration. The Public Library, the Salvation Army Temple, St. Peter's T.A.S., and very many such places are open for use.

Some doubt has been expressed as to the keeping open on the afternoons of the week. That particular time will be made use of where the attendance of persons to register will warrant. If the people are coming forward in the afternoon, then the deputy in charge will have the place open and be on hand. If not then there is little use sitting there if people do not come. But in the evenings always.

Do not, if on going to a place and finding it thronged with a waiting list, stay and add to the line. People get impatient at delays. Go to some other adjacent place and register. All are at your service. Register in Keene, if you prefer.

Bear in mind that people who may find that they cannot be brought to a place to register or who are infirm, or ill can have the matter attended to at their homes. Make the fact known to the nearest deputy and it will be attended to. If a vehicle has to be provided to take the assistant deputy to and from the house, the friends will provide. If near at hand vehicle will not be needed. However a little good sense will work the matter out to the convenience of all concerned.

Soldiers in uniform, who are on active service, that is men not discharged, will not be required to register. Men out of service, and discharged will register.

Supplies and cards are ready for giving out. Parcels to the country have been dispatched. Deputies in the city are asked to call for parcels. In the case of ladies, who are deputies the parcels will be sent to the homes and a receipt taken. 'Phone 261, as to your wishes. The registrar would prefer to see the deputies, if at all possible, in case any last instruction or informaton is desired.

CANADIAN BILL BRINGS $582.00

Down in New York the other day, Mr. R. G. Long (Bob Long) President of the R. G. Long & Co., Ltd., Toronto, was walking along Broadway and stopped to listen to a man on the corner who was auctioning off whatever passers-by gave him for the benefit of the Red Cross. Mr. Long handed up a $5 Canadian note to the auctioneer, and said: "See what you can get for this." A ring taken from a dead German's finger had previously brought $200, and when when the auctioneer had a bid of $300 for Mr. Long's Canadian five dollar note, he said: "You gave me $300 for a dirty, lousy German ring, and you only offer $300 for a piece of good real Canadian money. I'm ashamed of you!" The Canadian five dollar note finally brought $532.00.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ITALIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY WILL HOLD A TAG DAY

Local Association is Called Upon For a Great Deal of War Work—A Large Representation

There is not an Italian family in the city that is not represented in the Italian army fighting for the allies, is a statement made by one of the prominent Italian residents in the city. Due to this fact the call upon them for Red Cross Work has been very heavy, and it has been done in a quiet way unobserved by the public in any manner.

The call has been so great that the local Italian Red Cross Committee is preparing to hold a tag day for the purpose of realizing some funds with which to assist in carrying on their work. They have never been before the public in any way heretofore and as the Italian residents are not people of means they ask the sympathy and assistance of the public of Peterboro and district to help them on their Tag Day, which will be held on Saturday, July 13th.

POPE COMPLAINS HE IS MISJUDGED

Asserts Enemies of Religion Are Making Calumnious Attacks on Him

ROME, June 14.—The Osservatore Romano, the Vaticana organ, publishes a Papal autograph sent in answer to an address received by the Pontiff from the Episcopacy of Lombardy.

The Pope complains of the sad period the world is going through, and also of attacks from "the enemies of religion to the supremest authority, Jesus Christ." He adds that he is greatly afflicted "not only by the indescribable horrors of this war, which, without parallel in the history of the world, threatens to drag poor Europe to the bottom of an abyss, but also by an insidious and skilful campaign of calumnies and hatred against the person of the Pontiff and his work."

The Pope, in a recapitulation of his action since the beginning of the war, says that his efforts to bring about peace have been misjudged and misinterpreted; even his silence about this or that crime being calumniously interpreted, his critics not admitting that "in the present uncertainty of this blaze of passions, it is impossible to inflict condemnation for each crime, while all are included in a condemnation pronounced according to the general principle."

The Pontiff regrets that such a campaign has been conducted also against the clergy and Catholics, thus spreading the seeds of discord among various classes. The autograph ends with a protest announcing the campaign, not only to the faithful, but all honest people, wherever they happen to be, and a reaffirmation that it is the Pope's duty to defend the sanctity of honour of the church.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

June 16, 1918.

Jesus on the Cross—Mark 15:1-47.

Golden Text: Truly this man was the Son of God. Mark 15:39.

1. Verse 1-5. Pilate was the Roman governor; why then did the Jewish Council send Jesus to him?

2. Why did Jesus refuse to answer to Pilate the false accusations which the chief magistrates had brought against him?

3. Verses 6-15. What would you say was Pilate's estimate of Christ, and of his accusers?

4. What reason is there to believe that if the people had been left to themselves, without the urging of the chief priests, that they would have asked for the release of Jesus and not Barabbas?

5. Verses 6-15. How do you estimate the character of Pilate?

6. Verses 16-20. How do you account for the cruelty of these soldiers to Jesus?

7. Verse 21. At about what stage of the journey to the place of crucifixion did they compel Simon the Cyrenian to carry Jesus' cross, and why was it done? (See John 19:17.)

8. Verses 22, 23. What is known, or said, concerning Golgotha?

9. Verse 24. What was the method adopted, or the various steps taken in the actual crucifixion of Jesus?

10. Verse 25. What hour was the third hour? and what was the difference between the Roman and the Jewish custom of reckoning time?

11. Verse 20. What inscription does Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, say was over the cross of Jesus, and how do you harmonize the variations?

12. Verse 26. Why did Pilate place this inscription over Jesus, and what significance is it to us?

13. Verse 27. What conversation took place between the two thieves and Jesus? (See Luke 23:39-43.)

14. Why would you infer or not from the fact that the penitent thief was saved in the hour of death, that any sinner may be saved in like manner?

15. Verse 28. What is the significance to us, that Christ made common cause with us sinners?

16. Verses 29-32. What is the degree of guilt of those that taunt a dying man, no matter what his character?

17. Why would you say or not, that these priests thought they were pleasing God in crucifying Jesus? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

18. Verses 33-35. Had God actually forsaken Jesus, or was it the agony that made Jesus think so? Give your reasons.

19. Verses 36-39. Did Jesus die from the effects of the crucifixion, or did his spirit voluntarily leave the body before physical death took place?

20. Verses 40-47. Why is it that the majority of Christ's followers seem to have been women?

21. Who was Joseph of Arimathea, and what can you say concerning him?

PAPERS DEMAND INTO FULL FORCE AFTER MONDAY NEXT.

Starting on Monday next, the Order-in-Council, with respect to all men of military age being compelled to carry documents showing why they are not in uniform, will be rigidly enforced by the military, Dominion and civil police.

The Order became effective on June 1 last, but instructions were sent out from Ottawa not to enforce the regulations too strictly until after June 15.

The reason for deferring action until June 15 was to permit all men in the 19-year-old call to register, the time limit for registration for these men having been extended from June 1 to June 15.

A certain number of men are being approached daily and requested to show their papers, but after Sunday the campaign will be carried out on an extensive scale.

Mr. T. H. Graham Was Elected Moderator Of The Baptist Association For The New Year

Prominent Layman of Gilmour Church Honoured—Association Pleased With Government's Action in Appointing a Day of Prayer and Urges People to Observe It.

THE CLOSING BUSINESS

PETERBOROUGH BAPTIST ASSOCIATION URGES PEOPLE TO OBSERVE DAY OF PRAYER.

Resolved, That we express our hearty appreciation of the act of the Government in setting apart Sunday, June 30th, as a day of humiliation and prayer, and that we urge upon all of our people the desirability of a most earnest response to this proclamation; and that we ask every member of the churches and congregations in our Association to be found on that day in the House of God, that our Lord may see that we repent of our evil ways, and that He may turn us to His way that victory and peace soon may be our portion.

The above resolution adopted at the closing session of the Peterboro Baptist Association yesterday afternoon, expressed the satisfaction of the delegates with the government's iniative in designating a day of public prayer It was proposed by Rev. J. R. Webb, and immediately received the heartie. approval of the meeting. The government's action it was stated should evoke a unanimous response from the people, and the hope was expressed that June 30th would prove to be a memorable day.

NOMINATING COMMITEE REPORT.

The report of the Nominating Committee, presented by Rev. Mr. Galt, was adopted as follows:

Moderator: Mr. T. H. Graham, of Gilmour Memorial Church.
Clerk: Rev. Benj. Davies, Lakefield
Assit. Clerk: Rev. J. E. Pettit, of Brighton.
Preacher of Annual Sermon: Rev. W. Harris Wallace, of Belleville.
Alternate Preacher: Rev. B. Davies.
Representatives to Boards—
Home Missions: Rev. J. R. Webb
Foreign Missions: Rev. D. Brown.
Western Missions: Rev W. F. Spidell, of Port Hope.
Grande Ligne: Rev. J. B. McCormack.
B.Y.P.U.: Rev. P. H. Roberts.
Sunday Schools: Rev John Galt.
Home Missions Committee: Rev W. F. Spidell, (Dr.) W. D. Scott, Rev. John Galt, Mr. L. J. Pettit, Mr. O. S. Matchett.
Executive: Mr T. H. Graham, Rev B. Davies, Rev. D. Brown, Mr. Wm Garbutt and the pastor of the inviting church.

THE NEW MODERATOR.

Mr. T. H. Graham, who succeeds Rev. Dougald Brown, as Moderator of the Association, is a prominent member of the Gilmour Memorial church. When formally introduced to the meeting yesterday afternoon he stated that his election came as a great surprise to him. He hesitated to accept the responsibility, he said, but promised to give his best efforts to merit the confidence of the Association.

OBITUARY REPORT.

The obituary read by Rev. J. R. Webb recorded the following deaths during the past year:

Gilmour Church: Deacon Robert Darling, Mary Jane Young, Mrs. G. W. Mann.
Lakefield Church: Mr. Emmanuel Sweeting.
Park Street Church: Private Peace and Private John Jinks, killed in action.
Murray Street Church: Deacon Porter White, Mrs. J. B. Hunter, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, Sr.
Belleville: Mr. Prest.
Port Hope: M. Hausman, Mrs. R. J. Edwards and Mrs. John Mitchell.

NEW PASTORS INTRODUCED.

The following new pastors were introduced to the Association yesterday afternoon: Rev. B. Davies of Lakefield; Rev. John Pettit of Cramahe; Rev. A. H. Metcalfe of Haldimand; Rev. W. H. Wallace, of Belleville; and Pastor Upham, of Sydney.

RESOLUTIONS.

Rev. B. Davies presented the report of the Committee on Resolutions, which was adopted as follows:

Resolved,—That we record our unqualified admiration for the new feature on our Association programme, viz., the Conference or denominational objects this year which, lead by Rev. Mr. Schutt, proved to be both educative and impressive.

Resolved,—That we strongly recommend to the prayerful consideration and generous support of our people all our various missionary boards —also our church edifice society, ministerial superannuation, and the publication department, including the Canadian Baptist, and the recent movement re denominational literature, which we believe will prove of great value.

OPEN DEACONSHIP TO WOMEN.

Resolved, — That this Association heartily endorse the suggestion, that in this time of war, when many ministerial students have gone overseas, and some churches are left pastorless, that the Home Mission Board use their judgment in engaging qualified ladies as deaconesses under some pastoral oversight to aid in meeting the difficulty from the present situation.

Resolved,—That we record our deep sense of the loss sustained by our denomination in the recent passing of Prof. Thomas Trotter of McMaster University, who has performed illustrious and most important service both in the pastorate and in the University, and one who has left us a precious memory of great devotion and sweetness of spirit.

Commendation of Prohibition.

Resolved,—That the work of the Government in passing Dominion-wide prohibition, even as a war measure, has afforded us delight and satisfaction, and that we hope that the forces of righteousness will prevent, in the future, the re-establishmen of the liquor traffic in our land.

Pledge of Loyalty.

Resolved,—That this association places on record its deepening consciousness of the tremendous sacrifices that our Empire, Canada included, is called upon to make in this titanic struggle for the freedom of the world, and that we pledge ourselves, as loyal citizens, to do our utmost to support our national leaders in supplying men and means to fight the ruthless foe.

Thanks to Gilmour Church.

Resolved,—That the delegates and visitors to this Association desire to express their great appreciation and deep gratitude to the pastor and members of this historic Gilmour Memorial Church for their unbounded hospitality, their unfailing thoughtfulness and their unwearied kindness to see who have attended our sessions; to the choir for their splendid music, to the ladies who have provided the sumptuous meals, and to those who opened their homes to receive us, we offer our heartfelt thanks, praying the Master's blessing to abide upon both pastor and people.

Grateful to Murray Street.

The delegates heartily endorsed the resolution in which Gilmour Church conveyed its thanks to Murray Street Church for generously providing motor transportation from and to the city, and for the reception of the visitors when they reached Peterborough.

The Association approved a resolution by Rev. Mr. Webb that an allowance of $10 be provided henceforth for the clerk's expenses.

Appreciation of Moderator.

Rev. J. R. Webb moved, seconded by Rev. W. H. Wallace, a resolution, expressing to Rev. Mr. Brown the Association's appreciation of the manner in which he had conducted the sessions, their success having been largely due to his guidance as Moderator.

A vote of thanks was tendered the "Examiner," on a motion by Rev. Mr. Galt, seconded by Rev. B. Davies.

In the Church letters, Wicklow Church, Haldimand invited the Association to hold the next annual meeting there, and, on motion, the question of the 1919 meeting was referred to the special committee.

The Convention Plan of Finance.

The J. S. Knapman Case Went To The Jury At One O'clock

Two Able Addresses By Crown Attorney Hatton and Mr. Gordon For the Defence — Additional Evidence.

MONEY DISAPPEARED

At 3.25 this afternoon the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the Knapman case.

The trial of J. S. Knapman on the charge of theft was continued this morning before His Honour Judge Huycke, in the County Court. In his address to the jury Mr. Gordon, counsel for the defence, made a resume of the evidence which had been given. He said that Knapman had invested $400 of his own money in the business, besides one week's wages at a time when there was not enough cash on hand to pay the men. This he afterwards withdrew after the money on hand was adequate. In the period that Knapman worked for Lytle over $26,000 passed through the hands of a man who was not a bookkeeper. The figures given in this Court show that for most of the months the cartage business was going behind, and therefore Lytle's statement is absolutely wrong. The company was absolutely and unquestionably bankrupt and insolvent up to the end of July. There is no suggestion for one moment that the entries in the automobile book are wrong. This is borne out by Mr. W. R. Morris, who, perhaps, is one of the best chartered accountants in this part of the province.

Mr. H. P. Lindsay had three to do this work that J. S. Knapman was called to do alone. He (Lytle) was careless, he was neglectful, and moneys were lost, and God only knows where this money went to. Both Fleming and Morris, accountants, said there was not a false statement in any of the books. If a man wants to cook his accounts he makes false entries; anybody will tell you that. It has been proved that Lytle has a very defective memory. Would you rely on the testimony of a man whose memory is so at fault, and assume to connect a man and blast and blight his whole life for the future? The prisoner at the bar is entitled to every reasonable doubt. The liberty and future of John S. Knapman is in your hands, and I ask you to give him fair and honest treatment.

Mr. Hatton's Address.

The address to the jury by Crown Attorney Hatton for the prosecution was based on the accounting of the books. The money had been received by Knapman, but it had totally disappeared. No matter where the money went to, it was put in the hands of Knapman, and he was fully responsible. Every time Knapman lent money to McCabe on an I.O.U. he was guilty of theft, because it says in that part of the Criminal Code that if you deprive a man temporarily or absolutely of his own property you are guilty of theft. The former bookkeeper, R. O. Quartermaine, was rather slow but methodical, and, besides, he was not well. He could do all the work and keep the books posted. He had a cash balance when it was handed over to Knapman. Yet Knapman, who pleaded for more help, suggested to Lytle that he take over the motor license business, and he volunteered to do that besides. He said he hadn't time to post the disbursements in the cash book, yet he made vouchers out for them, which would take just as long and intended to post them afterwards which would therefore take twice as long. I regret to say that you can come to but one conclusion, that the accused is guilty.

The Judge, in addressing the jury said the case was very complicated and peculiar.

"I am especially glad in this case that the responsibility of decision is taken off my shoulders and given to a jury," said His Honour.

At one o'clock the jury retired.

Mr. David V. Fleming an employee of the Lytle Cartage Co., said he had looked over the books of the company and could not find that Knapman had ever left anything out or made a false entry. Further, he did not find any license money going into the cartage part of the business.

Mr. Joseph Kelly, accountant of the Royal Bank, was the next witness called and showed that one of the checks which was cashed by Mr Knapman from the A. W. Clysdale account had a corresponding deposit slip to the credit of the auto license account. The amount of the check was $ 25. He thinks that there are deposit slips for the other three checks also, but is not certain.

Compared in Books.

Robert H. Fortye, an experienced accountant for a period of 25 years and who instituted the bookkeeping system of the cartage business, stated that he spoke about the automobile book on two or three occasions to Mr. Lytle. This was around the sixth of July. He checked the automobile book with the government statement and found that everything was correct except one little discrepancy of $5.00. He then compared the Royal Bank book with the government statement and found a shortage of deposits of $3,400. He asked Mr Knapman about it. The latter said that it must have gone into the business as he could not understand where it had gone. Mr. Lytle soon afterwards said he was going to Toronto and wanted $500 to pay to the government, but Knapman said to wait two days and he would get the money for him.

"Where will you get the money," said Lytle.

"From Mr. Gordon," replied Knapman.

Cashed Pay Checks.

Daniel McCabe, the tobacconist at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, said he was in the habit of obtaining at the bank from $2,700 to $3,000 four times a week to cash the checks of the employees of the C.G.E. and the Cordage Co., but sometimes he would run out of money and would go to Lytle's office as it was in the same building, and get all the large bills available and give his I.O.U. for the amount. He would usually repay by cheque the next morning to Knapman. These four cheques made out by A. W. Clysdale were cheques for this purpose. He informed the court that everything was above board and that he thought that Mr. Lytle knew of these transactions.

"Stolen Money."

"I didn't think I was receiving stolen money," concluded Mr. McCabe.

Bert Cook, a lad of about seventeen years of age, had ben employed by Lytle to collect the freight bills. These he had always entered in the book provided for the purpose. He had been hired before Mr. Knapman and had left the employ of Mr. Lytle before Mr. Knapman came.

Mr. H. P. Lindsay has the agency this year for the motor licenses. He said one man could not take charge of the licenses. He employed three for this purpose alone for most of the time.

"How large was your former office," asked Mr. Hatton.

"About as big as some lawyer's office," laughing interjected Mr. Gordon.

"Was Mr. Gordon ever in your office." This to witness by Mr. Hatton.

"No."

"Then you do not know whether he could get in or out," said Mr. Hatton to the amusement of the court.

Two Licenses Missing.

The next witness was Robert Davidson, an employee of the Peterborough Cereal Co. He had bought a license from Knapman and while in Lytle's office he heard Knapman ask Lytle where two licenses were and if he had issued them, why he had not made the entry in the book and where was the money. Mr. Lytle said that he had overlooked putting it in the book, but said nothing about the money. Mr. Davidson confessed to Mr. Hatton that Knapman came to him afterwards and asked him if he remembered the incident.

The accused, John Knapman, was then put in the witness box. He said he had been employed by Mr. Lytle about the first of October, 1916, as a bookkeeper, although he had never been a bookkeeper before. There was considerable work in the office, he stated. One time he told Mr. Lytle that he would have to provide better accommodation because somebody was always in the office and he could not properly attend to his work. Every application and daily report had to be initialled by Lytle, and because Lytle failed to do this sometimes, the applications lay around the office and the daily report was not sent in. Contrary to Mr. Lytle's evidence, Mr. Knapman said he always went to lunch sharp at twelve and that either Bert Cook or a man by the name of Robinson was in charge at this time. He said he made out the pay roll every Saturday.

Nothing to Show.

"If a freight bill is lost or misplaced is there any voucher to show it?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"No, there is not," answered the witness.

He further said that he always deposited the license money on the same day in the bank which it was received.

"I know that I never touched cents of Mr. Lytle's money, and whatever was behind in license money went into the cartage business," was one of the witnesse's statements. At one point it had got so busy that the two accounts (license and cartage) had become mixed up and after making change from one account to another, they did not know which was which.

"I spoke to Mr. Lytle and told him we had better get everything straightened up." There were about 20 licenses on the premises waiting for Lytle to initial and which therefore had to wait. One day Lytle said to Knapman that Bickell, from the department, was coming and that he had better make things look as good as possble and "we" will fix everything afterwards.

Cash Not Balanced.

The cash was not balanced for a long, long time; it was impossible to balance it because there was only one side to the book. If money was taken for street car etc., a voucher was put in the till. If any of these were lost I would be responsible. One time there was not sufficient money to pay the wages and he took some money out of his own pocket and did not take his own wages. He drew the whole amount later, however.

"I certainly was wrought up when I saw the condition things were in. I told Lytle that I felt the responsibility and that I would see him through. We drew up an agreement and I told Lytle that if he could show me that I was liable I would pay for it, although I had not touched a cent of his money."

The Agreement.

The agreement which was drawn up in legal form and signed by Lytle and Knapman was to the effect that Knapman was to pay Lytle $500 and that if an audit of the books showed everything all right the money was to be handed back. And if there was a further shortage he would be bound by it. Mr. Fleming and he then started to audit the books, but Lytle frequently interrupted them and one time said he would smash his (Knapman's face.)

"I never made a false entry to my knowledge," said Knapman.

He states that he told Lytle that he license and cartage money was mixed. Mr. Lytle had an exceptionally poor memory. One one occasion he found a motor license with a ten dollar bill attached to it three weeks after it had been made out. "And yet I was responsible," stated Mr. Knapman.

"Where do you think this money is or what has become of it," asked Mr. Gordon.

"I think it can be traced to freight bills or possibly I.O.U.'s or perhaps the money was stolen right out of the safe. The safe has been left unlocked many times."

At the evening session of the court the cash book of Lytle was carefully checked up with the report of Mr. Morris and the report confirmed.

William Menies, late foreman of the Peterborough Planing Mills, said that the accounts with the W. H. Lytle Co. were all collected personally by Mr. W. H. Lytle.

Two witnesses of character, namely, Mr. E. A. Peck and Dr. Scott, were brought up by the defence. They both said that they always considered that Knapman had a very good reputation, having both known him for a great many years. Each declared that he did not think that Knapman would commit such an offence knowingly.

This concluded the evidence both for the prosecution and the defence, and the court was adjorned until ten o'clock this morning.

MR. T. H. GRAHAM WAS ELECTED, ETC.

Cameron, B.A., of Toronto; Rev. J. R. Webb, of Peterborough; Chancellor McCrimmon, of McMaster University, and C. R. Sayer, of Toronto, brought out many interesting topics touching the financial side of the Church, and indirectly its relation to the general work.

All Belongs to God.

Representatives of churches that had put into operation the budget plan of finance, all declared that it had resulted in greater offerings, and, moreover, it had brought a marked spiritual revival in some of the congregations. Rev. Mr. Schutt's statement that men should be guided by a realization that "all we have and are, are His," and that it is only a question after all of how much of the Lord's money we may retain for our own needs, expressed the conviction of the delegates.

Permanency in a Church's financial system, Rev. Mr. Galt declared, would be hastened and secured by beginning with the children. When children receive a regular allowance they should come under the canvass.

Material Reward?

A thoughtful and succinct answer was given to the question, "Do you think that God prospers those who give, if they give with the right spirit and motive?" as follows: "If you are willing to give, you will have it to give."

Another question was, "Is it worth the expense and trouble to provide envelopes for every small giver and record their gifts?" Mr. Sayer replied, "Recall the episode of the Master and the widow."

Rural Offerings.

"Is the weekly offerings workable in a rural church?" Mr. G. W. Mann answered, "Yes. The farmer used to say, 'I'll pay you when I thresh,' but now they sell cattle and have other sources of revenue, and it comes in regularly." The reply titillated the Association.

The budget plan obviates the necessity of appeals for money, and thereby minimizes pulpit references to financial needs.

Rev. Mr. Schutt stated that it had doubled in one year the missionary offerings of a church in his experience.

Incidentally Chancellor McCrimmon remarked that the salaries of ministers to-day were a crying shame.

Rev. J. R. Webb, speaking to another question, suggested that ten times as much heed was given to Christians giving as to the teaching regarding baptism.

Special Appeals.

The practice of making special calls for temperance, Lord's Day and other causes was briefly discussed, and it was remarked that these often get larger contributions by their sentimental appeal, than regular departments of the Church; and the Church is held responsible for its own obligations.

On the topic of titles, Mr. Sayer remarked that the Jews gave thirty per cent. of their first fruits. They didn't want to see how the crops would turn out.

By "term offerings," Chancellor McCrimmon said, those who were not giving regularly through the duplex envelope system had an opportunty to contribute.

Rev. Mr. Webb related the details of the plan used at Murray Street Church in preparation for the "every member canvass," as a result of which more than 90 per cent. adopted the duplex envelope.

PETERBORO' MAN PAYS $350 FOR RETRIEVER DOG

NIAGARA FALLS, June 13.—Constable W. A. Jones, the city police force, has sold his English Retriever dog, Rex, to H. E. Wolfe, of Peterborough for $350. Rex was presented to Constable Jones when a pup, two years ago, by Senator E. D. Smith, who imported the dog's father and mother from England. They cost him $1,600. Rex was as good as a policeman. Though only two years of age he would do the beat at night with his master, trying the doors on one side of the street while Constable Jones looked after his own side.

The officer sold the dog reluctantly because of the new by-law here which make people tie up their dogs at home from May to November.

WILL SETTLE DOWN.

PITTSBURG, June 14. — W. M. Davis, 98 years old, has decided to settle down after crossing the continent 20 times, and is determined to fight off the wanderlust which has kept him on the move for nearly a century. "I'm going to pass the rest of my days here," said Davis, "unless the old roving spirit should be too strong." The aged wanderer says he well remembers when New York's gay white way was lighted with oil lamps and New Yorkers kept pigs and chickens in their back yards.

LOCAL MAN IS BEREAVED.

Mr. Jabez Carr, 541 Elm Street, received word this morning of the death of his sister, Mrs. William Clemens. The deceased resided at Mount Stephen, near Orillia.

Forecast A Coal Crisis In The Western Towns

Railway War Board Issues a Statement Showing Most Serious Situation —Miners Are Loading Only a Fraction of the Supply of Cars Available to Them

SITUATION CANNOT BE EXAGGERATED

MONTREAL, June 15.—Women freezing in the hearts of Canadian Western cities and towns, families deserting their houses to go and huddle in cramped quarters with those who happen to have a little coal, closed schools, office buildings and even hospitals, and possible epidemics of pneumonia and influenza, are foreshadowed in a statement issued by the Canadian Railway War Board.

"This board cannot possibly exaggerate the gravity of the Western fuel situation," said Secretary W. M. Neal. "Only the seriousness of the situation prompts the board to issue what may be termed an alarming statement.

"Canada's coal supply from foreign mines will be curtailed this year. The West will find itself compelled to use Western coal. And to obtain that Western coal it might be ordered now and moved now.

"In the fall every east-bound car from the foot of the Rockies to Winnipeg will be required for crop movement. The Western coal, if it does not start to move until then, will compete for cars with the wheat movement—a movement vital to the Allies and to our own fighting men.

A Solution Necessary.

"To-day cars are plentiful and operating conditions are comparatively easy. The railways, under the direction of the Canadian Railway War Board, are prepared to move the greater part of next winter's supply now, but we find that the mines are loading only a fraction of the supply of cars available to them.

"A solution must be found promptly. Last winter the railways were able to help out the public by supplying coal from their own coal reserves. Next winter that will not be possible; the roads depleted their reserves last winter and will be unable to spare coal again. Neither will any last minute suupply from the east be available. Somehow, somewhere, the people of Western Canada must find a solution for their present difficulty and get the coal moving from their domestic mines to their cellars. Some towns are getting together to finance next winter's fuel bill for their people. Some of the mines are taking special measures to increase production and loading. These examples must be followed and enlarged upon if the West is to be saved from distress, if not disaster, next winter."

Competitions For Peterborough County Boys And Girls

Peterborough Banks Will Lend a Helping Hand—Effort Aims at Increasing Interest in Live Stock

LIBERAL PRIZES OFFERED

Through the action of the Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. T. A. Crerar, arrangements have again been made to have the Canadian Bankers' Association continue with the Department of Agriculture in providing a liberal sum of money to be offered in prizes for calves and pigs exhibited by boys or girls under 17 years of age, at one fair in each district—either a County, Township or School Fair.

INCREASE INTEREST IN LIVE STOCK.

These competitions are known as the "Canadian Bankers' Competition," and are linked up with the activities of the live stock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. They represent an effort to increase interest in live stock and constitute a part of the active campaign for more and better stock inaugurated and carried on by that Department. The generous support accorded to the movement by the Canadian Bankers' Association, affords a practical demonstration of the attitude of the banks towards the live stock industry and active participation of the association in this campaign is bound to strengthen and create general interest in farm live stock.

ANIMALS MUST BE FED FOR SIX WEEKS.

A Canadian Bankers' Competition will be held at a large number of shows his year, including Peterboro, and the boys and girls should lose no time in finding out all about them. The calves and pigs must be fed at least six weeks by the boys and girls who exhibit them, so that it is very important to act promptly in securing a copy of the rules and other information.

Full information regarding the competition can be obtained from the manager of any branch bank in Peterboro.

Miss M. Dickson President Of The Presbyterial W.M.S.

NORWOOD.—The fourth annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial W. M. S. was held in the Norwood Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 4th and 5th.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Rogers, Peterborough, and Mrs. Craick, Port Hope.

Pres.—Miss M. Dickson, Peterborough.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. McPherson, Peterborough.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. W. Rork, Norwood.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. N. McDougall, Lakeport.

4th Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Bremner, Cobourg.

Treasurer—Mrs. Herbert Stenson, Peterborough.

Cor. Secretary—Miss A. Erskine, Peterborough.

Rec. Secretary—Miss E. Roberts, Port Hope.

Mission Band Sec.—Miss M. F. Crowe, Havelock.

Strangers' Sec. — Miss Hume, Campbellford.

Home Helpers' Sec.—Mrs. McLeod, Brighton.

Messenger Sec.—Miss Robertson, Campbellford.

Literature Sec.—Misses Cooper, Brighton.

Supply Sec.—Miss Colon, Springville.

Rev. W. J. Rowand, B.A., of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, brought greetings from Presbytery. In his address he laid emphasis on the value of the work of the W.M.S. Their efforts were greatly appreciated by the Church because of its educational work and gifts of money to carry on missionary labours.

Miss A. Erskine presented the Presbyterial report. The treasurer reported that the auxiliaries contributed $4,131.36, Mission Bands $1,239.73, total amount sent to the Presbyterial treasurer $5,372.94. This was followed by abstract reports from auxiliaries and Mission Bands. Mrs. (Rev.) MacLeod stated there were 128 Home Helpers, and the Literature Secretary's report showed that 730 copies of the Missionary Messenger were circulated monthly, an increase of 56 over the previous year.

The President in her address urged that more of the women of the Church should become members of the auxiliaries.

A short memorial service was held for the late president, Mrs. Hugh Waddell, conducted by Mrs. J. McPherson, who paid tribute to Mrs. Waddell's great interest and devotion and love for missionary work. Mrs. McPherson offered prayer.

Miss Colon, of Springville, as Supply Secretary, gave her report: A bale was sent to Round Lake School valued at $67.13. Two missionaries were each supplied with a bale valued at $80.00 and $60.00 respectively, and postal notes to the value of $35.00.

cupy may be used for cabbage, late plantings as the season advances. Every war gardener should make a point of having a continuous supply of fresh vegetables for the table. There should be several successive plantings—one or two weeks apart—of string beans, lettuce, radishes, spinach, sweet corn, peas, beets and carrots.

Onions to be used green may be followed by late tomato plants in the same row. A few of the onions may be removed to make way for the tomatoes. Radishes mature early and as they are harvested the space they occ

Successional plantings must necessarily be left largely to the good judgment of the individual gardener. Weather conditions and the success he meets with in his various crops will largly decide the question for him. The main point to remember is that full use must be made of the ground at his disposal.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain markets continue to give way under pressure of ideal crop weather as the chief bear factor. The strength of the cash situation encourages the bulls to hold on to some extent but generally the bear argument prevails. July corn at Chicago dropped another 1 3-8c at the close. July oats were steadier, losing only 1-4c and June unchanged. Winnipeg market dropped 3-8c on oats, option and cash. Cash quotations on the other grains were steady.

Manitoba wheat.—No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c tax, in store, Fort William.

American corn—Not quoted.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 79c to 80c, nominal; No. 3 white, 78c to 79c.

Barley, malting, $1.30 to $1.32.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store Montreal.

CATTLE MARKET

Thursday's cattle market closed the highest market, taking the average of prices for the week through, ever known in the history of the cattle trade in Canada. All previous high records, except for individual prize show cattle, were reached and passed, apparently without difficulty, in view of the keen demand for anything of a little exceptional quality above the average run. Several sales of small lots of extra quality butcher steers and heifers, weighing anything from 1150 to 1300 pounds, went well over the $17 mark, coming very close to the highest record price of $18 ever paid in the Chicago market, which was reached this week for two loads of steers averaging 1427 lbs. Among the top notchers during the week were the straight load of heavy steers about 1300 lbs., fed and sent in by Hugh Clarke of Georgetown, and sold by McDonald & Halligan at $17.15 — the highest record for a straight load. Three steers averaging 1120 lbs., fed by Robert Reid of Alliston, and sold by Dunn & Levack, at $17.25. Two steers weighing 1350 lbs., each sold by Quinn & Hisey at $17.50. A straight load of heavy steers sold by Corbett, Hall & Coughlin Company, at $16.50. Besides the above there were many transactions between $15 and $16 for straight loads and part loads of choice medium weight butcher steers and heifers. Far butcher cows and bulls were equally strong and high in proportion.

Stockers and feeders were market by high prices, the trade necessarily limited owing to so many steers and heifers of the stocker class being taken for butchering.

Calves were strong and 25c to 50c higher.

Calves were strong and 25c to 50c higher.

The one exception to the general rule was the hog market which is weak declining 50c early in the week, making a total decline of about $3.00 in three weeks.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards: Total receipts this week, 366 cars, with 4128 cattle, 1565 calves, 5769 hogs, 1538 sheep and lambs and 797 horses.

Register Ahead of Time Where You Can

16 17 18 19 20 21 22

THERE is good sound advice in the old saying—"Come early and avoid the rush." Come early to the registration booth on Registration Day—but better still—register before Registration Day, if you can.

It is going to tax the powers of deputy registrars to the utmost to handle the crowds on June 22nd. Realizing that to be so, many of these deputies are arranging to take beforehand the registration of any persons who care to present themselves.

The Board urges you to read the papers carefully for news items in regard to prior registration in your locality, and to take advantage of any facilities offered in that connection. Enquire of your employer as to the arrangements in effect for advance registration at the place where you work. He can readily make such arrangements, if he has not already done so.

REMEMBER

That registration ahead of time is valid registration—it is complying fully with the law.

That by so registering you will almost certainly be saving yourself great inconvenience on Registration Day.

That every registration taken beforehand is so much of the job done—so much of the load lifted from the overburdened registrar—so much congestion avoided.

Study your own convenience, aid the Volunteer Deputy, obey the law, and serve Canada, by registering early in the week if you can, or, in any event, early on The Day.

Waited Long for Order.

A German officer was drilling recruits, and had just given them the order: "Quick march!" when he noticed his sweetheart coming across the barrack square.

Forgetting all about the recruits, he entered into conversation with the girl and went away with her.

Six months later the same officer was walking down the main street of the same town when he saw some tattered and tired soldiers approaching him. One of the soldiers, recognizing the officer, went up to him and, saluting, said:

"Please, sir, what about a halt?"

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

WHAT MONEY CAN'T BUY

WHAT MONEY CAN'T BUY.
CHAPTER XCIII.

I had found, in my short married life, that there was one thing money couldn't buy, and that was happiness. Perhaps had I been older, more accustomed to the ways of the world, I should not have laid so much stress upon being loved, but I had been petted all my life. At home, love had been so freely showered upon me, that I took it as a matter of course.

That it was not a matter of course, I was fast learning. And it made me very unhappy.

The days passed in what would have been a round of pleasure, had I had anyone with whom I felt acquainted—someone like Evelyn—to be with when George was away. But the people to whom he introduced me were so much older, or so worldly wise, that I longed for the time when we should leave.

I had taken one trip on Mr. Barry's yacht. Julia Collins was not of the party. I wondered why—and if my going had anything to do with her absence. Unfortunately, I was ill. The sea was rather choppy, and I was unaccustomed to a small boat. I did my best to keep up, but finally had to go into the cabin and lie down. I lay there thinking that George would be cross. Then I wondered if he wouldn't be glad; it would be a reason to leave me at home and take Julia Collins. Soon, however, the illness crowded all else from my mind. I wanted to get back to the hotel more than ever I had wanted anything in my life—or so it seemed to me.

Almost a Quarrel.

George was very patient with me, both on the yacht and until we reached the hotel. Then, unfortunately, and tactlessly, I said something about Julia Collins being a better sailor, and that, of course, he was sorry she hadn't been along, instead of me. Why I said such a thing, I don't know; it just came out of itself.

George was furious.

"I certainly shall wish she were along, if you continue to talk like a child," he said angrily. "For heaven's sake, Helen, try to act like a woman, not like a spoiled child."

"You never do anything to spoil me," I replied. I was still slightly ill, and, consequently, not as careful of my speech as usual.

"No, and I shall not! If your people at home had not been so indulgent, you would have been a more sensible woman. You have much to unlearn, as well as to learn."

"Yes, I must learn to live without love, as long as I live with you. I see that, much, very plainly."

"That's not true."

"It IS true." If you call your spasmodic kindness to me, love, I do not! I would rather you'd be cross and domineering all the time, than to be kind one day and then spoil it by being severe and unkind the next. I never know how to take you—what to do to please you! There! You may hate me for being unladylike, but I am glad I have told you." I burst into a very passion of tears.

Without replying, George called Celeste.

"Your mistress has been very ill. Help her to get to bed at once. She is a bad sailor."

"Oh, madame! The terrible malde-mer! I, too, was sick when I came to America. So sick!" Somehow, her knowing sympathy helped me to pull myself together.

Should I beg my husband's pardon for my outburst? No, I decided; I had only told the truth. I had said things heatedly, but I had said only what had long been in my mind and heart to say. Yet, my courage almost failed me when I looked at his stern, set face. Would he ever forgive me?

"Good night. You are in need of sleep. You will be all right in the morning," and he left me. I had faltered a faint "good night," hoping he would at least kiss me, but he didn't, and I gave myself willingly into Celeste's hands to be made comfortable.

I wondered idly where he had gone, but was still too ill to care very much about anything.

"I said what I thought, for once," I said aloud. "I hope it will do a little good." Yet, in my heart, I was afraid I had only made life harder for myself, and George would do something to show his displeasure with me. He showed his anger either because he was not adept at controlling it, when I caused it, or because he didn't care to take the trouble. Probably the latter.

Monday—A Hard Lesson to Learn.

THE CHINESE THEATRE.

Drama of the Orient Is Quaint and Naive.

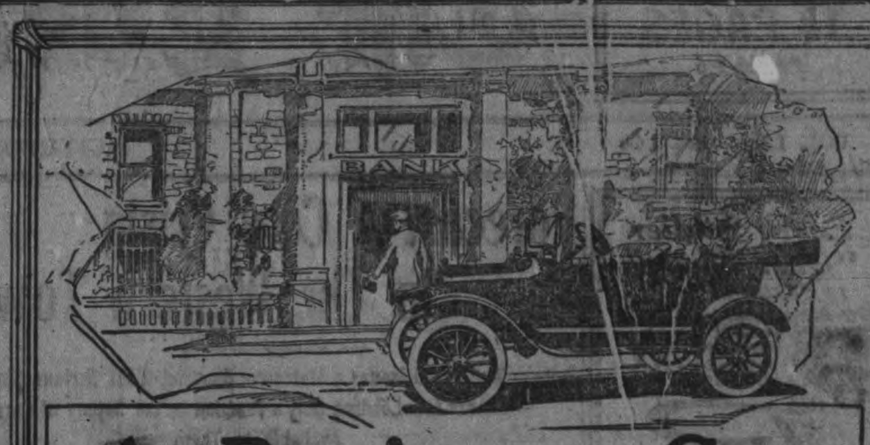
The theatre of the Chinese is one of the most delightfully primitive institutions extant. Too naive to accept change, its real charm seems to lie in its very artificialities and limitations. Looking at Chinese plays, Chinese audiences, Chinese mise-en-scenes, and Chinese actors is like gazing upon some game of make-believe played by histrionically inclined children. A schoolboy's drawing of the blackboard order could hardly be cruder or less true to the object which it professes to represent. There is, for instance, no scenery, as commonly understood, but a conglomeration of stereotyped objects for use as "sets." If the actors desire to represent a mountain, a bed, or a river, they pile up chairs, tables and benches, and lo! the scene is set; if they want to climb that mountain, or sleep in that bed, or swim that river, they have recourse to pantomimic actions which are perfectly understood by the patient and tolerant audience. Whilst Shakespeare at least made a passable effort at creating a sense of illusion with his "properties," the Chinese actor of the twentieth century still relies upon pantomime to represent definite action and meaning. The actor, for instance, seeking to convey the idea that he is on a journey, must prance round the stage like a horse, brandishing a whip!

The performance is usually a 12-hour affair. For that reason the members of the orchestra, as well as the occupants of the best seats, are provided with dishes and eatables in preparation for the long dramatic siege. The typical play itself lives in the past, its interminable plot and counterplots being based on historical fact or legend, and representing the two great divisions of national life, civil and military. The average boy finds the events portrayed in these plays in his school books, and this circumstance may account for the presence of the theatre in nearly every village throughout China. The play is thus standardized like an automobile or a toy. A play must be acted in a certain manner according to its genre. Some are presented in the form of song; others are of the acrobatic order, but both kinds are usually intended to stir the deepest emotions of piety and patriotism in the beholder. The actors must shout, dance and jump, and clash their swords and knives, because the custom of the play prescribes it. The comics must wear masks, and their gestures must be according to rigid etiquette. The actors must always strive to strike effective poses and express pomposity, and, if they can impress their audiences with their adroitness in sword play and spar dances, all the better. No actor ever has much of an "entrance," and there is no curtain. The play will probably open with the appearance of an actor wearing a long, black beard, a gruesome-looking mask, and carrying a bright heavy sword. He will stride to the centre of the stage, deliver some of his lines to the audience and then inform his hearers that he has arrived. For this perfunctory and stilted kind of acting he may enjoy a princely salary. Yet he invariably strikes the foreigner as being somewhat of a mountebank. The fact is that the actors are usually recruited from a class little better than slaves. Few can read or write, or have escaped an early life of cruelty and hardship.

The hope for a modern stage in China that shall be national in character seems to be a long way from realization. A certain type of modern play is performed, it is true, and women troupes have been admitted to the stage; but the cut and dried types, the archaic figures, the old pompous attitudes, the mechanical devices, the absurd "properties," still reign supreme.

A Feline Fisher.

Cats, it is well known, have an absorbing passion for fish of any sort, and will hover about a room plaintively mewing long after the piscine substance has gone and only the smell is left; but it is not equally well known that they are expert anglers. A Hampshire (Eng.) sportsman whose garden borders on a well-stocked stream stated last summer that his cat takes more trout out of it than he does himself. All fish love to bask in the sun, and, taking advantage of this on fine summer days, Mr. Tom lies in ambush for hours together, concealed in the reedy grass bordering some bright pebbly shallow. He needs neither rod nor line; unlimited patience is his sole stock-in-trade. Not a move does he make, his quivering tail merely rustling the slender bents as if stirred with the gentlest southern breeze. Presently there is a splash and a flounder, and a fine fat trout, bursting with condition, comes flapping up to the shallow for its morning sun-bath. For an instant only it lies there contentedly gasping in the soft warm air; but in that instant the four-footed angler has made his spring, and fastened his claws firmly in the fish's shimmering back.



A Business Car

RECOGNIZED in its true light by the Government, the business world, and the individual buyer, the automobile has cast aside the title "Pleasure Car" and is now properly classified as a vehicle of real service—a present day necessity.

The owner not only lengthens his own business day, but he also lengthens his family's living days, thanks to the afternoons and Sundays spent in the Utility Car.

That which increases the busy man's accomplishments in the day, is no luxury.

That which widens your field of business endeavor is a necessity.

That which lengthens the life of every member of your family can well be afforded.

Owning that which saves health, time and money is true economy.

All these things are embodied in the possession of an automobile.

Don't wonder how your neighbor can "afford" a car, but use your sound judgment and ask yourself today "Can I afford to be without one?"

When you have purchased a car you have multiplied your efficiency. You have acquired a personal and business asset. Your selection should be a Ford.

Reroof with Brantford Asphalt Roofing

Don't let a leaky roof damage the wall paper, carpets or furniture in your home, the crops in your barn or the goods in your store. Tear off the old shingles or other worn out roofing material and put on a lasting roof of Brantford Asphalt Roofing.

This roofing is made of a blend of hard and soft asphalts on a long-fibred felt base. By blending the asphalts a roofing of remarkable elasticity is secured—one that is flexible, durable and capable of resisting all kinds of severe climatic extremes.

Brantford Asphalt Roofing is, in addition, surfaced with silicia sand on both sides, which adds to its weight, fire-resistance and durability. You may be offered other sanded roofing, but it will not have the quality of material or weight of saturation of Brantford Asphalt Roofing.

Brantford Ruober Roofing

is the same quality as Brantford Asphalt, but has a smooth, rubbery surface instead of the sand. It is particularly suitable for verandah decks and floor coverings. Three weights:—40 lb., 50 lb., and 60 lb. per square.

Standard Mohawk Roofing

consists of the same grade of materials as Brantford Asphalt Roofing but is lighter in weight—a thoroughly reliable roofing at a low price. Tested for years and has given entire satisfaction. Sanded on one side. One weight—40 lbs. per square.

Mohawk Rubber Roofing

The same quality as Standard Mohawk but with a smooth surface. Used for all classes of temporary work—sheds, bunkhouses, camp sites, even dugouts in the trenches. 35 lb., 45 lb., and 55 lb. weights.

Leatheroid Roofing

Slightly lower quality than Mohawk Rubber. Used for same purposes. 35 lb., 45 lb., and 55 lb. weights.

Samples of any of these roofings and prices will be furnished by either the makers or their agents in this locality.

Taxicab Bandits In Berlin.

Berlin is dealing drastically with the taxicab bandit. A Berlin detective heard a taxicab driver refuse an ordinary journey unless he received a $5 tip. The detective jumped on the seat of the cab to arrest the driver, who threatened to run his machine into a lamppost if the detective did not get off. The latter thereupon drew his revolver and overpowered the driver, but not until they had come to grips and both tumbled into the street. The chauffeur was fined $500.

TRACTOR ON A RUBBER FARM

Machine on 20,000-Acre Sumatra Plantation Does Work That Required Hundreds of Coolies.

The value of the tractor in expediting farm work has been recognized in many ways, but a striking example of its utility as applied to the cultivation of rubber has been shown by the employment of a tractor on a rubber plantation of 20,000 acres in Sumatra, controlled by one of the largest tire manufacturers in this country. In other days, says a writer, it required 40 coolies to plow three acres a day, but by utilizing a tractor 20 acres are now plowed in that time.

At the time the tractor was purchased about 2,000 acres were producing rubber, and consignments from the plantation are now coming to the American factory.

The development of the plantation is due to the recognition by the company that it was necessary to protect the rubber supply back to the tree. It is one of the lessons brought forcibly to the attention of the commercial world due to the wasting without control of raw material supply, back of the source, in case of a disturbance in market and transportation conditions, business would be greatly handicapped.

Effect of War on Birth Rate.

In his recent presidential address to the Royal Statistical society Sir Bernard Mallet declared the United Kingdom has lost by the fall in births during the war more than 500,000 potential lives. During the same period he estimates that Germany has lost 2,000,000 and Hungary 1,500,000. The greater decline in the birth rate in the central empires is ascribed to the fact that the poorer classes in those countries have suffered greatly in health and vigor on account of the war, while the corresponding classes in Great Britain have actually enjoyed more favorable conditions than in time of peace.

"What makes us so high strung?" is the query propounded by a New York psychologist. It must be because we're wrung so often.

It appears that any tavern keeper who sells absinthe in Paris is to have his place closed while the war lasts. But why the limit?

THERE IS NOTHING FOR THE LIVER

SO GOOD AS MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile, act properly on the bowels and tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 58 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful. I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

HUNS HAVE FAITH IN THE PIRATES

Admiral von Capelle Boasts of of Submarine.

SOME RECENT SPEECHES

The Man Who, Under Von Tirpitz, Has Charge of the Ruthless Campaign Makes Some Claims that the Allies Show to be Unfounded, and the Struggle on the Sea Still Goes On.

M. LELGUES, French Minister of the Marine, says the submarine campaign is declining. In actual losses, that is clear. It is evident that the Germans still want their people to have faith in the ruthless campaign. In this connection the delayed despatch from Berlin, giving Admiral von Capelle's latest statement to the Reichstag, deserves attention. He said: "Our naval offensive is stronger to-day than at the beginning of unrestricted submarine warfare. That gives us an assured prospect of final success. The submarine war is developing more and more into a struggle between U-boat action and new construction of ships. Thus far the monthly figures of destruction have continued to be several times as large as those of new construction."

The German Naval Minister cites the latest appeal to British shipyard workers to speed up construction as especially significant. He observes, "according to the latest statements, British shipbuilding fell from 192,000 tons in March to 112,000 tons in April." He also adverts to the failure of the American program. Then he adds this: "In addition to the sinkings by the U-boats, there is a large decline in cargo space owing to maritime losses and ice, ships becoming unseaworthy. One of the best known big British ship owners declared at a meeting of shipping men that the losses of the British merchant fleet through marine accidents, owing to conditions created by the war, were three times as large as in peace."

Since Admiral von Capelle made his speech the Allies have published several statements that contradict his claims. The most important of these is the series of figures that indicated to the world that in the month of April, instead of falling off, the shipbuilding of England was greater than the loss by submarines for the first time in a year. It is now said that although the United States got started very slowly, as the German mentioned with a jeer, that our richest ally will in future more than take care of the shipping losses. Then von Capelle does not mention or deny what the Allies have been announcing of late, that the Germans are losing their submarines more quickly than they can build them.

Babies That Come In Bunches.

Once in every ninety instances the nurse says to the anxiously expectant father, "There's two of them, sir!" or words to that effect.

He ought to be glad and proud. If he feels otherwise, he may fall back upon the consoling reflection that it might have been worse.

Triplets are not so very uncommon. They occur (according to reliable authority) once in 7,910 births. And in every million births three sets of quintuplets are born.

Think of a man's feelings on being informed that his wife has presented him with four-brand-new offspring! But even then, it's philosopher, he will reflect that it might be worse. For quintuplets, though exceedingly rare, are by no means unknown.

Corea May Enrich Jap Iron Industry.

Opening of Northern Corea by the completion of the Seishin Kainei Railway promises to relieve Japan from further anxiety regarding lack of iron ore, coal and lumber. The recently discovered iron mine in Mosan appears to have a vein three miles long over a wide area, with first strata. Its possible output is conservatively estimated by experts at 300,000,000 tons. Most of the territory is already owned by the Mitsubishi company.

Percy Hawn, Sales Manager

That's easy to answer—you want everything that the ingenuity of man has invented; that science could develop, and a Canadian, accustomed to the best, desire.

You want comfort to the point of luxury in riding qualities.

You demand a car that in outward appearance is one you and your family can be proud to be seen in.

You insist on artistic lines in a body that is in accord with the prevailing fashions. Upholstery that feels as easy as it looks—that is as durable as the best.

And withal a finish in details and in the ensemble that looks the part your car is to play in your daily life.

Speed, you desire, equal to any occasion and power equal to any emergency.

All these you may obtain in a motor car and at a price well within your reach—if you but select right.

There's the rub—how to decide, between those who claim everything, which car will fulfill the claims.

For makers are not over-modest. There's no patent on adjectives nor restriction on the use of words.

Every maker claims everything. How is one to decide?

After all, it isn't so difficult. Just observe one rule—accept no claim that hasn't been proven.

You can see and test for yourself most of the qualities you desire in a motor car.

You can compare body lines. You can feel the upholstering. You can determine the quality of finish.

By riding in it you can verify or disprove all claims as to spring suspension, balance and riding qualities.

If you know how to drive any car you can drive it yourself and thereby test the handling and control—steering gear, shift, clutch, brakes, etc.—and responsiveness of motor.

All these are an open book to the man who will read and can interpret.

So after all, you need only accept the word of the salesman for—well, for the most important facts.

These are, the reliability of the car and its gasoline consumption.

And there's where the claims come in—for makers being human, and business being competitive, there is a tendency to claim reliability unlimited—and fuel economy to the vanishing point.

Since this is so, what is the formula for accurate selection of a motor car?

Proofs—that is the only certain way.

Believing that every claim should be susceptible of incontrovertible proof—and believing it to be good business to claim only what we can prove—

We have proven in official test, and before the whole world, those two most elusive but most important qualities—reliability and gasoline economy.

In 44 days and nights running, during which the motor never stopped—the car every minute under the supervision of A. A. A. Officials—the Maxwell proved its wonderful reliability.

That still stands the world's record for reliability—the Official Record.

In that same non-stop test, a standard, stock-model Maxwell covered 22,022 miles at an average speed of 25 miles per hour.

That also is the Official World's long distance record.

Again: The Maxwell Motor Company offered $50,000 in Liberty Bonds to Maxwell owners all over the American Continent—Canada, the U. S. and Mexico—for an economy contest.

More than 3000 Maxwell owners entered—and the average of all those Maxwells was 29.4 miles per gallon of gasoline. (That was for a U. S. standard gallon. Add 20 per cent mileage and you have 35.3 for a Canadian "Imperial Gallon.")

That also stands a world's record for gasoline economy.

And remember, it wasn't the performance of one especially adjusted car, but an average made by more than 3000 Maxwells—1915, 16 and 17 models.

Nor were they driven by factory employees or dealers—the rules specified that only actual owners or members of their families could compete.

So there's one car, in the selection of which you can be sure—absolutely sure.

For what you cannot yourself see and examine and test, has been proven beyond question.

You are invited to see and to ride in and to drive yourself, a Maxwell.

And, having done that—having seen and tested all that can be confirmed in a short time—the official figures of those long-time, long-distance, reliability and economy tests are also available to you.

Then, if you are willing to accept mere verbal assertions in the selection of your car—that is your privilege, of course.

But if you want a car that in official test has proven every claim made for it—that car must be a Maxwell.

Tennessee's Marbles.

Although marble is the most important product of Knoxville, Tenn., there being thirty-five mills and quarries in the city district producing values which have reached $1,000,000 a year, the great variety and value of Tennessee's marble deposits were unknown until 1835. Between that year and 1857 the two large additions of the capitol at Washington, wherein the United States senate and the house of representatives sit, were built of this marble. The beautiful East Tennessee variegated marble is the material of which the desks of the president of the senate and the speaker of the house, as well as the railing of the stairway leading from the first floor of the capitol to the galleries of the house, were built.—Argonaut.

Curious Food Supplies.

Heeding the Paget sound call for food from the deep, a whole regiment of patriotic seals offered themselves for slaughter in the Sea Island, Bering sea, and a large supply of their meat was brought down in January by the United States steamship Roosevelt, for scientific test of its food value, Phil Norton writes in Leslie's. Officers of the bureau of fisheries and new dish connoisseurs at Seattle sampled the seal roast at sundry feasts. It gave them a grand and glorious feeling, they said. It makes the stomach feel slick and efficient. It is better than the meat of the burly whale. It is dark red in color, rich and juicy, stripped of blubber, as good as fine beef, in fact. The north Pacific is full of them. Only three-year-old males are slaughtered. Little pieces of pork are cooked with the seal roast, to give it flavor.

The walrus, adorned with valuable ivory tucks, also is being mobilized. One of these fat and bulky creatures would feed a whole troop of Sammies. "Not so," say Puget sounders; "we'll eat the walrus and send our beef across."

His Method.

Farmer—I axe her, miss.

Sponges.

Sponges very often give shelter to small submarine animals and shellfish, but the boring sponge is fatal to oysters. It attaches itself to their shells and gradually bores its way inside until it kills the oyster.

EVANGELINE'S LAND TO HAVE A SHRINE

A new Mecca is beckoning to devotees of art and religion. Its name is Nova Scotia. Already the artists have made their pilgrimage and returned with charming pictures of Evangeline's Land. A collection of sixty paintings, the work of six New York men, known as the Nova Scotia Group, were exhibited recently in New York and elicited much praise.

The pioneers of Nova Scotia have blazed a trail over which a brush and palette laden army will follow in seasons to come. They will come to paint the gentle beauty of apple-blossoms when the great Annapolis Valley is covered with a fragrant pink and white veil. They will come in cherry-time to paint the rich red fruit and the happy people enjoying the Cherry Festival, a time honored custom. They will come in autumn to transfer to canvas the mad riot of brilliant coloring with which Nature paints the woods and hillsides and when the orchards groan beneath their heavy burdened boughs of ripened apples. They will come at all seasons to picture the quaint fisherfolk and their quainter surroundings.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway that swings you around a half-circle from Halifax to Yarmouth, takes you through a Land of Romance, the Land of Evangeline. At the little station of Grand Pre you will find a wide meadow which is soon to be transformed into a shrine. Here previous to 1775, stood the Roman Catholic Church of St. Charles, the church of the Acadians. To-day a massive stone cross marks the site of the old burying ground that surrounded the church and nearby is Evangeline's Well, with its long sweep.

The French Acadians have always cherished a reverence for this spot and now through the generosity of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company they may call it their own. The railway company has purchased this meadow and will make it into an old-fashioned garden surrounded with a rustic fence and has deeded a portion of the ground to the Societe L'Assomption, composed of French Acadians, of whom the Rev. C. V. Landry of Butoche, N.B., is President. The only consideration for this transfer is the promise of the Societe to erect a chapel. This they are eager to do and plans are now under consideration.

With the dedication of the new shrine, large numbers of French Acadians from Quebec, Montreal and Upper Canadian points will make pilgrimages to Grand Pre similar to those made yearly to Ste. Anne de Beaupre. Their numbers will be swelled by many others who cherish a fondness for the gentle Evangeline and who will be eager to visit the scene of her story and to walk under the ancient willows that still guard this storied spot.

TRACTOR ON A RUBBER FARM

Machine on 20,000-Acre Sumatra Plantation Does Work That Required Hundreds of Coolies.

The value of the tractor in expediting farm work has been recognized in many ways, but a striking example of its utility as applied to the cultivation of rubber has been shown by the employment of a tractor on a rubber plantation of 20,000 acres in Sumatra, controlled by one of the largest tire manufacturers in this country. In former days, says a writer, it required 250 coolies to plow three acres a day, but by utilizing a tractor 20 acres are now plowed in that time.

At the time the tractor was purchased about 2,000 acres were producing rubber, and consignments from the plantation are now coming to the American factory.

The development of the plantation was due to the recognition by the company that it was necessary to protect its rubber supply back to the tree. It was one of the lessons brought forcibly to the attention of the commercial world due to the wartime, within control of raw material supply, back of the source, in case of a disturbance in market and transportation conditions, business would be greatly handicapped.

Effect of War on Birth Rate.

In his recent presidential address to the Royal Statistical society Sir Bernard Mallet declared the United Kingdom has lost by the fall in births during the war more than 500,000 potential lives. During the same period he estimates that Germany has lost 2,600,000 and Hungary 1,500,000. The greater decline in the birth rate in the central empires is ascribed to the fact that the poorer classes in those countries have suffered greatly in health and vigor on account of the war, while the corresponding classes in Great Britain have actually enjoyed more favorable conditions than in time of peace.

"What makes us so high strung?" is the query propounded by a New York psychologist. It must be because we're strung so often.

It appears that any tavern keeper who sells absinthe in Paris is to have his place closed while the war lasts. But why the limit?

THERE IS NOTHING FOR THE LIVER

SO GOOD AS MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels and will tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 53 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful. I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

HUNS HAVE FAITH IN THE PIRATES

Admiral von Capelle Boasts of of Submarine.

SOME RECENT SPEECHES

The Man Who, Under Von Tirpitz, Has Charge of the Ruthless Campaign Makes Some Claims that the Allies Show to be Unfounded, and the Struggle on the Sea Still Goes On.

M. LELGUES, French Minister of the Marine, says the submarine campaign is declining. In actual losses, that is clear. It is evident that the Germans still want their people to have faith in the ruthless campaign. In this connection the delayed despatch from Berlin, giving Admiral von Capelle's latest statement to the Reichstag, deserves attention. He said: "Our naval offensive is stronger to-day than at the beginning of unrestricted submarine warfare. That gives us an assured prospect of final success. The submarine war is developing more and more into a struggle between U-boat action and new construction of ships. Thus far the monthly figures of destruction have continued to be several times as large as those of new construction."

The German Naval Minister cites the latest appeal to British shipyard workers to speed up construction as especially significant. He observes, "according to the latest statements, British shipbuilding fell from 192,000 tons in March to 112,000 tons in April." He also adverts to the failure of the American program. Then he adds this: "In addition to the sinkings by the U-boats, there is a large decline in cargo space owing to maritime losses and to mine becoming unserviceable. One of the best known big British shipowners declared at a meeting of shipping men that the losses of the British merchant fleet through marine accidents, owing to conditions created by the war, were three times as large as in peace."

ADMIRAL VON CAPELLE.

Since Admiral von Capelle made his speech the Allies have published several statements that contradict his claims. The most important of these is the series of figures that indicated to the world that in the month of April, instead of falling off, the shipbuilding of England was greater than the loss by submarines for the first time in a year. It is now said that although the United States got started very slowly, as the German mentioned with a jeer, that our richest ally will in future more than take care of the shipping losses. Then von Capelle does not mention or deny what the Allies have been announcing of late, that the Germans are losing their submarines more quickly than they can build them.

Babies That Come In Bunches.

Once in every ningty instances the nurse says to the anxiously expectant father, "There's two of them, sir!" or words to that effect.

He ought to be glad and proud. If he feels otherwise, he may fall back upon the consoling reflection that it might have been worse.

Triplets are not so very uncommon. They occur (according to reliable authority) once in 7,910 births. And in every million births three sets of quadruplets are born.

Think of a man's feelings on being informed that his wife has presented him with four brand-new offspring. But even then, if a philosopher, he will reflect that it might be worse. For quintuplets, though exceedingly rare, are by no means unknown.

Corea May Enrich Jap Iron Industry.

Opening of Northern Corea by the completion of the Seishin Kainei Railway promises to relieve Japan from further anxiety regarding lack of iron ore, coal and lumber. The recently discovered iron mine in Mosan appears to have a vein three miles long over a wide area, with first strata. Its possible output is conservatively estimated by experts at 300,000,000 tons. Most of the territory is already owned by the Mitsubishi company.

Percy Hawn, Sales Manager

That's easy to answer—you want everything that the ingenuity of man has invented; that science could develop, and a Canadian, accustomed to the best, desire.

You want comfort to the point of luxury in riding qualities.

You demand a car that in outward appearance is one you and your family can be proud to be seen in.

You insist on artistic lines in a body that is in accord with the prevailing fashions. Upholstery that feels as easy as it looks—that is as durable as the best.

And withal a finish in details and in the ensemble that looks the part your car is to play in your daily life.

Speed, you desire, equal to any occasion and power equal to any emergency.

All these you may obtain in a motor car and at a price well within your reach—if you but select right.

There's the rub—how to decide, between those who claim everything, which car will fulfill the claims.

For makers are not over-modest. There's no patent on adjectives nor restriction on the use of words.

Every maker claims everything. How is one to decide?

After all, it isn't so difficult. Just observe one rule—accept no claim that hasn't been proven.

You can see and test for yourself most of the qualities you desire in a motor car.

You can compare body lines. You can feel the upholstering. You can determine the quality of finish.

By riding in it you can verify or disprove all claims as to spring suspension, balance and riding qualities.

If you know how to drive any car you can drive it yourself and thereby test the handling and control—steering gear, shift, clutch, brakes, etc.—and responsiveness of motor.

All these are an open book to the man who will read and can interpret.

So after all, you need only accept the word of the salesman for—well, for the most important facts.

These are, the reliability of the car and its gasoline consumption.

And there's where the claims come in—for makers being human, and business being competitive, there is a tendency to claim reliability unlimited—and fuel economy to the vanishing point.

Since this is so, what is the formula for accurate selection of a motor car?

Proofs—that is the only certain way.

Believing that every claim should be susceptible of incontrovertible proof—and believing it to be good business to claim only what we can prove—

We have proven in official test, and before the whole world, those two most elusive but most important qualities—reliability and gasoline economy.

In 44 days and nights running, during which the motor never stopped—the car every minute under the supervision of A. A. A. Officials—the Maxwell proved its wonderful reliability.

That still stands the world's record for reliability—the Official Record.

In that same non-stop test, a standard, stock-model Maxwell covered 22,022 miles at an average speed of 25 miles per hour.

That also is the Official World's long distance record.

Again: The Maxwell Motor Company offered $50,000 in Liberty Bonds to Maxwell owners all over the American Continent—Canada, the U. S. and Mexico—for an economy contest.

More than 3000 Maxwell owners entered—and the average of all those Maxwells was 29.4 miles per gallon of gasoline. (That was for a U. S. standard gallon. Add 20 per cent mileage and you have 35.3 for a Canadian "Imperial Gallon.")

That also stands a world's record for gasoline economy.

And remember, it wasn't the performance of one especially adjusted car, but an average made by more than 3000 Maxwells—1915, 16 and 17 models.

Nor were they driven by factory employees or dealers—the rules specified that only actual owners or members of their families could compete.

So there's one car, in the selection of which you can be sure—absolutely sure.

For what you cannot yourself see and examine and test, has been proven beyond question.

You are invited to see and to ride in and to drive yourself, a Maxwell.

And, having done that—having seen and tested all that can be confirmed in a short time—the official figures of those long-time, long-distance, reliability and economy tests are also available to you.

Then, if you are willing to accept mere verbal assertions in the selection of your car—that is your privilege, of course.

But if you want a car that in official test has proven every claim made for it—that car must be a Maxwell.

Tennessee's Marbles.

Although marble is the most important product of Knoxville, Tenn., there being thirty-five mills and quarries in the city district, producing values which have reached $1,000,000 a year, the great variety and value of Tennessee's marble deposits were unknown until 1853. Between that year and 1857 the two large additions of the capitol at Washington, wherein the United States senate and the house of representatives sit, were built of this marble. The beautiful East Tennessee variegated marble is the material of which the desks of the president of the senate and the speaker of the house as well as the railing of the stairway leading from the first floor of the capitol to the galleries of the house, were built.—Argonaut.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Refractory Ore Claim

By Oliver Harper

"What is to be done with that precious pair of fools up there is what I can't figure out," said Jim Barker, blowing a cloud of smoke from his stubby pipe.

"We just can't do anything," replied Joe Timmins, sending a blue cloud over to meet and mingle with that of Jim. "We've tried to tell them that they're foolish, but you can't git anything into that woman's head, except that we are all a set of d——scoundrels, and trying to chisel them out of a rich mine. I am plumb outdone with them, and yet we can't let them go on thisaway. Tomorrow will be New Year's, and there they are up there working like heroes at something that will never pay. I wish to goodness some of them smart Alecks in the big colleges would find some way of dealing with refractory ore. Who in Halifax sent 'em up there, anyhow?"

"Oh, some one in Havilah. You see, the chap, he's a lunger. Got sick in some of them high skyscrapers in New York, and they sent him and that slip of a gal out here to rough it in the mines, hoping that he'd get well—"

"Well, he's in pretty fair health just now, as you'd know if you seen him at work. But, they've sunk every dollar they had in that d—— old Keystone. She thought the stones were so pretty! And, so they are, all green as emeralds, and full of gold, that you could cut out with a pocket knife, but which will never pan out a dollar to the hundred tons."

"I told him and her, when they took out the claim papers that it was bad ore. Just the same, so much better than I did that I finally let them go ahead. Well, they have their twenty stamp mill up and the first clean-up will be made to-morrow. They are a pair of fools, but they are such enjuging fools—what will they do when they find out?" said the man who kept the saloon.

At this moment a man who worked for Ed. Ingram, the "fool," came down the trail from the Keystone mine.

"Say. Is there a doctor in this her place? If they is, he is wanted up to the Keystone mighty quick. And, where's Annette? She's wanted, too."

"Who's hurt? What's the matter, anyway?" asked Jim.

"Matter? Matter enough, I should say. Here is this gal away from home and folks. She's been workin' herself to death to help her fool husband spend money on that rotten old refractory ore mine. They clean up tomorrow after the first nine weeks' run, and she's been bakin' all day to have a New Year's festival for the boys—and by Gosh, there won't be six ounces, and now, now—well."

"Well—what?" asked the twenty men crowding around him.

"Well?" mocked he, "what'd you expect? She's a-needin' her mother just now—that's what."

"I be a mud'," said the old Indian woman who had come and the three hastened up the trail.

The men looked at each other blankly. They knew that this young couple had gone into the mountain hoping that the husband would grow strong. He did, but when Mary had discovered the lead they forgot all but that. Mary knew gold when she saw it and here it was, lying in the hard quartz, among the vivid greens of the arsenical deposit, bright and pure. She had found a rich mine! Together they traced the outcroppings, and saw that the gold-bearing ledge was virtually endless, and so placed that tunneling would not be necessary. They took some of the richest specimens of their rock and went down to Havilah, to record their claim. Just for form they went to an assay office. The assayer looked at the beautifully-colored specimens and then stammered and turned red. Mary and Ed were so young and so enthusiastic it were ruthless to destroy their joy. Mary watched him suspiciously. Why was he so agitated?

"Ah—er—have you ever heard of refractory ore?" he asked. "There are many kinds of gold-bearing quartz, but some of it cannot be worked on account of the arsenic. And, I am afraid this is that kind of rock. It looks so."

"But look at the gold," said Mary, her eyes flashing, and her cheeks red.

"I know—I know, but it would cost much more than it would bring to try to work your claim. Where is your claim?"

The two amateur miners looked at each other with quick suspicion, and neither replied. The poor assayer wanted to warn them, but they were sure he wanted to find out where the claim was to rob them. They gathered up their specimens and departed.

They met a man who had a twenty-stamp mill to sell. It had been a bad venture. He set the young folks against all the people at Havilah and Clear Creek, and finally sold them the mill. The people who would have saved them from disaster now let them alone, and waited for the catastrophe. It was bound to come with the first clean up.

The mill was bought and laboriously hauled to the mine and set up. It had cost a thousand dollars for every stamp before it was ready for work. Provisions for a year were taken up to the mine and a force of men engaged. They knew the uselessness of the work, but they were paid to work and not to give advice.

The twenty stamps were polished till they shone. The big hopper was ready filled with ore. The blankets had been laid along the incline and the trough made ready. The little stream of water that was to mix with the pulverized rock was waiting to begin its work. The turbines below were filled with water, and the quicksilver there. All was waiting for the signal, but the Ingrams had spent their last dollar. Then, the great machine began to move, the stamps to rise and fall with rhythmic regularity, the broken rock to fill the trough and the water to flow. The Keystone mill was in full operation.

Winter had been abnormally open and so far not a flake of snow had fallen in the mountains. Only a few light rains, and so it was that after nine weeks of blind labor the first real knowledge of the value of the mine would be known. The young people up at the mine were happy, and felt that their prospects were bright. The joy of achievement was greater than anything else. They would know tomorrow. The New Year should see the culmination of their toil and sacrifice, and its recompense.

But in her ignorance Mary had not foreseen how much she was to "need her mother" until New Year's eve.

Finally one of the men at the saloon remarked: "The whole business won't pan out an ounce. They were in a devil of a fix before, and now—well I'm sorry for them."

"So am I," said Doc Stimson, "and I'm sorry just thirty ounces."

One of the other men remarked to the ceiling that he was sorry fifty ounces. Finally all present "chipped in" and there was a gathering of nearly two hundred ounces of gold, some of it in bottons, from the retorts, some river dust, and some the dull grains from placers.

Almost without a sound the crowd started for the Keystone with the gold they had contributed. The watchman was so glad that he was not to be lynched for not having told the foolish children the truth that he was perfectly willing to enter the plot, which was to place all this gold into the turbine tub and allow Ingram to believe it gold from his mine. The main point now was to keep the fatal truth from them. Later—well they would see. So, they all sat down to wait for daylight and possibly news from the shack. They put a stone in the gear of the turbine so that the motion would not wash out the fine particles of dust, as they could not gather with the quicksilver and form amalgam on account of the nullifying effects of the arsenic.

After a long and cold wait there was a lusty wail, a sound never to be forgotten, and they listened breathlessly for news from the doctor.

"It's the finest boy in Kern county," said the doctor, just as the tardy sun came over the mountain. One man wanted to celebrate the day by lynching the man that sold the mine to innocents, but just then the door opened again and Ed came bounding to them saying:

"Say, boys, I've got a son. Will you come in and see him? Mary is willing but she mustn't talk. And, I'm glad you've come. Oh, yes, Happy New Year."

"Yes—Happy New Year for us all and the boy in particular!" the men shouted as they followed Ed to the shack. Ed continued:

"You'll all stay to breakfast, for we are going to have the first clean-up right away."

"Just so—just so," said Jim, and then with hushed steps they went into the little shack as though they were treading on holy ground. The beauty and grace of motherhood had fallen on Mary and her smile was ineffable. Even the mine was forgotten in her sweet joy.

How Your Neighbor Ends Her Corns

HAVE you noted how uncommon corns are nowadays? That pained look—that slipped-off shoe—are not very often seen. The reason lies in Blue-jay, which millions have adopted. An easy, gentle, scientific way to forever end a corn.

Those corn-free folks don't pare corns. They don't merely pad them. They don't use old-time treatments, harsh and mussy.

When a corn appears they wrap it with a Blue-jay, then forget it. It never pains again.

In two days, usually, the corn disappears. Only rare, tough corns need a second application.

The way is simple, easy, quick. It is right and scientific. A noted chemist evolved it. And it is made by a world-famed surgical dressing house. Don't keep paring and protecting corns. They are deformities—remove them.

Learn how Blue-jay does it. It will be a revelation. After that test you will never again let a corn annoy you.

Make the test tonight.

Rock These Grates Gently

The fire-box is the heart of the range, but the grates are the heart valves of the fire-box.

If the grates fail, the fire-box cannot make good.

The Pandora grate has three bars and each bar has three working sides which gives it three times the life of an ordinary grate.

That is why they work with minimum effort—a gentle pressure.

And you rock them gently once to clear your fire of ashes. There is no racking "shaking" with Pandora grates—just one gentle rock.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 50 cents.

Offensive Breath Caused Usually By Catarrh

A Simple Remedy Discovered That Cures Without Drugs.

The American people suffer more from Catarrh than from any other disease. It undermines more constitutions and creates more sickness than all other diseases combined. It is, therefore, very dangerous.

You can't successfully treat Catarrh by internal dosing—you must in some way send a purifying, healing agent through the breathing organs, so that the germs can be reached. This you do every time you inhale Catarrhozone. Its rich essences and healing balsams are breathed all through the nose, throat and lungs, and effectively destroy every trace of Catarrh. This is a proven fact.

I endorse Catarrhozone because I know of six bad cases of Catarrh, including my own, that it has cured. It is a sensible remedy because it is capable of going where the disease is. I believe it cures quicker than other remedy because it gets sooner to the source of the disease than anything else I know of. I had headaches, bad breath, and much stomach trouble associated with my Catarrh, but they have disappeared since using Catarrhozone, which keeps me free from colds, headaches, catarrh and all winter ills." OTTO E. KRAMER, Belleville, Ont.

Catarrhozone is needed in every home. Large size lasts 2 months price $1.00; small size, 50c.; trial size 25c. At all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Time in West Africa.

Because of the scarcity of clocks in West Africa events are timed by the regular daily occurrences. For example, a native wrote that she had received news of her sister's sickness "a little while before the guinea fowls talk"—that is, about 5 o'clock in the morning.

Great Endurance.

"An elephant is one of the strongest as well as one of the most patient animals on earth," said the student of natural history.

"He has to be," replied Mr. Growcher. "Think of all the circuses he is compelled to look at."—Washington Star.

Where Atlantic Is Narrowest.

Between Brazil and Guinea the Atlantic ocean is only about 1,800 miles wide. From Newfoundland to Ireland, the narrowest breadth north of the equator, is nearly twice as far. From New York to the nearest point of France is nearly three times as far.

Fashion.

"What makes the fashion?" a fashionable woman once asked the great designer Worth.

"What I make and you wear—that is the fashion, madam," he replied.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

The simplicity that spells distinction is typified in this smart dress for the junior girl. The waist has the side closing which is so popular this season, and the square neck is another feature which will appeal. A narrow roll collar finishes the neck. The long sleeves are gathered into deep cuffs of contrasting material. The one piece skirt is straight at the lower edge and it is gathered all around the waistline. A crushed girdle of silk or a sash may be worn with the dress. For a lingerie dress embroidery flouncing may be used for the skirt if desired.

The girl's dress pattern No. 8804 is cut in five sizes—6 to 14 years. As on the figure the 8 year size requires 3 yards 32 inch, 2½ yards 36 inch or 2½ yards 44 inch, with ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting material.

Artillery Activity Reported On The Western Front

Bayonets Used To Quell The Disturbance In Ireland

The Situation On The Western Front Is Unchanged

The British Had The Advantage Of The Raiding Operations North Of Bethune

Enemy Raids Were Repulsed —Prisoners Taken By Haig's Forces—Artillery Activity.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 15.—Raiding operations, in which the British had the advantage, was reported by Field Marshall Haig to-day.

"A successful local operation north of Bethune last night netted more than 60 prisoners," the statement said.

"An attempted enemy raid against one of our positions in Aveluy Wood was repulsed."

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 15.—Artillery on both sides was active last night on the front between Montdidier and the River Oise, the War Office announced to-day. The gunfire was also rather marked in the region south of the Aisne and west of Rheims, in the Champiat Bligny sector. No infantry actions occurred.

London, June 15. (Official.)—Successful local attacks were carried out last night by British and Scottish Battalions north of Bethune on the Flanders front and over 60 prisoners were taken, according to a statement issued by the war office to-day.

THE STATEMENT SAYS:

"A successful local operation was carried out last night by British and Scottish battalions north of Bethune. More than sixty prisoners were taken. A few prisoners and three machine guns were captured by us during the night as a result of successful raids in Villers-Bretonneaux sector. A raid attempted by the enemy upon one of our posts in Aveluy Wood was repulsed. Local fighting took place during the night about certain of our positions east of Nieppe Forest."

No Watermelons This Year, Getting Drier All The Time

Mr. Walter J. Oke states that the embargo on fruits and vegetables is not so drastic as the first reports indicated. The watermelon will remain hangin' on the vine, as Frank Clarke sings, as far as this country's appetite is concerned, although some of them are at present shown in the fruit stores. But the succulent melon is barred this summer, and will soon disappear, except for the home-grown fruit, which is incomparable with the stuff that grows way down in Dixie.

Cucumbers, asparagus, Brussels sprouts, mushrooms, green peas, and beets are the commonest of the vegetables that will be held up at the border hencefcorth. This admits tomatoes and other favourites of the spring.

Brazil nuts in the shell are excluded, for the reason, it is said, that the bulk of the supplies are in the hands of Germans in South America. And shelled Brazils are comparatively rare. Shelled peanuts are debarred, and the peanut butter supply is said to be threatened thereby, although it may be imported in its manufactured form. But they are admissable in their shells.

World Happenings

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, June 15.—Although the situation is regarded as improved, plans for the defence of Paris continued to-day. The Minister of Public Works made arrangements for the evacuation of the civilian population in case of necessity. The Humanitis called upon soldiers and workmen for assistance, should they be needed.

WARNING SIGNALS.

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, June 15.—Additional sirens for warning in case of air raids were erected here to-day. They have a carrying power of from two to three miles.

SENATOR NICHOLLS WARNS THE MANUFACTURERS OF NECESSITY FOR GETTING GRIP ON THE SITUATION

MONTREAL, June 15.—During a discussion of post-bellum matters Senator Frederic Nicholls of Toronto delivered an address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on export trade, and brought home the imperative need of a staple trade that will take the place of exports of raw materials. While he did not discuss the tariff question, he did say that the millions of agricultural exports go out practically untaxed, while the large manufacturing exports are taxed and super-taxed.

Senator Nicholls further stated that while the per capital debt was about $1.50 in 1913, it is $10 to-day, and will not stop at $10. "We will not evade our debt now," he continued, "nor will we ever do that. Just now taxes are easily collectable, but what will happen when this tremendous volume of trade vanishes? It is up to the Government to give us a lead. We are inexperienced in export trade. We need Government aid and co-operation. The Government helped Canada into the munitions busiess, it might help us into the export business."

Senator Nicholls declared that Government leadership would eliminate trade jealousies and add prestige to the movement.

Submarine Activity Of The American Coast Is Not Taken Seriously By Sir Rossyln Wemyss

British First Lord of the Admiralty Had His Coat and Vest Off When Interviewed by the Associated Press.

FRIGHTEN AMERICANS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 15.—German submarine activity off the Atlantic coast of the United States should not be taken very seriously, as the Germans probably will not attempt a blockade of Canadian and United States shores. This is the opinion of Vice-Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty. The Admiral believes that there is only one submarine operating off the American coast, and that the purpose of its trip across the Atlantic was to frighten Americans. The German ruthlessness at set, the First Sea Lord declared, must be met by centralized warfare in the North Sea and in the Mediterranean. The British First Lord had his coat and waistcoat off when he was interviewed by the Associated Press, and was working in his shirt sleeves.

Admiral Wewyss paid tribute to the co-operation of American naval forces in European waters. He said American ships not only were stationed in the North Sea but were also operating in the Mediterranean and off Gibraltar. The appearance of German submarines off the American coast is an interesting development from whatever point of view it is studied, and opportunity was given this week to Archibald S. Hurd, British naval writer, to obtain from the British First Sea Lord his opinion upon this new departure on the part of the Germans and its effect upon the naval situation generally. "Secrecy is the initial element of success in all warfare, and particularly in naval warfare, but there are times when the Chief of Staff can speak with necessary reserve without giving information to the enemy. In democritic countries leaders of fighting forces must carry public opinion with them. That has been the policy adopted in increasing measure by the present Board of the Admiralty.

Frank Jenne Says:

Toronto Man Spurns Title

Prefers the Rank of Private in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces

A BARONET

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, June 15.—"When the subject of titles has been holding the centre of stage of discussion for a time, pushing even war news out of the spotlight, when a few people who have titles and a great many more who have not, have been demanding in flaring head lights that titles be thrown in the melting, it is interesting to know that a baronet of Toronto has quietly inherited a title over two centuries old, and he and his lady have as quietly ignored it.

Private Hay.

The Baronet, Sir Conran Ker Hay, the eighth baronet of the noble house of Hay of Alderston, is Pte. Hay, of the 220th C.E.F. His wife and two children live on Kalmar Avenue, Birchcliffe. The oldest child, a lad of six years, Alexander Horsefield, will be the ninth baronet.

"It is really amusing the fuss that has been made over titles lately," commented Mrs. Hay. "Of what use are they anyway, the Hay title has the stamp of the genuine old title created in 1702 bestowed for military men."

Followed the Example.

Conran Ker Hay followed the example of his ancestors, but with this difference—the first baronet was a noted military man, the second a captain of the Dragoons, the third was a lieutenant-colonel of the Scots Guards, but the eighth baronet holds the most honourable position of all—that of a private in the C.E.F. A noted brother of the present Conran Hay is accepted by the Imperial army in the Tank Service.

The last baronet was Sir Hector Maclean Hay, uncle to Conran Ker. He held the title tarough an error in inheritance, but at his death, two years ago, the title fell back to the right owner, of which Pte. Hay is the oldest representative. Mr. and Mrs. Hay came to Toronto from England six years ago. Previously to enlisting Mr. Hay was with tht Imperial Oil Company.

HOTELKEEPERS WILL BE PROSECUTED

Breach of the War Stamp Act is Charged Against Montreal Men.

BAYONETS WERE USED

Police Were Stoned While Trying to Arrest Two Men in Galway, Ireland

A NEW ORDER

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 15.—The arrest of two men at Battlygar County, Galway, Ireland, on Friday led to a prolonged conflict between a crowd of sympathizers and the police. The police used their clubs and sympathizers any missile that came to hand. A bayonet charge was ordered, and after several persons in the crowd had been injured the sympathizers dispersed.

CHANGE OF VENUE.

DUBLIN, June 15.—The Dublin Official Gazette proclaims the counties of Clare, Cork, Galway, Kerry, Limerick, Longford, Mayo, Roscommon, Sligo, Tipperary, Tyrone and Westmeath and Kings County and Queens County under special law, providing for a change of venue and trial by special jury. All counties named except Tyrone are in the western and central parts of Ireland, and mostly in the provinces of Connaught and Munster. Couny Tyrone is in the province of Ulster.

THE TOBACCO IS APPRECIATED

Mr. H. Dearle of this city has received the following communication with the local branch of the Tobacco Fund—

H. Dearle, Esq., 310 Rubidge Street, Ontario, Canada.

May 17, 1918.

Dear Sir,

The draft for £20 sterling which you have so kindly sent for our Tobacco Fund, has duly come to hand.

Please accept the cordial thanks of the Central Committee for all you are doing.

Replying to the second paragraph of your letter it may be that it has been the luck of Lieut. Martin Dunsford to always receive packets of cigarettes. This is the usual form in which the smoke comforts are sent out as they are so popular with the men. In some cases of course, they are packets of tobacco.

We have never had a complait in regard to this, although we have had individual requests for Tobacco instead of cigarettes and we endeavour to give what the men ask for.

I hope the contributors to the amount of your collection will receive many postcards of grateful thanks from the men.

Very truly yours, ...

Acting Secretary.

A Potato Planter Used By Wm. Read To Plant His Crop

Scarcity of farm help compelled Mr. Wm. Reid to purchase a potato planter with which he put in his crop. Mr. Reid lives on the river road, Otonabee, and the results from his experiment with planting souds by machinery are said to justify the expenditure of $140, which the implement cost. It was bought from the Bateman-Wilkinson Company of Toronto, through R C. Heard, Water street. This machine not only plants potatoes, but also corn beans and other seeds. It digs the furrow, drops the seed in regular interva's, covers them, can be used to cultivate and hill them, and performs other services that are usually done by hand, and with a great deal of toil and waste of man power. The rows are as straight as it is possible to mke them, and the field is left ible to make them, and the field is left of caring for the crop until it has matured.

ARRAIGNED TOGETHER

SERIOUS OFFENCE

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 15.—Charles Alfred Vernon, who is said to have been employed in an important capacity in the Ministry of Munitions was charged in Bow street police court to-day with conspiring with Sir Joseph Jonas, former Lord Mayor of Sheffield, who was recently arrested on the charge of having communicated information useful to the enemy. The case was adjourned until Wednesday next, when the two prisoners will be arraigned together. The offence is said here to have been before the war.

Peterboro' Boy Has Been In France Over Two Years

Letters Received From James Cruickshanks

Mr. Hugh Cruickshank, 251 Prince Street, has received the following letter from his brother James, who for the past twenty-six months has been in France. He left here with the 26th Battery, and was wounded about a year ago. The letter follows:

Somewhere in France,
Sunday, May 19, 1918.

My dear Brother Hugh,—Your letter of April 21st to hand, and glad that your family and yourself are well as this leaves me quite well at present.

I've nothing or little to make up a letter Hughie, only to ask you if you ever see any of the old boys that I used to work with: John Adams, Albert Tivy, or Jim Jackson, brother of Andie, you know, the butcher.

As you know, Hughie, it is three long years since I left, and I haven't seen an old pall in that time, though I am with the Canadian troops.

Well, Hughie, hoping to see you and your family soon again, and thanking you for writing. I remain, yours truly, and affectionate brother

Jim,

Submarines Still In American Waters

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, June 15.—Two enemy submarines are still off the Virginian Capes, according to Marine information here to-day.

The British steamer "Author" was shelled by a U-boat in these waters Thursday, but escaped. On the same evening the British freighter Kesmun was attacked but escaped.

Frequenter Of Disorderly House Heavily Fined To-day

Maximum Penalty Imposed on Wm. Brassiano and Woman Was Permitted to Go on Suspended Sentence With Severe Warning.

$50 AND COSTS

The seeming discrepancy that often marks the sentences meted out to the keepers of disorderly houses and to their frequenters was absent from a case that Magistrate Rush disposed of this morning.

The woman, a soldier's wife, and the mother of three children, was given her freedom, under suspended sentence, and the man, William Brassiano, was fined $50 and costs. He was found in the house last night, and, according to Sergt. Blade's evidence, he was the cause of the woman's downfall, having first made her acquaintance and gradually attracted her with presents of jewellery.

"I have seen him going there almost nighly for a year. Last night the woman tried to get him out of the house, but he refused to leave, and apparently had some power over her that she could not overcome. She even kept the children up until about midnight; they fell asleep in their chairs."

"I must ask for the maximum penalty in this case," Chief Thompson urged. "For a considerable time this woman kept her family together while her husband was overseas, until men like this offered her temptations. The maximum fine should prove a deterrent to others."

The woman broke down completely in Court.

MEATLESS WEEKS ORDERED IN BAVARIA.

Special to the Examiner:

COPENHAGEN, June 15. — Meatless weeks have been ordered in Bavaria by the Home Secretary, because of the serious shortage, according to advices received here to-day. Twenty-five workmen who refused to work were court-martialed in Prague on a charge of mutiny.

Americans Can Be Drafted Here

New Draft Treaty Formulated Between the United States and Britain

EXCHANGE OF NOTES

Special to The Eaminer:

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Irishmen and Australians in this country are exempted and only Americans between the ages of 21 and 31 are subject to draft in Great Britain and Canada under the British American convention now awaiting ratification by the United States, Senate. Details of the treaty, which became known today, disclosed that it required a formal exchange of notes between the United States and Great Britain to settle questions relating to application of American draft age limits to Americans in Great Britain and Canada.

American Subjects.

The British American draft treaty exempts Irishmen and Australians in the United States from application of the draft and makes British and Canadians in the United States between 20 and 44 years of age subject to draft unless they enlist. It also makes American subjects in Great Britain and Canada between 21 and 31 years of age subject to draft unless they enlist, and provides that in the event of the future extension of the draft laws in either country its new provisions shall be respected by both nations.

The British Military Service Act, which governs the operation of the treaty, would make all Americans in Great Britain or Canada between 18 and 49 liable to draft into the British army. But in the notes, exchanged by Lord Reading and Secretary Lansing, it is agreed that the United States may claim exemption for its citizens under 21 and over 41.

The Regulations Were Observed

Fowl Offered For Sale on the Market To-day Was Properly Ticketed

The regulations of the Board of Health were strictly observed on the market this morning. Every fowl was ticketed with the weight and sold by the pound. Thirty cents a pound was asked for fowl and 45c. for butter. Eggs sold at prices varying from 39c. to 43c. Seed potatoes were rather scarce, but sold at $1.25. For table potatoes $1.40 was asked.

There was any amount of green stuff on the market at the usual price. The scales that were ordered to be placed near the store in the market hall for the convenience of the public were not in their place at this morning's market.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Steamer Stoney Lake Has Been Chartered For a Trip Down the River on Wednesday Evening Next—Come and Bring Your Friends.

On Wednesday evening, June 19th, a moonlight excursion will be held under the auspices of the W.T.D.C. The steamer Stoney Lake will leave the Wolfe Street Wharf at eight o'clock and the Street Railway Wharf half an hour later. Tucker's orchestra will provide music for dancing. Tickets 25c. 3d-140

CATTLE WERE MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT

BOBCAYGEON, June 15. — Last week, Mr. Robt. Hill put his driver on the ranch owned by Mr. Walter Hore at Coldsprings on the Nogey Creek road. On Saturday it was discovered that the horse had been shot in the shoulder, but whether maliciously or accidently, cannot be said. Blood poisoning had set in, as several days had passed between the infliction of the wound and the discovery of it, and even if the wound finally recovers, its usefulness will be a negligible quantity for some considerable time.

An unverified report has been in circulation that a cow owned by Mr. James Brien, Dunsford, pasturing on the ranch across the road had been shot in the head and killed. One thing is certain. There is altogether too much shooting in that part of the country, lying between the mouth of the river and Springbank and the sooner irresponsible lads are prohibited from carrying firearms the better for them and the safer for all of us.

Low-priced tea is a delusion for it yields so poorly in the tea pot that it is actually an extravagance compared with the genuine Salada tea which yields so generously and has such a delicious flavour.

PETERBOROUGH'S GALA DAY

Just a word if you please, sir.

This is the right time, before Dominion Day, to order your summer suit, two-piece or three-piece as the case may be. Would like to show you our full line of smart materials, imported direct—a better lot of loom patterns than ever had before. The wholesale houses would jump at the chance of buying up every pattern in the house owing to the great scarcity. But we have a duty to perform in protecting our patrons. Buying as we do from "Mill-to-Man," our customers must have the benefit of the savings. It will be to your interest to "Let us tailor your new clothes. PROUD OF HIS MEN

"I never knew the Canadian Corps to be in finer fighting hettle than tonight." That is the reassuring message given by Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadians in France in his speech at the Borden banquet in London—a speech which bubbled over with the general's thusiastic admiration of the men of his corps. General Currie declared emphatically that he commanded the finest fighting corps in all the allied armies, a statement that was not in the nature of a boast, but a simple declaration at faith in the qualities of the officers and men in his command. His statement that while he was sad because he knew death lay ahead for so many, he was confident that the Canadians would die to a man before giving way will send a thrill through the people of Canada.

REGISTER EARLY.

A week from to-day, Saturday, June 22nd, is National Service Registration Day, but you don't have to wait until then to register. In fact you will be assisting the registrar if you will attend to this duty as soon as possible next week. The registration offices will be open every evening, and in the afternoon as well, if the rush demands it. At all events, they will be open at night, and you can carry out the law on Monday if you want to. Register any place you wish. There are over one hundred booths throughout the city and all of them are at your service. It is not like an election, where it is necessary to vote in your own polling sub-division. You can drop in to any registration office in any part of the city or country and have your card filled out. The main point to remember is that if you are sixteen years or older you must register. Some people have the idea that a person over 60 years of age does not come under the order-in-council. This is a mistake. There is no maximum age provided for in the regulations. You must register, if you are sixteen or older. And make sure that you secure a registration card, as you may be required to show this at any time after next Saturday, and there are severe penalties for failure to comply with the law.

CARRY YOUR PARCELS.

A strong plea to the Canadian people to assist in the present shortage of man-power, by eliminating the delivery system, as far as possible, is being made by the Commission of Conservation. A bulletin issued by the Commission appeals not only to the patriotism but to the common sense of Canadians by pointing out that the cost of delivering parcels is approximately four per cent. of the total sales and that at least one-half of these sales are delivered. For instance, a store with a turn over of $35,000 a year, would have to pay about $1400 for delivery, the delivery customers paying $700, and the carry customers the same amount, although receiving no service for this expenditure.

As the bulletin shows the present delivery system thus has the effect of a sur-tax upon the customer who carries his own parcels, while the customer who insists upon having his purchases delivered does not pay for the service received. The system works out as follows:

The carry customer receives $1.00 worth of goods and pays $1.04.

The delivery customer receives $1.00 worth of goods, and eight cents worth of delivery service, for which he pays only $1.04.

The Conservative Commission urge that deliveries should be restricted to one per day; that all parcels of reasonable weight should be carried home, and that so far as possible, co-operative deliveries should be established. These reforms if carried out would be of assistance in the labour crisis by providing more help for essential purposes.

Every citizen can assist in this work by carrying his or her purchases whenever it is possible.

THE Y.M.C.A. WAR WORK.

When the resolution of the Great War Veterans' Association against the Y.M.C.A. was passed at the Hamilton convention, the Examiner took the position that a complete detailed financial statement by the Y.M.C.A. authorities showing how the moneys collected and the canteen profits were distributed would be the only satisfactory answer to the charges that have been made. So far this statement has not been published, and as a result the work of the Y.M.C.A. work is suffering, inasmuch as a number of municipalities who had voted grants to the Red Triangle Fund have decided to withhold the payment of the money until an accounting has been given.

The matter has been gone into at some length by a Canadian clergyman in the Toronto Saturday night, who emphasizes the need for a complete statement in the following terms:

The unfortunate discussion that has arisen over the Y.M.C.A. should never have been possible. Having arisen, there is one, and only one, way of ending it satisfactorily, and that is for the Y.M.C.A. to take the public that has entrusted huge sums in its hands for the benefit and welfare not of the Y.M.C.A., but of our Canadian soldiers in Canada and overseas, frankly, fully and graciously into confidence. Not by telling of their own virtues, not by quoting the opinions of this or that individual that thinks highly of its work, not by an appeal to put our trust in the high character of the men who are in front of the Y.M.C.A., or those that are behind it, but by doing what every railway corporation, every banking institution, every business concern, every church organization has to do and do willingly, namely, give a full business-like statement of its financial operations. No manifestly incomplete statement compressed into half a page of notepaper can by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as a satisfactory accounting for $4,000,000 of business. To send forth such a statement for campaign purposes inevitably weakens confidence and sets all kinds of suspicions in motion. Why was it done? has been asked a thousand times. Why should men who know business from A to Z countenance such a thing? Men of the business standing of those who give their name and reputation to this work would never tolerate their own office staff presenting such a statement to go before the shareholders of their company, and have it vouched for in qualified terms by an auditor. The general secretary is reported to have stated that a complete statement is available. Where is it? The writer has sought from National Council men in Quebec, Montreal and Toronto, but up to the present he has failed to get it. As a matter of fact the men high in the councils of the Y.M.C.A. never seem to have seen in either. If any reader of this article has such a statement in his possession the writer would be greatly obliged if he would lend it to him for twenty-four hours. But why not publish it in the Canadian press, as the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Bank of Montreal published their statements a few days ago? Such a financial review of the year's work, giving, as it certainly should give, its entire revenues from all sources, and its corresponding expenditures with a summary of assets and liabilities, would carry its own explanations and hold the compilers thereof responsible for its accuracy. That one act would do a thousand times more to re-establish confidence than all the varying individual explanations that can be given from now to the end of the war.

Let me illustrate the necessity for such a statement from the published leaflets send broadcast through the country for the purpose of the recent campaign for $2,250,000. The one is entitled "Statement of Receipts and Disbursements of the National Council of Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada for the Year 1917, including the Amounts Disbursed from the National Office on Account of Work Overseas." The other is entitled "An Answer," and both lie before me as I write. In the former the receipts are made up of two items. One is a balance from the previous year of $8,730.23, and the other the result of a campaign for funds held about a year and a half ago of $1,131,391.81. It will be noted that there is no credit entry for any surplus profits from the Y.M.C.A. canteen system, either in Canada or elsewhere. Over against this are the disbursements which include the following: (1) Overseas military work, including free distribution of drinks, stationery, reading material and athletic supplies, building huts and providing motion pictures, concerts, canteen supplies and recreational, educational and religious programes and administration, $631,506.12; British Y.M.C.A. work, $71,506.00; work among troops in Mesopotamia, $5,400.00. (2) War work in Canada, $244,173.66. (3) General work, $84,155.62. Leaving a balance at the end of 1917 of $118,561.83. Thus it appears that the money received from the good people of Canada at the beginning of 1917 financed all the free gifts to the soldiers, all the building of huts, all the administration expenses, all the military work in Canada and a goodly share of the general work of the Y.M.C.A., and there was a balance of $118,000 left. The canteen profits were not drawn upon for any of these things.

Let us now turn to the leaflet entitled "An Answer." In this we find these two statements: "Sold goods in 1917 costing $1,782,000"; "Did a canteen business of $2,800,000." In other words, the difference between the purchase and selling prices of the goods handled by the Y.M.C.A. in 1917 shows a gross profit of $1,018,000. Against this is the following debit: "Spent a total of $80,000 in canteen operations in 1917, made up as follows: $40,000 for canteen equipment and expenses, $25,000 for war contingencies account, $15,000 for transportation." Deducting these charges of $80,000 from the gross profits we have $938,000 which would appear to be the net profits, although it is only admitted that the profits were $320,000 for 1917. There is no indication where the remaining $618,000 went to. It could not be towards free drinks, concerts, huts, etc., as these are all charged up to the $1,138,000 received from the people of Canada, and you cannot charge them twice. Until a correct statement is given to the public we will have to assume that $938,000, and not $320,000, are the net profits. If the balance of $118,000 above referred to be added to this, no less a sum than $1,056,000 was available for the Y.M.C.A. at the beginning of 1918, when they started their campaign for $2,250,000 from the Canadian people.

But that is not all. There are the assets to be accounted for. In "An Answer" it is stated: "Canteen supplies are carried at the front to the value of $300,000, on which no insurance can be placed." If $300,000 worth of stock is carried at the front it is safe to say that an equal amount is carried in England and in course of transit. That would give $600,000 worth of goods, all of which are saleable and can be turned into money. Then there must be some value placed on the material used in the huts, the tents, the pianos, cinema machines, etc., etc. When the war is over there can be a realization of a good many thousand dollars on all these things. No credit entry is made for interest on $1,138,000, which would probably amount to $20,000.

This analysis is made from the figures given out by the Y.M.C.A. itself. If there is a strong feeling that the money asked for in the recent campaign was not needed to carry on the work for which it was demanded the policy of financial secrecy is entirely to blame."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Germans are going to declare the waters off the eastern coast of the United States a danger zone. They likely will be dangerous—for U-boats.

New Canadian troops in England are being praised for their remarkably high standard of excellence. They will prove splendid reinforcements for General Currie's Corps.

The manner in which the scope of the C. W. V. A. is extending is shown by the action of the Canadian prisoners interned in Holland in deciding to form a branch of the Great War Veterans Association.

At Present Their Hands Are Full

Speculation as to when the Austrian drive against Italy will come may be going unnecessarily afield. The Austrians usually drive against Italy when the Germans can find time to go and do it for them.

Anybody deceived by the so-called gentiness toward their victims of U-boat commanders operating off the American coast sould be looked after solicitously by a lunacy commission. Of all the German intrigues in various parts of the world designed to stir up trouble for enemies and neutrals, the one addressed to negroes in the United States seems to have been the greatest failure. Has one colored man anywhere responded to it?

Send on Your U-Boats.

(The New York Tribune)

It is incredible that a U-boat campaign which the German Admiralty has been unable to sustain in European waters can be successfully transported across 3000 miles of ocean; but even if this were possible we should hardly regret it. Each U-boat here is one less to harass the Allies on the other side and also a very great incertive to American achievement. We are tempted to say, "Let us have the U-boats."

Another "Liberal"

Discussing the fifty-fifty cabinet, the London Free Press says that: "Besides, Sir Thomas White is a Liberal though counted upon the side of the Conservatives. He was a Liberal in 1911 and is probably as much a Liberal today as are some other of the Liberal-Unionists who were Liberals up to 1917. Why does not the Free Press go a little further and claim Sir Robert Borden as a Liberal? The premier began his political career as a Liberal

When They Mined the Nile.

In the Sudan campaign as the British troops approached Omdurman the Khalifa Abdullah conceived the idea of upsetting the British gunboat expedition by mining the Nile. A former officer of the Egyptian army whom he had long held prisoner was ordered by the khalifa to construct a couple of mines, which were produced forthwith. They were primitive in form, consisting, in fact, of two old iron boilers stuffed with gunpowder, in which was concealed a pistol with a string attached to the trigger whereby the charge could be exploded. The first mine was laid by the Ismailia, worked by a native crew, and demonstrated its efficiency by exploding on the instant, sinking the Ismailia and killing the crew, including the mine constructor.

The khalifa was delighted, not at the accident, but at the testimony to the power of the invention, and immediately ordered the emir in charge of his arsenal to lay the second mine. The ameer, profiting by experience, insured his safety by putting the Nile into the boiler before he put the boiler into the Nile. He then carried out the immersion successfully, to the joy of Abdullah, who loaded him with "presents and praises."—Manchester Guardian.

The Faults of Others

Charity does not require us that we should not see the faults of others, but that we should avoid all needless and voluntary observing of them and that we should not be blind to their good qualities when we are so sharp sighted in their bad ones. What if others are weak, is that a reason for your no longer keeping any measure with them? You that complain of their troubling you, do you give nobody any trouble? You that are so shocked at the faults you see—if all to whom you have been troublesome should return the trouble they have had with you, you would be oppressed with the weight, and, besides, even supposing that men had nothing to reproach you with, yet consider, further what obligations you be under from God to show forbearance toward others for which you know you have such abundant occasion at his hands.—Sandoln.

Big Doings In Cobourg When Queen Victoria Came To The Throne

Pioneer Work In Otonabee Township

Illuminations were not spared in Cobourg on that notable day in the history of the Empire, when our late beloved Queen, "Victoria the Good," was crowned. The town was brilliantly lighted, especially the houses on King Street. There was no gas or electric lights in those days, but each window held as many lighted candles as there were panes of glass, which meant not a few, owing to the smallness of the panes. Out on the streets men and boys paraded up and down, setting off home-made fireworks, the "boughten" kind being considered too expensive. These fireworks were manufactured by making fireballs

Captain Ward is said to have been a tall man, and the ceiling of the room was so low that he could only stand upright in the centre, so that the sides of the room became the rendezvous of the more mischievous boys of his flock who desired to put as much space as possible between themselves and the teacher's ruler. In those days during the winter young men, who could not be spared from farm work during the time of seeding and harvest, would attend school for a few months and many a "scrap" resulted between some of the incorrigibles and the teacher.

Old-Time Looms.

[illegible] deep seams turned up on the right side, a piping or cord finishing the top. Many of the new models are beltless, finished by a deep, fitted yoke. Sports skirts combine linen of two colours, the hem being of deep rose, for instance, and the upper part of Belgian blue. Often strips of two colours are sewed together vertically, the hem being of the darker tone.

Beads are very great favourites for trimming, either bands of small beads or larger beads worked into some intricate design. Sometimes the shoulder seams and yoke outlines of lingerie and crepe waists are beaded. Fringe, too, is coming into its share of attention; sashes have deeply fringed ends; and dresses of soft silk, satin or charmeuse have fringe around the lower edge of the skirt, around the neck, and also as a finish for the short sleeves.

An odd note is struck by the taffeta dress for street wear that is piped in linen. The French are very fond indeed of these unusual combinations. On the whole, the effect is always one of extreme simplicity, that charmingly deceitful simplicity that has taken so much thought and care to obtain.

Knitting Bags for Summer.

Now that the knitting bag is a recognized article of — one is almost tempted to say—wear, designs practical for the different seasons are absolutely necessary. With the sheer organdie dress, be-ruffled and beribboned, a bag of heavy brocade, tapestry or velvet is out of place. The summer bags are far more frivolous than hose for winter, even when the knitting they contain is of the same shade of khaki or blue. There are lingerie knitting bags, bewitching little slip-over cases of fine linen, embroidered perhaps, which may be taken off of their linings of pale blue, yellow or green silk, and laundered as often as desired. They are so cool-looking the fair owner enjoys carrying them around!

Peterboro' Boy Heard From

Widow of Cavalry Colonel Takes An Interest in Overseas Men

Mrs. H. Sickler, 178 Rubidge street, has received the following letter concerning her son, Pte. W. H. Sickler, who is now in England. The letter is as follows:

13 Gloucester Place,
Edinburgh Scotland.

Mrs. H. Sickler,

I met your son, Pte. W. H. Sickler, 305530, Ires. Batt. Can. Scottish, to-day and am glad to be able to tell you he is looking bright and quite cheery and he said he was enjoying his visit to Scotland. I took his regimental address so as to write to him sometimes so that he may feel that he has a friend on this side of the sea and gave him mine and we agreed I would write to you. God comfort you in this awful anxiety and send your gallant boy safe home to you.

I am one of the Brices (of Colonial family) who are very grateful to your overseas men for doing so far to help to save us from the Huns and I have worked among the overseas men for over two years now. I am the widow of a cavalry colonel, Royal Horse Guards, and have one son, a wounded officer. I am a member of the Victoria League and do all that I can to help the overseas boys, and they call me "The Soldier's Mother."

I took your boy and some mates to see the Parliament Hall, John Knox's house and Holyrood Palace to-day, and invited them to come and see me to-morrow. As a descendant of Sir William Johnson, I am much interested in Canadians. Your friend, of Wedderburn.

MRS. MILNE HOME,

P. S. — Please quote your boy's regimental address exactly as written above if you answer this, and send me a local paper, as I am a hospital visitor and the Overseas boys love a home paper.

WHAT WRINGS FRENCH HEART

Noxious Weeds Growing in Former Highly Cultivated Fields Cause of Real Agony.

Agricultural loss is not confined to northern France. The very high level of intensive productivity of the soil in general was everywhere due to two factors which war has largely eliminated; human labor and chemical fertilization. Indeed, the spectacular features of agricultural destruction in the departments evacuated last spring—gaping shell holes, crumbling trenches, barbed wire trailing like some rusty snake across the fields, even the fruit trees cut down to the level of the soil—look less sinister to the French eye than the miles and miles, the thousands and thousands of acres of rich wheat and beet sugar land untouched by fire and sword, yet grown waist-high with the thistles, brambles and every other sort of pestilential weed; the apple trees full of great bunches of mistletoe. Before the war a French farmer was haled into court by his neighbors and fined for allowing thistles in his fields and the mistletoe in his orchard—remember this and you will get an echo of the tragic resonance that the phrase "terres abandonnees" has in the French heart.

Starting the Day Wrong.

There was a gloom on the face of the New England farmer.

"What's the matter, Elijah?" asked his nearest neighbor. "Flapjacks given out over to your house?"

"Worse'n that," said Elijah. "You know, 'twasn't apple year, and wife says we can't have any more apple pie for breakfast."

"Can't you make out if you have apple pie noon and night?"

"I can, because I've got to," said Elijah. "But, I tell you, it upsets me starting in the day wrong like that."—New York Post.

Lift Off Corns Doesn't Hurt!

Few drops stop soreness, then corn or callus lifts off with fingers.

The world owes thanks to the genius in Cincinnati who discovered freezone.

Tiny bottles of the magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose and shriveled that you lift it off with the fingers. Not a bit of pain or soreness is felt when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin or flesh.

For a few cents one can now get rid of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of feet. Everyone who tries freezone becomes an enthusiast because it really doesn't hurt or pain one particle.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SMALL SPOONS AS REMINDER

Hotel Man's Idea Brought Good Results in the Decreased Consumption of Sugar.

At breakfast in a small hotel a traveling man noticed that the guests in the dining room were averaging about two spoonfuls of sugar to the cup of coffee, though the sugar was low in the bowl.

In the dining room of the railroad station where he got his lunch, the sugar bowl was empty. Nobody was grumbling about the scarcity of sugar or anything else, because the country was at war. But a man wearing spectacles did lift a big spoon out of the bowl where the sugar would have been.

"Wonder why it is customary for us Americans to shovel sugar instead of dipping it?" he asked a friend.

That night, at a hotel in the city, the drummer had dipped about four times with the after-dinner coffee spoon he found in the sugar before he got half as much sugar as he usually took. He looked at the negro waiter opposite and smiled.

"Yes, suh, mister," that black dignitary grinned, "that's what we calls the little 'war spoon.' The boss, he says it helps people to remember; and they don't use much more'n half as much sugar since he put it in the sugar dish."—Eugene Blake in The Vigilantes.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning. You should soon see that the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

UNABLE TO UNDERSTAND IT

Frenchmen Gathered in Groups to Watch American Who Was Actually Drinking Water.

William Allen White tells in the Book News Monthly how thirsty he became for water, just common, plain water, on a motor journey through France, where it was not safe, for sanitary reasons, to drink the water of the region. The coffee did not taste good and the wine tasted like diluted vinegar and looked like pokeberry ink. It seemed only good to put in fountain pens. Finally, at the end of a week he and his party stopped at a hotel where there was bottled water brought from the American commissary department. When he came to the table he ordered a bottle and this is what he says of it:

"Try going seven days on pokeberry ink and boiled coffee yourself and note the reaction. Your veins will be dry; your stomach will crackle as it grinds the food. The water in that bottle, a quart bottle, evaporated. They brought another, it disappeared. They brought a third. The waiters in the hotel were attracted by the sight. No Frenchman ever drinks water with his meals, and the spectacle of this American cousing himself with water while he ate was a rare sight. The waiters gathered in the corner to watch me. Henry saw them, and motioned toward me, and tapped his forehead. They went and brought other waiters and men from the bar. He was a rare bird; this American going on a big drunk on water. So they peered indoors, through windows and stood in the dining room corners to watch the fourth bottle go down. And when at the end of the meal the American rose, and walked through the crowd they made way for him. A desperate man at least commands respect, whatever his delusion may be."

Curious People of New Guinea.

New Guinea contains some of the most remarkable people in the world, the Papuans. One curious fact about one of the tribes of New Guinea is that they wear what are probably the largest hats in existence. These hats are from six to eight feet high and gorgeously colored. They are adorned with feathers, colored fibers and shells, beaks of hornbills and plumes of the birds of paradise. They are handed down from father to son as heirlooms, and a native will not be tempted to part with his headdress for any price. New Guinea, too, contains some of the smallest people in the world, pygmies that were only discovered a few years ago, for the great island has still thousands of square miles that have not been explored. These pygmies are only just over four feet in height, but what they lack in inches they make up in ugliness.

BIG EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED FOR PETERBORO' NEXT FALL

The Committee Are at Work—Rev. J. E. Honeywell Has Been Secured—Campaign Will Last a Whole Month—The Preliminary Work.

Arrangements are completed for a month's evangelical campaign to be held in Peterborough from September 29 to October 27, under the auspices of various Protestant churches in the city. The speaker will be Rev. J. E. Honeywell, A.B., D.D., of Oak Park, Illinois, whose work in the evangelistic field has been attended with great success for a number of years. It is said that he possibly comes next to Billy Sunday in his standing as an evangelist. For four years Mr. Honneywell was associated with Mr. Sunday in his work throughout the United States, and is highly recommended by the noted evangelist. Physically, however, they are not at all alike as where Mr. Sunday is tenuous Mr. Honeywell is thick-set.

Mr. Honeywell took a course in arts at Queen's University at Kingston and is familiar with Canadian conditions. He is what is known as a man's man. His message is positive in character and dominates and demonstrates its power over men. As a student of the Bible he is well equipped for his work. It has been said of him that if one isolates himself from his surroundings, closes his eyes and listens it seems as if one of the old prophets were speaking, so wonderful is his familiarity with the Old Testament, so mighty are his denunciations of sin and so earnest and sincere are his admonitions.

Committees Appointed.

One of the largest buildings will be engaged for the campaign. Committees have been at work for some time making the preliminary arrangements. At a meeting of the nominating committee held recently the following standing committees were nominated:

SOBCAYGEON, June 15.— Word was received Wednesday that Mr. John Lee, who has been working in Peterborough, had broken his hip. He was engaged in loading lumber and climbing on to a flat car, whose floor was slippery with the rain, he fell. He was removed to the hospital.

A Nervous Breadown

When the Blood Is Out of Order the Nerves Are in a Starved Condition

The nerve system is the governing system of the whole body, controlling the heart, lungs, digestion and brain; so it is not surprising that nervous disturbances should cause acute distress. The first stages of nervous debility are noted by irritability and restlessness, in which the victims seem to be oppressed with their nervousness. The matter requires immediate attention, for nothing but suitable treatment will prevent a complete breakdown. The victim however need not despair for even severe nervous disorders may be cured by improving the condition of the blood. It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new rich blood that this medicine has cured extreme nervous disorders after all other treatment has failed. The nerves thrive on the new blood made by these pills; the appetite improves, digestion is better, sleeplessness no longer troubles the former nerve shattered victim and life generally takes on a cheerful aspect. Every sufferer from nerve trouble, no matter how slight, should lose no time in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, thus regaining their old time health and comfort. Mrs. Victor Booth, Parry Sound, Ont., offers proof of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in nervous troubles. She says: "Some years ago I was taken ill with typhoid fever. The attack was not a very severe one, and in a few weeks I was around again. But I did not recover my former strength and my nerves began to give me trouble. The trouble went on from one stage to another until finally St. Vitus dance developed. I was under the care of our family physician but my condition appeared to be becoming worse. It was at this stage I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking a couple of boxes I could see they were helping me. I continued taking the pills until I had used eight boxes when my health was fully restored and I have since continued to enjoy that blessing. I have recommended the pills to others and I always keep them in the house, having proved their great value. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mailing direct at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Military News

(Kingston Whig.)

Brig.-Gen. L. W. Shannon, London, has had the title of Companion of St. Michael and St. George conferred upon him by the King.

Major-General W. A. Logie and Garnet Hughes, graduates of the Royal Military College have been gazetted Companions of the Bath. Major Gen. Hughes is a son of Sir Sam Hughes.

Owing to the brief training which the soldiers now undergo before leaving for overseas, only one pair of boots will be issued to recruits. A second pair of boots will be issued on arrival in England.

Air cadets in the later stages of their training that is to say when they are actually flying are fed on the same scale of dietary as the officers of the Corps, at the present time, and except for a new regulation which has come into effect under which the pilots are divided into Class A and Class B, they will continue so to be fed.

Valcartier Camp by the end of the present week will have over 8,000 men under canvas.

(Kingston Whig.)

Advices have been received in Ottawa that no more recruits will be enrolled in the Royal Air Force unless between the ages of eighteen and nineteen years. Even these wil have to be placed on the reserve list with the assurance that they will be called to the unit before before next winter.

Chapeau Bas

Professor F. B. Millett, who was for some years assistant professor of English at Queen's University has written friends in Kingston that he is now a private in the United States army in New York. Professor Millett was known as a very amiable and companionable young man while on Queen's staff.

The Royal Naval College will be transferred from Kingston to Esquimalt, B.C., on August 1st or sooner.

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

With a whirr of wings the partridge usually sounds a hurried flight from the intruding presence of the rambler who strays upon its unsuspected preserve. Even in autumn when the fading underbrush affords a colour screen into which the mottled brown of its feathers affectively dissolve, the partridge takes flight at the first alarm. Long years of wilderness extermination have developed a self-protective timidity that sees a foe in every stranger.

But have you ever disturbed a mother partridge with her brood of chicks? In a complete surrender to the music of the woodland chorus, you follow a broken path scarce noticing the fallen tree across it, and as you mechanically raise a thoughtless step, brown whirring wings fly up in your face, and as you instinctively fall back a pace, you catch a glimpse of fluffy, cheeping chicks scurrying into the long grass and the tangle of broken brushwood. The mother partridge wheels at you in a rage, then whirls in a short circle behind a nearby clump of trees, where you hear her plaintive whine, somewhat like the neigh of a mare to its colt, and a solicitous clucking to her brood. It is a novel and an interesting experience. The downy chicks are hidden from view, there were at least six of them, and as you come upon one, the mother bird returns with feathers on end and wings beating the tatoee of attack. There is no thought of flight now, and her strange courage seems fiercer in the recollections of her wonted fright. Of course, it is the maternal instinct to defend her young that emboldens her and fires her rage. You have seen the domestic hen protect her chicks, with ruffled feathers and wings aspread; but her effort is weak beside that of the parent partridge.

Boy, Page Isaac Walton.

The fishing season opens to-morrow, as every sportsman is well aware. The most ardent Waltonites have either provided themselves with new hooks and spoons, or refurbished baits of many summers' use. They, too, have reconnoitred the familiar haunts of the muskallonge, and have mapped out the water for their first trawling. The Little Lake is said to be more plentifully stocked than ever this year, offering a supply of acceptable food that may eke out the limited allowance of pork and sirloin steaks.

The game laws place no restrictions upon Sunday fishing, but this oversight has been covered by the Lord's Day Act. Hence, the enthusiast who ventures forth with hook and line for bass, or with shining spoons to lure the lunge, should be out long before church time, or betake himself and his offending art to some remote water. This is not by way of encouraging a misdemour on the Sabbath, but rather of emphasizing the likelihood of being caught, redhanded with a twelve-popnder flopping in the boat.

Some Roses, And Roses.

The love of roses is so general, and their culture so limited in this section that it is difficult to explain the existing disparity of the rose and possession. The florists have cultivated a taste for hothouse grown beauties, among others Lady Alice Stanley, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, and pink and white Killarneys. But these teas and hybrid teas will grow outdoors in Peterborough. The great majority of persons know the rose only in the pink and yellow briars that are comparatively common. Others have hybrid perpetuals—Paul Neyron, Ulrich Brunner, Frau Druski, Mrs. John Lang and others. These have their distinctive qualities, particularly a richness of fragrance, but they bloom only in June, with a lesser crop in the autumn. The hybrid teas will bloom all summer long, and present no difficulties that warrant their continued exclusion from the gardens of Peterborough homes.

A war garden doesn't monopolize the entire backyard lot, and moreover there is so much distress and sheer gloom and desolation in the world to-day, that the queen of flowers should be exalted to her proper station. Madame E. Harriot is already in full bloom, an exquisite prawn red, a stately beauty in a garden of bourgeoisie. And buds on other bushes are filling with petals that will soon unfold their graceful forms and rich colours in radiant glory.

These are the aristocrats of flowers, and it is not overstating the fact that the garden that grows plebian briars will also grow the highly cultivated varieties. And they remain with you all summer.

Constipated Children

Mothers if your little ones are constipated, if their little stomach and bowels are out of order; if they cry a great deal and are cross and peevish, give them a dose of Baby's Own Tablets — the ideal medicine for little ones. The Tablets are a gentle but thorough laxative and never fail to right the minor disorders of childhood. Concerning them Mrs. Noble A. Pyr, Ecum Secum, N. S., writes:—"My baby was terribly constipated but Baby's Own Tablets soon relieved her and I now think them a splendid medicine for little ones." The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was Presented With Wrist Watch And Address

Mr. Harold Gilgour, of the Auburn Woollen Mills, was presented with a wrist watch and the following address on the eve of his departure for Kingston. The address follows:

To Mr. Harold Gilgour, City:

Dear Friend Harold,—It was with a deep feeling of regret that we, the employees of the Weaving Department at Auburn, learned of your departure from our midst to answer your country's call to duty. During your long connection with this department your sterling qualities and good habits have been recognized and admired and have set an example to all of us, and your faithfulness to duty and willingness to assist have made our daily tasks seem lighter. But while your going is felt as a personal loss to each of us, we feel that it is a distinct gain to Canada and the Empire, and so while deploring your loss, we are proud to have you take your place in Canada's fighting forces, knowing as we do that in you our department and Auburn will be worthily represented. We know that you will do what duties you are called upon to perform, in the greater task upon which you are about to enter, in the same cheerful and thorough manner you have ever shown in your daily association with us.

Expression of Friendship.

In saying farewell to you and wishing you the best of luck and a speedy and safe return, we ask you to accept this wrist-watch as a slight expression of our friendship and esteem and trust that each time you look upon it, wherever you may be, your thoughts will go back to the weave-room and that the sound of the looms in your memories will help to deaden the noise of the guns; and we here will all look forward to the time when you will return to take your place with us again after having done your part in the great cause under which you are about to enlist. Until that time we all unite again in saying "Bood-Bye, Good Luck, God Bless You."

Signed on behalf of the Employees of the Weaving Department of Auburn Woollen Mills.

Big Doings In Cobourg When Queen Victoria Came To The Throne

Pioneer Work In Otonabee Township

Illuminations were not spared in Cobourg on that notable day in the history of the Empire, when our late beloved Queen, "Victoria the Good," was crowned. The town was brilliantly lighted, especially the houses on King Street. There was no gas or electric lights in those days, but each window held as many lighted candles as there were panes of glass, which meant not a few, owing to the smallness of the panes. Out on the streets men and boys paraded up and down, setting off home-made fireworks, the "boughten" kind being considered too expensive. These fireworks were manufactured by making fireballs about four inches in diameter, and soaking them in turpentine. They were then stuck on long poles before being ignited. A large bonfire was built in an open space. An Irish piper played, and some of the most festively inclined danced around the bonfire. It is further told that a local brewer contributed a barrel of beer to treat the crowd. The head of the barrel was broken in and the beverage dealt out in tin cups.

The Old Stage Coach.

Mr. William Weller for many years carried Her Majesty's mail by means of passenger coaches between Hamilton and Montreal, continuing the service until the Grand Trunk Railway was completed and opened for traffic in 1856. Some idea of the magnitude of such an undertaking as Mr. Weller assumed may be gathered when it is known that he had to keep up stables and relays of horses every ten miles over the entire route.

It may be a matter of surprise to many that what was afterwards the University town of Cobourg went for some years by the homely name of "Hardscrabble." The origin of this name is said to have arisen from a contest among three early settlers to see which could erect his log cabin in the shortest length of time. Great interest was taken in the building race carried on upon that eventful day, long past, by these three families.

60 Cents for a Letter to London.

A Mr. Matthews, whose father was an officer in the British army, in telling of the early history of this district, said that the latter came out to Canada with a large quantity of merchandise, which he readily disposed of in Montreal. He came on west, and reached Cobourg on the day this eventful building contest took place. He carried a letter of introduction to Captain Rubridge, who was doing pioneer work in what is now Otonabee township. He remained for some little time and invested in some land, but later returned to London, where he secured a position.

Deciding not to return to Canada he wrote to Lawyer Bethune of Cobourg advising him to sell his property. The lawyer's reply was carried to London by Archdeacon, afterwards Bishop, Bethune of Toronto in order to save postage, which in those days was as high as sixty cents. Mr. Bethune proffered this advice in the letter: "Surely you would not remain in murky England after tasting the bright, bracing air of Canada." Mr. Matthews returned to Cobourg, where he settled, but whether it was the bracing air that enticed him, or the charm of a young lady who later became his wife, will never be known at this date.

Cobourg's First Bank.

A retired factor of the Hudson Bay Company opened the first bank in Cobourg some time in the early thirties. A notable advantage to the adjacent farming community in connection with this was that Squire Henry, the banker, introduced the practice of paying cash for wheat, which proved a great drawing card in bringing the trade of farmers for miles around to the town, as hitherto this had not been done. The teller in this bank was not protected by an iron cage, and history does not record any attempted robbery.

Tall Teacher; Low Room.

A veteran of the war of 1812, Captain Ward, who fought at Lundy's Lane, opened the first school in Cobourg. In the attic of a one and a quarter storey house he expounded the mysteries of the three R's to an assembly of rosy-cheeked girls and boys clad in sober homespun. Now Captain Ward is said to have been a tall man, and the ceiling of the room was so low that he could only stand upright in the centre, so that the sides of the room became the rendezvous of the more mischievous boys of his flock who desired to put as much space as possible between themselves and the teacher's ruler. In those days during the winter young men, who could not be spared from farm work during the time of seeding and harvest, would attend school for a few months and many a "scrap" resulted between some of the incorrigibles and the teacher.

Old-Time Looms.

The wool for the homespun, which was the common attire of men and boys, was just made into rolls at a carding mill, then spun into yarn in the home and the yarn woven on home-made looms. The cloth was then taken to the mills, where it was "pulled, sheared and pressed." Unless the good lady of the house was especially capable of a tailoress, as many were the services of a travelling tailor were secured. He measured the family for suits and made the clothes for the farmer and his sons.

At that time a farmer would take two calf skins to a tannery. The tanner kept one and returned the other made into leather. An itinerant shoemaker was the next artisan called in, who performed the useful service of making shoes for the family. The soles of the shoes were secured by wooden pegs, manufactured by the shoemaker in many instances.

Bridging Rice Lake.

Among the great engineering feats of the present day, none are more gigantic than that undertaken in bridging Rice Lake. From the village of Harwood there runs out into the blue waters of the lake a long projecting strip of land, apparently, which is as far as Tick Island, but which in reality, extends all the way across the lake, terminating on the Hiawatha shore. This is the remains of an old bridge which formerly spanned the lake from Harwood to Hiawatha. When our Canadian network of railways was first contemplated, between 1840 and 1850, and the Cobourg-Peterborough Railway advocated, it was necessary to span Rice Lake at some point, and the spot chosen was, seemingly, about the widest point of crossing. But our sturdy forefathers laughed at difficulties and heroically began the work. For several years boats and scows were kept busy at the chosen point for crossing, depositing and sinking huge spiles, doing what is known as the cradle-work. Getting the foundation established on the bottom of the lake was no easy task, as at some places the water is said to have been so deep that it was almost impossible to proceed. When the spiles were deposited they were filled with stones and debris and the work was carried faithfully on until a three-miles stretch of railroad appeared above the surface of the lake, connecting Harwood, then a thriving place, and the scene of much lumbering activities, with the quaint Indian village of Hiawatha. Swing bridges were stationed at each end of the bridge so as not to interfere with the steamboat traffic up and down the lake.

The Prince of Wales Was There.

Old residents, who have seen the old bridge across the lake in use, say that the trip across the three-mile stretch of quivering piles was something of an adventure, and the old bridge grew so unsteady beneath her heavy loads that when the late King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, made a visit to Harwood, going out from Cobourg, it was not considered advisable to risk the Princes life upon the unsteady old bridge. The Prince, accordingly, made the trip across the lake in a steamer and took the train again at Hiawatha.

After being for a few years in operation the Cobourg - Peterborough line was discarded, and the old bridge gradually fell apart and was washed over by the waters of the lake, thus practically wiping out one of the greatest engineering feats of the past century.

Standard Stock Food New Idea Of Government

To meet the shortage of concentrated cattle and hog feeds which the Organization of Resources Committee desires to anticipate next winter, the Committee is arranging with the milling industry to manufacture balanced hog and cattle foods that will not require wheat, oats and barley, so much needed for human sustenance.

The proposed cattle ration will have the following content:

Homing feed or corn	20 %
Corn or wheat bran	18
Cotton seed meal	19.5
Oil cake meal	19.5
Gluten feed	14
Dried beet pulp	9

Swine Ration.

Corn	46 %
Middlings	35
Oil meal	11
Tankage	8

The Committee has arranged with the United States for the importation of the concentrated foods for these rations such as oil meal, cotton seed meal, corn, etc.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., is one of the five members of the Committee who are two Hulls with the millers.

Blood Poison Developed

As the Result of Accident— Nerves Break Down After Three Weeks of Suffering—A Glowing Tribute to Treatment Used.

KINGSTON Ont., Feb. 12.—Blood poisoning seems to become more common from year to year, and the dread of it is ever on the increase. In the case reported here the doctor did not seem able to get rid of it, and after three weeks of suffering the patient was almost a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Susie Thompson, Smith street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Early in the fall of 1916 I had a painful accident. I ran a sliver under my thumb nail, and neglected having it extracted. My thumb festered very badly, in fact my arm was fearfully swollen up to the elbow. It developed into blood poison, and I had the doctor lance it several times, but it failed to get better. With the intense pain and loss of sleep I became a nervous wreck. After following the doctor's orders for three weeks and not getting any benefit I wrote my mother about it. By return mail she sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The very first application eased the pain, and I slept that night quite easily. I kept using the Ointment regularly, and by the fifth day all the swelling was gone, and also the inflammation.

"During this time I had become so weakened and run-down that my whole nervous system seemed affected. I was very nervous and restless, appeite became poor, and I had frequent headaches. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and had the same splendid results from this as from the Ointment. Using the Nerve Food internally built up my system and made me strong, while using the Ointment eternally healed my sore thumb. I am now quite well, thanks to your wonderful remedies —the only regret I have is that I did not begin using them earlier, and save myself months of suffering, to say nothing of Doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Eadmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

The First Infantry Guns Weighed 75 Pounds

FOOT soldiers began to carry firearms about 1350, huge, clumsy guns weighing from 25 to 75 pounds.

Mere hand cannon, iron or copper tubes, they were leveled by a forked support, and fired at a touch hole.

With the invention of the wheel-lock arquebus, in 1517, the first self-firing gun, the musket, was a quick step.

Like the first guns, automobile tires, when Goodrich began to develop them, were crude, clumsy affairs, and it's a long, long road of improvement to the symmetrical—

GOODRICH SERVICE VALUE TIRES

The history of the last twenty-two years of The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company is pretty much the history of pneumatic automobile tire.

But whether Goodrich was bringing forth America's first clincher tire, or America's first cord tire—

Goodrich built tires to but one end—SERVICE VALUE to the user—the worth of the tire to the motorist on his car and on the road in comfort, economy, dependability and durability, and mileage.

That is why the tire user to-day gets the utmost SERVICE VALUE in GOODRICH SILVERTOWN CORDS, and BLACK SAFETY TREADS.

EDDIE JORDAN, JUST TURNED 15 ENLISTED WITH THE ARTILLERY EVEN YOUNGER THAN HIS DAD

That the spirit of voluntary enlistment still lives may not be a fact of everyday evidence but while the flame flickers it is such youths as Eddie Jordan who flash into it something of its former fulness. Eddie is a chip off the old block. His father, James Jordan, who is well known in Peterboro,joined the regular army in the Old Country, and to pass the age limit added to his age years he did not possess. He claimed eighteen, when he was scarcly seventeen, but his son Eddi was only one month past fifteen when he covinced the doctors at Kingston that he was of military age. That was two months ago, and the last word the father has received from a friend in the artillery gives Gunner Edward Jordan credit for being one of the smartest boys in his battery.. It seems only a few weeks ago that he used to frequent the Examiner office with other boys scrambling for a position that would give him has papers first and let him on the street ahead of his eager competitors. And the boy has now made the long step to the greatest obligation and privilege of manhood.

His father went overseas with the 80th Battalion, but his best days were spent in the army of other years. However he has been well represented in front stretches for a long stretch of three years by his son Pte John Jordan, who enlisted with the 21st Battalion, and has gained a great reputation among his comrades for fearlessness and hard fighting. He has been with the old 21st in practically all of its hottest engagements, and after four months in an hospital from a wound went back to the front last winter.

"If you are going to say anything about the boys," the father proudly suggested when asked about Eddie's enlistment. "Just say that Jack, they call him 'Irish' over there, is still at the front givin' them hell."

THEIR ONLY CHANCE

Squaw Recognized Limitations of "Iron Horse."

At Least Her Advice to Old Chief Was Good, and Probably in the End Runaway Did "Get Out of Breath."

Funny as an Indian?

Sounds queer, but those who heard Dr. Charles Eastman, a real Sioux speak at a recent dinner of fellow alumni of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity know that an Indian has a true sense of humor.

Immaculate in a dress suit, Doctor Eastman spoke slowly and with evident relish of his own felicitous choice of words. Listening brothers in the bond of the fraternity almost imagined they were braves themselves and were seated around a council fire while the big chief said his say.

Doctor Eastman urged America's soldiers to "rush" the Huns in the trenches and make "buffaloes' of them. The Germans will get out of wind after a while, he said, and told the following story in illustration of the point:

Out on a reservation in the far West a chief and his squaw decided to buy an automobile. So they left the village and went to town, where there was an agency of a certain popular make of automobile.

"Old woman," the chief said to his wife, "let us buy one of the iron horses."

"We are old," reminded his squaw, "and the iron horse is dangerous. See the young bucks—many of them lose their lives riding the iron horses."

"Old woman," replied the chief, "we are old and must die soon. Let us buy an iron horse, then we can die together."

They went to the agency and were met by a smiling agent.

"I would buy an iron horse," said the old chief, "is it easy to ride?"

The salesman assured the chief that anyone on earth could run one. "It is just as simple as this," he said, explaining what few levers there were to operate.

"Get in with me now," said the salesman, "and I will take you around and show you."

"I will get in the front seat," declared the chief.

"I will get in the back seat," said his old woman. "What you don't see, I will see."

Accordingly the party started. Soon the chief was persuaded to take the wheel. Within an hour the purchaser was persuaded that riding an iron horse was not so difficult, after all.

Soon the agent had the money and the chief had the automobile.

"Now we will return to the village," declared the chief, as he turned the wheel and headed across the prairie. It was easy going. The chief clung to the wheel and the car performed admirably until they came within sight of the Indian village.

When the village saw the old chief and his squaw riding across the landscape it went out to meet them en masse.

The old chief got rattled.

"Stop it, stop it!" screamed the squaw.

"How, how?" asked the chief, clutching the steering gear.

"Turn, turn!" yelled his old woman.

The chief turned, and they missed the edge of the tepee by an inch.

Around in a great circle the car continued, with the entire village following after. "Whoo-ee!" howled the braves. "Bow-wow!" went the dogs. The children screamed, the crows cawed, all nature made a noise, but the auto chugged on.

Again the car came around in a circle, headed square for the wigwam.

"Hold to the reins! Hold to the reins!" screamed the squaw. "It will get out of breath soon!"

Lightning Uncovered Crown.

Of stories collected by Mr. Shirley in connection with the present war, says the London News, none is more singular than one having reference to the emancipation of Poland.

When the Prussians took possession of Cracow in 1794, the Polish kingdom ceased to exist. The king of Prussia coveted the traditional diadem of Poland's kings for his own adornment. It had, however, disappeared mysteriously and the Prussian king was balked of his wish.

In January, 1914, seven months before the world war broke out, a severe thunderstorm broke over Cracow and a stately elm close to the city was shattered by lightning. Its fall brought to light a secret treasure which had lain buried at its roots for 123 years, the longlost crown of Poland. Some of its jewels were loose, and fell to the ground as it was picked up, but none was missing.

Shaved Foreheads and Ear Sticks.

The Wakikuyu people of East Africa are known as the Kikuyu and Akikuyu and inhabit the Kikuyu hills, one of the most beautiful, fertile and economically important parts of the British East Africa protectorate, not far from Nairobi. These people have rich farms, a great variety of food to eat and are a very finely built race. The good looks of the women, however, are often spoiled by their curious custom of shaving their foreheads in order to make room for the headstraps to which they attach their loads. These people have many curious customs. They are very frightened of the spirits of the dead for instance, and when any one of them falls ill and is at all likely to die the poor sufferer is at once put out and left to the mercy of the hyenas, entirely deserted by the rest of the tribe the unmarried women wear sticks through their ears as a sort of badge while the married ones sport bunches of bangles.—Wide World Magazine.

THE MARKETS

Licenses for the importation of nuts and candied peels, orders for which have already been placed, are being approved by the Canada Food Board, but how further shipments may be allocated is still a matter of speculation.

Difficulty in getting licenses through for the shipment of coffee is still apparent, and spot markets have firmed up considerably, with possibility of higher prices being named.

The Order-in-Council restricting the import of fruits and vegetables has been considerably modified, and the only two items of great importance affected are watermelons and cucumbers.

The situation in dried fruits shows little or no change during the week, and the trade generally may be said to be marking time until prices are announced and orders can be accepted. That the Government will set prices or at least approve of prices adopted seems to be the general feeling among the trade. It is said growers are considering naming a maximum price for this year's crop.

A crop report issued for vegetables and fruits which will be canned gives a fairly bright outlook for tomatoes and peas, with corn a probable short pack. Peaches are also likely to be short, while cherries and apples look promising. Should pears be put on the restricted list of imports, the pack of these will also be light. Strawberries will probably be a comparatively small pack, with high prices likely to prevail.

Locally spot coffee has firmed materially, and advances would not come as any great surprise. Licenses for the importation of coffee are not coming through, and stocks are becoming depleted. A very good demand is now manifest from the retail trade, whose stocks are becoming pretty well used up.

Restrictions placed on the importation of flavouring extracts, custard and jelly powders, lime and fruit juices will, it is thought, react favourably on Canadian manufacturers. Provisions to take care of increased business are being made, and with the increased sugar supplies now available capacity production can again be attained.

REGISTRATION NOTES

With regard to registration next week, many enquiries are coming in relative to the answers expected to be given to the several questions as they appear on the cards.

The pamphlet of instructions to deputy and assistant deputy registrars, gives very fully an analysis of the several questions. These books are not accessible to the public in a general way, because the number required would have run into millions if any general distribution were attempted.

But in case of doubt, and there is going to be a lot of hesitancy in making answers, refer to the instructions for explanation. And those registering have been advised that it is not for them (the deputies and assistant deputies) to settle knotty points or to act as arbitrators in balancing pros and cons of a question, but to record the answers as given by the registrant. He is the one who is affording the information. He is at libert to select his answer and have it recorded. Then his general information should be condensed into as few words as possible and yet retain the facts.

There is much dispute and controversy over what constitutes a "British subject." Twenty men will afford twenty different definitions. Just take the statement as made in the instructions and apply it. If there still be doubt, write the facts and let someone else wrestle with the difficulty.

It has been asked if the prefix "Mrs." should be used by women in giving their names. Decidedly not. The name should be given in full, as for instance, "Gertrude Wynn Henderson." The fact that the lady is married or single is indicated further on on the card. But her signature which she will sign, should not be as above, unless she uses that arrangement of signature habitually, but the signature used generally, possibly "Gertrude W. Henderson." Both the expressions "Miss" and "Mrs." are eliminated.

Register in the evenings so much as possible. The first evening will help to give the workers confidence and will get just so much business out of hand. Eight or ten more factories have decided to register the staffs and men employed and that will relieve the general pressure on public places. It is now possible that the factory registration will amount to over 5000 and the total registration in the city, outside of the number mentioned will be about 11,000, after making allowances for all persons under 16 years of age.

It is open to start registering at once, as all have been supplied with cards and supplies. But it is generally felt that a week of it will be as much as can be asked of the friends who have rallied to the work. But any person who has to leave the city can be registered at Mr. George Howson's office, on Water street, where many have taken advantage of the opportunity.

Military News

(Kingston Whig).

Capt. Fairfield is in charge of the floats which will form an important part of the G. W. V. A celebration, "Over the Top." There will be competition and a prize awarded for the best float. The judges have not all been secured yet, but General and Mrs. Hemming and General and Mrs. Maunsel and F. W. Nickle have consented to act.

Another Camp.

Another active service infantry camp for the Province of Ontario is announced. The Dominion authorities have decided that the Petawawa Artillery Camp will be used as an infantry concentration camp. It will be used to accommodate overseas infantry drafts which are eastward bound. Lieut.-Col. B. N. Greenwood will be officer commanding.

Has Been Apprehended.

Pte Dumouchel, who was under treatment for mental trouble, and escaped from the hospital for insane at Brockville, has been apprehended.

EAGER TO TREAT 'EM ROUGH JACK JOHNSON PLEADS FOR RIGHT TO ENLIST IN ARMY

"No Branch of the Service Is Too Dangerous For Me," Fugitive Boxer Tells Captain La Guardia in Letter From Madrid

PARIS, June 14.—Jack Johnson, the American pugilist, who now is in Madrid, wants to enlist in the American army to fight for his country. He has written a letter to Captain E. H. La Guardia, Representative in Congress from New York, asking him to take steps in his behalf.

Captain La Guardia, who recently went to Madrid on an inspection trip, saw Johnson and talked with him. The next day he received the following letter from him:

"After my talk with you yesterday it occurred to me to ask you to use your good offices in my behalf. I am as good an American as any one living and naturally I want to do my bit. I firmly believe I wasn't fairly treated at home.

"All I ask now is a chance to show my sincerity. America is my own country.

"There's no position you could get for me that I would consider too rough or too dangerous. I am willing to fight and die for my own country. I cannot offer any more.

"Will you kindly make my offer known to the proper authorities? I am anxiously awaiting a reply."

Captain La Guardia referred the letter to the Adjutant General, saying he did not know the nature of Johnson's trouble in Illinois, but believed it would be hard to deprive any American of the right to fight.

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please inform me, through your valuable paper, regarding registration, whether a blank form may be sent to an invalid or aged person at their own home, or what witnesses are required at time of writing out answers on such blank if it is permitted? Also, can any one, whose occupation calls on them to travel a great deal, such as a drover, salesman, etc., register at any place other than his own residence district?

By publishing answers as suggested in Examiner of Saturday, June 15th, you will greatly oblige.—Yours sincerely, Constant Reader.

In regard to ill or aged persons, it has been arranged that the deputy registrars shall be notified of such cases, and arrangements made to have the registrations taken at the homes of such people as cannot reach a registration booth. Better notify the Deputy Registrar of your district at once.

As to your other point, there does not seem to be anything in the regulations to require a person to register at any particular place, so that the registration office most convenient to you can be used.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear iSr,—As I have been reading a lot lately about the farmers and conscription, I thought there would be no harm in having a little say about it. Now I wish to say that I believe that every young man that can possibly be spared off the farm should go, and if I had been a young man and could pass the medical examination I would have been there long ago, anything to win the war. But, sir, I claim the government and the government judges sitting on the tribunals have not used common sense or good judgment in making their decisions; they both have gone to extremes. Imagine taking a widow's only son off the farm and leaving her alone, also an only son off ffa big farm and leaving an aged father with a 230 acre farm heavily cropped. Why the government advised the farmers to produce more and then, after they took them at their word they would turn around and take their help away, is hard to understand. I claim that the government should conscript all able-bodied men and retired farmers who are able to work and send them out to help with the harvest. No use sending out boys, they are only in the way. The government are talking about sending out threshing rangs. Ridiculous! It is all right on the prairies where the jobs are large, but no use on our small farms. I know what I am talking about in this line as I have run a threshing outfit for forty-three years. It appears to me that the farmers are legislated to death. One would think to read some papers that they were a lot of idiots who did not know anything. We are advised to take our harrows to the shop to get the teeth sharpened, keep the nuts on the bolts tight in the machinery and so, enough to make a big laugh. Why are the manufacurers allowed to charge whatever they like for their machines, while the farmers has to take the price that is set for him. It appears to be a one-sided affair; anything but just and right, outside o fthe war altogether. How long is the farmer going to be dictated to, and advised by men who do not know what they are talking about. Young men are told they must not draw milk to the factory. Of course that is a job for an old man or a little boy, lifting cans with 230 lbs. of milk, jumping off and opening gates, boys work sure. If these armchair farmers would mind their own business it would pay them in the end but it appears to me it will go on to the end the chapter, or until the farmers make up their minds to send some one, besides talking machines or jumping jacks to parliament. Whenever their leader pulls the string they jump up and vote with him.

PICNIC WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School Met at Jackson Park.

The picnic given yesterday at Jackson Park by the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary's School was a great success and, considering the inclement weather, well attended, there being about one hundred in all with the teachers, parents and children. The young people met at the park at 3 o'clock, and after a short time spent in games, a picnic lunch was served. Mr. Borbridge was convenor of the refreshment committee, the other members of which were Mrs. Canfield, Mrs. Adair, Mrs. Commons, and Mrs. Connolly. Mrs. Medd, president of the Circle, is to be congratulated on the splendid success of the society.

HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 15.—Lieut. Pat O'Brien, Royal British Flying Corps, who is in the United States after having escaped from a German war prison, fell nearly 2,000 feet in an airplane here yesterday, but was only slightly hurt.

O'Brien was alone in the airplane over Kelly field when it fell.

He was unconscious when aid reached him, and his chief concern was over his new trousers, which he feared he had ruined.

ROBBED IN HOUSE OF HIS FRIENDS

King Ferdinand Tricked by the Teutons.

HIS TREACHERY PUNISHED

Bulgaria Has Already Found That Germans Only Intend to Use Their Country as a Pawn In the Struggle and That They May Expect No Consideration When Spoils Are Divided.

KING FERDINAND of Bulgaria, one of the most ambitious and unscrupulous of the would-be autocrats of Europe, sold himself to the Teuton powers, and it will amuse the Allies now to notice that his own friends have already punished him and his country for their treachery. The war lords of Germany care nothing for Bulgaria, and Ferdinand has been given plenty of evidence in the recent developments in the Balkans and Russia that Bulgaria is merely a pawn in the German game. By the terms of the Roumanian peace treaty, the Dobrudja, coveted by Bulgaria, has been taken from Roumania and the greater part of it handed over to Austria-Hungary in the name of the Central Empires. Now the Dobrudja, bordering as it does on the Black Sea, and commanding the mouths of the Danube, is said to be partly Bulgarian as to population, but Roumania's by geographical right. Formerly Turkish territory, it was restored to Roumania by treaty. In the course of the war, the district was taken from Roumania, by forces mainly Bulgarian but under German command. The Kaiser, however, has decreed that the section shall not go to the Tzar Ferdinand, except for a narrow strip up to the Silistrian line which was given to Bulgaria by the Bucharest treaty of 1913. The German Emperor has, furthermore, shown other proofs of a disposition to humiliate his Bulgarian ally, the alleged reason being that the latter has refused to comply with a demand for Bulgarian troops on the western front. Be this as it may, it was clear enough, some time ago, that the Bulgars were marked down for sacrifice whenever it might suit the whims of their imperial taskmasters. Turkey received some concessions of Bulgarian territory on the banks of the River Maritza, and may yet receive other territorial enrichments, in accordance with Germany's usual policy of rewarding her vassals at the expense of one another.

KING FERDINAND.

A stage has thus been reached in the relations of Bulgaria with her German dictators which should be followed with the closest interest by Allies. Bulgaria's cup of humiliation must by this time be full to the brim. The Fox of the Balkans has been beaten at his own game, but, however desirous he may be of breaking away from his friends, he is apparently helpless. He must defend the marches of Bulgaria or be overwhelmed by the Allies, and receive that chastisement which became Russia's avowed task when Bulgaria forgot her obligations to the Slav and joined the Central Empires. Ferdinand cannot kick against the pricks of the Roumanian peace treaty without the danger of being robbed entirely of national independence. He is already the unconditional vassal of the Central Empires, and, instead of his hopes of controlling the Danube by possession of the Dobrudja being realized, he sees Austria master of that river, all the way from its mouths on the Black Sea to the point where the stream leaves Bavaria, at Passau. He is probably also convinced, by this time, that the obliteration of Bulgaria, in another long night of national extinction such as that endured under the Turks, is only a matter of time, or dependent upon his own good behaviour to his lords and masters.

Bulgaria's well-merited punishment has thus come sooner than even the Allies expected, and from a totally unexpected quarter. She has been caught in the meshes of the plot which she wove for others. Her demoralization, now that Germany and Austria are playing the punitive role which Russia had allotted to herself, must be well-night complete.

WHAT "SHOCK" MEANS.

How It May Affect the Physical and Mental Systems.

In medical language "shock" means the depression of the vital forces, both mental and physical. The condition may result from many causes and may vary from a faintness and pallor that soon disappear to a state so desperate that the sufferer dies of it, as in the case of serious accident or difficult surgical operations.

Shock may also be the result of an overpowering emotion, like great terror. That kind of shock is often seen in the survivors of any terrible accident. Many who have not got so much as a scratch suffer for a long time from a state of impaired health. Sometimes their nervous systems are so badly shattered that they never entirely recover. That is one of the many reasons why foolish practical jokes are wrong. It is not funny to dress up like a ghost to jump out on timid children from behind doors, to play "jokes" with dead mice or snakes. And such pleasantries are dangerous as well as stupid. Many an unfortunate child has been made the slave of fear all his life by reason of a shock that some playmate gave him in his youth. The remedies that the physician uses are those which will restore the blood to its normal flow and stimulate the vital functions. For shock associated with great loss of blood the best thing is to inject salt solution. For shock without hemorrhage, a stimulant of some kind is generally given.—Youth's Companion.

KITCHEN SINKS.

They Are Low Yet Because They Had to Be Low Originally.

In a recent issue of the Survey the question why kitchen sinks have been made so low was discussed. No one seemed able to explain. Finally a certain maker discovered that the original sinks were made when the washing of dishes and other sink work was done in wooden tubs with high sides. Such a tub when used in a high sink came up too far, so the sink was made low. Furthermore, as running water and fixed faucets had not long been made, the tub had to be lifted out of the sink and the lower the sink the lighter the lift.

Through improvements in faucets, dishpans and other accessories of kitchen sinks have been made no one has seemed to realize that the sink could be improved by raising. So women were—and are—compelled to endure discomfort when doing their ordinary household work.

"There may be a certain percentage of inconvenience to be reached before the human mind grasps the fact that something must be altered," remarks the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The wise inventor attains a reputation for brilliancy by making his invention before the need becomes obvious to others."

London's Moated House.

The bishop of London inhabits the only moated house in London. The grounds of Fulham palace, thirty-five acres in extent, are entirely surrounded by a moat constructed by the Danish army which encamped here in 879. According to a local historian, "the Danes as winter came on found the high tides encroaching seriously on their position, and not liking to leave the river and run the risk of being cut off from their ships they threw up a bank with a ditch along the river flank of their army and further fortified their position by carrying the ditch round the whole camp. The Danish army gone, it was not likely that any bishop would go to the expense of filling up the moat." The water is now regulated by sluice gates built during the episcopacy of Bishop King, who was appointed in 1611.—London Chronicle.

Sacred Shells.

The clever priests of China often insert tiny images of Buddha within the shells of a living oyster, which are left undisturbed for about a year. At the expiration of that time the images are covered with mother of pearl to such an extent that they appear to have grown in this natural manner. The Chinese people hold these shells in great reverence, believing that Buddha dwells within them. However, should a Christian chance to look upon one of the shells it has no further value to them, as its charm is supposed to have left it.—Scientific American.

Irish Wit.

Even little children in Ireland, according to Hugh O'Donnell, have the true Irish sense of humor. He was standing before Nelson's statue, he said, when he asked a youngster, "Was Nelson really Irish?"

"That he was," replied the child. "That's why he is what he was."

Why Drink Milk?

Due to wartime conditions, many people are learning to economize in new ways as regards food.

One of the first problems confronting the housekeeper is what to do regarding her milk order. Shall it be cut down to save expense; or shall it be maintained on a pre-war basis? The answer to this question is plain to those who have carefully studied the situation. The amount of fluid milk consumed should not be curtailed; and in many cases, it may be profitably increased.

From the broad standpoint of food conservation, it is a good national policy to use as much as possible of all perishable foods so that other foods may be released for shipment to our army and Allies. Furthermore, it is to the advantage of the individual consumer to substitute milk for some of the more expensive foods which do not furnish nutriment so cheaply.

Many uninformed people have considered milk solely as a beverage, and for use by children. They have not realized that it is a FOOD and as such is desirable in the diet of the adult.

The following table shows from a leaflet issued by the Department of Agriculture, the quantities of various foods needed to supply as much protein and energy as one quart of milk.

9 cents a quart	20.6 cents a pound	25.1 cents a dozen
10 cents a quart	22.9 cents a pound	27.9 cents a dozen
12 cents a quart	27.4 cents a pound	33.5 cents a dozen

According to this table, if milk is selling at 10 cents a quart, sirloin steak must sell as low as 22.9 cents a pound, and eggs at 27.9 cents a dozen to supply protein at equal cost.

RISKED HIS LIFE FOR ENEMY

Valor and glory shine brightest when we behold them in sacrifices such as that of Gen. John Gough, V. C., who went from his place of safety far down the line to take comforts to his old regiment, and was killed while on his mission of mercy.

If where a high officer sacrifices himself for his men is glorious, what shall we say of the deed of a British officer who offered himself to save his foe? During an attempted daylight raid on the part of the Germans, they were held up by a withering machine gun fire and retired with great loss to their own trenches. One poor Hun, who was terribly wounded, was impaled upon his own wire, and he hung there writhing in agony in the eyes of both armies. Finally the sight of his suffering and his cries for help were too much for an English officer in the trenches opposite. Vaulting over the parapet, he walked boldly across No Man's Land in the direct face of the foe, and lifting his wounded enemy from the impaling wire, he carried him across the Hun parapet and down into his own trenches. When he arrived there a German officer took an iron cross which he wore off his own breast and placed it on the breast of the brave British officer. The firing on both sides ceased while he returned to his own trenches. And looking on, both friend and foe alike knew that they had beheld the highest form of glory. —Capt. Arthur Hunt Chute in Leslie's.

OBITUARY

JOHN CONROY.

John Conroy, one of the oldest residents of Otonabee, died this morning at his home, lot 32, concession 8, Otonabee, the homestead where he was born, 87 years ago. During his long life he had never left the farm to reside elsewhere and had become practically a landmark at Conroy's Corners, where, up to the past year, when his health began to break up, he always had a cheerful word for the passer-by.

He leaves of the immediate family ten children, Mrs. E. Flaherty, Mrs. P. Quinlan, Mrs. E. O'Brien, city; Mrs. J. Collins, Douro; Mrs. Brisbois at home; Patrick, Otonabee; David, Douro; John, Vancouver; Alex., Douro and James of East City. His wife predeceased him seven years ago. Mr. David Conroy of East City, is a nephew. Funeral on Monday morning at 7.30 to the Church of the Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's cemetery.

FUNERAL WILL BE HELD MONDAY.

The funeral of Miss Isabella Tully will take place at 2 o'clock on Monday from the residence of her sister, Mrs. King, 464 Park Street. Miss Tully was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church. At the time of the withdrawal from active participation in church work, she was the oldest teacher in point of service in that church. Her character was Christian, and she will be greatly missed by a host of friends.

WOULD LET SINNERS FIGHT.

Russellite Wants All "Consecrated Christians" Exempted.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Clayton J. Woodworth of Scranton, Penn., part author of "The Finished Mystery," was the principal witness yesterday at the trial of himself and eight other Russellites in the United States District Court in Brooklyn.

Mr. Ooland asked the witnes about a part of the book in which Mr. Woodworth told of a minister dressed in army uniform and likened him to the full at a slaughter house who led his fellows to death but evaded injury to himself, being trained to use the side door.

"I still believe it is a discredit for a minister to wear the uniform of the army and act as a decoy," Woodworth asserted, "and it is my belief that the ministers of the gospel in the aggregate are the greatest crowd of hypocrites that ever existed."

Woodworth said he was opposed to war and would not care to do military duty on the ground that he was a consecrated Christion. He said that among the Russellites those who did not become consecrated Christians were considered as sinners. He had no objection to sinners being called into service and losing ther lives for their country.

"What do you think would become of the country if we all adopted your theories?" asked Judge Howe.

"If this people were wholly consecrated to the Lord the Lord would take care of them," replied Mr. Woodworth.

The trial will be continued this morning.

First Steamer Trip To Campbellford

The first steamer excursion trip over the Trent Valley Canal waters from Peterborough to Campbellford is announced to take place on Monday, June 24th. The bills announcing particulars of the trip have been issued and will be in circulation through the city. The commodious steamer "Stoney Lake" is scheduled to leave the George Street Wharf at 8 o'clock on the morning of the excursion, and is billed to arrive in Campbellford at 4 p.m. Excursionists are to take the G.T.R. on the return trip home, arriving in Peterborough at 8:30 same evening.

Lanark Farmers Were Too Slow

Say They Want J. A. Stewart's Vote Challenged in the House

(Special to the Examiner.)

Ottawa, June 14. — Ontario farm representatives here to-day, being their first appearance since the Toronto Convention, intimated that an effort would be made to call a meeting of the Lanark County Conservatives, or Union Government Association, at Carleton Place or Smith's Falls, at an early date to ask the newly elected member, Mr. J. A. Stewart, M. P., of Perth, to define his position regarding the conscription of sons of farmers.

The Order in Council ruthlessly calling upon farmers to surrender their sons, and in some cases only boys, by pending when the Writ was issued for the By-election in Lanark." Mr. Stewart assured the Government that the Lanark farmers would endorse that Order in Council. The Lanark delegates at the Ottawa and Toronto Farm Conventions were approached for not taking some action in the first by-election after the amended M.S.A. was announced. Mr. Stewart's first vote in the house of Commons was to conscript farmers' sons.

The farm delegates or executive officers now in the capital were asked: What can you do if Stewart, who is a patent medicine manufacturer in Perth, refuses to recognize you, or the farmers of Lanark. Moreover, he is supposed to have half-nelson grip on all the weekly newspapers in Almonte, Carleton Place, Perth and Smith's Falls?

The farmers' envoy answered: "What can we do? We can pass a resolution repudiating Stewart, and have his vote challenged on every division in the House of Commons?"

What Other Editors Say

Price Fixing.

(Journal of Commerce)

Price fixing is not an easy matter. Only to a limited extent has it been undertaken here. But, if the shutting out of the foreign goods is followed by an increase of the home grown or manufactured articles, some further action in the limitation of prices will be necessary.

"To Hell With the Ladies"

(Buffalo Commercial)

Sergt. Douglas Pinkerton, author Ladies". And she got the right book! of the famous London Scottish regiment, so-called by the Germans, tells of a friend of his, a lady, who was asked to go into a certain New York store to get a copy of the book. When she got to the store she found she had forgotten the title, and all she could remember was that it had "hell" and "ladies" in it. So she asked for "To hell with the Lades". And she got the right book!

"Chips and Tea."

(The Wall Street Journal."

She was well past sixty. Her clothes were old and threadbare, and she managed to eke out an existence in London selling potato chips and tea from a little stand on the sidewalk. One evening a Zeppelin bombarded the city, and the little stand was demolished. But the owner was undaunted. She worked most of the night, and when morning came, passersby read the following painted in big red letters on the front of an improvised stand:

"To hell with the Kaiser! Chips and tea."

Canada Can.

Only occasionally is the public afforded a glimpse of war activities in this country. When the curtain is raised for a moment the picture disclosed in the best possible answer to grumblers and pessimists.

On Saturday there was launched from local yards a seven thousandton steel ocean freighter. One minute and a quarter after she took the water an electric crane had laid on the slip so vacated the keel plates of her successor and a full shift of skilled men had set to work to replace her by another vessel.

This is the most effective reply possible both to Kaiserism abroad and to whatever a defeatism exists in Canada. It repeats to Germany more plainly than any words that historic message, "We have just begun to fight," it is a final response to the spirit which once found expression in "Canada can't."

Lip Loyalty and Heart Loyalty.

(New York Post.)

It is no proof of disloyalty that one criticises the Government in its choice of ways and means. It is no proof of loyalty, that one chants with others a sonorous form of words. Loyalty is of the heart, and the things which men treasure in their hearts are rarely those which they care to parade in public places.

FIXES PRICES OF PRUNES AND RAISINS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Maximum prices of 8½ cents a pound net to prune growers and 5½ cents a pound to growers of raisins for the 1918 crops were announced tonight by the Food Administration. "Later announcements," said the gains to various handlers of the crops, announcement "will determine the margins to various handlers of the crops, after which retail prices can be computed. Further selling and speculation, which caused high prices in the past, thus will be eliminated."

Presence at Funeral Prevents Attendance at Church.

It may be, of course, that there have been some words omitted while in transmission but this is how it appears in the Uxbridge Journal:

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Lindsay, held at Woodville on May 20, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "That inasmuch as the holding of funerals on Sunday seriously interferes with the worship of the various churches, including the Sunday schools, requiring always the absence of the deceased, and often a percentage of the teachers and schools, the Presbytery earnestly seeks the co-operation of the undertakers members and adherents of the churches within the bounds to discourage the holding of such funerals except when absolutely necessary."

LINER WILL BE A TOTAL LOSS.

Special to the Examiner:

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., June 15.—The Cunard liner Ascania, aground fifteen miles east of Cape Ray, was considered a total loss to-day. She is rapidly filling with water. All hands were saved.

Carpeting a River Bed.

The Mississippi river, most capricious and pampered of all streams, on which Uncle Sam has spent millions of dollars in jetties and levees to keep her in proper place, is now having a carpet made for her at an expense of many hundreds of thousands of dollars. Rather, she is having a number of carpets made; no of cotton or linen or wool, but o trees and branches. Some of the carpets are a mile in length and 20 feet in width.

They will be used to carpet the bed of the river near Memphis, Tenn., in order to prevent the stream from changing its course and leaving the city high and dry. The Mississipp has an unfortunate and expensive habit of cutting new channels an deserting towns upon its banks the have grown up into thriving centres on account of their position on the stream. There are scores of tow that have been left, sometimes several miles back from the new river bed. Of course, this results in the ruin of the deserted town.

In the case of Memphis, the consequences of the river cutting a new channel several miles west of the present bed and leaving a city of more than 100,000 population stranded would be so serious that the Government has come to the rescue of the threatened town. Immense carpets of willow branches, firmly fastened together, have been laid over the bed of the stream. These great carpets, heavily weighted with stone, sink to the bottom.

The carpets when properly laid are pinned in place by piles driven down through them deep into the bed of the river. That stops the erosion of the river bed and keeps the channel in place.—N. Y. Sun.

Soldiers Producing Food.

The food shortage is recognized as so serious in Europe that the soldiers are cultivating 50,000 acres between the lines in France, 7,000 in Salonica, and approximately 700,000 in Mesopotamia, Egypt, Palestine and Cyprus. In Egypt, Palestine and Salonica the British armies will this year grow all their own vegetables and a large part of their hay and forage. All the military camps in England are being cultivated also. At Aldershot, where 28 acres were being cultivated 18 months ago, 1,200 acres are now under cultivation.

STRIKING EXHIBIT.

Visualizing in a striking manner a large number of the diverse natural resources of Canada, the Canadian Pacific Railway has just opened to the public an exhibit at the Windsor street station. This exhibit, which is situated in a room immediately adjoining the main entrance to the station on Osborne street, has been prepared by the collaboration of the Quebec Government and the C.P.R.

One half comprises the Quebec exhibit, consisting of samples of the resources of the province — lumber, asbestos, and other minerals, grain, maple sugar, fur-bearing animals, fox and beaver, and fish and game birds.

The C.P.R. exhibit has been gathered from the entire Dominion. A splendid display of grains produced in the fertile fields of Western Canada is a special feature. Supplementing this is a big collection of fruits, forestry products and minerals. A number of coloured transparencies show the methods used in developing the forest resources of Canada, from the primary state to the finished product, such as wooden ships. Other transparencies illustrate the company's lines. Complete and recent statistics of all the country's resources add conviction to the display. The exhibit is installed in handsome showcases, brilliantly lit; and it is interesting to know that all the material used in the construction room is Canadian material exclusively.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

PREPARE FOR CANNING

June sees the beginning of the canning season. The Canada Food Board insists that every woman do some canning this year and work with a will to make the most of the supply of fruit and vegetables which the war gardens have already begun to yield.

Before another day passes the wise woman will investigate her cellar or her pantry shelves and find out just what she needs to complete her canning equipment. The season has come and if she is unprepared to meet it she should immediately get to work and secure the materials necessary for canning. It is poor housekeeping for a woman to start preserving and in the middle of it to find that she is short of rubber bands, or that the stoppers are not secure or that she has not enough containers.

Her work will be cut in half if she starts canning with everything in good order. Poor tools necessarily make a bad workman. And in war time bad workmen are expensive to the country.

To the Editor, Daily Examiner.

Dear Sir,

President Wilson of United States, of America made a few remarks about being a minister which deserves to be remembered by each!

When I hear so ne of the things which young men say to me by way of putting the arguments to themselves for going into the ministry, I think they are talking of another profession; their motive is to do something; when it should be to be something.

You do not have to be anything in particular to be a lawyer, I have been a lawyer, and I know in particular. Except a kind hearted man perhaps; to be a physici you do not have to be anything, nor to undergo any strong spiritual change in order to be a merchant.

The only profession which consists in being something is the Ministry of our God and Saviour and it does not consist of anything else; it is magnifested in other things, but it does not consist of anything else.

And that conception of the minister which rubs all the Marks of it off, and mixes him in the crowd, so that you cannot pick him out; is a process of eliminating the ministry itself.

Some one said to a wicked man! You do not look as if you had porspered by your wickedness.

I have not, he replied. I have met with all manner of misfortunes. I have been twice in state prisons.

But I tell you the worst punishment is in being what I am.

So on the other hand, the greatest reward of goodness is not an angel's harp or crown or to walk the golden streets; but to be like an angel! to have the heavenly character.

Let us seek to be among those who give thanks unto the father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the saints in light Colossians, 1x12.

CANADA MAY APPLY THE BRITISH ACT TO OUR ALLIED ALIENS

Mr. Justice Ferguson Says Such Foreigners Are Serving in the Old Land—Judge Merely Makes Suggestion, But It Will Be Referred to Ottawa.

WHY NOT HERE IN CANADA?

Toronto, June 17.—W. R. Smyth, K. C., chief public representative of the Military Service Act, is taking up with Ottawa the advisability of utilizing "friendly or allied aliens" in the great war.

Mr. Smyth, whose energy has been marked in his official capacity, is acting on a letter from Mr. Justice Ferguson, one of the tribunals at Osgoode Hall:

WE ARE HANDICAPPED HERE.

"Under the M. S. A., as it stands at present, we have no power to deal with any person other than a British subject.

"A great many of the foreigners that come before me claim to be Russians, Italians, Serbian, Greek, American, or citizens of other allied countries. It is too bad that these citizens of allied countries who, if they were at home, would be obliged to serve in the armies of their respective countries, in this Dominion escape military service.

DIFFERENT IN BRITAIN.

"In England they are reached under the Military Service Convention with Allied States Act (1917) 7 and 8 George V., chapter 26, and I cannot understand why, in this country, a similar act cannot be passed in reference to the citizens of allied States, who have entered into convention with Great Britain.

"By this act it is provided in respect of citizens of allied States with which Great Britain has entered into a convention that, if they have not within 21 days applied for leave to return to the countries of their citizenship, they shall be liable for military service under the Act in the same manner as British subjects.

OTTAWA MAY THINK IT OVER.

"Perhaps, if you brought this Act to the notice of the proper authorities, an order in council under the Emergency Legislation Act might be passed, so that it would be possible to reach the many foreigners to whom I have referred. I am only suggesting it to you, so that it may be taken up and considered."

Raising Goats in Honolulu.

The island of Kahoolawe is to be devoted to lowering the cost of living—if production of 10,000 goats for market ing will do it. The board of agriculture and forestry has authorized Chairman Arthur H. Rice to confer with the governor and land commissioner on a plan to withdraw the island from the forest reserve and offer it for lease. This has been done and Chairman Rice has placed in the hands of Deputy Attorney General Smith the duty of drawing up the necessary papers. Kahoolawe now produces goats and sand. It is believed that thousands of goats of marketable quality can be exported from the island and a chance is to be given for some enterprising rancher to become the goat king of the territory.

Bird Guided by Magnetism?

One of the many explanations that have been offered to account for the fact that migrating birds are able to find their way by night and in cloudy or foggy weather is that they are sensitive, in some way, to currents of terrestrial magnetism, and therefore direct their flight by the magnetic meridians. This suggestion was put forth by M. A. Thaudies, a French pigeon fancier, who declares that carrier pigeons make poor flights during the occurrence of magnetic storms. He also asserts that the general use of wireless telegraphy has diminished the reliability of these birds to a surprising extent.—Popular Science Monthly.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES
COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and wornout by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system

Mrs. F. Bailey, 221 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont

Winnipeg Travellers Get Chance to Study Hinterland

New Ontario's immense forest reserves and seat of Provincial Colonization Scheme of Great Interest

The traveller nowadays wants something more than formal seat space, and the well established service of the Canadian Northern to Western Canada affords ample opportunity for thought. The immense stands of merchantable timber, the untold wealth in water power, and the great commercial and agricultural possibilities of Northern Ontario should be matters of common knowledge to Canadians. Modern trains of standard and tourist sleeping cars and coaches leave Toronto Union Station at 10.00 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, connecting at Winnipeg for all points in Western Canada.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A HARD LESSON TO LEARN

A HARD LESSON TO LEARN.
CHAPTER XCIV.

In the days following the yacht incident I constantly seemed to do the wrong thing. No matter how hard I tried I said and did things that annoyed George. I was almost discouraged. Several times I had been on the point of asking him to let me go home for the rest of the summer, while he followed out his vacation without me; but each time I would remember that I might be giving way to someone else. Julia Collins or some other woman might be glad to be rid of me. Occasionally as the days went by, she joined some picnic or dinner party at which George and I also were guests, and although she seemed to go out of her way to notice me, I felt a covert sneer in many things she said.

To my delight, one day, Mrs. Sexton called. I never thought I should ever be so glad to see anyone I had once hated as I was to see this woman! I literally fell on her neck. And she didn't chide me. Immediately I took it for granted that George had sent for her, and I was terribly disappointed when she undeceived me.

"I am not well and am staying with friends," she told me.

"But you will spend some time with me, won't you? If you only knew how I needed you—knew what awful things I have been saying and doing this past week or two—you'd surely stay with me!"

OPEN CONFESSION.

"What have you done that is so terrible?" she asked, smiling. "Open confession, they say, is good for the soul, so I'll invite myself to lunch with you while you tell me all about it."

"Oh, that will be fine!" I exclaimed, really delighted. "George will not be in to luncheon; he has gone yachting."

"Why didn't you go?" she looked keenly at me.

"Mal-de-mer."

"Surely a good reason. It certainly spoils the day for others as well as for yourself," she remarked; then asked me to tell her about the time I was so ill.

I told her of my day on the yacht. And before I knew it I was also telling her of my dislike for Julia Collins—how it had increased and how she seemed to sneer at me whenever I was where she was.

"You do not look well. I am afraid you are letting these things make you unhappy—that you attach too much importance to them."

"I honestly try not to. But it is hard."

"I know. But my dear Mrs. Howard, in fashionable life much is said and done which means absolutely nothing—things which, if done in the atmosphere in which you were brought up, would have a sinister meaning. I wish you would rid yourself of that idea of your own incapability; it makes you sensitive and unable to cope with situations which you would dismiss as amounting to nothing, if you had more confidence in yourself."

"I try to feel differently. I guess, if I had a husband who was not so wise, I would do better." Yet I knew I was proud of him, his poise, his tact. Mrs. Sexton also knew it; so I could talk freely to her.

MERTON GRAY CALLS.

I had had my last sitting some days before, and afterward had seen nothing of Merton Gray, until one afternoon he called. I was alone, and was glad of company. I had been strumming the piano and when he was announced I was so pleased to see him that I showed my pleasure very plainly.

"I thought you had forgotten me," I said.

"No, indeed I have missed you sadly and I have felt at times like destroying the portrait so that I could commence another one."

This foolish sentence affected me strangely; someone cared! I felt the blood rise in my face and a thrill of gladness ran through me.

"That would be silly," I retorted; then added: "I am honestly delighted to see you. I was a little blue. Mr. Howard has gone yachting, and I dread being alone."

"Why didn't you go?" It was the same question that Mrs. Sexton had asked. I gave him the same answer.

"Unfortunately, I am not a good sailor."

"That's too bad. If you go often you may overcome it."

"No thank you; I prefer to stay on shore. You see, I make a nuisance of myself as well as suffer tortures."

"I wish you would play for me," Merton said after we had chatted a while.

"Certainly!" I replied, and for nearly an hour I played and sang for him.

"How can you complain of being lonely when you have your music?" he said as I arose from the piano.

"It is a great help, but I guess I like folks better than most girls. I was brought up with them, you know—real people."

"I understand."

That was one nice thing about Merton Gray. He ALWAYS understood.

To-morrow: Merton Gray's attentions cause gossip.

Shell Shocked Nerves

Shattered nerves are the source of greatest suffering to many a returned soldier. The doctor can give something to relieve physical pain, but when the nervous system breaks down and you are sleepless, nervous and mentally worried, real cure only comes when the exhausted nerve cells are nourished back to health and vigor by such restorative, upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Comets' Tails and the Sun.

A theory to explain the tails of comets is advanced by the French physicist, M. Houllevigue in the Revue Scientifique. It is natural to suppose, he says, that the incandescent nucleus of a comet is throwing out electrons into the extremely rarefied atmosphere that surrounds it. The observations of George Ellery Hale, the American astronomer, prove that the sun behaves like a negatively electrified body. Therefore he repels electrons, which are negatively electrified bodies. These particles so repelled would be driven to that side of the comet which is farthest from the sun, and by contact with the molecules of the gaseous and rarefied atmosphere would produce just the luminous appearance that we call a comet's tail.

Every comet's tail always extends away from the sun. Arrhenius, the Swedish astronomer, believed that the particles of the tail were repelled by the light of the sun.

Actors and Their Teeth.

"There is only one feature of an actor which will 'give him away' when disguised in a perfect makeup," remarks a young actor, "and that feature is the teeth. Let a man do what he will to his face, let him cover it with all kinds of paint, beard, whiskers and what not, but the teeth will disclose his indubitable identity directly he opens his mouth to speak a line or to raise a laugh.

"I myself, when sitting in the front of a house watching other people's performances, have frequently been puzzling myself as to the identity of a cleverly made up player, but no sooner has the said player disclosed his 'ivories' than I have at once recognized him, provided, of course, he has chanced to be a man whose face I know moderately well. Strangely enough, hardly any one is aware of this curious truth, but it remains an undeniable fact all the same."—Pearson's Weekly.

School Children Are Underfed.

Of the 1,000,000 school children in New York city 110,000 are undernourished and in need of attention, while the condition of 500,000 others is only "passable," according to Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin, head of the children's division of the Postgraduate hospital. This medical man said much of the malnutrition of children is caused by war prices. He said that the disparity between wage increases and the mounting cost of food has caused mothers to give their children tea and coffee instead of milk, which had increased from 9 to 15 cents a quart in the last year.

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randles, Bothessy, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

Two Famous English Orders.

On Oct. 13, 1399, was founded by Henry IV. "the Most Noble Order of the Bath." During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries "The Bath" fell into disrepute, and its restoration to favor we owe to the German George I., who reconstituted the order in 1725. The reason for its loss of reputation is possibly to be found in one of the ceremonies which preceded the investiture. The candidate for knighthood was ceremoniously disrobed, conducted to a bath and while there was duly instructed and counseled by two grave and ancient knights concerning the order and feats of chivalry. The English are a prudish nation and preferred to be clothed and in their right mind if they are to be preached at. The Order of the Garter rather tried their reserve concerning the intimacies of apparel; the bath overstepped every limit.—London Chronicle.

No Soft Bed For Him.

There is an immensely rich man in New York who never slept on a bed of eiderdown, goose feathers, felt, hair or excelsior. When a boy he slept on a pallet of straw. When a young man his bed was an old fashioned shuck mattress, in the making of which he assisted to the extent of sorting the shucks. In the army (1861-5) he was glad to sleep on the ground. Later, as a civil engineer, he reposed on a puncheon, and now, rolling in wealth, goes to bed every night on a trundle bed which he bought from his aged "nigger mammy." This affair is not over fourteen inches high and is corded up with half inch hemp. There is no mattress, and of course there are no springs. A rag quilt covers the ropes, another covers his body as he sleeps. His health is superb.—New York Press.

Peerless Geneva.

The most glowing tribute to Geneva is Frederic Harrison's. "I hold Zurich, Basel and Geneva to be the model cities of our age—the fine type of what cities will one day be in a regenerated age—the true type of civic organization, having site of rare beauty and convenience, spacious streets and avenues, noble public walks and gardens, perhaps everything short of grand antique buildings." Geneva in particular is "the finest type of a rational city that Europe possesses . . . a true city where, as in Athens, Florence, Venice, Antwerp or Ghent, of old, men can live a wholesome civic life, not in huge, amorphous caravanseries, such as London, Paris or Berlin—not in suffumigated barracks, such as Manchester or Lyons or Glasgow—but in a beautiful, well ordered, free organic city."

His Sermon on Women.

An English preacher in the seventeenth century, speaking to the text, "To be or not to be," said that woman should be like and unlike three things. She should be like a snail, always keep within her own house, but not like a snail, to carry all she had on her back. She should be like an echo, to speak when she was spoken to, but not like an echo, always to have the last word. She should be like a town clock, always keep time and regularity, but not like a town clock, to speak so loud that all the town might hear her.—Minneapolis Journal.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES
ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Bit of Progress

By KATHERINE BATES

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The sunlight fell so hotly on the pile of guano bags crowding the little wharf that the man leaning against the heaped-up sacks could hardly believe that it was May, and not July. He drew his eyelids together and through his lashes looked down the gleaming river toward Norfolk, three miles away. On either side of the river truck farms stretched away toward the pine forests farther inland; just now the farms were at their greenest, strawberry fields, cabbage patches, acres of spinach, all in verdant strife. The river ducked in here and there, flinging clear, shimmering streams a little way back into the country, and the marshes around these inlets gave a rank, yellow tinge to the green outlook. Now and then a pine grove not yet cleared away led the greens to the other extreme, to the dark somber hue which had little but name in common with the brightness of the water-grass. The man on the wharf sighed as he noted these varying shades.

"It would take me to make this pay," he said. "Yes, sir, what this here fertile patch of old Virginia needs is an Iowa man—J. Archibald Jernigan could make his pile here, but none of these lazy Southern truckers will make their salt."

The cool sound of the incoming tide swishing against the wharf turned his thoughts from the farms. There would be shade on the other side of the guano bags; he sprang upon them and dropped down into the shadow, dropped down beside Ianthe Yarbrough, who lolled in placid ease against the bags.

"Beg pardon, miss," said Mr. Jernigan, startled into a stammer, although his was by no means a hesitating nature.

"Don't mind me," said the girl calmly. "I heard you talkin' to yo'self, but I reckon I'd let you come over if you wanted to."

She smiled at him with indolent interest and Mr. Jernigan smiled back.

"Daughter of the gentleman over there?" he asked, politely, waving his hand toward a clump of pines around a small white house.

"Yes, this is pa's place. From Norfolk?"

He swelled with the importance of the man who comes from a distance. "From Wellsville, Iowa. Fine state, Iowa."

"You are a long ways from home," she observed.

Mr. Jernigan drew down his mustache.

"An aunt just died down there—in Norfolk—consumption. Doctors sent her here, no money spared, none whatever, but I come on and buried her a week ago tomorrow. Aunt that brought me up."

"I'm cert'nly sorry she died," Ianthe said softly.

"Lamentable, lamentable, but we must all die, and she was past sixty. Pretty country you've got 'round here, Miss—er—Miss?"

"Did you walk down yonder road?" she asked with a sudden increase of interest. "Sweet honeysuckles is all in bloom over there, gullies on each side the road jus' filled with it, and yalluh jasmine climbin' over everything it can lay vines on—smelled as sweet as it looked, didn't it?"

"Very nice smell, very nice, indeed," agreed Mr. Jernigan, "but ain't yore pa goin' to be a little late with his kale for the Boston and New York markets?"

"I reckon," she answered. "Mos' folks round here are too late for the markets." She laughed a little as she added: "Pres' Lewis, who has the truck patch next our, never does get anything to market in time."

"I infer he don't prosper," said Mr. Jernigan. "I'd like to give him a few notions about trucking."

She turned to him quickly. "Would you? Oh, do—for pa can't put up with his bein' so way behind; pa'd like to be—be progressive, and Pres' frets him. You see, Pres' don't get on, no, he don't prosper, jus' as you say."

"Is there any—any special reason why he'd better be prospering?" Mr. Jernigan asked, looking delicately away toward Norfolk.

Ianthe picked up a long pole lying on the wharf near her; she bent back, and looked around the corner of the wharf prodded with the pole the mud where the tide still left uncovered oyster shells and various bits of debris.

"Well," she at last said frankly, "there's me."

"Quite a reason," he said gallantly. He looked at her attentively, and repeated, "quite a reason."

"Yes, I reckon I am," she agreed. "S'pose you do give Pres' some new ideas? I don't know as he could carry them out, but he could talk them to pa, and after all talk does about as well as goin' with pa. You tell me them, and I'll tell Pres'."

"Well, there's English walnuts—this sorter land and yore climate orter be just the thing for them," he began. In time he warmed to his topic, and Ianthe drank in his wisdom as eagerly as ever heathen drank in the gospel. But the sound of a horn at last broke in on the conference, and Ianthe lazily struggled to her feet.

"Ma's blowin' me up—well, 'm cert'nly obliged to you. You don't know any more for another time?"

"I don't know as—"

"Well, good-by," she interrupted. "Pres' will be obliged, too."

Mr. Jernigan looked at her wonderingly. "Talk about the selfishness of men," he thought, "women ain't made of anything but that self-same article." Aloud he said with dignity: "I am going to say I didn't know as I had anything mapped out yet, but of course I don't get to the end of my ideas in half an hour."

His tone seemed to remind Ianthe of the hospitable traditions of Virginia.

"Come along to supper," she suggested, "only don't talk to pa as if you knew much, or maybe he'll suspect Pres' didn't make up those fine new notions"

For many weeks after this Mr. Jernigan stayed in Norfolk, although he was badly needed in Wellsville. He spent his mornings conscientiously doing the many sights of the neighborhood—Soldiers' home at Hampton, Fortress Monroe, Hygeia hotel at Old Point, every one of which would have been run to far greater advantage had an Iowa man been at the head—and in the afternoons he taught Ianthe Yarbrough the essentials of progressive trucking. Her father had taken a liking—naturally—to him, and often he went to supper with the Yarbroughs. After supper he and the father sat on the front steps and smoked, while he watched—a little grimly—Ianthe and Pres' Lewis sauntering by the river. Pres' was a tall, dark, lazy-looking boy, who evidently had no quickness about accepting another man's cerebral fruits. He profited by the hints Ianthe gave him during the river bank strolls, and when Mrs. Yarbrough was through with the dishes he and Ianthe came to the steps, and new ideas scintillated. Over the porch of the little house grew a Mareschal Niel rose, its hundreds of buds making the air sweet, but Mr. Jernigan's bitter heart did not let him enjoy the sweetness. Yes, his heart was bitter. He said to himself as he sat listening to Pres' talk, sat watching Ianthe crush the rose leaves against her cheek, that his vexation referred purely to a matter of good sense. "Waste is what I can't stand—owe that to the back-East bringing up Aunt Mary had—and waste it surely would be for him to get that fair flower of the South!"

There had to come an end—Wellsville would no longer be put off, and one night when Mr. Jernigan went into the Yarbrough sitting room for his hat, after the usual placid evening on the steps, he made himself say: "Well, folks, I guess this is the end of my visits. I must get back—and come to Wellsville, all of you, and I'll see that you meet the elite."

They were all standing, but Ianthe dropped into a chair.

"Going—" she said.

Pres' turned to her—then the color rushed to his dark cheeks. He stepped toward Mr. Jernigan.

"You've been talking crops to her, you have? You've been making love to her—you've—"

Mr. Jernigan laid a hand on the boy's mouth. "Stop your fool talk," he said. "Miss Ianthe—"

Ianthe sprang to her feet. "I don't care two strawber's if you are goin' way—I don't, I don't," she cried, throwing open the door leading to the steep stairway, and then going upstairs as fast as she could.

Mr. Jernigan retreated dignifiedly. "I shall call upon you tomorrow," he said to the dazed Mr. Yarbrough. "Good night, Mrs. Yarbrough, ma'am—good night, Mr. Lewis. Let me wish you success in your trucking in case I don't see you tomorrow."

He did not take the road toward Norfolk. Through that misty gray light, the light that wraps one around, the light that the dwellers on the Elizabeth river call a June evening, he made his way to the wharf where he had first seen Ianthe. There were no guano bags there now, but he sat down on the planks where she had sat, and took up the long pole which still lay there. He laughed, whistled and sang as he whipped the water with the pole—sang with subdued nasality. "She don't—don't care—two strawber's—two strawber's—no, she don,t she don't." Then he drove the pole into the mud, and meditated. Ianthe was by him, Ianthe in the purple calico which made her eyes too look purple. "No calicos," he said suddenly. "Wellsville's best quality silk for Mrs. J. Archibald."

Freedom From Hose Troubles

It's watering time in the garden—and the tender buds occupy your thoughts. Little thought is there of the hose. Little need there be if it is Goodyear Cord Hose.

For this hose is free from trouble. Built like the famous Goodyear Cord Tire, it is both lively and more durable. Kink and tangle it will not. Burst and annoy it will not. Long-lasting is it, and so economical. Its slightly higher cost is overshadowed by its greater goodness.

New Treatment Now Advocated For Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures.

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapour that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRHOZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

How to Make a Service Flag.

Perhaps it is due to the familiar picture of Betsy Ross with the first American flag spread out upon her lap and George Washington and two of his friends looking on that gives us such a bias to the hand-made flag, but nevertheless, a sentiment attaches to it that belongs to no machine-made production. Very properly, we should feel about our service flag in this way. An 12x12-inch service flag may be made from one and a third yards of four-inch wide red ribbon, ten inches of white ribbon and enough blue to form the stars to which you are entitled. Cut the red ribbon into four pieces, two of 18 inches length and the other two so that they finish off four and a half inches, allowing for seams. Sew these strips together, inserting the white piece for the field. Then applique a blue star, or embroider it, according to desire. The white field will be varied in size in accordance with the number of stars used.

Servants In Paris.

Paris may be said to be to-day a servants' Eldorado. One would have thought with the thousands of women left in the metropolis to carry on the work of the men at the front it would be so difficult to find plenty of domestic help. The wages of domestic servants are quite as attractive as munition factory pay.

The most incompetent general servant can demand as much as $25 a month, without even so much as a blush. A capable general cook and what the French call a "bonne a tout fait," has no difficulty in obtaining even $40 or $50. This, considering the tremendously great cost of food and fuel, is a very princely wage.

All classes of servants are demanding more "time off," a thing which a French mistress doesn't readily understand. The good old custom of searching references and investigations of servants before hiring them seems to be gradually disappearing. A servant to-day is a servant, whether she carries a reference or not.

Saving the Workingman's Shoe Money—the Family's Feet

Shoe-costs have been mounting for the workingman. Work boots and children's boots keep going up in price.

And if they do give reasonable wear, the soles are stiff, clumsy and foot-hurting.

But now come Neōlin Soles for work boots and school boots, that wear longer—AND give greater comfort.

Thicker Neōlin Soles for the stouter style of boots—but soles that bend with the feet instead of crippling them.

Soles that are waterproof—health-protecting in damp places and on rainy days; holding water-soaked uppers in shape and so prolonging shoe-life.

Once you have tried Neōlin you will never wish to go back to old fashioned soles. Knowing Neōlin's qualities, you would even be willing to pay more to get these better soles.

Start now to cut your shoe-costs in two ways. Buy your new shoes with Neōlin Soles. Get out the shoes you have worn and have your repairman put on full-soles or half-soles of Neōlin.

Be sure you get genuine Neōlin by seeing the name on the bottom of the sole.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada, Ltd.

Neōlin-soled shoes are in most shoe stores. But you will find them more quickly by looking for this price-ticket in shoe-store windows.

DIDN'T TAKE THE HOLE.

But That Was Probably Because the Court Said They Shouldn't.

An amusing instance of legal sharp practice is set forth in the annals of Westerly, R. I. It occurred a hundred years ago, when, it seems, lawyers were quite as adroit at quibbling as certain of their successors are today.

A farmer of broken fortunes hired for cultivation a piece of land, agreeing to pay for the use thereof with a certain proportion of the crop. He planted potatoes and had an unusual degree of success. Being without a storeroom, he obtained the consent of a neighboring landholder and deposited his share of the potatoes in what farmers call a potato hole—that is, an excavation in the earth in which the potatoes are placed and covered with earth and straw in the form of a pyramid.

Shortly afterward he had occasion to go to Connecticut, and one of his creditors seized the opportunity to attach the potato hole.

Upon this another creditor bestirred himself and consulted a lawyer as to what could be done to secure his claim. The attorney was equal to the occasion. He secured the issuing of a second writ, by which an attachment was levied upon the potatoes in the potato hole, the documents specifically setting forth that the potato hole should be left upon the land where it was found.

The warrant was promptly served, and when the first creditor appeared upon the scene he found the potato hole, but not the potatoes.—Case and Comment.

DEMORALIZED THE ENEMY.

An Unexpected Charge That Resulted In Rout and Annihilation.

There have been many curious bits of strategy in warfare, but none more effective than the coup of the Terceirans when threatened by the Spaniards.

Early in the morning of the 25th day of July, 1581, the inhabitants of the village of St. Sebastian, Isle of Terceira, one of the Azores or western group, were alarmed at the sight of a squadron, consisting of seven large Spanish war galleons, anchored off the little bay at Salga, the operations for landing a hostile force being actually in progress.

Hastily summoning some companies of militia and collecting behind a neighboring knoll a large herd of semi-wild cattle from the neighboring pastures, the islanders quietly awaited the massing of the Spaniards on the beach.

When this had been accomplished, the Terceirans advanced close up to the foe, as if to the attack, when, suddenly opening out into two long columns and leaving a wide, open space between, the numerous cattle were sent thundering down the center, goaded on by picadors on horseback. So unusual and unexpected a charge threw the Spaniards into complete disorder, and, being at once set upon by the islanders, scarcely a man escaped to the ships, several guns which had been landed falling as spoil to the conquerors.—Exchange.

The Test of Art.

Where the weakness of the artistic life really lies is that it is often not taken up out of mere communicativeness and happy excitement, as a child tells a breathless tale, but as a device for attracting the notice and earning the applause of the world, and then it is on a par with all other self regarding activities. But if it is taken up with a desire to give rather than to receive as an irrepressible sharing of delight it becomes not a solemn and dignified affair, but just one of the most beautiful and uncalculating impulses in the world.—A. C. Benson in Century Magazine.

Strong Hack Saw Blades.

The layman watching a tiny hack saw blade working its way through a tough piece of steel is filled with wonder, for it seems like putting a tiny boy to do the task of a giant. The latest idea is that of making a saw which has a soft, flexible back with hard tempered teeth. At a test of the strength of this blade it was found that it would support two men, representing a total weight of 283 pounds, without breaking.

Histrionic Requirements.

"There is no reason for mentioning your name," said the eminent player. "You are a press agent; not an actor."

"Believe me," replied Mr. Boostington, "a press agent has to be some actor to convince a star that he believes all the things he hammers out on the typewriter."—Washington Star.

No Elopements in Germany.

One seldom hears of elopements in Germany, because it is impossible for young people to marry in that country without the consent of their parents or legal guardians. Certain prescribed forms must be gone through or the marriage is null and void. When a girl has arrived at what is considered a marriageable age her parents make a point of inviting young men to the house, and usually two or three are invited at the same time, so that the attention may not seem too pointed. No young man, however, is invited to the house until after he has called at least once and thus signified his wish to have social intercourse with the family. In Germany a man must be at least eighteen years old before he can make a proposal. But when it is made and accepted the proposal is speedily followed by the betrothal. This generally takes place privately, shortly after which the father of the bride—as she is then called—gives a dinner or supper to the most intimate friends of both families, when the fact is formally announced, and shortly after it becomes a matter of public knowledge.

Kink in the Back

You bend over and can scarcely get straightened up again. This comes on you so suddenly you can't understand it.

Th is is lumbago. Like backache and rheumatism, it is the result of poisons in the blood. The kidneys are deranged, but the use of Dr. Chases Kidney-Liver Pills will soon set them right. The pains and aches will disappear with the poisons when the kidneys do their work properly.

WEIGHT OF AIR.

One Cubic Foot of Atmosphere Weighs More Than an Ounce.

The common belief that air weighs nothing or almost nothing, a belief which has given rise to the simile "light as air," needs correction.

A toy balloon filled with a cubic foot of air weighs 564 grains more than the same balloon collapsed. This shows that the weight of a cubic foot of air is 564 grains, which is a good deal more than an ounce. Accordingly a small room (15 by 15 by 10) containing 2,250 cubic feet of air would weigh 2,900 ounces, or 183.7 pounds avoirdupois, as much as a large man. Could you lift a room full of air?

The air in an automobile tire under pressure of 150 pounds a square inch weighs proportionally ten times as much, while air under the pressure of fifty atmospheres weighs fifty times as much as an equal volume of ordinary air. When air is liquefied its volume is reduced to one sixteen-hundredth normal, so that the liquid is 1,600 times as heavy as gaseous air, or about as heavy as water.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Cats and Wildcats.

Wild cats are now rarities in Europe, though formerly they were comparatively common in most parts of the continent. The few survivors occur mostly in Hungary and occasionally in Spain and Greece. In Spain, by the way, the animals build nests in trees or among tall bamboos for the rearing of their young, though generally they prefer a crevice in a rocky country in which to make a lair. Our domesticated cat is not derived from the untamable European animal, but was introduced ready tamed from Egypt.—London Mail.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

Many ailments find their beginning in ing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to keep a torpid sluggish condition of liver, kidneys and bowels. As a matter of fact you can add years to the length of your life as well as comfort and happiness by using these organs regular and active.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESSING SACQUE.

Just a few yards of dotted swiss or flowered lawn, a bit of colored lawn or organdie for the trimmings and you will have as attractive a dressing sacque as any woman could desire. An excellent pattern for it is given in No. 8779, which requires very little material. The sacque buttons to the neck, which is finished with a collar having deep points at the front. A soft plait is taken at each side of the front to give extra fulness, and each is stitched as far as the bustline. Either the full length sleeves gathered into straight cuffs or the three-quarter length with roll cuffs may be selected.

The ladies' dressing sacque pattern No. 8779 is cut in six sizes—34 to 44 inches bust measure. As on the figure the 38 inch size requires 2¼ yards 36 or 40 inch, with ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

Gentle Consideration.

The sayings of little folk frequently are sage as well as suggestive. A literary magazine recalls the naive remark of "Penini" Browning, son of the famous poet, when, during some childish illness, his devoted mother bent anxiously above his bed.

"Think it's a little boy in the street," the child murmured, desiring to be of comfort, "and you won't feel so bad."

Land of the World.

The area of the earth is 199,712,000 square miles, of which only about 55,000,000 are land. The average altitude of all the land above sea level is 2,411 feet; hence if all the land above sea level—25,000,000 cubic miles—was spread uniformly over the globe it would form a shell 609 feet thick.

Untimely.

SITUATION ON THE ITALIAN FRONT IS VERY SATISFACTORY

The Enemy Attacking Forces Are Held By The Italians

Americans Repulse Several Enemy Attacks

Italian Troops Are Holding Their Lines In Spite of Powerful Attacks of the Austrians

Official Report Says the Enemy Lost Five Men to One of the Allies---Intense Fighting Continues All Along the Line Italians Are Counter Attacking Strongly--Premier Orlando Says the Situation is Reassuring.

THE AUSTRIANS ARE PAYING A BIG PRICE

(Special to Examiner)

ROME, June 17.—Italian troops and their allies are holding the enemy strongly, resisting him in new offensive and making repeated counter attacks said Premier Orlando in a statement in the chamber of deputies. During the day the enemy by a strong reaction hindered the counter offensive pressure of our troops and these of our allies on the Asiago plateau and in Monte Grappa region, said the Premier. The Austrians also attacked violently all along Piave in order to establish solid bridgehead on the right bank of the river. Our troops by tenacious resistance and repeated counter attacks, are strongly entrenched.

FIGHTING IS VERY BITTER ON ALL POINTS

ROME, June 17.—(Official)—Fighting along river Piave is most intense. Austrian troops which forced the Piave river, have been driven back. Premier Orlando in an interview said the Italians by strong counter attacks have regained the positions and strongly hold the enemy. Fighting very bitter on all positions in Mountain and Valley.

THE SITUATION IS VERY REASSURING

(Canadian Press)

ROME, June 17.—The situation on the Italian front is entirely very reassuring says a semi-official note issued today. It is added that the great battle which broke out aSturday, has but begun. Although having a strength of sixty divisions, the enemy attacking forces have not succeeded in passing the Italian advanced area at any point. The Austrian pressure continues very strong along the entire front. The enemy is centering most of his powerful attacks astride the Brenta and across the Piave.

The struggle is most bitter on the eastern slopes of Montello and west of Sandera-Piave.

THE AUSTRIANS SUFFERED HEAVY LOSSES

(Special to Examiner)

LONDON, June 17.—"The Austrians lost five men to our one" the war office declared today, in a report on Italian front operations. "The enemy used 29 divisions (348,000 men) between the Asiago Plateau and the Piave. Of the 58 divisions (696,000 men) employed on the whole battle front.

"British airmen have destroyed seven bridges.".

The twenty mile front from the Asiago plateau to the Piave river is held jointly by the British, French and Italian forces. The British apparently occupy most of the plateau region, while the French are in the Mount Grappa region, to the eastward. Italian troops evidently hold sectors between the plateau and the mountain and between the mountain and the river.

THE SITUATION IS HIGHLY SATISFACTORY

(Special to Examiner)

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN THE FIELD, June 17.—The situation is highly satisfactory," declared an officer in the British sector of the linen under assault by the Austrians today. Documents found on prisoners showed the Austrian objectives included hills three miles behind the British front.

Despite the fact the Austrians began their offensive after four days of rain and mist which rendered aerial observation almsot impossible, the Italians learned that the enemy artillery had been ordered to start firing at three A. M. Saturday, and a terrific Italian barrage was started at midnight. It was maintained for twenty minutes and appeared greatly to disorganize the enemy's concentrations.

The Austrians followed the German tactics of rushing up men in the last hoursr before the attack. One Italian army in the Trentino, faced 1,000 guns while 1,500 were concentrated between the Astico and the Brenta, a ten mile line.

Pending details from all points, it is difficult to gauge the results of the attack, but it is clear the Austrians were less successful than they expected from shch an effort. Allied airmen brought down thirty-four aeroplanes and three balloons since the drive began.

HINDENBURG TAKES A BLIND CHANCE

(By J. W. T. Mason—United Press Service)

NEW YORK, June 17.—Austria-Hungray's offensive against Italy has undoubtedly been ordered by Von Hindenburg as a final despairing effort to weaken the allies through forcing Italy to withdraw from the war before America's forthcoming offensive can be started.

Von Hindenburg has taken a blind chance at his new blood spilling. To compell Austro-Hungarians to slaughter themselves in what will almost certainly prove a futile adventure, is deliberately to stimulate disastrous domestic conditions with the dual Monarchy. For the practically negligible possibility of compelling Italy to sign a 'seperate peace. Von Hindenburg is risking an uprising in Austria-Hungary against German militaristic rule. So dangerous a gamble as this demonstrates that Von Hindenburg realizes time is fatally against him and that Germany must win by Autumn or not at all.

The Allies have been given a splendid opportunity to increase dissention in Austria-Hungary by holding fast along the Italian front. A slight gain of territory by the Austro-Hungarians, with th ecapture of a few thousand prisoners will never be accepted by Emperor Karl's subjects as sufficient justification for a heavy slaughter of Hapsburg troops. Stiff resistance such as has marked the Italian defense to the present, means the Austro-Hungarians have already paid expensively in casualties for the unimportant positions they have gained. A continuation of stubborn fighting, alone is necessary to make the rumblings of discontent grow louder in the dual Monarchy.

AIMS AT THE CAPTURE OF VENICE

"The Austro-Hungarian offensive apparently has for its immediate main objective the capture of Venice. The two railways lines nearest to Venice, from the Piave niver, are being strongly held by the Italians against powerful assaults. Venice is fifteen to twenty miles away from the main enemy attacks along the Piave. If the Austro-Hungarians can cross the Piave in force, it will require stiffened fighting by the Italians to save Venice, but for the present, most of the enemy are being held on the eastern bank of the river.

The capture of Venice, in itself, would be without value to the Austro-Hungarians, because nobody in Austria-Hungary believe it would be retained after the war.

The only purpose in seeking to seize Venice is to destroy Italian morale and compell a separate peace. There is no reason to believe that the loss of V nice would have such an effect on the Italians. Without

German Attacks Were Repulsed

Enemy Retired Before the Withering Fire of the Americans—Barrage Did Not Claim a Victim

INFANTRY ACTIVE

(United Press Service.)

(By Lowell Mellett.)

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, June 17.— American forces holding the Belleau Wood, beat off two German attacks within two hours yesterday morning. They inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, but got off without a scratch. The attacks followed a fruitless enemy assault about 9.30 Saturday night. A barrage announced a resumption of the effort about two o'clock yesterday morning. The Boches showed up at the edge of the wood, on schedule, but were driven off with a withering rifle and machine gun fire. The barrage failed to claim a victim and the enemy infantry did not get close enough to do any damage. The attempt was repeated at four o'clock. Following the usual barrage, the German infantry came slipping down a steep slope into a wheat field. As they broke from the field and rushed towards the wood, the American rifles and machine guns drove them back. They fled in disorder.

Increase In The Price Of Meat

Peterboro' Prices Due For a Jump of Five Cents a Pound

The retail price of beef will probaly be advanced five cents a pound this week as a result of the advance of the wholesale prices from 28c to 33c per pound. This advance is made on account of the scarcity of cattle brought about by the immense shipments of beef to England. A bright future for lower prices is predicted by some of the butchers, however, in about a month's time.

Mr. James Jopling, who has a large herd of cows reports that the grass fed cattle are doing splendidly and in consideration of the fact that grass-feeding costs practically nothing, the price ought to come down in July.

HOGS DOWN.

Hogs took a drop this morning, live weight bringing 17 1-4c per pound against 21c last week. Dressed hogs brought 29 1-2c last week, and will probably be lower this week.

SHEEP STEADY.

Lamb remains steady but is yet out of reach of the ordinary consumer. The farmers are killing very few as a result of the high prices paid for wool. One shearing brings in as much as a whole sheep did formerly.

To economise on tea you should use only the genuine Salada. A pound of Salada yields so many more cups than does ordinary tea that it is a real saving compared to the ordinary tea.

PRICES WILL BE ADJUSTED

New Method to Be Adopted Throughout the Dominion —Standardized Prices

WILL PUBLISH LISTS

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, June 17.—That price fixing which shall be general throughout the Dominion cannot be long delayed is a theory which is gaining ground here notwithstanding the fact that the Food Controller has not been an advocate of the system. The declared intention of the United States Food Administration Department to fix prices in all departments of food supply to protect the consumer, is an example which is almost bound to be followed in Canada.

In the United States standardized price lists are to be published in every city, town, hamlet, county and township in the county for the protection of the merchant and consumer. These lists are to be made up by price interpreting committees comprised of representatives of the wholesalers, retailers and consumers. The interpreting board in each locality will ascertain fair retail prices on the basic commodities that make up a large portion of the people's diet.

Will Publish Lists.

The published lists will give the range of maximum selling prices, showing a reasonable low price which will affect charges which will rule in cash and carry stores, and a high price representing a fair charge at credit and delivery stores. Tradesmen on the boards are to be appointed by their own trades and will serve with a representative of the consuming interests, the local food administer acting as chairman. Retail members of the committee will represent both kinds of stores. Each board will have detailed reports of actual wholesale prices and will asceitain fair margins of profit that should be made by the retailer.

The final "fair price" news will receive wide publicity in the newspapers. Any reports on complaints of over-charging will, if proven, be followed by the prompt cutting off from the offender of his wholesale supplies. In every community price reporters are being appointed charged with the duty of keeping watch upon store prices and reporting any deviation from the fair price list.

A Fair Price.

This method of assuring consumers that the prices they pay represent no more than cost of production plus handling and a reasonable profit, will, it is fully believed here be adopted in Canada with probably some modifications. The Dominion Food Board has already instituted a licensing system of retail stores. The price fixing may be considerably facilitated by this fact. Any over-charging after prices have been standardized might be followed by cancellation of the license of the store found guilty.

Will Ease Up On The Farmers

Authorities Will Give Farmers a Chance to Get Harvest Off

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, June 17.— It is stated that an official announcement will shortly be made that care will be taken to have the enforcement of the Military Service Act press as lightly as possible upon the farmers, at least till after this year's harvest, but at the same time reinforcements must be maintained. Seventy thousand men have now been recruited under this Act, and the maximum mentioned in the Act is a hundred thousand.

(Special to Examiner)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Submarine patrol vessels resembling a cross between a Ford Eagle boat and a destroyer will be built to meet the costal U-boat raid danger if plans now being urged in the navy department materialize.

Assistant secretary of the navy, Roosevelt, who sponsored the submarine chaser plan, is the proponent of this new type of craft and he is urging on other chiefs the need not alone of trying out this variety, but also of experimenting with several varieties which can be turned out quickly

The eagle destroyer variety would be about 250 feet long, constructed largely along destroyer lines with thin plates, and high speed. The tonnage and engine power are withheld less they give an indication of the size and power of the eagle boat.

Corp. Heaslip Falls In Action

Well Known Peterboro' Boy Meets Death in France After Being Wounded Three Times

Word has been received in the city that Corporal Reginald Ralph Heaslip, of the 31st Battalion, Calgary, has been killed in action. Corp. Heaslip was a son of Mr. P. J. Heaslip, 541 Gilmour Street. He enlisted in December, 1914, in a Calgary battalion. Captain W. H. Varley, Ordnance Department, Tank Corps, Paris, is a brother-in-law. Corp. Heaslip was widely known in the city. He went out west about three years before the war broke out. He had been at the front since the autumn of 1915, and had been three times wounded, returning to the firing line after each trip to the hospital. The official message stated that Corp. Heaslip was killed in action on June 6th. The news of his death will be a shock to a large circle of friends. Mr. Fred. Heaslip, of the Quaker Oats Co., Saskatoon, at present on a visit to his home here, is a brother of the deceased.

Local Workers Are Being Paid

Deputy Registrars in Peterborough Are Not All Volunteers

That a number of deputy registrars are being phid for their work in Peterboro, is brought out as a result of some correspondance between Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and the department. It has repeatedly been stated that some of the local deputy registrars were being paid for their services, while a number are volunteers, working without remuneration of any kind.

In reply to Mr. Burnham's request for information the department stated that Mr. F. H. Dobbin, local registrar, had been instructed to secure a number of paid workers providing he was unable to secure a sufficient force of volunteers. Mr. Burnham is of the opinion that the names of the volunteer workers be published for obvious reasons.

FRANK JENNE SAYS—

I was speaking about weddings last night. Besides the suit I suggested for the groom-to-be, I want to mention a few of the accessories—such as neckwear, gloves, hose and fine shirts. A complete rnge of each in accord with fashion's latest dictates, at my store. "Come to me."

Artillery Activity Reported On The Western Battlefront

French Improved Positions and Took 100 Prisoners—American Troop Movement Subject of Comment.

"AMAZING SCENES"

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 17.—A successful raid was carried out last night east of Arras by the British, who took prisoners, it is announced officially. The statement follows:

"We carried out a successful raid last night east of Arras and captured a few prisoners. A raid attempted by the enemy yesterday morning in the neighbourhood of Givenchy was repulsed. For a short period during the night the enemy's artillery heavily bombarded the positions north-west of Albert. Elsewhere only minor activity was reported."

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 17.—French troops improved their positions north and north-west of Hautenbraye, between the Oise and the Aisne, in local operations and some machine guns were seized and some machine guns were taken, says an official statement issued to-day. German attacks were repulsed in the Caviere Wood and in the Vosges. The statement reads:

"Between the Oise and the Aisne rivers the French succeeded in carrying out early to-day a local operation, which resulted in the improvement of the French line north and north-west of Hautenbraye. The French took one hundred prisoners and captured several machine guns. In the Caviere Wood and in the Vosgts our troops repulsed enemy surprise attacks. There is nothing to report from the rest of the front."

FORCE WIPED OUT.

(By Frank J. Taylor—United Press).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 17.—More than a third of the large force of Germans which attacked Xivray at daybreak yesterday was wiped out, it was established to-day. Eight hundred Boches participated in the attack, which was made on a half-mile front, extending on both sides of the village. The enemy losses were estimated at more than 300 as a result of the American rifle and machine gun fire.

SCENES WERE AMAZING.

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, June 17.—"Arrivals of American troops in the past few days have eclipsed all records," the Post declared to-day.

It is considered purely as a shipping feat. It is something hitherto never accomplished in merchantile annals. The week-end scenes at one army post were amazing.

"SAMMIES" WILL VISIT CANADA

A Complete Unit Will Visit Number of Canadian Cities.

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 17. — A complete battalion of "Sammies" from the State of Washington is on the Pacific Coast and will pass through Canada during the latter part of the moth, and on the way through will visit Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, and Montreal, and will be reviewed at these points. This will be the first complete American unit to pass through Canada from west to East.

The Cabinet Has Resigned

Premier of Bulgaria Failed to Take Advantage of Recent Peace Imposed on Roumania

NEW CABINET

Canadian Press.

SOFIA, June 17.—Via Amsterdam—Premier Radoslavoff has tendered the resignation of the Cabinet and King Ferdinand has accepted it. The ministers were requested by the King to retain their portfolios until a new cabinet is formed. The downfall of Premier Radoslavoff most probably is due to feeling in that country, he did not make most of his opportunities when peace was forced on Rumania.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN BELLEVILLE

Well-Known Comedian is Now in Aviation Service.

Calmly walking up and down the front street and gazing into the shop windows was a figure familiar to all "movie" fans in Belleville yesterday. Charlie Chaplin, the million dollar comedian, has been drafted into Britain's armies and is now training at Camp Mohawk as an aviator. Gone is his moustache and his alligator walk. He would be hardly recognizable now except for his drawn face, which is familiar to everybody who patronizes the picture palace. His uniform fits him to a "T." His trousers are neatly folded under the regulation army puttees and his head is adorned with a dinkly little cap which completely transforms his appearance. Charlie has made two or three solo flights, and expects to go over very soon to fight the Huns. If he is as great a success in the army as he was in the movie line, the Germans will undoubtedly desert the sector to which Charlie's flight is attached.

Employees' Co-operation Day At Cressmans'

As a result of Employees' Co-operation day at Cressmans' on Saturday, the employees each received an extra envelope today. The amount distributed was between nine and ten dollars and the distribution was extended to take in every helper in the business, those who are employer only one, two or three days a week as well as all the regular employees.

The firm as well as the employees are exceptionally well pleased with the result of the days business and still better pleased that the idea of profit co-operation inagurated was so successfully supported. Another distribution by the firm will be made at the end of their business year based on the results of the different departments and their efficiency.

SWORN TO AND GUARANTEED

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY JUNE 17TH, 1918.

A SENSELESS REGULATION.

It has been announced that the National Service Registration regulations are to apply to American tourists visiting Canada who are to be compelled to visit the post office and be registered. Already hotelkeepers in Toronto have been notified that they will be allowed to keep tourists without registration cards over-night, but must notify their guests the next morning that they will have to take out registration cards. Ottawa has been responsible for some senseless regulations but this order would seem to be beyond the limit. What useful object can be served by compelling United States visitors, to Stoney Lake for instance, to visit a post office and answer a lot of questions as to their age, occupation, familiarity with farm work and so on? The information will be valueless, for these people are only visitors for a few weeks whose service cannot be called upon, and the order will be a source of annoyance to tourists coming to Canada. They already have troubles enough with passports and customs regulations without having to go through the foolish procedure of supplying information that will be of no value to anyone.

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS.

It is reported from Ottawa that the Dominion Government is shortly to introduce into Canada the war savings stamp system, which has proved such a success in the United States. This matter has been advocated for some time as a method that would not only bring in a surprisingly large sum of money for war purposes, but also inculcate in many people who have not been economical, the habit of saving. It has had these effects in the United States where this source of revenue has been in use for many months. The system is simple. The war stamps are for sale at small amounts or are given in lieu of change in stores. The purchaser pastes his stamps in a book in the manner in which trading stamps used to be disposed of, and when a certain number has been reached the stamps may be exchanged for a war stamp certificate of a value to a certain percentage in excess of the price paid for the stamps. The desirability of this plan lies in the fact that it allows even the poorest citizen to help in war work and at the same time to learn the lesson of saving. In the United States stamps can be purchased for twenty-five cents, and the people have been educated to refrain from many useless expenditures in order that they may devote the money to the purchase of stamps. The result has been a surprise to the most optimistic supporter of the plan, for the war savings stamps are bringing millions into the United States treasury. The introduction of the scheme in Canada is a step in the right direction and the government should lose no time in inaugurating the system.

PRAYING FOR THE ENEMY.

There has been considerable comment over the resolution passed by the Presbyterian General Assembly last week deciding to include the Germans in the scope of the supplications to be offered on Sunday, June 30, the day appointed as a national time for intercession. The view was expressed at the Assembly that prayer for the enemy was a Christian obligation. The Rev. James Taylor, of Braeside, who introduced the matter, remarked that his suggestion was not pro-German but pro-humanity.

Strongly opposed to the decision of the General Assembly, however, is Capt. (Rev.) J. D. Morrow, a Presbyterian chaplain, recently returned from overseas, whose objection to prayers for the Hun is stated as follows:

"Let the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church meet in London, England, instead of London, Ontario, in one of those bomb-wrecked churches, the parishioners of which, in numberless cases, have lost their nearest and dearest through the foulest practices of the bomb-dropping Hun. Then the General Assembly would scarcely pass resolutions calling upon Canadian Presbyterians to pray for the Germans. I would dearly love to hear what sort of resolution would be made or what kind of prayers would be uttered for the Huns overhead as they drop their bombs, wiping out our schools, homes and hospitals. I think we had better pray for some people in the General Assembly when we hear such talk.

"Yes, I'll pray for the Hun, but it will be when our Canadian boys are bombarding Berlin.

The Toronto Telegram also finds fault with the action of the Presbytery in the following vigorous editorial:

"Canadian Presbyterians are urged to pray for the Germans on June 30, after the manner in which the late John Knox prayed for the enemies of the Scottish kirk in his day and generation.

"It is not recorded that John Knox popularized himself with his foes by the fervor of his prayers for their well-being. And John Knox would sooner have had both knees on the necks of his enemies than to have these knees bent in prayer for the prosperity of these enemies.

"May the prayers of Canadian Presbyterians bring no more strength to the enemies of liberty than the prayers of John Knox brought to the enemies of the Scottish Reformation."

RED TRIANGLE PRAISED.

The Y.M.C.A. war work at the front has a warm friend in Lieut. John Quinney, formerly of the 27th Battalion and the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles. Lieut. Quinney, who was first regimental sergeant-major of his unit, and afterwards awarded a commission, is the man whose courageous exposure of conditions on Canadian transports, and whose open letter to Sir Robert Borden on the subject led to an investigation of the alleged abuses, and he has therefore proved himself to be a soldier of strong convictions, whose opinion on any subject is to be respected. His testimony to the work done by the Red Triangle in France is interesting and important, in view of the controversy that has been going on for some time.

In a letter to a Toronto paper, Lieut. Quinney, after referring to what the Y.M.C.A. had done for his battalion at Tuxedo Park, Winnipeg, speaks of the work done in England and France as follows:

"In England, at Otterpool Camp, their tent was always filled with appreciative Tommies, their refreshments were good, and cheap. I speak from my own experience as I drank and ate there often, their stock was good, and if prices had not been right I would have heard of it, as the boys came to me with their complaints. As to France and Flanders, we did not have a Y.M.C.A. canteen until late in 1915, and I remember well my lads complained of the exorbitant prices charged by the Belgian shopkeepers for chocolates, candies, etc. Now, as everyone knows, when Tommy is in billets a candle is very useful, and are used quite a lot, and they were charged two pennies (four cents) for each candle at that time. I personally brought these things to the brigadier's notice, with the result that he assisted the Y. M. C. A. to start a canteen. And in less than two weeks the men could buy candles for a halfpenny each (one cent), just a quarter of what they paid before, whilst chocolates could be had for about half the prices paid to shopkeepers, and they were much better quality. And everything they sold caused the shopkeepers to take a big tumble in their high prices.

"This happened at Locre and Kemmel Shelters, the scene of some of the present heavy fighting, and can be corroborated by any of the Second Division, who were there at the time. And anyone who remembers the cold, rainy weather in the winter of 1915, with poor billets, know how glad we were to have some place to go to meet one another, play the piano, sing our trench songs and smoke our heads off, and I want to say right here, if anyone should know of the benefits the men derive from these good people, the sergeant-major is that one, for he is, practically speaking, the colonel of the N.C.O.'s and men. And speaking from what I saw out there, I cannot find words strong enough to thank Colonel Birks and his organization for what they have done, and are still doing. I spent two Christmas Days in the trenches, and each year each company in my brigade had a big dinner, all together, in the one building. And that building was always the Y.M.C.A. hut, and they always furnished hot cocoa, coffee, or tea on those occasions free of charge. We, of course, furnished the food; but without those huts these pleasant dinners would have been impossible. And I sincerely hope the Huns have not destroyed those huts in the recent fighting.

"Speaking as an officer I can say I have censored thousands of letters my men sent home, and I can truthfully say I have never known a solitary man to speak of the Y.M.C.A. in anything but the highest terms. I have had charge of working parties at night, and return back to billets from front line about two and three in the morning, with the men wet through to the skin, cold and hungry, with the cooks in bed and no fires burning in the company cook wagons. Many a time I have taken my party (often about one hundred and twenty-five) to the Y.M.C.A. hut and roused them up, and in about twenty minutes the boys had hot drinks to wash down their Massey-Harris (cheese) and bread or biscuit. And I know it was always furnished free, and given with a good heart and a smile.

Those who were at Camp A and F in the early spring of 1916 will remember the movie shows there, and how we enjoyed seeing our friend, Charlie Chaplin. It helped to pass many a weary night away, and the show in Bailleul has entertained many thousands of British and Canadians, and that was done by the Y.M.C.A. and the good old padres. In fact, Mr. Editor, I could fill up a whole page with praise of the work of the "Y"—but will close now. But will heartily endorse all the good words said about the Salvation Army and their noble work for our boys, and, personally, I think all returned soldiers should get together and insist that the Government give them more official recognition and help, than what they are receiving at present.

AN OLD DUTCH LEGEND.

How Jantje the Bellringer Saved Sluis From the Spaniards.

An old statue in the steeple near the bells at Sluis, in Holland, which was originally erected in honor of Jantje van Sluis, is worked by mechanical means, which cause it to strike the bell at every hour and a half with a hammer.

Jantje was a bellringer and watch man during the eighty years' war with Spain. On the night of June 12, 1600, Du Terrail, a Spanish captain, resolved to recover Sluis, the principal fortress of Zeeland, from Prince Maurice of Orange, who had conquered it two years previously.

When the clock struck nine it was arranged that the Spanish soldiers should sound a false alarm at one gate in order to draw the Dutch soldiers away from another, thus leaving a means of ingress for the enemy.

Providentially Jantje forgot to wind up the clock till late in the evening, and, being terribly afraid of ghosts, he did it so lustily that he damaged the works. Another story avers that he was intoxicated, the result of Sluis fair, which had been held on that afternoon.

Be that as it may, Terrail waited in vain to hear the familiar striking of the old clock, and thus the attack was put off till midnight. In the meantime the garrison had suspected something amiss and were on the alert. Consequently the Spaniards were repulsed with great loss.

Jantje had accidentally saved his town, and to honor him his fellow citizens erected the bell ringing statue to his perpetual memory.—London Tatler.

Climate and Consumption.

In a treatise on the relationship of air to tuberculosis, issued by the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. Guy Hinsdale says there is no specific climate for tuberculosis. The important things are pure air and sunshine. A climate in which the humidity varies greatly is to be avoided. The best combination is one of low humidity and moderately cool temperature.

Might Have Boosted Prices.

"I suppose it is annoying when a man goes out because you haven't something cheaper."

"Yes," said the small merchant. "But what gives you heart disease is when a fellow goes out because you haven't something more expensive."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Nerves and Battle.

It is claimed that the nerves of city dwellers stand the stress of battle better than men who have lived in the country. The explanation is that the city type of man has become habituated to noise, and terrific noise is an element of battle.

SECOND GAME.

Manager Louis Yeotes was a happy man in the second game—not only because his Thistle team won, but because they played snappy ball in the field and at bat. Three years ago Maunger Yeotes had another Thistle team in the City League which chased ...ts City all season for the honours and then went away to the war. Every member of that organization who was fit for active service answered the call. One has made the supreme sacrifice in France, two others have been invalided home after being wounded, and the rest of Manager Yeotes' outfit are still carrying on "over there."

Manager Art Johnston was also happy on Saturday because his aggregation of juveniles gave a remarkably good account of themselves, even if the Thistles drew away from them on end. The Oriental manager trotted out a team of youngsters, and in the early stages they were in the hunt all the way. In fact the score was 4 to 4 at the end of the Oriental's half of the sixth, but the Thistles' clubs began to swing then, and aided by the "kids'" errors, the winners ran up a big score.

Neary did the twirling for the Yeotes aggregation, and although he held the youngsters to three singles, his lack of control kept him in difficulties. He walked eight men and hit three others, a total of eleven charities. However, the Thistles gave him good support and he was not in danger after the sixth.

Galbraith, the left-handed youngster, who twirled for the Orientals, showed a lot of stuff in the early stages although he weakened on end. His drop ball baffled the Thistle sluggers for the first five innings, and in the third he retired Cherrett, McLeod and Mahood in a row on strikes. The young southpaw is a most promising pitcher, and his battery mate, Bergoine, also showed class.

Cherrett's fast play on Lewis' grounder over second, two nice catches by McNeely in left for Orientals, and some good fielding by Jackson at first base for the Thistles, were the fielding features.

Neary's wildness got him into a hole in the first innings when he opened by passing Thorndyke and Long. A double steal and McNeely's grounder to Cherrett, whose throw Thorndyke beat to the plate, gave the Orientals a counter. Green walked again, filling the bases after Lewis had fanned, but Neary got out nicely by whiffing Webb and Chapman.

The Thistles evened up in their half when Cherrett beat out a bunt, stole second and went on to third when no one covered for Burgoine's throw, and came home on Mahood's bunt to Long, who threw low to the plate. Shaw fanned and Galbraith retired the side by picking Mahood off second.

The Thistles evened up in their half when Cherrett beat out a bunt, stole second and went on to third when no one covered for Burgoine's throw, and came home on Mahood's bunt to Long, who threw low to the plate. Shaw fanned and Galbraith retired the side by picking Mahood off second.

The winners went ahead in the third. Neary opened with a single and stole second going to third when Bergoine had to throw to first on Cherrett's third strike, and scoring on a wild pitch.

In the fifth the Thistles added another brace. Cupoli started with a hit and stole second. Galbraith's wild throw to the middle sack, and Webb's bad peg to third allowed him to complete the circuit. Cherrett doubled over Chapman's head and reached third when Green threw high to that base. McLeod bunted safely and then Cherrett scored on a wild pitch. Mahood walked, but Galbraith got out at the hole by fanning Shaw and getting Bartley on a fly to McNeely.

The Orientals evened it up in the first half of the sixth. With one down Green walked and stole second and Webb was hit. Chapman's single past third scored Green and sent Webb to third, from which station he scored on a passed ball. Chapman stole third and came home with the tying run when, after Bergoine had fanned, Galbraith bounced a hit off Mahood. Thorndkye singled and Long was hit, filling the bases, but McNeely was out on a bunt to McLeod.

With one down in their half the Thistles cut loose with a batting rally which, aided by some loose fielding, gave them six runs. Jackson, Neary and Cupoli singled in a row for the first counter, and Cherrett's single filled the bases again. McLeod bunted and Cupoli was nailed at the plate. Mahood hit to Green, who threw low to Bergoine, and Neary and Cherrett scored. Shaw's single down the first line sent McLeod and Mahood over, and Shaw scored himself on Green's high throw to third. Bartley ended the agony by striking out.

There was another avalanche in the eighth. Neary singled went to third on Lewis' miss of Bergoine's throw, and to third on a passed ball. Cherrett flew out to Connors, McLeod drew a pass. Mahood hit to Galbraith and Neary was out at the plate, but singles by Shaw, Murphy and Jackson, and Chapman's error on Bartley's fly to right, sent five counters over. The box score:

Why Russian Armies Dissolved.

As discipline was removed, the soldier began to wonder why he was at the front and could find no reason. There, on every side, were German agents, ready with forcible arguments to prove to him that he was there only because England had forced Russia into the war. Where the men were especially ignorant, the most outrageous lies were told them. Every day the German aeroplanes dropped newspapers into the Russian trenches. These papers were printed in Russian and were called by the names of various Russian newspapers. One I remember particularly was called the Pravda (the Right). Among other things it said that England had brought about and financed the revolution, and had forced the Czar to abdicate, because Sir George Buchanan was to be made Czar; that England already had Archangel and had taken possession of the whole northern part of Russia; that she was allowing her allies, the Japanese, to take possession of Siberia as far as the Ural Mountains; that President Wilson was trying to resist the money interests in America, who were forcing him into the war; that the English laborers were all on strike and that peace riots were occurring daily all over England.

The more intelligent among the soldiers did not believe all that was published in these papers, but among the great mass at the front were found many who believed every word

As to "Sights."

A teacher of English criticised an essay written by a girl pupil in which the girl used the word "eyesight."

"What other kind of sight could there be except 'eyesight?'" asked the teacher.

Rising to the challenge, the pupil replied, "Well, there are foresight and hindsight."—Indianapolis News.

Foolish Suggestion.

"You ought to typewrite your poetry," said the harsh editor

"Great Scott!" replied Mr. Penwiggin "If I were expert enough to do that kind of typewriting do you think I'd be putting in my time on poetry?"—Chicago News

PICTURESQUE ICE FIELDS.

Scenic Beauties of Uncle Sam's Glacier National Park.

That the ice fields of Glacier National park present some of the best examples of active glaciers now found in the United States, is a statement made by W. C. Alden in a government pamphlet. "They have a splendid setting in magnificent alpine scenery," says Mr. Alden, "unsurpassed in grandeur anywhere. Hidden away in the recesses of the mighty mountain ranges these rare and wonderful features form a climax to many of the interesting trips open to the tourist.

"There are in the park about ninety small glaciers, ranging in size from Blackfeet glacier, with its three square miles of ice, down to masses but a few acres in extent, yet exhibiting the characteristics of true glaciers.

"After examining these features one can easily picture to himself as he looks down the valleys the great rivers of ice which in ages past cascaded from the cliffs below the upper cirques, converged as tributaries from the many branch valleys and united in great trunk glaciers. In imagination he can see these great glaciers, many hundreds of feet in depth, filling the great mountain valleys from side to side and deploying thence upon the bordering plains. He seems to see these mighty engines plucking away the rock ribs of the mountains, smoothing, grinding and polishing the irregularities and sweeping away the debris to be spread on the plains below. These glaciers developed and extended three times and, after each development, the congealed masses melted away on the return of milder climatic conditions, until at length only the small cliff glaciers of the present day are left lurking in the protected recesses at the heads of the capacious valleys.

"Many of the rock walled amphitheaters are no longer occupied by ice, but from all there issues streams fed by the melting snow or ice. These plunge over the cliffs in beautiful, foaming cascades and rush on down the mountain gorges. The melting glaciers left many inclosed basins, large and small, and in these the waters rest awhile, and mirror in their crystal depths the dark green of the surrounding forests, the rich colors of the rugged mountain walls and the deep blue of the cloud flecked sky. On, again, from lake to lake, the waters flow and finally start down their long courses to the sea to merge at length with the chill waters of Hudson bay, the balmy tides of the Gulf of Mexico or the rolling billows of the Pacific."

German Soldiers Yell by Orders.

Here is a curious instance of the German way of doing things. The German military system does not take into account the natural impulse of a charging, excited trooper to yell anyway under the vociferous conditions of a battle. He is commanded to yell as part of the shock action to which each man must contribute to make overpowering. During the winter schooling he is equally is drilled in individual charging to yell at a certain point in the charge and is severely criticised if he does not make noise enough. It is the same with singing. The Germans are naturally a musical people and sing spontaneously, but with regiments in the field songs are started and stopped by command.—World's Work.

Mending a Broken Nose.

Dr. O. A. Lathrop of Boston reports to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal on a remarkable operation by which he straightened a baseball player's nose that had been smashed by a bat. He cut a strip of bone two inches long and a quarter of an inch wide from the inner edge of the man's shoulder blade and inserted this in his nose. Four weeks later the graft had entirely healed and the nose had assumed its normal shape and color.

Good Advice.

"What would you say," said the prophet of woe, "if I were to tell you that in a very short space of time all the rivers in this country would dry up?"

"I would say," replied the patient man, "go and do thou likewise."—Stray Stories.

Confusing.

Tommy Figgjam—Paw, doesn't "reverse" mean to "back?" Paw Figgjam—Well, yes, it does. Tommy Figgjam—Then, what did Uncle Bill mean when he said that he posted up in sadness because he had too many reverses and not enough backing?—Chicago Post.

BALKED THE RIVER

The Dam That Forced the Colorado Back Into Its Bed.

WAS BUILT IN RECORD TIME.

Every Minute Counted In Rushing to Completion This Engineering Marvel In Order to Save Some 600,000 Acres of New Farms From Destruction.

Word came to Tucson in the still of the winter of 1907 that the Colorado river was keeping an old threat and was sweeping into the dry Salton sink of Lower California at the rate of 44,000 cubic feet to the second. Already there was a lake fifty miles in length, fifteen miles wide, 100 feet deep in the center.

Washington was alarmed. It looked as if the entire Imperial valley—a Holland in America, below the level of the sea and one of the richest farming spots in all the west—was to be inundated.

Theodore Roosevelt buried his pride and asked E. H. Harriman for help. Harriman did not have to bury any pride when he turned to Randolph and ordered him to do the job.

Randolph was having one of his "bad turns" at that time. But he is enough of a soldier to obey orders, and he went to the Salton sink flat on his back in his private car.

From that bed Epes Randolph built one of the world's great dams. In this day, when there are many huge impoundings, that may seem a broad statement. Men may think of the dams across the Nile or the Mississippi, the mighty structures of Panama and of the New York city waterworks, but not one of these was built under pressure.

Epes Randolph's dam was built under a stop watch and in fourteen days and twenty-one hours. In fourteen days and twenty-one hours he had placed 250,000 cubic feet of rock and gravel in the gap, all at a cost of something like $1,000,000. But the Colorado had been stopped and, like a naughty child, forced back into its old bed.

Once during the work Roosevelt by wire had asked Harriman how the job was getting on. The railroader replied that if the dam was not completed within five more days it never would be and 600,000 acres of fine, new farms would be forever lost. And when the president of the United States asked the then president of the Southern Pacific if the work would be done within five days Harriman replied that he had Epes Randolph on the job and that Epes Randolph had not yet known failure.

Epes Randolph was indeed on the job. He lay on his bed at the edge of the muddy flood and gave orders—thousands and thousands of orders in a single day. In the first place, the rock and gravel had to be brought a long way, and it was Epes Randolph who gave the directions under which the hundreds of gravel trains moved.

They closed the main line of the Southern Pacific and all its branches to travelers; they took the engines off freight trains up and down the lines wherever they could find them. They sent north to San Francisco and east to Houston and New Orleans for more engines and for flat cars by the mile. This flood tide of gravel traffic a master mind operated with his left hand; with his right he built the dam.

Before his car moved back to Tucson again he got out of bed and went out upon the work. Out toward the end of the embankment, steadily advancing across the path of the truant river, a group of men were struggling with a fine new steel car that had become derailed at the end of the temporary track.

"How long have you been trying to save that car?" asked Randolph.

"Twelve minutes," replied the foreman.

"Let it go," came the order from the chief. "Twelve minutes' time on this job is worth more than a hundred cars."

And so the car went down under some thousands of tons of rock and gravel that went to hold back the mighty Colorado from the haven that it coveted.—Metropolitan Magazine.

A LANDMARK IN PARIS.

St. Gervais Was Church Bombarded by Long-Range German Gun.

The Paris church bombarded on Good Friday is noted both as one of the most beautiful and ancient architectural monuments of the city, and as having for its vicar one of the most remarkable and best-loved priests of the day. The cure of St. Gervais is respected, loved, admired by men of all creeds. His simple goodness, his energy, his large-heartedness, his self-sacrificing life, draw all men to him. The service, which had called so many people, even those of differing creeds, together on that fatal Good Friday had been specially arranged with a view to gaining added funds for the ambulance St. Gervais, the good cure's war hospital. For the famous Chauteurs de St. Gervais—the members of the choir-school where the music of the time and style of Palestrin's unaccompanied plain song, alone is studied—forced by the war to interrupt their work gave their first public recital since its outbreak on Good Friday of last year for the same object. This year, on Good Friday, their numbers yet more decreased, they gathered again at the service that was to prove so fatal.

The first sacred edifice on the site of this fine old church was a small chapel built in the sixth century to shelter the bones of two brothers, Gervavius and Protarius, martyrs of the time of Nero. The chapel was beyond the city boundary then. A church succeeded the chapel. A beautiful Gothic church was built on the site in the twelfth century, of which the charniers, their fine moulding crumbling away, are the last remaining vestiges. The walls we know, the beautiful Gothic arches, the wonderfully tall pillars, the high-valuted roof, now, alas, lying prone, shattered by the enemy shell, date from the closing years of the fifteenth and the early years of the sixteenth century. The glorious stained glass is chiefly sixteenth-century work. The grand facade, a Renaissance frontage, clapped on to a Gothic building, with pillars of the three orders, Doric, Ionian, Corinthian, superimposed, was added by the renowned architect Simon la Brosse in 1616.

The church has many historical associations. In the Chapelle Doree, its walls lined with fine Flemish paintings in richly moulded gilt frames, the girl of fifteen destined to become Madame de Maintenon was married to the crippled but kind-hearted and strangely clever satirist Scarron. At the revolution, the insurgent mob attacked the beautiful pillars, tried to shake them down. Cracks then made are still plainly visible. Robespierre, anxious, no doubt, for his own safety and that of other revolutionists in the vicinity, ordered them to cease their efforts.

On the square before the church is a tree; a tree is figured in the iron railing of the balconies on houses near—a memorial of the big elm tree beneath the shade of which in long past days men of law sat or stood to administer justice in the Place St. Gervais. Hence the expression, Attendre sous Orme, i.e., "to wait beneath the elm tree," used in reference to tardy justice in law.

WHO ARE THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS?

A SKETCH OF THE GREAT CATHOLIC SOCIETY THAT IS CO-OPERATING WITH Y.M.C.A

(By James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus)

The Knights of Columbus is a fraternal insurance organization, founded in New Haven, Connecticut in 1882 by a Catholic priest, Michael J. McGivney. Membership is open to Roman Catholics only, and the society was incorporated in the State of Connecticut March 29, 1882, with the following purposes: To render pecuniary aid to its members and beneficiaries of members; to promote social and intellectual intercourse among members; and to accumulate and maintain a reserve fund to further these ends.

It is not a secret society in the general acceptance of that term. The rituals, passwords, initiations, and so forth, are of course secret, as in the case of all fraternal organizations. But the aims and purposes of the Knights are, as I have stated them above, and nothing else.

The membership of the society was comparatively small in the first years of its history, but in 1895 an associate membership was established, which spread very rapidly. The membership in the United States and Canada is now over four hundred thousand. One of the noteworthy things accomplished by the Knights has been the raising of a fund of $57,000 to endow a chair of American history at the Catholic University of America and an endowment fund of $500,000 for the same institution. The society has now accumulated a mortuary reserve fund of $8,500,000 for the production of its insurance members.

The Knights of Columbus has been privileged in the past two years to perform a patriotic service which points toward a breaking down of the prejudices and misunderstandings that have too often hampered co-operation between men of different religious creeds.

In the critical hour of national danger men of all beliefs have been drawn together in service, and often we have found that the existing differences magnified by the prejudiced, really are very slight after all. In my mail this morning there was a very generous contribution to the Knights of Columbus War Fund from a Presbyterian minister, and this is only one of many every week. With all its sadness and horror, this war has also meant a great stride in a closer understanding and brotherhood among all ranks of our nation.

When our men were sent to the Mexican border in 1916, we soon found that the Catholics were suffering by the lack of religious ministration. To men of Catholic faith, attendance at worship is not optional; it is obligatory. To miss mass on Sunday is a serious grief to the Catholic. It was necessary, in order to keep up the morale and spirit of the thousands of soldiers of our faith, to see that they had access to the religious rites in which they had been reared. We took from our general fund enough money to put up recreation buildings in each of the sixteen encampments along the border, and to send down enough priests to minister to the Catholic soldiers. These buildings were modeled after the splendid "huts" put up by the Y. M. C. A., which had been in Army work before, and we were very glad to take a leaf out of its book.

Our work on the border was done by permission of the commanding officers in the various camps. It was in no way official. But when our country entered the war with Germany, the Knights of Columbus saw a way of doing a much greater and broader service. I wrote to President Wilson telling him of our eagerness to help and pointing out the need that we saw for Catholic assistance. The President and the War Department's Commission on Training Camp Activities welcomed our offer and we were authorized to co-operate with the Y.M.C.A. Thus the Red Triangle and the Knights of Columbus are the only civilian organizations permitted by Uncle Sam to work inside the military camps.

Before our own buildings were erected mass was celebrated in the Red Triangle buildings, and every possible courtesy was shown to our priests who used the Y.M.C.A. buildings as headquarters. In the same way, the Knights of Columbus buildings are open to all. Each one bears the sign "Knights of Columbus—Everybody Welcome."

It is part of our agreement with the Government that these buildings shall not be used for any secret meetings or for any gathering not open to every man in camp. The buildings are built on the same general plan as the Y.M.C.A. huts and provide similar opportunities for wholesome and many recreations.

When you remember that thirty-five per cent. of the men in our Army are Catholic—this is Secretary Newton D. Baker's official estimate—and perhaps fifty per cent. of the Navy personnel is Catholic, you can see that this task of bringing the consolations of their faith to our men is no small factor in keeping up the morale of the fighting forces. On one of our battleships where the crew numbers 1200 men 900 are Catholics.

Our feeling is that in these times of crisis no service is too great to be done for the men who are fighting our battles. We have thrown open our buildings in cities adjoining the camps to all men in uniform. The Y.M.C.A., the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Knights of Columbus are all working together and, aided by the Y.W.C.A., the Red Cross and the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, I think it is true that we have been able to accomplish a great work for promoting the welfare and military zeal of our forces.

No one can doubt that this co-operation is going to mean a great deal in the way of religious tolerance. Bigotry and fanatical hostility cannot persist in the face of great national crisis. In spite of a good deal of misunderstanding we have always tried to work toward this end. The Knights of Columbus Commission on Prejudice has been at work for four years to further sympathy and mutual good will among the different creeds.

We have frankly tried to imitate the Y.M.C.A. in its splendid methods of helping the soldiers. We have not reached the enormous scale of their effort, but our own campaign has not been small. Our first bill for war stationery, for instance, was $150,000 for twenty million sheets of paper and ten million envelopes. At the moment of writing we have erected seventy-nine recreation buildings in the camps in the United States, and we are planning to erect a number in France.

We are sending priests over on every ship to minister to Catholics among our troops in France. This is most urgent, because every Catholic needs the sacraments of his faith in moments of peril when he is wounded or in his last earthly minutes. The fact that we are able to supply this need is not only a strength to the men "over there," but is an unspeakable consolation to the relative at home.

There are half a million Catholic soldiers and sailors in the service of Uncle Sam. There are nineteen thousand Catholic boys at the big draft contonment at Ayer, Massachusetts alone. At these camps the Catholic chaplains are celebrating eight or ten masses every Sunday. We have erected three buildings in each of the cantonments, and one or two in each of the National Guard camps.

The Knights of Columbus has so far raised over $1,500,000 to carry on this work with the Army and Navy, and we have raised our final quota to seven million dollars. As Cardinal Gibbons said recently to the men at Camp Meade: "Columbia is the mother of all of you. When she called there was no race, no creed, no class."

Positions On New Sections Of Canal Are For War Veterans

Mr. A. L. Killaly States That Applications In Some Localities Are Scarce and In Others Ample.

WILL SOON BE MADE

The appointment of lockmasters, bridge tenders and kindred officials on the Trent Canal between Campbellford and Trenton is being made as quickly as possible. These positions are practically reserved for returned soldiers. Mr. A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the canal, said this morning that in some localities many applications from returned men had been received, but in other districts there was a marked scarcity. At Trenton, for instance, the British Chemicals, Limited, have offered employment to all the available veterans, but at Campbellford the applicants are fairly numerous.

As far as possible, appointments will be made from men in the localities of the vacancies. Many communications have been forwarded by old residents, who considered that they had particular qualifications and probably claims based upon past political service, but under the new order the returned soldiers alone are considered, and it is hoped that the locks and bridges will be manned in the near future.

At present, the work is performed by engineers' assistants, and from all accounts it is no sinecure at the locks. Strong, able-bodied men are required, and it is hoped that they can be obtained from the ranks of the veterans.

Canadian Nurses Stayed On Duty In Spite Of Dangers

Refused to Go to Hospitals Immune From Shell Fire—"Killed in Action" is the Inscription on Their Graves.

THE SAME BREED

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, June 17.—Rolad Hill, from the Canadian correspondents' headquarters in France, cables this morning a graphic story of the Canadian nurses in hospitals and casualty stations under the attacks of the Germans from the air and land. The Canadian nurses refused to go to the hospitals immune from raids, and did their duty, wearing shrapnel-proof helmets and shields under their uniform, caring for their patients under all kinds of shell fire. "In the Canadian casualty clearing stations closer to the lines the girls faced death and possible capture in an ever changing front," said the cable. "When the forward casualty stations were swept away the little bands of these brave girls marched with the retiring troops, sometimes getting a lift in an ambulance, but generally finishing the trip on foot." In a big base cemetery, little white crosses mark the last resting places of some of these brave girls, "Killed in Action." It is the same inscription as marks the graves of soldiers who fall, stormig enemy trenches. "They are of the same breed, these tender sisters from overseas," said the correspondent.

19 Year Old Girl Sent To The Mercer For Unnamed Term

Violet Evans, 19 years old, was committed to the Mercer Reformatory for an indefinite term, not exceeding three years, by Police Magistrate Rush this afternoon. The accused was found guilty of leading a publicly immoral life on the evidence presented this morning. Magistrate Rush reserved judgment until 2 o'clock this afternoon while he made a careful review of the case. Sergt. Blade's testimony for the prosecution was damaging.

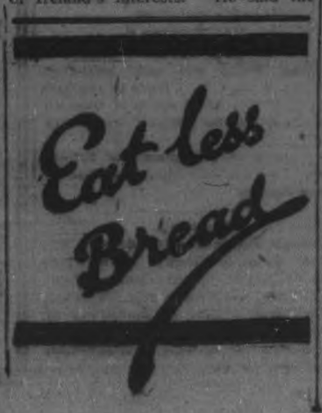
This is the third case within a week in which the ancient traffic leered through sordid stories of the dereliction of four women who had stumbled and fallen. Three of them were sent to the Mercer, and the other was given her freedom under suspended sentence. Peterboro's morals would receive a deplorably low rating if judged upon the results of the recent raids the police have manoeuvred.

Chief Thompson remarked to the press that these cases represented the work of months. The prosecutions already recorded have apparently had no deterrent effect upon others, and, according to the police, the harvest is not yet complete.

Says Sinn Feinism Is Too Grotesque To Attract Attention

Canadian Press:

DUBLIN, June 17.—Jos. Devlin, member of Parliament and deputy leader of the Irish Nationalist party, addressing a meeting at the village of Virginia, Cavan County, in support of the candidature of O. Hanlon, the Nationalist candidate for Parliament for East Cavan, on Sunday, said the Parliamentary policy was one of the principal factor in the upholding of Ireland's interests. He said the Irish party was not going to throw away the weapon. The Sinn Fein is not a new doctrine or new policy," he said. "It has been before the country for twenty years, but the Irish people have paid no attention to it, because it is too grotesque, and during the period of twenty years it has not realized a labourer's cottage or helped to brighten or beautify a single woman's home.



Lumber Mills Destroyed At Indian River

The grist and lumber mills belonging to Mr. Ross Staples, Indian River, were destroyed by fire from some unknown origin, on Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. At 5.30 on Friday afternoon, the three employees of the mills left work, after seeing that all was well, and the furnace fire in no danger of doing any damage.

On Saturday morning, however, at about 3.30, Mrs. Staples, whose house is next to the mill, was awakened by a bright light, and looking out of the window, found the mills to be in flames. Help was called from the surrounding farmers but nothing could be done to save either the building or contents.

THE DAMAGE.

The damage, which will mount up to several thousand dollars, included the total destruction of a large quantity of lumber and shingles. Fortunately very little grain was in the mill at the time.

The dam and bridge adjoining the mill was so far damaged that crossing is impossible at the present time. Only the greatest effort saved the large barn erected this spring across the road from sharing the fate of the mills.

NO INSURANCE.

No insurance was carried on the building or contents. The destruction of the mills is a great inconvenience to all the farmers about that part of the country.

BARNES FAVOURS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 17.—(Via Reuter's).—Geo. Barnes, a member of the British War Cabinet speaking at Darlingford, referring to his proposed conference of allies for the purpose of inaugurating a league of nations, said the only way to secure lasting and just peace was through a league of nations, although an indispensable preliminary was the defeat of the German attempt to dominate Europe. A beginning should be made before the war ends. Otherwise in the first flush of peace the world would fall through sheer exhaustian to provision for the maintenance of peace. The league should bind all powers to submit disputes to tribunal, to use economic boycott, and as a last resort international force against any power breaking the peace of the future. Mr. Barnes advocated reduction in armament and the elimination of profits in their manufacture.

ACTIVITY IS BEGINNING TO CENTRE ON THE ARRAS FRONT

(United Press.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 17.—There is a tell-tale unrest in the salient extending toward Zazebrouck, while along the line southward from Arras portentous raids follow each other in quick succession. Outposts engage almost constantly in lively skirmishes and patrols clash in No Man's Land with unusual frequency. Ominous bombardments and barrages break loose at any time of the day or night in these sectors.

The back area around Kazebrouck and on the hill country on the south side of the France-Belgian border are subjected to more or less constant long distance shelling. The important roads leading back from the front are under harassing fire from both sides.

MAY START SOMETHING.

The British front, for the past 48 hours, has been in the state of growing effervescence, which is common to serious happenings. With Hindenburg's latest drive toward Paris checked, he must be expected to start something elsewhere. Being the hub of the wheel, he can launch his reserves down any of the spokes. Therefore it is not unreasonable to expect a continuation of his tactics of hitting on widely separated sectors in pursuit of his avowed aim to wear down the allies by having them race around outside the rim of the wheel. However, Hindenburg has not shifted his reserve centre much since the beginning of his offensive in March. The bulk is still about midway between Noyon and Flanders.

FREDERICK THE GREAT.

On the 17th of August, 1786, died one of the most remarkable sovereigns Europe ever produced, Frederick II. of Prussia, called Frederick the Great Thomas Carlyle thus describes him:

"The man is not of godlike physiognomy any more than of imposing stature or costume. Close shut mouth with thin lips, prominent jaws and nose; receding brow by no means of Olympian height; head, however, is of long form and has superintive gray eyes in it. Not what is called a beautiful manor yet, by all appearances, what is called a happy.

"On the contrary, the face bears evidence of many sorrows, as they are termed; of much hard labor done in this world and seems to anticipate much more still coming. Quiet stoicism, capable enough of what joy there were but not expecting any worth mention great unconscious and some conscious pride tempered with a cheery mockery of humor—are written in that old face, which carries its chin well forward in spite of the slight stoop about the neck; snuffy nose rather flung into the air under its old cocked hat—like an old snuffy lion on the watch; and such a pair of eyes as no man or lion or lynx of that century bore elsewhere according to all the testimony we have.

"This is the man who, among the common people who much loved and esteemed him, was Vater Fritz—Father Fred—a name of familiarity which had not bred contempt in that instance."

Takes a Lot of Believing.

"Upon what do you base your claim that your wife is superior to all other wives?"

"When I leave money in my pockets at night she swipes it."

"I don't see."

"But last night I hid all my money, and what do you suppose she did?"

"Give it up."

"When she found I was broke she put a dollar in my pocket."—Houston Post.

HOW HE DIED.

The Orillia Packet, which has a high reputation for truth and veracity, says: A man ran into a physician's office in St. Joseph, Mo., the other day and said a man had swallowed a two-foot rule and was dying by inches. The doctor said that was nothing as he had a patient once who swallowed a thermometer and died by degrees. Two patients chipped in, one saying it reminded him of a fellow in Texas who swallowed a revolver and went off easy, and the other said he had a friend in Manitoba who drank a quart of applejack and died in good spirits.

Outbreak Of Anthrax In Peel County Attributed To Tannery Near The Village

One Man is Dead and a Number of Others Have Been Inoculated —A Terrible Scourge.

SHEEP DIED

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, June 17. — Major W. Sharpe, M.D., Brampton's Medical Health Officer, when interviewed today, said that the outbreak of anthrax in Peel County, was due to an old tannery near the village of Churchville, three miles west of Brampton.

"Every anthrax outbreak that has occurred in recent years at Kitchener, Collingwood, Georgetown and Acton, has been traced to old tanneries," said Major Sharpe.

"The river overflows, bringing the matter from the vats in the tanneries down to the bank of these farms, and the cattle in feeding have eaten some of the grass covered by the substance in the tanneries."

AWAITING A REPORT.

"No other infection has occurred so far as we know," said the Doctor. "I am taking milk samples from all the milk supplies of the locality, and will send these to the Provincial Health Department. I do not think there is much danger of the milk being infected."

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Provincial Medical Health Officer, said that his department had not as yet decided to take action and that it was not likely that anything would be done until a report had been received in the localities affected.

THE MILK SUPPLY.

"I do not think that there is any danger to the milk supply," he said "It is not likely that it would be affected in that way. It is one of the most dreaded diseases, and the only way it can be kept from spreading is to burn the cattle that have been affected. In the case of people whom it is believed might have the disease if it is taken in time they can be given a serum that will stop the spread of the disease, but the trouble is that in most cases it is not taken in time."

SITUATION IN HAND.

Dr. Vanderlip said this morning that the situation developing out of the anthrax infection is well in hand. The Pickering family at Churchville has been inoculated. Dr. Clark has the infected portion removed from his arm and received the inoculation. He is reported as doing very well. Dr. Nodding, who received the inoculation, is back to town and he, along with Dr. Vanderlip will receive a second inoculation to-day.

THE ONLY VICTIM.

W. J. Snider, the only victim of the infection, had been carrying the germs in his system for ten days before he received medical treatment. The staff at St. Michael's Hospital were unable to give a correct diagnosis as the first cultures taken from the affected arm showed no antheax germs. It was not until a blood test was made that the presence of anthrax in an alarming degree was found. By this time it was too late to do anything for the sufferer. No further cases have developed up to noon today, and what seemed to be a very serious situation yesterday, seems to have been relieved.

Five days ago Snyder dicsovered a swelling on his left arm, and visited Dr. Vanderlip of Brampton, who was puzzled as to what diagnosis would explain the symptoms, and who had Mr. Snyder removed to St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on the rapid development of his trouble. To-day the swollen, disfigured remains of the man lie in the undertaking parlours of Undertaker Torrance awaiting burial. William Snyder was the victim of the terrible anthrax, and the town and vicinity to-day are standing aghast at the terible thing that has come among them.

Mr. Snyder, who lived on the Third line east of Chinguacousy, found a week ago that he had some sick sheep, and summoned the veterinary surgeon, Dr. Strik, of Brampton. The sheep died, and there was no apparent cause to be attributed. The symptoms were exceedingly unfamiliar.

A week ago Josiah Pickering, who lives at Churchville, three miles west of Brampton, had four cows die under peculiar circumstances. The animals were found dead in the field, and Mr. Pickering sent some of their blood for analysis. Saturday word came as to what the ailment had been and to-day the people of Brampton ask what it will mean for them having anthrax on either side of the town.

THREE MORE VICTIMS.

Dr. Stirk is lying in St. Michael's Hospital, but as soon as word was received as to the real nature of the disease he was inoculated with a serum that is considered an antidote. The latest victims are Dr. Stirk, and a son of Mr. Thomas Robinson, of the Third line east, the Robinson family having assisted Mr. Snyder in caring for the sick animals.

The New Plant Will Be In Operation In Thirty Days

Mr. Thomas Low is in the City in Connection With Opening of Aylmer Street Plant.

THE PROSPECTS

The Renfrew Manufacturing Company the firm which has taken over the Metal Products Company building, began the work of reconstruction to-day under the direction of Mr. T. Low. The works will probably be in operation in thirty days.

18 Pound Shells.

Mr. Low stated that the factory will make 18 pound shrapnel shells and was amused at being asked if he had any orders so far. "We have about all we can handle at present," he said. In the factory between four and five hundred hands, men and women, will be employed. This includes women shell inspectors, for the position of which the management has already had applications. The office staff is being brought from Renfrew.

Keep on Manufacturing.

Mr. Low said that should the war ever come to an end he hoped to keep the plant open for the manufacture of more peaceful products. This will not be electric irons, as is popularly supposed in the city.

Dutchman Built Submarine.

The first submarine boat of which history makes any record was built by a Dutchman named Van Driebel, in 1640. The boat was built in England with money said to have been advanced by King James I. According to reports the vessel had a unique ballasting system. A number of goatskin bags were placed under the deck between two large planks. These bags, when filled with water caused the vessel to sink. To cause it to rise again, with a windlass arrangement, forcing the water out, and thus giving the boat reserve buoyancy.

Veteran Makes Record.

The Clyde has beaten the London riveting record, according to the Daily Mail. Thomas Devine, a former soldier, at the Dalmuir yards of William Beardmore & Co., has driven 4,422 rivets in a side of a ship in nine hours. The London record, made by Robert Farrant, was 4,276 rivets in a similar time.

His "Name."

A young chap notorious for his conceit was boasting in the presence of several elderly gentlemen about the conquests which he had gained over the female heart.

"Look," said he, "here's a handsome present I had from my last inamorata," at the same time handing round a beautiful cigar case.

All admired the article, which had an indorsement of its quality stamped upon it.

"Very nice gift," remarked one of the company. "I perceive your ladylove even had your name put on the case."

"Well, that's queer," answered the boaster. "I never noticed it."

"Look again," rejoined the candid one. "The case is distinctly marked 'Real calf.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Fair Supposition.

"They certainly do work their poor servant to death in that family. What do they suppose the girl is made of?"

"I suppose they think she is maid of all work."

FORMER MAYOR OF OTTAWA NOW INDORSES TANLAC

Hon. T. Payment Says He Has Not Seen Its Equal In All His Experience

There is probably no better known man in all Ottawa than the Hon. Thomas Payment, who held the high office of mayor of that city for two successive terms, and who for the past twenty six years has been one of Ottawa's most progressive business men. Mr. Payment tells in a very interesting and convincing manner just what he thinks of Tanlac, the new medicine which is being so widely talked about all over Canada and the United States. His signed statement is reproduced below:

Ottawa, Canada, 6-4-18.

"During all my experience in the drug business, covering a period of 26 years, I don't believe that I have ever handled a preparation that has given such excellent results and general satisfaction, as has Tanlac, and I consider it as a very valuble medicine.

"The most remarkable feature about Tanlac is that in almost every instance it seems to produce the desired results. Hardly a day passes that does not bring some person into my store telling me of the way Tanlac has helped them. I know of at least a dozen cases that have come under my own personal observation where the results obtained from the use of Tanlac have been really remarkable.

"I have implicit confidence in Tanlac and unhesitatingly recommend it and advise anyone to give it a trial.

(Signed) "T. Payment."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

Suffered Great Agony FROM PAIN IN STOMACH FOR OVER 5 YEARS

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arises from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, sour stomach, coated tongue, sallow or muddy complexion, specks floating before the eyes, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and note the change.

Miss Ida Hogan, Dunrobin, Ont., writes: "For over five years I have suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials and before I had one quite used, I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was fourteen months ago and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I could give them is not enough."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE CHANGING TIDES.

Causes That Contribute to the Rise and Fall of the Ocean.

Many people regard the rise and fall of the ocean as a profound and baffling mystery.

The mystery really is not very hard to understand. As we all know, the surface of the ocean rises and falls twice in every lunar day, this rise appearing along a coast to be a horizontal motion—always ebbing or flowing.

Now, the lunar day consists of about twenty-five hours. Thus, of course, the "time" of the tides varies each day. The tides, moreover, do not always rise to the same height. Every fortnight, with the new and full moon, they rise very much higher than at other times.

These high tides are called "spring" tides, the alternating low tides being termed "neap." When the moon is nearest to the earth the rise and fall of the ocean are markedly increased. Thus the spring tides are greatest at the equinoxes—i. e., at the end of March and the end of September.

Yes, you say, but what has the moon to do with it at all? Surely it is the sun which attracts the earth.

That is so. But, although the sun's attraction on the earth is far greater than the moon's, the moon is so very much nearer to the earth that the difference between its attraction at the center and on the surface is three times as great as the sun's. And it is this difference which causes tides.—London Answers.

The Italians Have Started A Counter Offensive

Believed Austrian Offensive Has Broken Down

Allies Have Halted The Enemy On Italian Front

Italians Have Won Back Ground and Started a Counter Offensive—Six Hundred Thousand Austrians Employed—Activity on the Western Front.

TUESDAY MORNING BULLETINS

TUESDAY MORNING BULLETINS

ROME, June 18.—The Italians and their Allies have halted the Teutons and won back some of the ground taken from them in the first offensive, and have started a counter offensive, is the War Office report last night.

LONDON, June 18.—The Austrians had six hundred thousand troops employed on the hundred mile Italian front.

Military authorities here believe the offensive has broken down.

SUBMARINE DESTROYED.

LONDON, June 18.—Harrowing details of the destruction of one of the large German submarines by a mine some time ago were given out last night.

AERIAL ACTIVITY.

LONDON, June 18.—Twenty-two air machines were brought down or destroyed on Sunday. All our machines returned safely.

ON WESTERN FRONT.

PARIS, June 18.—Last night the official says between the Oise and the Aisne we repulsed the enemy, and in counter attacks took 374 prisoners.

MONDAYL EVENING BULLETINS

Canadian Press:

VIENNA, June 17. — An official statement this afternoon says the number of Italian and Allied prisoners captured by the Austro-Hungarians has been increased to twelve thousand. The Austrians also captured Sapo Silo on the western side of the river.

NEW YEAR'S IN CHINA.

When All Debts Are Paid and the Whole Country "Painted Red."

New Year's is the national pay day in China. All accounts must be squared up at that time, and the man who can't raise money enough to pay his debts has to go into bankruptcy. The laws are such that the creditor can enter the debtor's house and take what he pleases if there is no settlement. To prevent such action families club together and make all sorts of compromises to keep up the business reputation of the clan.

New Year's is a great day for the pawnbrokers. Their shops are crowded with people who want to redeem their best clothes before the new year. There are crowds, also, who want to pawn other things in order to get money to pay their debts. Pawnbrokers receive high rates of interest, in which they are protected by the government.

The Chinese paint the whole country red, figuratively speaking, on New Year's day in more senses than one. Red is the color which with them denotes good luck and prosperity, and all the New Year cards and invitations are on paper of that color. Every child gets its New Year's present wrapped in red paper, and red inscriptions are pasted over the doors of the houses.

These inscriptions bear characters praying for good fortune, wealth and happiness, and they are posted on each side of the outer doors of the houses. New pictures of Chinese generals are put on the front doors, and the houses are scoured and made clean.—Exchange.

Born to Fighting.

Mons began fighting. Caesar founded it as a camp and a short time later Cicero's brother sustained a siege by Ambiorix. Its most famous siege was in 1572, delivered by Frederic of Toledo, one of the distinguished generals of Alba. The siege lasted from the end of June to the middle of September; sorties and relief were vain; the town capitulated under the most honorable conditions. In 1691 the Marechal de Luxembourg attacked the town, inflicted great damage and forced surrender. In 1709 Marlborough and Prince Eugene attacked and carried the town after a siege of 126 days. In 1746 the Prince de Conti laid successful siege. In 1792 Mons was the first fruit of the republican victory at Jemappes, and in 1794 the Austrians were subjected to a crushing defeat.—New York Sun.

The Rose of Sharon.

In Asia the rose of Sharon is considered the emblem of resurrection. Throughout Syria, Judea and Arabia it is regarded with the profoundest reverence. The leaves that encircle the blossoms dry and close together when the season of blooming is over, and the stalk, withering completely and drying in the shape of a ball, is carried by the breeze to great distances. In this way it is borne over the sandy deserts until, touching some moist place, it clings to the soil, where it immediately takes fresh root and springs to life and beauty again.—London Mail.

Just One Application And The Hairs Vanish

(Toilet Talks)

Any woman can keep her skin free from unsightly hair or fuzz if she will follow these simple instructions: When hairy growths appear, apply a simple paste, made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. Apply this to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a harmless treatment, but be sure you get the real delatone.

Wine Pits Saved Rheims To France

VON ARDENNE'S STATEMENT.

German General Tells Why He Failed to Capture Cathedral City.

ROTTERDAM, June 18.—General von Ardenne, in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt, attempts to explain to the people of Germany why Rheims still remains in the possession of the French. It is due entirely, he says, to the strength of the defence, and not, as hitherto suggested, in accordance with some obscure German tactical motive.

"Rheims," he writes, "is held by a very strong garrison of at least two divisions of French coloured colonial troops. These troops find complete protection from German artillery fire in deep cellars miles in extent, constructed by great champagne firms. Against gas clouds which float over the town these cellars offer complete protection. Therefore the garrison really is behind an impregnable armoured shelter so far as a German storm attack is concerned.

"Moreover, such an attack is scarcely to be thought of in view of the gas clouds which are continually over the city, while, even if it were attempted, the French colonial regiments would be able to emerge from their defences with unthinned ranks. The fight, therefore, would be an extremely bloody one."

Von Ardenne adds that the fall of Rheims would not be decisive, though it would affect the whole French Champaigne front, even perhaps as far as Verdun.

Give 22nd June To Allied Cause

Make No Engagement For That Day Save the One With the Nation

Preparations are rapidly nearing completion for the spectacular task which Canada will undertake on Saturday, June 22nd—that of registering in a single day 5,000,000 men and women.

That the task is a stupendous one is best appreciated when one considers the vastness of the country and the wide stretches that are only sparsely settled. But the importance of the work is such that there can be no thought of anything but unqualified success.

In order to facilitate the work you should plan to be at the registration booth at the earliest possible moment on Saturday, 22nd June. There are a number of questions which you will be required to answer and this necessarily means that a considerable time will be required for each registrant. If there is delay it must be borne with patience, strengthened by the knowledge that the information the Government proposes to obtain is essential to a proper prosecution of the war. Make no engagement for Saturday, 22nd June. Contribute the day to the Allied cause and help to make the National Registration a success worthy of Canada's great war record.

BANKUTU CANNIBALS.

A Belgian Kongo Savage Tribe That Cannot Be Subdued.

The cannibal Bankutus of Belgian Kongo make a practice of removing the upper incisors. Their dress consists of a plaited skirt, which does not quite meet on the right thigh. But the women of the south wear a hide girdle with a deep fringe of palm fiber string. Among this tribe the slaves are compelled to wear a special dress, which is, in fact, the ordinary costume of the Akela, to which tribe most of them belong. The Bankutus are great cannibals as far as the male members of the tribe are concerned, and the victims are always slaves. In fact, all slaves are ultimately eaten, since it is believed that if a slave were buried his ghost would kill his master.

Their chief weapon is the bow, poison being used on the arrows. Shields are now obsolete. One of their most interesting points is their use of a conventional throwing knife as currency. The Bankutus are almost the only tribe of this region who have been successful in resisting the advance of the white man. This fact is due to their skill in forest warfare. The way leading to their village is defended by poisoned spikes hidden by leaves. They use bows and arrows set like traps in the form of primitive spring guns and are quite ready if a white man is expected to bait such traps with a live baby, being sure that the European will be unable to resist the temptation to pick up an apparently abandoned child. The poison they use is absolutely deadly.

Three Ages.

The Berlin botanical gardens, says Lustige Blatter, are wonderfully beautiful, but to small children they are a forbidden paradise. Boys and girls under ten are not permitted to enter.

Herr and Frau Muller found this out to their disappointment when they planned to take their little Paul on a Sunday trip to view the beautiful gardens. Nevertheless they gave their young hopeful a few instructions and started out. At the gate the porter stopped the young Muller. "How old are you?" he inquired. Paul answered, "Six for the electrics; really eight; for the botanical gardens, ten."

The Stoning of Hamilton.

Alexander Hamilton was stoned by a New York audience in the summer of 1795. While at a public meeting he was speaking in favor of the Jay treaty, which had just been negotiated by John Jay between the United States and England. Dr. Francis in his "Old New York" says that among those who did the stoning was the famous Edward Livingston, together with many other "leading citizens."

Distress In Germany Is Becoming More Pronounced

Food Situation Has Become Very Critical—Flour Rations Reduced—Impossible to Supply Towns With Their Proper Quota of Meat.

GERMAN NEWSPAPER COMMENT

LONDON, June 18.—The food situation in Germany is becoming more critical. Rations of the most indispensable articles of food are reduced or are no longer procurable, and people are again beginning to ask when there will be sufficient food to feed the population of the large towns during the three critical months ahead.

As to the situation in the immediate future everything indicates that the period until the fruits of the new harvest become available is likely to be one of grave anxiety and distress for the German people. Only dire necessity could have compelled the Government to reduce the flour ration from seven to 5½ ounces, and though the Germans expected great relief from the Ukraine they cannot hope to derive much assistance from that quarter.

In this connection the Chemnitz Volkstimme says:

"Kindly spare us Ukraine promises. We have been fooled too often with empty words. Tell the people the plain truth."

The Berlin Vorwaerts declares that the physical and moral powers of the population to endure privations have been substantially diminished through another year of war, and that further reduction of the rations must constitute "a serious danger."

Meat is scarce, and even now it is impossible to provide the large towns with their proper quota of meat. The whole cattle-breeding industry of Germany is threatened and with it the supplies of meat, milk and fat. In April there was a further reduction in the milk supply in certain large towns, including Berlin. The inhabitants of Breslau lately have received only one ounce a week of butter and margarine together. In order to make up for the shortage of food still more substitutes have been made.

German newspapers recently published an advertisement of a special drug "for stilling hunger and enabling people to hold out till the next meal."

In regard to the effect that the shortage of food is having on the health of the nation the great decrease in the German birth-rate is a matter of interest. A report compiled by the local Government Board of Infant Welfare in Germany showed that in 1916, 50 per cent. fewer babies were born than in 1937, and from 1915 to 1917 the total decrease was equivalent to 10,000,000.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA

There is no mistaking neuralgia, with its sharp, stabbing almost unbearable pains. In a large number of cases poor blood and a run-down condition of the system is responsible for neuralgia. The nerves are actually starving. To cure neuralgia it is necessary to build up the blood and improve the general health, and for this purpose there is nothing better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sciatica is nothing more than neuralgia of the sciatic nerve, and those who suffer from it undergo excruciating torture. If you are afflicted with neuralgic or sciatic pains do not waste time or go to great expense for treatment until you have tried building up the blood. The chances are very strong that the treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is all that you will require. Hot applications and liniments may be used at the same time to give temporary relief, but that is all you can expect from them. The trouble can only be cured by enriching the blood, thus feeding and strengthening the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give the blood the elements that the nerves need. In this way they remove the cause of the pain.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MIND AND BODY.

Human Emotions Have a Potent Effect Upon the Physical Being.

A man is handed a telegram. He is eating and enjoying his dinner. He reads the contents of the message. Almost immediately afterward his body is a-tremble, his face either reddens or grows "ashy white," his appetite is gone; such is the effect of the mind upon the stomach that it literally refuses the food; if forced upon it it may reject it entirely.

A message is delivered to a lady. She is in a genial, happy mood. Her face whitens, she trembles and her body falls to the ground in a faint, temporarily helpless, apparently lifeless. Such are the intimate relations between the mind and the body.

Great stress or anxiety or fear may in two weeks' or even in two days' time so work its ravages that the person looks ten years or even twenty years older. A person has been long given to worry or perhaps to worry in extreme form, though not so long; a well defined case of indigestion and general stomach trouble, with a generally lowered and sluggish vitality has become pronounced and fixed.

Any type of thought that prevails in our mental lives will in time produce its correspondence in our physical lives. As we understand better these laws of correspondences we will be more careful as to the types of thoughts and emotions we consciously or unwittingly entertain and live with. The great bulk of all diseases are generated in the body through certain states and conditions of mind.—Ralph Waldo Trine in Woman's Home Companion.

A PAINTERS' PARADISE.

Capri's Quaint Inn, Where Poor Artists Can Get Free Board.

Capri, beautiful in itself, offers an irresistible invitation to artists, since it has an inn where any one by painting a picture on the wall, can get free board.

To the lovely island of Capri, with its perennial summer, its blue grotto and its lemon groves, came some fifty years ago a ruined artist. He opened an inn and died rich. In his will, leaving the inn to his heirs, he made these conditions:

"The charge per day, two bottles of red Capri wine included, is never to be more than 6 francs.

"If any artist is too poor to pay he shall paint a picture upon some wall space, receiving all the accommodation accorded to those paying the highest price.

"If any German artist shall come to the inn he shall be accommodated and shall receive the amount of his fare to Germany upon his promising never to return to Italy."

The inn is conducted today on these conditions. Its walls are covered with paintings. Now and then a German artist gets his fare home.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Fair Exchange.

It was Mrs. Malloon's birthday, and she felt a trifle disappointed that there was no gift beside her plate. It was the first time in twenty years that her husband had forgotten the occasion. Mr. Malloon smiled at her frankly.

"My dear," he said, "I have been so busy lately that I have not had time to buy you a birthday gift, but I'll give you the cow."

She thanked him graciously. "Daisy is a beautiful cow," she said.

Two months later Mr. Malloon's birthday came round. When he appeared at breakfast his wife greeted him with a radiant smile. "My dear," she said, "I have been so busy lately sewing for the children that I haven't had time to make you a birthday gift, but I'll give you the cow."—Chicago News.

The Woman Who Changed

Merton Gray's Attentions Cause Gossip

CHAPTER XCV.

After that day, when I so plainly showed my delight that Merton Gray had called, I saw a great deal of him. If I played tennis, he was sure to play also. He seemed always to be at the casino when I was there, and invariably joined me. My portrait had been shown to a few of George's friends, and they had been enthusiastic in praise of it.

Often, he would happen in and spend an hour with me. I would play and sing for him. Or else he would join me in a walk on the beach when George was away and I was out killing time. That was what it amounted to—killing time.

One day Mrs. Sexton joined us, and, after a time, Merton took his leave.

"Aren't you unwise my dear Mrs. Howard?" she asked, when we were alone.

"Unwise! What do you mean?" I had not the slightest inkling of what she meant.

"Unwise to be seen so often with Merton Gray. People are gossiping."

"Why—I never— the idea!" I exclaimed.

"I was sure you didn't know it."

"But—"

"Yes?" she asked, as I hesitated. She always had had an uncanny way of reading my thoughts.

"George — he has said nothing about it."

It Would Not Be His Way.

"No?"

"Never has mentioned such a thing. If there has been gossip, he surely would have heard it. And there has been no cause for gossip; Mr. Gray and I are simply good friends!"

"You do not have to explain that to me; I am sure of it. But the world is very censorious, my dear, —especially when a woman is as young and pretty as you are. Your husband may not have heard the gossip, and even if he has, he may not have considered it worth his attention. I imagine it would not be his way to notice vulgar gossip. You must not be foolish. You love your husband; be very careful that you do nothing to destroy your happiness and his."

Long after Mrs. Sexton left me, I thought of what she had said. Really, to be truthful, I cared little for the gossip —I knew it was not deserved. But she had spoken of destroying my husband's happiness; she must think he loved me, else she would have said that what I did might distress him or annoy him, but not that it would make him unhappy.

I determined to do a reckless thing; I would tell George I had heard that people were talking because Merton Gray was seen with me when he was away yachting, etc.

Old Enough to Know Her Own Mind.

"I heard something very disagreeable to-day, George," I said, as we were dressing for an affair at one of the palaces that lined the ocean drive.

"What was that?"

"I heard that people were talking about Merton Gray's being with me when you were off yachting."

"You did!" in a careless tone.

"Yes."

"Well, what of it? If you aren't old enough to know when you want to be with people, and haven't sense enough not to give reason for gossip, it is time you learned."

"Have you heard it?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you say something—tell me?"

"Because I trust you implicitly." Then, after a moment, "I should hate to see you do anything foolish, so be careful; but I have no patience with gossip in any form. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, it is malicious."

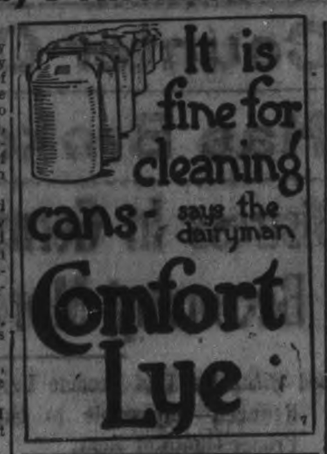
I was really astounded. What I had known of men, at home, had led me to believe he would be jealous, find fault,—but he had been absolutely careless in his manner! He had found far more fault because I had not greeted some of his friends properly or because I had been unacquainted with some dish which was being served.

I understand, now, that it was a great compliment George paid me, by giving me his unquestioning faith and trust; then, it made me feel that he didn't care—that, as long as I didn't interfere in what he did, I might do as I pleased.

I had made up my mind, when I married George, that my life was to be one long, sweet song, and now that I found that song so often out of key, I seemed to have neither the poise nor the patience nor the character, to wait until my own endeavour could change things.

Then came a terrible shock.

To-morrow—Merton Gray's Plea.



IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

The Seal's Ventilator.

Not many people know how the seal of the far north gets air when the Arctic ocean is entirely covered with many feet of ice.

The small spotted seal, which is a hair seal and not a fur bearer, is the hardy dweller of the northern waters. Under his tough, thick skin he has an inch or more of blubber. When the ice closes up the open water in the Arctic the seal selects a spot and begins to drill a hole to the surface by pressing his warm nose against the ice. Nobody knows how many hours it takes him to accomplish his task, but he manages it, and, although he is obliged to work most of the time because the surface of the hole is continually freezing, he keeps it open all winter and obtains air. Seals have been known to drill in this manner through fifty feet of solid ice. Whether or not they take turns in the slow drilling is not positively known. It is at these "seal holes" that the polar bear seeks food in the winter and there the Eskimo waits, spear in hand, for his weekly supply of meat.—Youth's Companion.

Coats the Monkeys Wear.

Have you ever wondered why nearly all the monkeys which accompany the foreign organ boys should be dressed in a red coat, with a sort of jockey cap?

The explanation is very simple. This costume is no fancy one, but is an almost exact copy of the winter dress worn by the organ boys' fathers in the distant valley of Piedmont, where the peasants usually wear a red coat, rudely cut, with very stiff little tails, and knickerbockers and jockey cap of the same color.

These clothes are spun and woven by the peasants and dyed red with the madder which grows in the valleys. The long roots are boiled, then mixed with alum and tartar, and the result is a red dye, which, though not very bright, does not fade. The monkeys' coats are made of the bits which are left over when the peasant's coat is cut out.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Women! Here Is A Dandy Thing

Few drops on corn or callus stop pain, then they lift off.

Your high heels have put corns on your toes, and calluses on the bottom of your feet, but care now?

This tiny bottle holds an almost magic fluid. A genius in Cincinnati discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Small bottles of freezone can be had at any drug store for a few cents. Don't limp, or twist your face in agony and spoil your beauty, but get a little bottle of freezone and apply a few drops on your tender, aching, corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! You get rid of a hard corn, soft corn or a corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses, without suffering one particle. Millions of women keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let corns ache twice.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion

PANGGANGS OF MALAY.

Ruled by an Old Witch, They Are the Queerest People Known.

Ruled by a great enchantress and having no form of money, the Panggangs, a tribe in a mountainous jungle in the northern part of the Malay peninsula, is one of the queerest known to white men. The tribesmen are of a negroid type, whose social organization is that of a simple form of commonwealth and who are nomadic, wandering about from place to place in their dense jungles and forests.

Among them dwells a woman whose strange characteristics are strongly reminiscent of Haggard's famous "She." The woman is supposed to be a great enchantress. She is held in dread by the Panggangs. She lives alone in a bamboo hut, shaded by the leaves of the sacred ubang tree. Food is brought her daily by the oldest man or woman of the tribe.

The Panggangs are said to be a peaceable and honest people, and do not, among themselves, either fight or steal. They literally have no use for money for trading purposes, but if by chance they get money they bury it, so that they may use it in trading after death. After getting a supply of food, they do no work whatever until the supply is ended. They eat any wild creature.

These people do not seem to have any religion, but they have a queer belief in the transmigration of souls. In their country tigers are numerous, and they believe that sometimes their relatives, when they die, become changed into tigers.—Argonaut.

The Bodleian Library.

In size and importance the Bodleian library at Oxford is the greatest university library in the world, and the greatest library not directly aided by the state. About seven rank above it in the world, but among English-speaking peoples only the British museum. It contains 2,750,000 printed literary pieces in perhaps 800,000 volumes. There are also about 40,000 manuscripts, not counting separate charters and deeds, which number about 28,500. The staff consists of sixty-eight persons. The number of readers averages more than 250 a day. —London Standard.

THRESHING IN ONTARIO

Gangs Available This Year to Relieve Situation.

A Proposed Plan of Organization—How to Overcome the Difficulties—Applications to Be Filed at Once.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE threshing gang is not an untried experiment in Ontario. In certain counties, Lambton for instance, these gangs have been employed and have proven very successful. Neither the threshermen nor the farmer in these cases care to return to the old methods of changing help with neighbors where men for the threshing gangs can be secured. The Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Trades and Labor Branch are now co-operating to make arrangements to ensure an ample supply of labor for as many threshing gangs as are likely to be organized this fall, and suggest herein methods of organizing a gang and a plan of organization.

The Difficulties—Overcome Them.

(1.) In the early part of harvest when many moves must be made and when comparatively small amounts of grain are threshed, the thresherman finds it difficult, often, to make a profit even under present methods. If he employs a gang his expenses will be much heavier. His charges therefore must be high enough so that later in the season he may regain what is lost at this time.

(2.) But at any time during the threshing season there may be considerable idleness during the frequent changes from farm to farm caused by the camparatively small amount of grain to be threshed on the average farm. By good organization this lost time may be limited to the minimum, however, by having the majority of the changes made at night.

Thresher Board Men.

(3.) If the farmer were obliged to board the gang a certain element of unfairness could not be avoided. It would seem, therefore, that the thresher should be responsible for this. The most convenient way in Ontario, perhaps, would be for the thresher to make arrangements with each farmer to provide meals for the men, the thresher to pay for the same.

(4.) It would seem necessary for each thresher to provide a sleeping van for his gang and the men to provide blankets, as is done in the Northwest. These vans are home-made and one can be constructed for the average Ontario gang for about $100. If the thresher does his own building. Nothing ornate is required. A structure 10 feet wide by 12 feet long, built on trucks, wind-proof and rain-proof and with two tiers of bunks on each side would afford ample sleeping accommodation for an Ontario gang.

(5.) As several men constitute a gang the weekly wage sheet would run fairly high. This would involve a considerable regular expenditure on the part of the thresher, which in turn would necessitate prompt payment by farmers. Where gangs are employed it is necessary for farmers to give cash or 30-day notes immediately the job is done.

(6.) Probably the most important factor of all is the rates which the thresher will charge. These must, of course, be much higher than those charged formerly. This would make the threshing bill a fairly large sum. Yet the farmer could still make a profit by the transaction. If, by employing a gang, he were enabled in the two weeks thus saved to prepare an additional 10 acres, say for wheat, he would have from 250 to 350 extra bushels of this crop to sell in 1919.

Size of the Gangs.

(7.) The last problem is that of securing men. The average gang would probably consist of eight men as follows: Engineer, blower man, feeder, grainman and four mow or stackmen. This would leave the farmer to take care of his straw and to supply another man to carry grain if one were not sufficient. A team of his horses would also be required to draw water. He would supply fuel, of course, as is now done.

In organizing a gang of this nature possibly not more than two or three could be secured in the locality where it was desired to operate. The Ontario Trades and Labor Branch will undertake to supply as many men as can be secured for this purpose. It is thought there will be no insuperable difficulty in securing sufficient men for this purpose at reasonable wages during the threshing months.

Where the silos are to be filled the same gangs, or as many men as are required, may be utilized for this purpose.

Organize a Gang in Your District.

It is suggested that farmers' clubs, other farmers' organizations, or groups of farmers without definite organization, consider at once the advisability of employing a threshing gang this fall. Call the local thresher to the meeting and confer with him regarding ways and means. Then, having reached a definite agreement, write Dr. W. A. Riddell, Superintendent Ontario Trades and Labor Branch, 15 Queen's Park, Toronto.

Inversely any thresher who wishes to organize a gang should write Dr. Riddell also. In every case it will be necessary for a thorough understanding to exist between the thresher and his patrons. When such is the case everything possible will be done to supply sufficient men for all threshing gangs required this year in Ontario. Apply to Dr. W. A. Riddell not later than July 10th. — Justus Miller, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Misunderstanding

By WILLIAM AMORY

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"But you are not listening."

Helen Fairfax turned her eyes back to her lover with a murmured "Forgive me." They were earnest eyes, shining with a tremulous love-light, and she was a clever girl, with keen mind and keener intuition, and he had grown into the habit of talking to her freely of his life, his profession, in a way that surprised himself.

But tonight her attention wandered. Tonight of all nights! Tomorrow he was to sum up his great case. Surely a woman should share the self-denial of a man's destiny. Was Helen, after all, like other women—given to moods, absorbed in the subjective—when the veil was lifted? They had been engaged six months; each day had been a fuller revelation of her nature. Was this the nearer view? Ah, no—banish the thought. Helen was Helen—there was no more to be said.

He took up the lines of the argument of his case and stated them to her, clearly, concisely, as though she were a man. This time her eyes did not wander from his face; they deepened, their pupils growing larger as she gazed. How splendid he looked! How alert; how alive!

How could she keep at this wide distance. How incidental and how futile sounded all that rapid flow of words! When would he have done, that she might throw herself upon his breast?

"Don't you think so?" he asked her, suddenly.

"Oh, Harold, I did not hear what you were saying."

"Not hear what I was saying? Haven't you been following? I never needed your co-operation more, your intellectual sympathy more, than I do tonight. You know how hard I have been working on this case; you know what a notable case it is. You know also, that the eyes of the legal world are upon me. My summing up tomorrow will be a crisis in the beginning of my career. Could you not follow me—help me by your sympathy—your interest?"

He waited to see the flash of protest in her eyes, for some little lance that she would thrust to cross his own, but instead she nestled her head into the curve of his shoulder and whispered: "Forgive me, I am moody tonight; very moody and absent-minded."

"We have no right to be moody nor absent-minded, dear," he answered seriously, "where another's interests are involved. It is a sign of weakness. And there is something besides love. A strong woman should keep even love at bay when a man has work to do—not lure him nor tempt him with it. I do not like to say it, sweetheart, but—I love you—and the wounds of a friend are faithful. I am disappointed at your failure to sympathize with my work tonight."

Two big tears welled in her eyes she said no word. Had Harold Ford been a hero, a knight of chivalry, he would not have stopped in his quest until he had found the source of those two tears; he was, however, only a very busy man of today. Not that the two are altogether incompatible, but that the combination is rare, and Harold did not happen to be both in the fullest sense; furthermore, he was deeply absorbed in an immediate practical affair. It was striking 11, and time for him to leave her. Though he said no more, and his good-night salutation lacked nothing outwardly, there was a mental reservation which, to the psychic sense of Helen, robbed it of its fullest bliss.

"Six o'clock tomorrow, dear," he repeated as he went out the door. "Six o'clock tomorrow," she answered.

Did her voice quiver, or was it fancy? He was conscious of saying to himself as he passed down the steps: "Are all women alike. I wonder—after all—tears and moods?"

The following afternoon, in the gathering dusk, he mounted the steps again. His attitude had changed. The stress and irritation of an absorbing effort had given place to a buoyant reaction. He had won his case, and won it in so brilliant a way that the triumph was the smallest part of his self-congratulation? Even the judge had said words to make a young lawyer's heart take courage. But what were the words, what was the triumph, what was anything, until he had shared it with Helen? He could see her in the gathering dusk, as he waited, her eyes glistening delight! He could hear her vibrant "Harold!" Poor child, had he been harsh last night? Ah, no, only impatient for a moment—and frank—to make her the utmost that she was capable of being. If he had unintentionally hurt her, he knew a potent balm to heal with, to make her rejoice.

Why was the servant so eternally slow in opening the door? How long they were making him wait! He rang again.

"Tell Miss Fairfax I am here."

"Yes, sir." The servant stood silent and awkward.

Harold wanted to quicken him with a shove; what was the matter with the fellow? He walked into the library; the light was burning low; the servant followed him, and closed the door with an air of mystery that gave Harold a mingled shock of impatience and of fear.

"I was to give you this, sir, when you came," and the man held out a letter.

"Is Miss Fairfax not at home?"

"She is at home sir."

"Then tell her at once that I am here."

"Yes sir."

Harold was alone with his letter; he opened it and read:

"It is midnight, you have gone, and yet it seems as though you are still here—so close to me that I can see your eyes and feel your touch—Harold. Forgive me that I was not more as I should have been this evening, but—I was a coward. Dear, I have not been well for many weeks and yesterday I saw a specialist. He told me I had a most serious difficulty, and that I must undergo a dangerous operation at once, if I would save my life. Tomorrow is the day appointed. I implored him to wait, but he leaves town in a few days, and if I do not have it done tomorrow it could not be performed for two months, and that is too long to wait, he says; so there was no other way. Tomorrow—our day—when you are to vindicate my pride and hope in you; the day we have waited for so long. There was but one impulse strong within me, almost overmastering—to fly to the shelter of your arms—to seek your sympathy. But how could I tell you when it might imperil your calm, your poise—undo all you have worked for—hamper your ascent, in which tomorrow will be a stepping stone? No. You must not know. Your heart is too tender, I am too much your own for you to stand up in court and plead for legal abstractions when I am lying under the knife. I half hoped you would make me tell you all my heart—but now I am glad you do not know. You will have no shadow on your way tomorrow, and when you receive this it will be all behind us; it will have been over seven hours, for the operation takes place at 11 o'clock. Good-night—good by. I love you—it seems to me that I love you in a new way tonight. Harold—Harold—I must call you back and tell you, and feel your strength to make me strong; but no. I am your love—I must be brave. And then—why should I fear?

"God's in his heaven—

"All's right with the world.

"HELEN."

He crushed the letter in his hand, and reached the door with one bound, like an animal in chase. She was his own; his place was by her side; no man could keep him from her. As he opened the door he came face to face with her father.

"Harold, my dear fellow—"

"Let me go to her," and Harold tried to pass. Mr. Fairfax put his arm across the door.

"No, you must not, now; the doctors are with her; they will let no one in, not even me, and I am her father, Harold, my boy, we must be brave and stand by each other."

A withering quiet, like a blight, fell upon Harold. It seemed to paralyze his powers of motion and of speech. After a moment he heard himself saying, in a voice that sounded like a stranger's:

"What—do—they — the doctors—say?"

Mr. Fairfax looked at him pityingly, his own anguish stamped white upon his face.

"Don't lose heart, Harold," he said gruesely. "We are hoping for the best, and McKenzie, the doctor who performed the operation, says the chances are in her favor."

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Weak, thin people—men or women—are nearly always nervous wrecks; thus conclusively proving that thinness, weakness, debility and neurasthenia are almost invariably due to nerve starvation. Feed your nerves and all these symptoms due to nerve starvation will disappear.

Eminent specialists state that the best nerve food is an organic phosphate known among druggists as Bitro-Phosphate, a five-grain tablet of which should be taken with each meal. Being a genuine nerve builder and not a stimulant or habit-forming drug, Bitro-Phosphate can be safely taken by the weakest and most delicate sufferer, and the results following its use are often simply astonishing.

Weak, tired people regain strength and vigour; thinness and angularity give way to plumpness and curves; sleep returns to the sleepless; confidence and cheerfulness replace debility and gloom; dull eyes become bright, and pale, sunken cheeks regain the pink glow of health. Bitro-Phosphate, the use of which is inexpensive, also wonderfully promotes the assimiliation of food, so much so that many people report marked gains of weight in a few weeks.

CAUTION:— Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh. It is sold in this city by McDermid & Jury and all good druggists.

A SOLAR ECLIPSE.

When Totality Occurs Nature Takes on an Awesome Aspect.

A total eclipse of the sun is a wonderful sight. Where the eclipse is but partial the disk of the moon will creep across the face of the sun little by little, but will never completely obscure the orb. But where "totality" occurs the sun at a given moment will be entirely obliterated and the inhabitants of the regions across which the black band will stretch will perceive the most wonderful phenomenon known to astronomers—the display of the "corona" of the sun.

Great waves of incandescent gas hundreds of thousands of miles long, reaching out from the sun into the ether, will be perceived. The countryside will take on a sinister, night gray color, and tints of nature will pale and deaden as at twilight, the temperature will diminish sensibly, the birds, believing night has come, will cease their song and seek their nests. A person who has never seen this strange manifestation of nature cannot form any idea of its awesome aspect.

This eclipse is a recurring phonomenon. At the end of every period of eighteen years and eleven days the moon comes between the earth and the sun at just such an angle that the sun's light is completely shut off from a portion of the world and partially shut off from a much larger part.—New York World.

A BILLION DOLLARS.

The Time It Would Take an Expert to Count Them Singly.

I wonder if we realize when we talk of a billion dollars what an enormous sum of money it means?

We all know how rapidly an expert counter of coins will manipulate them. You can scarcely follow the motion of his fingers as he shifts the coins from one pile to another and counts them. The treasury experts will count 4,000 silver dollars in an hour and keep it up all day long, but that is their limit.

Working eight hours a day, then, an expert counter of coins will count 32,000 silver dollars in a day, but how long will it take him at that rate to count $1,000,000? Thirty-one days.

But that is only the beginning of the measurements of great figures, for if this same man were to go on counting silver dollars at the same rate of speed for ten years he would find that he had only counted 100,000,000 of them and that to count $1,000,000,000 would require 102 years of steady work at the rate of eight hours a day during every working day of every one of the 102 years.—O. P. Austin, Former Chief of Bureau of Statistics.

Compensation.

If it is true, as our business philosophers tell us, that "those who never do more than they get paid for never get paid for more than they do," then it is quite clear that if you want to get paid for more than you do you must do more than you get paid for. Even a philosopher ought to see how impossible that is, but of course the true philosopher cannot be expected to hesitate over a mere impossibility.—Life.

A Government Pen

By AGNES L. PRATT

Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

From my position on a desk by the window I can look out over the greensward, just at present with beds of flaunting tulips and its great fountain, whose jeweled drops scintillate in the sunny air.

The grass is like a square of emerald velvet, bordered along its sides with gray, chiseled granite; and the lacquered iron seats scattered here and there, look inviting.

I, myself, am old and battered, having been busy for months recording the emotions of the human souls that stream in at the revolving doors yonder, and out again, at the one near me. I can see for myself that the building wherein I have an abiding place is magnificent. I behold the massive front of red brick, with costly trimmings of brown stone. Two immense electric lanterns throw floods of light, nightly, through the lace-like iron filagree that protects them, on the masses of humanity that beat with rythmic trend the wide sidewalk beneath the window.

In my short life, for the existence of a pen in the service of this great government must of necessity be abbreviated by the democratic handling it receives, I have recorded more than one pitiful life story.

It is not long ago the noble elms surrounding the green were bare and gaunt against a grayer sky, that a young men with hopeful eyes leaned over the desk where I was lying, idle for a wonder, and reaching out, grasped me tightly. As I flew, with impatient strokes over the white sheet, I found that I was writing thus:

"Dear Mabelle—I may write—may I not?—what I cannot say, for when I am with you my lips are ever silent. I followed you to the city, dear, I sought and found work—because—because—I wanted to be near you. And now I find that I want to be near you always, so much so that I am willing to brave your disapproval, which I have often seen growing in your clear, brown eyes—and ask you to marry me, dear—now, tomorrow—next week—any time, only that you will have it some time.

"I am in an awful hurry, or I would say more. But I have an appointment at the quarry and all this means money—and perhaps you—to me. I have stopped here, in the post office, to pen these few lines, with a horribly poor pen, by the way.

"Please answer at once, and say yes—to—Jack."

I could forgive him the ill-mannered reflection on my character, when I felt the pace his heart was going communicate itself to me through his fingers.

I hoped she would say yes as I rolled complacently over on my side, when he laid me down, and amused myself watching the gardener raking here and there among the stubbly brown grass that clothed the green.

Dipped thousands of times in ink, as I was daily, the foregoing episode had nearly faded from my mind, when presently it was abruptly recalled. A young girl in a jaunty gray jacket, with an aureole of violets shading her sunny brown hair, came hastily to the desk, picked me up, looked at me with disapproving eyes, laid me down, tried another pen, and then returned to her old lover, meaning myself. A straggling sunbeam kissed her shining eyes till they glinted an old-fashioned goldstone and lovingly caressed, with ruddy fingers, the chestnutty ringlets of hair beneath the violet aureole.

And, as I reposed snugly in the embrace of her gloveless fingers, she moved me rapidly over the paper and inscribed, in graceful characters, an application for a money order.

It was a prosaic culmination of my ardent and romantic desires, but I had only to wait a few moments when something followed. Without hesitation, though each stroke of my rusted tip was cutting through two quivering hearts, she indited the following:

"Dear Jack—I know what you will say when you read this—you will say I am hard-hearted, that I do not care—that I ought to leave all and cling to you, if I love you—but I cannot do what you wish me to. And Jack, dear, I do love you, too. But they, my parents, need me—need my help. I have left them up there, in the country home, while I go battling with the cruel world, so that I may be of use to them, who did for me as long as they were able. You know the whole pitiful story, Jack.

"A breath just now from the newly springing grass on the green brought it back to me, and I have half-closed my eyes so the tears should not fall on my letter. Father blind, mother his only attendant, and feeble herself, with only my arm—Jack, my woman's arm—between them and want. You would say, if you were here and I was talking now instead of writing this, that your arm was stronger than mine and you could do for them and me. But think, there would be four of us then, and could you do for four—and you a young man, with such prospects as you now have? Could you weight yourself with your own burdens and mine, too? No, it can never be.

"Better for both of us that we should put such thoughts far away from our hearts. This is a cruel old world, Jack, and diamonds, not hearts, are trumps. I must not marry while they live, unless—Jack, it is cruel, but I must sell myself for gold if I marry at all."

I was glad when she finished abruptly and laid me down where I could watch the streets pouring their seething masses of human beings, God knows where—I do not. Back and forth ebbs this ceaseless tide, but from what diversified sources it has come, and to what it is going, I know not.

In a few days he came in again, and I wrote for him a few words, a pitifully brief message:

"I am going to the Philippines. You have made it impossible that I should live here, and I care not whether I live elsewhere or not. A worthless life is best offered up on the altar of my country's service, and mine will be only another name to add to the list of poor devils already killed by pestilence or the bullet of a Tagalo."

There was nothing else, only his name. It was quite time that I should be replaced with a new pen. I had outlived my usefulness—but I continued to be overlooked and many a day and night have I lain there quietly on the desk by the window and thought of that brave fellow, off there, fighting where no glory could ever be his, crawling through tropical undergrowth and searching out the treacherous foe—to be finally wasted and killed by insidious disease—denied even the honor, doubtful, perhaps, of dying by the hand of the enemy.

It was only the other day. I know the brilliant bloom had just burst from the beds in front of my window, and great crystal drops from the fountain were blown by the madcap breezes of the spring when my soldier came in and stood near me. He had returned, and there was a happy light in his eye, a flush beneath the rich bronze tinting of his cheek. Evidently his enlistment and service had done him no harm.

He gave one quick glance across the rainbow brightness that crossed and recrossed the velvet greenness of the turf outside, grasping me, his old friend, he wrote hastily:

"Dear Mabelle—I have come home for good. My time is up, and I have great news for you, for while out there, fighting natives and sickness, and dreaming of you—my fortune here was being made. Something I had done in the old life—journalism—it seems attracted the attention of the great ones in power, where formerly I was almost an unknown quantity. So that I returned to find the struggle ended and a sure place waiting for me, at a salary that seems marvelous, almost. At least it will suffice for all of us, and your dear ones shall never know want while I live. I have written this to your old address and am not quite sure where I shall find you. A line will bring me to your side; and dear—let it be soon, please."

My heart sang with his for joy and I was glad that it was spring, glad the grass was soft and green, the flowers bright and the birds singing. For somewhere, up in the branches of the great elms, some birds were riotously chanting a greeting to all things new and beautiful.

The next day—yes, it was only the next day—she came again, but how changed! More beautiful, if anything, but something subtle had departed from her personality and had been replaced by another something that I could not define, but only feel. And she, too, lifted me and presently she wrote:

"Dear Jack—Dearer now, because impossible by my own wickedness. Your letter came to me last night, after following me about all day. I am glad you have come back and that you were not killed out there, as I was afraid you would be. I have watched the papers and my heart has ached; but Jack, dearest Jack, I have gone and spoiled all the beautiful happiness that life had in store for me—on the eve of its appearance. Last month I married—married for the gold I have needed so much—and for them—a man I did not love, a man who is old enough to be my father—and who—is not like you, Jack. And in less than two weeks, only two weeks ago—and it seems a lifetime to me—they were both gone—gone, Jack, to where they could never want what I had sold my soul and your love for. Mother went suddenly, Father just failed and then—he was gone. They held out their hands to me,' he said to me, one day—and he went to them. I have forged my chains, beautiful fetters they are, of solid gold and jewelled—but they burn into my flesh like fire, and they bind till, from very agony, I must groan. Pity me, Jack. If you are unhappy what must I be? Oh, wait for me—wait for me—Jack, perhaps—he is older than I—and perhaps some time—Forgive me, Jack, and forget me.—Mabelle."

I turned and looked out across the velvet green. Through its cool tree-shaded walls the throngs still surged, each heart knowing its own burden, carrying it silently and cursing or praying as was its nature.

The fountain sparkled in the sunlight, the flowers held their cups to catch its spray, great trees bent their heads as the fleecy clouds rolled above them; and only the song of the birds was wholly happy.

Her Specific Instructions.

The sex that Robert W. Chambers made famous is the same that delivers telephone messages to spouses something like: "A man called you up today—I think his name was Smith or Jones; no, it wasn't them—something like that, anyway; no, he didn't leave any message; he said you were to call him up at—now, when did he say? Well, I forgot just when, but he left his number; wait a minute, I put it down on a piece of paper—just wait till I get it; Oh, dear, I remember I mislaid it somewhere now; well, anyway, he said you were to call him up."—Chicago Evening Post.

GEORGIA BLOODHOUNDS.

Keen Scent Enables Them to Perform Almost Incredible Feats.

What the Georgia bloodhound can do seems almost incredible. A convict sleeping in one bunk of a hundred shod and clad precisely as the hundred convicts about him, may slip his chain and flee. Ten miles away he may meet his fellow prisoners again, may run to and fro among them or walk with them a mile and leave them.

Six hours after these hounds put on his track where he slipped the camp will follow him to where he met his gang, will tread his track in and about with hundreds of tracks, take it up where he leaves them and run him down though he cross convict gangs every mile he runs.

This escaping convict, clad in stripes cut from the same bolt with a hundred others, may run through the woods, touching weeds and bushes as he runs. Fifty other convicts may run through the same woods in every direction. The dogs will hold his scent, running full tilt, breast high. If he makes a curve of forty-five degrees the dogs will not run the line, but will catch his scent thirty yards away and across the angle, though it were filled with the convicts who had eaten and slept with the fugitive.

Often a dog will carry a scent in a gallop, running parallel thirty yards to the windward. An uncanny and terrible little beast is the red bone hound, trained for the hunting of man.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

SAVED BY A WAGER.

Doomed by the Surgeons, Hay Bet He Would Live, and He Did.

When Colonel Hay, notorious for his love of gambling and betting, was severely wounded in the Peninsular war two brother officers came across his apparently lifeless body.

"Poor Hay! He's gone at last," said one named Winsor.

A faint voice came from the ground. "I'll lay you a hundred he's not." His death seemed only a question of minutes, but he continued, "Enter the bet and you, Marston"—addressing the other officer—"be witness."

He then fainted. When he was taken to the hospital the surgeon told him the bullet could only be removed by sawing through two ribs and introducing a child's hand to extract it, as forceps could not touch it. "The chances are," he added, "that you will die under the operation."

"If Winsor will make his bet double or quits I'll consent," said the colonel.

Winsor agreed.

"Now saw away," said Hay, "I won't die." And he did not.

"But for that bet," he said afterward, "I should be a dead man. It was my determination to win it that kept me alive."—Pearson's Weekly.

Information.

It was a very fashionable concert and the artists very well known ones, but the two young things were too busy with picking out their peculiarities to hear the music.

In the midst of a beautiful selection the pianist suddenly lifted his hands from the keys and one of the young things was heard to say clearly:

"I wonder if that hair is his own?"

The old man who sat beside her was slightly deaf, but he turned with a benevolent smile.

"No, miss," he imparted pleasantly; "that is Schubert's." — Philadelphia Press.

Old Forts of Antwerp.

As long ago as 1641 an English traveler to Antwerp was impressed by the extensive character of its fortifications. "The grafts, ramparts and platforms are stupendous," writes John Evelyn in his diary. "* * * But there was nothing about this city which more ravished me than those delicious shades and walkes of stately trees, which render the fortified workes of the towne one of the sweetest places in Europe; nor did I ever observe a more quiet, cleane, elegantly built and civil place than this magnificent and famous city of Antwerp."

Cats and Rain.

The fur of the cat is full of electricity, and before a thunderstorm it will be noticed that a cat is always extremely lively and playful, probably on account of its electrical condition. Before rain is expected a cat will assiduously wash its face.

ART TREASURES OF FRANCE.

Precautions That Guard Them at the Louvre, in Paris.

Those who visit the Louvre do not suspect the effort that is necessary in keeping the building in order. It must be protected at night against fire and burglars by watchmen, who, with revolvers at their dark lanterns in hand, make their rounds, accompanied by police dogs.

Upstairs and downstairs and along the corridors, says the Paris correspondent of the New York Sun, the distance they travel amounts to four miles, and in every room the watchmen must "punch" the clock that shows whether the rooms have been inspected and how often.

During the night the most valuable works of art are kept under lock and key. When the galleries are closed to the public a clever piece of mechanism is set in motion that carries the royal jewels, worth millions of dollars, into a special burglar proof chamber. The Venus de Milo, too, has her own special bedroom. An iron shutter rises from the ground in front of her and hides the marble features of the goddess.

In the early morning an army of custodians pours through the rooms, and the process of cleaning begins. A force of 150 men sets to work with brooms, dusters and floor polishers. The custodians exceed the strength of a company of soldiers on a war footing. There are one chief custodian, three underchiefs, twenty-seven superior and 148 inferior custodians. To these must be added the Louvre's artisans, for the great place has its own works department and almost its own factory.

RADIUM AND LIGHTNING.

And the Better Protection of Horses During Thunderstorms.

Radium has been discovered vastly to improve lightning rods in their protection of buildings during thunderstorms. Of course the enormous cost of radium prevents any practical use of the fact as yet. But there is a very fair possibility that the information gained in this way will lead to a new form of lightning rod which will be more efficient or that further experiments will show that a tiny quantity of radium at a reasonable cost will improve the protection.

The purpose of lightning rods, of course, is to catch the electrical currents in the air during a storm and lead them safely into the ground instead of allowing the lightning to pick its own course down through a house or church steeple, and their use is based on the principle that a metal rod will give the electricity a smoother path of less resistance than ordinary building material.

The whole trouble with lightning rods now is that, though they can be made to do the trick if the electrical discharge is near them, there is no way to lead electricity through the air to the rod. Radium will do this part of the work, as has been demonstrated in scientific experiments. Two milligrams of radium on the end of a rod made the air a considerable distance away a vastly better conductor.

Thus any electrical discharge within several yards of the rod had a path open for it along the radium rays to the rod and then down the rod to the earth.—Saturday Evening Post.

Obliging Conductor.

The fussy lady had noticed that the rude man sitting beside her on the street car had expectorated on the floor. The fussy lady immediately signaled the conductor, and that official came in to see what was wanted.

"Do you allow spitting in this car?" demanded the fussy lady.

"Well, no," replied the conductor. "But you can come out on the platform if you want to, lady."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S TWO, THREE OR FOUR GORED SKIRT.

This pattern is highly recommended to the home dressmaker who wishes to economise, for it is so simple and can be used in so many ways that it will be a wonderful help in remodelling or making new dresses and skirts for the coming season. If you wish to make a two gored skirt place the edge of centre back and centre front on a fold edge of the material. For a three gored skirt you may make an allowance for the tuck closing at centre front. This style has the plain, fitted back, but if you wish to make a four gored skirt of some narrow material you may have a seam at centre back. The skirt has a slightly raised waist line.

The lady's two, three or four gored skirt pattern No. 8771 is cut in five sizes—24 to 32 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. The two or three gored skirt in 26 inch size requires 2¼ yards 36 inch or 2⅝ yards 54 inch material, with ½ yard 36 inch contrasting material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

What Bobwhite Eats.

Fifteen per cent of the food of the bobwhite is composed of insects, including several of the most serious pests of agriculture. Half of its food consists of weed seeds, one-fourth of grain and about one-sixteenth of wild fruits. Taken in all the bobwhite is very useful to the farmer, and while it may not be necessary to remove it from the list of game birds every farmer should see that his own farm is not depleted by sportsmen.

Austrian Offensive Has Been Checked Says War Office

The Allied Troops Have Taken Several Hundred Prisoners

War Veterans Ask That Y.M.C.A. Grant Be Held In Trust

By Almost Unanimous Vote Local Branch of G.W.V.A. Expresses Lack of Confidence in Red Triangle Work and Asks That No Grants Be Paid Until Proper Financial Statement Has Been Given.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

"That the Peterborough branch of the G.W.V.A. places itself on record as having no confidence in the overseas work of the Y.M.C.A., and we strongly recommend that all money subscribed by the city and county of Peterborough and the public in general be held in trust until a thorough investigation has been made and a complete financial statement issued to the public as we who have been over in France and Flanders and have done our bit, have reason for our lack of confidence, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the County Council and the press."

The above resolution passed by the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association at their regular meeting last night by a vote of 23 to 1, will no doubt be a feature of the June sessions of the County Council, which began this afternoon, as the county grant to the Y.M.C.A. Red Triangle Fund is to be taken up at this session.

As the vote shows, the returned men present were almost unanimous in their criticism of the Y.M.C.A. war work. A number of the members present gave their experiences in connection with the Red Triangle in France and Belgium, the chief complaint being against the alleged mercenary methods of the Y. M. C. A. The opinion was expressed that, considering that many of the huts were presented by individuals, that the transportation of goods and most of the work was done by the Army, and that the sales in the "Y" canteens were enormous, there was no need of a huge campaign in Canada for funds to carry on the work. Complaint was made that many of the officers in charge of the work were physically fit men, who should be on the firing line, but who, instead, as one member expressed, "were satisfied to sell chocolates and other refreshments and to make the fighting men salute them." It was also pointed out that it was a shame that men coming out after days in the front line trenches should be detailed for Y.M.C.A. fatigue work. Other complaints, such as charging a deposit on books that had been given for the soldiers, the sale of socks that had been knitted by Canadian women for the men overseas were also referred to by the meeting.

The one member who voted against the resolution pleaded for more consideration to be given the matter, and urged waiting for a more largely attended meeting, when a more general expression of opinion could be obtained. Reviewing his experience with the Y.M.C.A., he said that while he had not found that many things were to be obtained for nothing, the Y.M.C.A. had been a great convenience to the men, and he hesitated to condemn the work.

BELIEVES RESERVES ARE SUFFICIENT TO CHECK ENEMY

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, June 18.—A semi-official despatch from the Italian front to-day said: "To date the enemy success has been on the Piave, where he has thrown fourteen bridges across. These are being subjected to heavy artillery fire. The reserves here are believed to be sufficient to check the enemy."

SAILORS MET A TERRIBLE DEATH IN GERMAN SUBMARINE

Were Shot to Surface by Compressed Air—Lungs Burst on Reaching Sea Level

COMMITTED SUICIDE

LONDON, June 18.—Harrowing details of the destruction of one of the largest and more recently constructed German submarines are given in a despatch from a neutral correspondent. This submarine was one of the last to leave Zeebrugge before the entrance to the harbour was blocked by British forces.

The U-boat struck a mine, and out of the crew of 40 only two survived on reaching the surface after a terrible struggle with death for an hour and a half 20 fathoms below the surface. Some of the crew committed suicide, having lost all hope of leaving the boat alive.

The only chance of escaping was to force open the conning tower and the forward hatches and trust to the compression of air in one part of the vessel to force each man like a torpedo to the surface. The air pressure in the submarine had become so high that the great majority of the Germans could not keep their mouths closed.

The compressed air shot them to the surface, and hardly had they reached the sea level when the air pressure burst their lungs and about 20 of them sank like stones. The survivors described the yells of the men, when the end came, as the most horrible noise they had ever heard.

The attention of a British trawler was attracted, and it hastened to the rescue. The condition of the survivors showed that their experiences in the submarine had been of a dreadful character.

BILL SAYS WAR WILL DECIDE WHETHER THE ANGLO-SAXON WILL BE THE RULING RACE

AMSTERDAM, June 18.—(Special to The Examiner)—The Kaiser in replying to Hindenburg's congratulations on the thirtieth anniversary of his reign, according to a Berlin dispatch said: "Britain's intervention meant a world struggle between two world views. Either German principles of right, freedom, honor and morality must be upheld, or Anglo-Saxon principles of idolatry to mammon must be victorious.

"Anglo-Saxon aims are making the people of tre world slaves Such a matter as whether the Anglo-Saxon will be the ruling race cannot be decided in a year."

OFFICIAL WAR OFFICE REPORTS

BRITISH OFFICIAL

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 18.—German artillery was more active than usual last night along the Ancre River, south of Albert and west of Serre, according to a statement issued by the War Office to-day.

The statement says:

"A hostile raiding party was repulsed by the British last night south-east of Villers-Brettonneux. We secured a few prisoners. Other prisoners and a machine gun were taken by us in successful raids south-west of Albert, in the neighbourhood of Moyenneville, on the northern side of the Somme salient, and in patrol encounters east of the Nieppe Forest, on the western side of the Flanders battle area."

GOOD RESULTS.

LONDON, June 18. — British naval aviators dropped 24 tons of bombs on Zeebrugge, Ostend and Bruges, "with good results," between June 13 and 16, the Admiralty announced to-day. One British plane failed to return.

FRENCH OFFICIAL

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 18.—In a local operation south of the Aisne last night the French took 100 prisoners, it is announced officially. Between Ourcq and the Marne prisoners were taken in patrol encounters.

The statement follows:

"South of the Aisne the French carried out successful local operations south of Ambleny and east of Mont Cobert, taking 100 prisoners, including two officers. Between the Ourcq and the Marne French patrols took prisoners. Elsewhere the night was quiet.

ITALIAN FRONT.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 18.—Bitter fighting is in progress along the Piava River. The Austrians are hurling large forces and suffering losses from the concentrations of Italian batteries. Repeated counter attacks are being made by the Italian infantry, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

Submarine Is Reported Destroyed In American Waters

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 18.—A German submarine and entire crew was destroyed by an American submersible off the Virginia coast several days ago, according to a report brought here to-day by passengers aboard an American steamship. Officers of the vessel claimed to have been told the story of the submarine combat by members of the victorious American undersea boat's crew. There is no official confirmation.

Farmers Refuse To Become Soldiers

Court Martial Being Held a Niagara Camp

Canadian Press:

NIAGARA CAMP, June 18.—Agricultural objectors have commenced to appear before a court martial here trying the cases of refusal to become soldiers, under the Military Service Act. Arthur Atkinson, said that only his mother and nine year old brother were left to work his hundred acre farm near Dunnville, but the court pointed out that he was not entitled to leniency, being already in default. William Andrew McGirr, another farmer, said he might as well go to penitentiary, as he had already been treated like a jail bird. He was 21 years of age and declared he was not "a quitter," but refused to serve.

Mr. Rodgers replied briefly, conveying his appreciation of the expression of regard and good wishes.

Bible Students On Their Trial

Successor of "Pastor" Russell and Seven of His Associates Arraigned

NEW YORK, June 17.—Religious belief is no excuse for violating the law, according to a statement made in the Federal Court here to-day by Judge Howe at the trial of Joseph F. Rutherford, who succeeded "Pastor" Russell as head of the International Bible Students' Association, and his seven associates, charged with opposing the war policies of the Government by the circulation of alleged seditious literature.

Reading court opinion to the effect that religious belief did not offset the constitution, Judge Howe said that he would call this fact to the attention of the jury throughout the trial. In a tilt with counsel for the defence, he said that he was amazed the lawyer should hold the opinion that the religious belief of the defendants justified them "in evading the law."

Rutherford, called to the stand, described how, after practising law in St. Louis and New York, he had succeeded "Pastor" Russell in 1916.

ARE HOLDING THEIR OWN

Attacks Are Dying Down in Some Spots on the Italian Front—A Dash For Venice

A CRITICAL SITUATION

(United Press Service.)
(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, June 18.—Austro-Hungary's offensive against the Italians is being narrowed so as to form a concerted assault against the roads leading to Venice.

Along the northern part of the front, the farthest removed from Venice, the allied troops are holding their own against attacks that are now dying down. The Piave river, however, which is the first defensive line protecting Venice has been crossed at several places, and fighting is proceeding on the plains leading to the Venetian lowlands. The safety of Venice is now in the balance, but the Italians have time to check the enemy before Venice falls within normal artillery range of the enemy.

Fighting For Venice.

The fighting for Venice is proceeding in difficult territory for military manoeuvres. It is close to the Gulf of Venice, and a flanking movement by either the Austrians or Italians might well drive the other into the water. A check delivered by the Italians under the present conditions would have a specially depressing effect upon the Austro-Hungarians, because the crossing of the Piave river, already accomplished, has been considered the hardest problem of an offensive drive toward Venice.

Reports that German troops are being sent to assist the Austro-Hungarians may well be believed. Having risked so much by ordering an offensive by the Austro-Hungarians, Von Hindenburg will risk even more if he does not come to the assistance of the Hapsburgs at this critical time.

A Major Crisis.

Failure of the Austro-Hungarian offensive to capture Venice would have so serious an influence upon the Austrian-German move in the Dual Monarchy that Hindenburg is once more involved in a major crisis.

No military system has discovered the secret of perpetual motion. Yet, that is what Von Hindenburg is trying. First in France, then in Italy, soon, perhaps, to revert to France again. If he rests his war machine too long, it will fly to pieces. Yet, rest must come sooner or later, through exhaustion.

County Court Resumed To-day

Mrs. Francis Hope Enters Action For $2,000 Damages

The action for damages instituted by Mrs. Hope, of Lakefield, was settled this afternoon, the plaintiff agreeing to a settlement for $300 and $250 to cover costs.

A suit for damages amounting to $2,000 was the first case heard at the resumption of the County Court this morning. Mrs. Francis Hope, of Lakefield, has instituted an action on behalf of her son against Mr. Samuel R. Leggott, of the Lakefield Electric Light Company. Mr. O. Aylmer Langley appeared for Mrs. Hope and Mr. Daniel O'Connell of Toronto, appeared for the defence.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Hope's second son, Jack, nine years of age, had been badly burned by a guy wire stretching from a fence post to an electric light pole. When Jack was discovered his left hand was grasping the guy wire, his right hand was by his side and both feet were on the ground. His mother stated that she saw sparks coming from his hand and feet. This occurred about 7 p.m. on September 21. He fell off the wire about five minutes afterwards and walked to his home, which was nearby, apparently dazed and speechless. He shivered so much that his mother bathed his feet in hot water. She then saw that his feet were badly burned, as also were his second and fourth fingers on his left hand. His eyes were bloodshot and ever afterwards seemed to be dreadfully strained. About five weeks afterwards his mother brought him to Dr. E. E. Harvey, of Peterborough, who attended him.

The case is proceeding.

Austrian Offensive Has Been Checked By Italians

Allied Troops Have Taken Several Hundred Prisoners and Machine Guns in Counter Attack—News From the Italian Front.

ITALIAN WAR OFFICE REPORT

Canadian Press:

ROME, June 18.— In attacks between Zeenson and Fossalta, along the Piave, the Austrians have been stopped everywhere, says an official statement by the Italian War Office. In the mountain region and around Montello there have been no infantry attacks by the enemy. The allied troops have taken several hundred additional prisoners and some machine guns.

THE STATEMENT READS.

On the mountain front and around Montello the enemy did not renew his infantry attacks. During the day a successful thrust was carried out by our troops. We occupied several positions, capturing machine guns and some hundreds of prisoners. Important actions developed south of Montello and along the Piave in the zone beween Zeenson and Fossalta, but the enemy everywhere was stopped by our counter-attacks. Several hundred prisoners were taken in our thrust. The attempts to cross the river Masserada and Candelu (north-east of Trevizo) by the enemy were blocked. On the lower Piave other counter offensive actions in course of developments resulted advantageously for us.

92 AUSTRIAN DIVISIONS.

Canadian Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Ninety-two Austrian divisions consisting of 80 divisions of infantry and 12 of cavalry, have been hurled into the greatest battle that Italy has yet fought. Seventy-one of these divisions have already been identified.

Austria's Effective Strength.

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, June 18.— Austria's entire effective military strength already has been thrown into the Italian drive according to a semi-official statement to-day.

On Austria's total of 92 divisions (1,104,000 men), seventy-one divisions (852,000 men) have already been identified on the Italian front. So far as equality is concerned, these constitute the whole of the enemy's really efficient troops.

The Austrians also have at least 7,500 guns of all calibres and their entire aviation force in use, together with an abundance of war material.

At Two Points.

Yet they have only progressed at two points where their gains are very slight compared with the objectives assigned to them.

From captured documents and the statements of prisoners there is no doubt the enemy command sent its troops into the offensive with the promise of booty. Cannon and trench mortars were furnished the Austrians in large numbers by the Germans. In return, according to prisoners, the Austrians have permitted a German "requisition" battalion to operate on the Italian front, in order to secure a portion of the anticipated loot.

Karl is on the Job.

Special to The Examiner:

AMSTERDAM, June 18.—German troops are participating in the Italian offensive, according to a despatch from Vienna to-day. The same despatch said that Emperor Karl is on the Italian front.

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, June 18.—The annihilation of the state and people is preferable to a dishonourable peace, Premier Orlando declared, in addressing the Chamber of Deputies yesterday. "The Government will neglect no opportunity of concluding a just and honourable peace, but not a single possibility of such a peace has ever yet shown itself."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, June 18.—Austrians, according to the Evening Standard, now occupy the west bank of Piave front and the Conegliano Railway to Zeenson, a distance of a mile and a half. They have thrown fourteen bridges across the river. They, however, are under Italian fire and uncrossable.

IN FAVOUR OF PENNY BANKS IN THE SCHOOLS.

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, June 18.—Hon. Dr. Cody is considering the proposal to devote ten to fifteen minutes each week to the teaching of thrift in the public schools of the province. The suggestion was made by a deputation representing the penny savings banks, and the Minister of Education is considering a plan whereby a short talk or an object-lesson on thrift will be given in the schools once a week.

MYSTERY HOW PEEL COUNTY FARMER CONTRACTED ANTHRAX

Department of Agriculture is Investigating Circumstances of Brampton Case

NO NEW EVIDENCE

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, June 18.—There is no indication as yet as to how the Peel County farmer contracted the anthrax from which he died, Inspector Stark, of the Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture, stated to-day. Inspector Stark has just returned to Toronto from Brampton, where he conducted an investigation into the case, but there is no evidence of anthrax either in the sheep of the deceased farmer or in the pelts of the sheep that died. Dr. Samuel Stirk, the Brampton veterinary surgeon who contracted anthrax while treating some cattle belonging to Wm. Pickering, of Churchville, is still in St. Michael's Hospital, but his condition to-day was reported to be improved.

DISTRIBUTION FOR CRESSMAN EMPLOYEES

Saturday's Co-operation Day Was a Big Success—A Correction

In yesterday's issue appeared an item relating to the results of Employees' Co-operation Day at Cressman's store. Through an error it was made to appear that the amount distributed among the employees was between "nine and ten dollars," where as it should have read nine and ten hundred dollars. The corrected item reads as follows:

"As a result of Employees' Co-operation Day at Cressmans' on Saturday, the employees each received an extra envelope to-day. The amount distributed was between nine and ten hundred dollars and the distribution was extended to take in every helper in the business, those who are employed only one, two or three days a week as well as all the regular employees.

The firm as well as the employees are exceptionally well pleased with the result of the day's business and still better pleased that the idea of profit co-operation inaugurated was so successfully supported. Another distribution by the firm will be made at the end of their business year based on the results of the different departments and their efficiency."

PENNY BANKS.

The reminder from the Galt Reporter to Hon. Dr. Cody, new Minister of Education for Ontario, in regard to the penny banks, is timely. The Reporter calls the attention of the Minister to the need of directly incorporating these banks into the educational system of the province. While they have been encouraged by the Department of Education and have been adopted by many Ontario schools, wheer their introduction has been justified by the results achieved, they have not been officially recognized by their adoption by the Department. As the Brantford Expositor puts it: "The Penny Bank is doing a noble work and it should no longer be treated as a foundling."

READING MATTER WANTED.

One of the Peterboro boys with the artillery at Petawawa camp, in a letter home, calls attention to the lack of reading matter there. The artillery camp, while admirable as a training ground, offers little in the way of amusement when the men are not drilling. It is far from any large-sized place and leisure hours are apt to drag under the circumstances. A supply of books and magazines would help many a Tommy to solve the problem of how to fill in the time, and no doubt many Peterboro people would be glad to help if they were given an opportunity. The appeal from Petawawa will afford to one of the local patriotic organizations who have been doing so much for the soldiers, a chance to do something that will be thoroughly appreciated. If any local society will undertake to receive and forward donations of books and magazines, the Examiner has no doubt that the people of Peterboro will see that an ample supply is forthcoming, while the local press will furnish all the publicity that is needed to make the undertaking a success.

PRICE FIXING.

The plan of price fixing to be adopted by the United States' Food Administration to protect the consumer in all departments of food supply is so simple and so likely to be effective, that the present pressure on the Canada Food Board to do something to stop the soaring prices, will undoubtedly be redoubled as Canadians study the system to be used across the line. Briefly, the United States proposes to publish standardized price lists in every city, town, village and township in the country. Committees composed of representatives of the wholesalers, retailers and consumers, will meet and decide upon what prices will be charged on food products, allowing a fair margin of profit to the retailer. The local food administrator will act as chairman of this committee, and when a scale of prices has been arranged these will be widely advertised. The system will result in profiteering being eliminated, and in the consumer being convinced that the price that he is called upon to pay represents only the actual cost of production, plus handling and a fair profit. To the merchant the plan will be of great benefit as it clears him of any suspicion of demanding too high prices. Merchants who overcharge after the scale of prices have been published, will, of course be punished by being cut off from their wholesale supplies.

In Canada such a system could be easily adopted, especially in view of the fact that a licensing system for retail stores has already been inaugurated and any over-charging after prices have been fixed, could be met by the cancelling of the license of the offender.

SOUND ADVICE.

In his impromptu address to his comrades of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association last night Rev. Canon Davidson gave some helpful suggestions and sound advice that should be carefully considered by the members of the Association. His opinion that the Great War Veterans should take the lead in developing a more healthy and robust Canadianism in this country, points the way to higher things for this fast growing organization. It is along the lines covered by the official organ of the G. W. V. A., the Veteran, which in an editorial in the current issue describes the object of the Veterans as being "to serve the widest interest of the whole community and to become a virile and healthy force in our national life which will contribute to the growth of a better spirit in public life and a much needed national regeneration." Canon Davidson's remarks drove home this description of what the G. W. V. A. should strive to be, and his suggestion that the members should not only live up to the Food Controller's regulations, but should lose no opportunity of impressing upon others the sheer necessity of such a course being adopted, was a timely example of what could be accomplished by such an Association.

The great danger before the Great War Veterans is that so much attention is being paid to criticism, much of which is not constructive, but destructive, that the support and interest of the public may be alienated. There is a great work, a great future, before the G.W.V.A. if the leadership is sound and wise; the Association can be one of the most powerful factors for good, for better citizenship, for a better national spirit, for a higher conception of duty, that Canada has ever seen. The opportunity is a glorious one, and it should not be throw away by constant criticism, which, if carried to excess only tends to weaken the influence and the power of the Association. Criticism to be be helpful should be constructive and while there are abuses that should be corrected, and while fault can be found in almost every organization, constant fault finding will result in public interest and sympathy being more or less lost in the false impression that will inevitably be formed of the ideals and aims of the Association. Canon Davidson sounded a note of warning in this respect when he pointed out that the Veterans must not allow themselves to be known as an association of "knockers."

The Veterans have the moulding of the future of their body in their own hands. Animated by the same patriotism and self-sacrifice which led the members to risk everything to fight for Canada overseas, the G.W.V.A., can and will, do great things for Canada at home.

To succeed, however, they must command public support and interest, and care should be taken to see that this be not lost through the inclination of some members to find fault with almost every movement that has as its object the helping on of the war.

A LONG LOST CHILD.

(From the Veteran.)

Some years ago the government appointed an Economic and Development Commission which was presided over by Sir James Lougheed, now Minister of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. Long and strenuous were the labours and travails of this commission and many thousands of good dollars were consumed by its activities. After many months a report was begotten which is declared to be rich in valuable information as to our available lands and other resources. Among other things it contained a full report and a census of the idle lands of the west, exactly the thing which the Soldiers' Settlement Board needed. But, alas, this promising child of the commission was smothered in its infancy by secret hands and never exhibited to a deeply interested public. But somewhere in the dark archives of the state it doubtless survives and pines for publicity. If the information contained therein is to be perpetually hidden from the light of day, there has been a wilful waste of public time and money. Sir James Lougheed is now in charge of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and the success of the operation of his department is closely connected with the problem of the utilization of the idle lands of the West, and it seems clear that the report would offer valuable insight into the difficulties of this problem and possible solution. The people of Canada have a right to see the report, which they paid for, and we therefore humbly suggest to the government and Sir James Lougheed that they take steps to make it public at the earliest moment. The future of the whole scheme of soldiers' settlement and of the recuperation of the Dominion of Canada, is irretrievably bound up with the utilization of the western lands near the railways now held vacant by railways and other corporations. If the owners are not willing to abandon their "dog in the manger" policy and make these lands available for settlement at modest prices, either taking government bonds in payment for them or accepting instalments from actual settlers spread over a long term of years, the Federal Government must impose a graduated land tax after the example of New Zealand. It is true that some of the Western Provinces have imposed wild land taxes which the land owners consider extremely onerous, but New Zealand in addition to such a tax imposed a super land tax which increases in volume according to the area held by each owner. Its effect is to make it thoroughly unprofitable for speculative holders and corporations to keep land out of the market and to make it availble at decent prices. The government should secure the data and facts and proceed to show that when the interests of corporations stand in the way of the common good and the due rewards of our returned soldiers, the outlook for the said interests wil rapidly become very dark.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

For the moment all eyes are turned from the front in France to the struggle in Italy, where the Austrian offensive has been resumed after many months inactivity. But there will be big events in France again before many days.

German U-boats continue to sink a few schooners off the American coast. But will Von Tirpitz please note that the recent arrival of United States' troops in France has broken all records?

Good evening! Have you registered yet?

The Italians and their allies are apparently putting the awe in the Austrians.

BIFOCAL LENSES.

They Had Their Origin In Ben Franklin's Double Glasses.

Everybody who uses bifocal glasses probably wonders where the idea originally came from. Bifocal glasses are the kind that possess two separate lenses cemented together so that by looking in the upper part one can see at a great distance and by looking through the lower half one can read.

Most authorities are inclined to give Benjamin Franklin credit for the invention. He was, so the story goes, an inveterate reader and could not use his reading glasses when looking any distance away.

Finally the notion came to him that he could combine his glasses, and he thereupon had the lenses cut in half and one-half of each lens placed in the rim of each spectacle rim. The result was that a single pair of glasses was sufficient, though present day oculists state that the sharply drawn line must have affected his eyes.

From this idea the oculists gradually developed a glass in which the lower part was arranged for reading and the upper part for long distance vision, while the annoying "marking line" was eliminated.—Washington Star.

Mount Rainier's Shadows.

There are some wonderful shadow effects produced by and upon the gigantic snowy cone of Mount Rainier. It sometimes happens that the sky as seen from the city of Tacoma just before sunrise is covered with a dome of cloud 15,000 feet or more in height, while behind the peak, toward the east, the sky is clear. In such circumstances the rising sun casts the shadow of the great mountain upon the cloud curtain overhead in the form of a vast blue triangle, the point of which rests upon the apex of the peak. At other times the shadow of the earth can be seen creeping up the cone in a distinct curve, while the flush of sunset stains the snow above the line of shadow to a deep pink.

The British Crown.

The present crown of the English king was originally made for Queen Victoria at her coronation in 1838. The principal jewels were taken from older crowns. The most noted stone is the great ruby which was given to the Black Prince by Peter the Cruel after the battle of Navarette in 1367. It was also worn by Henry V. in the crown encircling his helmet at the battle of Agincourt in 1415.—Philadelphia Press.

Cause For Suspicion.

A mother who frequently went out to spend the day with her friends had been accompanied always by her seven-year-old son. One evening on returning home very much bored with the day's experiences, he said to her:

"Mother, if you don't stop taking me around with you so much people will think you have married a dwarf."—Harper's Magazine.

Long Lived Ships.

If the life of the old man-of-war was longer than that of the present Dreadnought the old merchantman lived longer still. The Lively, for instance, when wrecked at Cromer in 1888, had been afloat two years over a century. The Liberty, too, built at Whitby in 1750, was in regular use till 1850, and the Betsy Cains, which began life as a frigate and ended as a collier, went down in her one hundred and thirty-seventh year. And in 1902, according to a daily paper, the Anita, then trading between Spain and America, dated from the days of Columbus. —London Standard.

That Explained It.

"I say, I have just come from my landlord's, and—would you believe it?—I had the greatest difficulty in the world to get him to accept a little money from me."

"Nonsense! And why, pray?"

"Well, because he wanted a lot!"—Liverpool Mercury.

Russian Tipple.

A popular drink among the peasants of Russia is called quass. It is made by pouring warm water over rye or barley meal. It is a fermented liquor and is very sour, but has been used for years by these poverty stricken people.—Liverpool Mercury.

The man who does things may make mistakes, but he never makes the greatest mistake of all—doing nothing.

Italian motorboat sank an Austrian dreadnought.

If the Italian craft is of the same family as the motorboats on the Humber the wonder is that it did not sink the whole Austrian navy!

Tonnage For Troops.

(London Free Press.)

Wall street reports the agricultural outlook in France so favourable that French requirements for the year for foreign wheat are estimated at less than 45,000,000 bushels against 120,000,000 bushels last year Tonnage thus released will be devoted to carrying supplies for American troops and for carying the troops themselves. The prows are set toward France —a line that will not alter until Germany meets her doom.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

ALL PRESENT

(Vancouver Province)

Musical wheeze from a New York paper: "When the Kaiser and six sons gathered around the piano of a Sunday evening for the close harmony, they likely begin the guttural glee with, 'Hail, hail, the gang's all here'!"

NO PLACE FOR ABSENT TREATMENT

(Niagara Falls Review)

The Globe complains of the overseas service of the Canadian Postoffice. Thousands of others have done likewise. With the head of the department in Europe what better can be expected?

TOMMY'S NAME BEST

(Rochester Herald)

Tommy Atkins has nicknamed the American troops much more sensibly than hysterical American writers did when the boys first went over Tommy calls them "Yanks," and the Yankees are very well satisfied.

"MADE IN GERMANY"

(Kingston Standard)

The Kaiser's "gold" cup made of pewter caps, the reputation of things "made in Germany."

WHY THEY DISGUISE

(Toronto Globe)

The weakness for high-sounding names persists. Why should a "vegetable drying machine" be disguised as "a dehydration plant"? Its first use by the Provincial Department of Agriculture should be to take the water out of its own name.

DESPERATION

(New York Herald)

The campaign on the western front, its failure in objectives and the ordered bleeding to death of Hun army corps, reveal the desperation of the enemy. Therefore, as a last throw of the dice the High Sea Fleet may be driven out and, unwilling as it undoubtedly is, take its final chance. Better far this than to play the ignoble role of the pawn, to be traded when the chess board of intriguing peace is set for the last trickeries of the game.

STRANGE STRATEGY

(Washington Post)

There is unity in the allied military command on the western front, but if there is any unity in allied political strategy it is working in a strange manner. As for the United States, it is a literal fact that a committee of congress heard for the first time this week of the existence of tens of thousands of Slavs in the United States, the subjects of Austria-Hungary, who are willing and anxious to fight for the destruction of the Hapsburg empire if they are only permitted to do so.

ISOLATED IN ROTTENNESS

(New York Sun)

Frightfulness has had its day and lost. It is as dead, so far as winning the war is concerned, as the ancient Chinese system of making horrible noises upon going into battle. The nations that are fighting Germany are engaged with comparative silence upon the task of killing the German hordes as they come, and winning the war according to the rules of white men. They are coming out of the war clean, and Germany is not. It is too late for her to be decent Let her be rotten alone.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT.

(Buffalo Express)

Groan if you wish to over the prospect, but get it firmly in your mind that taxes are to be heavy and will be heavier before the war ends. They are part of the burden of war. If you are wise, you will not groan, but will accept the situation as invitable and make the best of it, doing your share willingly. All the money you may be required to pay is as nothing to the sacrifices which millions of our young men are prepared to make and which thousands of them will make. Don't lose sight of that fact for a moment.

GERMANY'S CONUNDRUM

(Washington Star)

Senator Smith, of Georgia, said at an Atlantic luncheon: "German militarism set out to overrun the world. Before the disasters that have befallen it, however, German militarism must now be feeling a good deal like Cal Clay. Calhoun Clay, of Paint Rock, was fishing for tarpon in Florida, and he hooked such a big one that it pulled him overboard. As Cal went over the side of the boat, and tore through the water in the tarpon's wake, he said: 'Wot Ah wants ter know, is dis—is dis niggah a-fishin', or is dis fish a-niggerin'?"

LOOKS LIKE IT

(St. Thomas Journal)

During the month of May food to the extent of 132,510 pounds was destroyed at the civic incinerator in Toronto on account of having rotted. And yet in Stratford the other day a man was fined a hundred dollars or so for having a few pounds more flour than allowed by the food controller. Aren't the authorities killing ants and overlooking elephants?

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT

(New York Herald)

Americans have not expected the impossible of their men at the front and do not expect anything of that kind now. There is no underestimate here of the strength of the foe and none of the overestimating of our own strength that takes the form of braggadocio. The news of these successes is accepted with gratitude, but without losing sight of the fact that reverses may come. If they do come, they will be accepted with a resignation fortified by confidence that the end will be victory for the right.

But Bottles Are Barred.

Washington Post: Under the provisions of the bill just signed by President Wilson young American citizens who were in arms 21 years ago can now begin all over again.

The Super-Figurer.

Indianapolis News: The difference between the casualty figures on Allied losses as compiled by the Teuts and those officially announced by the Allies, suggests that along with kultur and other undesirable things the Huns use a system of higher mathematics.

Proud of Their Standard.

Manchester Guardian: It is not generally known that at least one German regiment proudly carries into the fight against us a British battle honour. How many even amongst those soldiers in our army who wear the word "Gibraltar" on their regimental crest know that they earned it at the same time as the 73rd Regiment of the German infantry? This famous regiment, whose other name is the Hanoverian Guards, wears the word on an embroidered ribbon sewn round the top of their right cuff. At the outbreak of the war the Kaiser wished the regiment to abandon the distinction, but the officers and men refused, saying that they had won it as honourably as any honour held in the German army.

Two Kinds of Warriors.

The Brooklyn Eagle: There are two kinds of people who are of no help to America: Those who want to run the war and those who want to run away from it.

Let a Little Sunshine In.

Boston Globe: Now we are told the exposing the pages of books to the sunlight occasionally will prevent them from becoming yellow. Try this on your Bible.

A Second "Wandering Jew."

The Baltimore American: If eventually the Kaiser were to be exiled by his own people, where in all the world is there a spot of land that would be willing to shelter him?

A Resemblance.

Philadelphia Ledger: A cablegram says that German Princes are scrambling for new thrones in the East, which reminds us of the discretion of the youth who twisted a mule's tail to see what it would do.

Figured on "Sir Tom."

Calgary Albertan: Sir George E. Foster was the only member of the Dominion Cabinet who fell for a title at the recent shuffle of honours. We wouldn't have thought it. Valuing titles as we do, we thought the only member of the Government likely to be knighted this time would be the Hon. Tom Crothers.

Non-Churchgoers.

(Vancouver Sun.)

Some people do not go to church because they have so many unimpeachable teachings of their own that they do not live up to.

The Editor's Fortune.

(Buffalo Courier.)

A country editor out in Missouri recently retired with a comfortable fortune of $10,000. His successor explains that the money was acquired by industry, economy, conscientious effort to give full value, indomitable perseverance and the death of an uncle who left the editor $49,990.50.

Covers the Whole Case.

(Nashville Lumberman.)

"God grant our brave troops may win the reward they deserve!" says the kaiser. Nobody could wish them any worse luck.

A Resemblance.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

A cablegram says that German Princes are scrambling for new thrones in the East, which reminds us of the discretion of the youth who twisted a mule's tail to see what it would do.

British Officer Leads.

(Buffalo Commercial.)

In reviewing the casualty lists of the British army after a "big show," one cannot but marvel at the manner in which the British replace their losses in commissioned ranks. If the German army lost officers proportionately at the rate the British army has, it would not to-day be much of a fighting organization. The reason for the great proportion of officers lost is that they always lead their troops into action.

CANADA

HERE IS THE DAY YOU REGISTER

ON June 22nd, Saturday, every man and woman, resident in Canada, who is 16 years and over, must attend at one of the places provided for registration, between the hours of 7 a.m. and 10 p.m., and there truthfully answer all the questions set forth upon the registration card.

Upon signing the card, vouching for the accuracy of the answers, the man or woman will receive a Registration Certificate, as shown below, which must be carried upon the person thereafter.

Why the Certificate is so Important

For failure to register a maximum fine of $100 and one month's imprisonment is provided, also an added penalty of $10 for each day the person remains unregistered after June 22nd.

Persons remaining unregistered cannot lawfully be employed, and cannot draw wages for work done after June 22nd. Employers who keep unregistered persons in their employ will be liable for fines equal in amount to those recoverable from the unregistered employees.

Unregistered persons cannot lawfully purchase transportation tickets, and may find themselves barred from travelling on railroads, steamboats, etc. Similarly they may be denied board and lodging at any hotel, restaurant, public house or boarding house.

In a word—All persons remaining unregistered, and all persons having dealings with unregistered persons, knowing them to be such, incur heavy enalties under the law.

June Session Of County Council Opened To-day

Warden Anderson opened the June sessions of the County Council this afternoon with an address, in which he first touched on the grave crisis through which the war is passing, with results that have been hopeful and encouraging. The crops throughout the country have been reported as more than satisfactory. The Warden indicated that certain bridge work should be taken up this term, especially the question of the Kinmount bridge Although the Warden is chairman of the Special Building committee, he announced that since ex-Warden Brown had been chairman last year when the work was begun and largely prosecuted, the latter would present a report on the work this session.

Reeves Nichols, Brown, Squire and McIntosh were appointed a special committee to deal with the Warden's address, on motion of Reeve. Walsh, seconded by Reeve Lean.

All the members were present.

To Sell Debentures.

Tenders were opened for two parcels of debentures of $15,000 and $7,000, respectively, and the price submitted by C. H. Burgess & Co., Toronto, of $20,550.90, was accepted on a motion by Reeve Squire, seconded by Reeve McIntosh; the interest on the $15,000 is at 5½ per cent., and on the $7,000 is at 5 per cent.

Warden Anderson remarked that there was money in the county if it could be induced to take these attractive debentures. The clerk stated this was at practically 6 per cent.

Pulling Together In A Community

WHITBY, June 17.—At the Ontario Ladies' College last evening, after the regular church services, the closing meeting of the Whitby Institute of the Rural Community Life Movement was held with Mr. J. G. Maclaren of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, as the speaker. His subject was "Pulling Together for Community Life," and he made the significant statement that the spirit of the movement was expressed in "Thy Kingdom come and Thy will be done on earth," two clauses from the Lord's Prayer, to show that the Institute really served to bring people together and make them one.

A Prayer Pact.

He told of an incident which occurred that day. Rev. Father Kelly of Norwood, who had been in attendance, just before he left had had a conversation with Rev. A. H. Foster, pastor of the Methodist Tabernacle here. Said Father Kelly: "Mr. Foster, do you believe in prayer?" "I do," replied Mr. Foster. "I am going overseas as Chaplain," said Father Kelly; "I will pray for you if you will pray for me." This was the spirit "that they may be one" behind the Community Life Movement, said Mr. Maclaren.

Work of Its Kind.

This Institute was the first held in this part of Ontario. The delegates numbered seventy-five. The Institute opened with a banquet on Friday evening, and the intervening time was well filled with addresses and demonstrations of games for country people. Mr. Maclaren of the Ontario Agricultural College was the leader of the Institute and the Chief speaker, assisted by Dr. John Waugh, Chief Inspector of Public schools; Rev. Chancellor Bowles, Victoria College; Rev. Father Galvin, Deseronto; Rev. Father Kelly, Norwood; Prof. Franklin Johnson of the University of Toronto, and several local men. The Institute was a great inspiration to the delegates, who strongly desired that it might be repeated next year.

Bicyclist Was Run Down By Autobus

W. H. Andrews, 94 McGill Street, riding a bicycle on Charlotte Street, near the corner of George Street, last night at 6.15 o'clock, was struck by the autobus driven by Mr. Jp. Carrol. He was cut on the chin, and was otherwise injured about the head and his bicycle was smashed considerably. P. C. McIlmoyle, who reported the accident to Chief Thompson, stated that Mr. Carrol was not at the wheel of the autobus when it ran over the wheel of the bicycle, but was riding on the side of the road required by the traffic regulations, and added that Mr. Carrol seemed to lose his nerve. Andrews was moving west, and the autobus was just turning off George Street when the collision occured.

WEDDING BELLS

FOLEY—McINTYRE.

On Saturday afternoon, June 15th, at the George Street Methodist Parsonage, William E. Foley of this city, was united in marriage to Mary Netta McIntyre, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntyre, of 471 Gilmour street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Amos J. Thomas. After a short honeymoon the happy couple will make their home in the city.

FELSON—GIFFORD.

At the George Street Methodist Parsonage on Saturday, June 15th, Alfred Thomas Felson and Bertha Maria Gifford, both of this city, were united in the bonds of matrimony. Rev. Amos J. Thomas was the officiating minister.

SINDONS—HORSEFIELD.

On Saturday afternoon at 2.30, the marriage was quietly solemnized at St. John's church, Rev. Canon Davidson officiating, of Emily, daughter of Mr. George Horsefield, and Walter Sindons, both of the city. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jane Horsefield, while Mr. Charles Horsefield supported the groom.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left by the 3.20 C.P.R. for a short trip to Western cities.

CROUGH—CROWLEY

On Tuesday morning, June 11th at half past nine o'clock, the wedding bells of St. Martin's Church, Innisfare, rang out a merry peal. The occasion being the marriage of Mary Bernadette, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Y. Crowley to Edward Aloysius Crough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy G. Crough.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Agnes Scollard. The nuptial Mass being celebrated by Rev. Father McAuley.

The charming young bride looked handsome attired in a white taffeta silk gown, with trimmings of Georgette crepe and silkmaccros lace. She wore a large hat trimmed with white satin and osprey, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Sarah Crough, sister of the groom, who wore a dainty dress of white voile trimmed with baby ribbon and point lace. She also wore a panama hat with trimmings of satin and maiden hair ferns. The groom was attended by Mr. Fergus Crowley, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony moto-ed to Clover Leaf Farm, the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding dinner prepared under the supervision of a thoroughly competent chef was partaken of. After ample justice was done to the tables spread with delicacies of the season, the bride and groom were accosted by Fathers McAuley and McLaughlin; Messrs John Callins and John K. Gallery, who in the evening amid showers of confetti, the bridal party adjourned to the home of the groom, Maple Dale Farm, where a reception was tendered them by the parents of the groom, including the associations of about two hundred friends in games and dancing, until the opportunity of conveying to the bride and groom their best wishes for a long, happy and prosperous wedded life.

The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held The groom's gift to the bride was a Peru gold brooch, gold set with real pearls and a rose point diamond in the centre and to the bride's maid a Gurnea gold brooch set with pearls, to the groomsman a crescent tie pin set with pearls. The groomsman's gift to the bridesmaid was a beautiful gold pendant set with ruby doublets and a pearl drop.

OBITUARY

TO MAKE OBJECTORS AND PRISONERS WORK

NEW YORK, June 18 — "Help! help! help! Guire right! Shoulder hoes!"

That is the ringing call, says the Herald, now to be heard in the various army camps for "conscientious objectors," as well as German prisoners of war and of enlisted men who are physically unfit for overseas duty, who are to be used to produce food f.o.b. the "mess tent door."

The National War Garden Commission, which has planked a 400-acre garden at Camp Dix, N.J., announced the following estimates of available acreage:

At Camp Funston, Kansas, 20,000 acres.

At Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N.J., 400 acres.

At Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass., 250 acres.

At Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., 1,000 acres.

At Camp Dodge, Iowa, 100 acres.

At Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, 70 acres.

At Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss., 50 acres.

At Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., 200 acres.

At Camp Jackson, Columbus, S.C., 250 acres.

At Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., 200 acres.

At Camp Sevier, Greenville, S.C., and Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S.C., estimates of the acreage have not been forwarded to Colonel J. G. Harbord, the head of the army quartermaster general, who has the work in charge. One hundred German prisoners are due at Camp Devens from Fort Oglethorpe this week, to be used under guard of twenty-five soldiers.

Within Hague Treaty.

The United States will keep within the terms of the Hague Convention in the use of labor to which it is entitled. On this account the army is selecting from 5,000 subjects of the enemy who are held under the jurisdiction of the War Department at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Fort McPherson, Ala., and Fort Douglas, only those who are "enemy prisoners." This will include only those who have been captured as actual "prisoners of war," and those who for any other reason have been taken as "enemy prisoners," but not those who are merely interned because of their nationality.

After the National War Garden Commission had placed a garden unit at Camp Dix Colonel Fair, in charge of the Conservation and Reclamation division of the Quartermaster's Department, got the use of a fund of $100,000, which he turned to utilizing gardens at other camps. The Commission has co-operated with the Quartermaster's Department in getting this work under way both as regards establishment of the gardens and the use of prisoners.

War Veterans Ask That The Y.M.C.A. Grant Be Held In Trust

Information Wanted.

The Veterans are also curious to know what workers under the registration scheme are to be paid, and with that end in view, the following resolution was passed:

"That F. H. Dobbin, registrar for the district of West Peterborough, be requested to publish the names of the volunteers employed under the registration scheme in the district of West Peterborough."

Another resolution that was passed unanimously, and with little discussion, was the following:

"That all positions at present under the Military Service Act filled by officers, N.C.O.'s and men who are fit and of military age who have not been active service outside of Canada be vacated in favour of those officers and men who have been active service, and that returned soldiers be given the positions wherever possible, such as employed men and returned soldiers."

"And, furthermore, we consider that all able bodied men of this city who have returned from active service in France and Belgium have been greatly overlooked and taught to expect appointments in the 3rd Military District, Kingston, and we therefore recommend that these officers and men be given the preference over those outside of the 3 Military District.

"And that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister of Militia and to Brigadier-General Hemming, G.O.C. No. 3 District, Kingston."

Canon Davidson's Suggestions.

Rev. Canon Davidson in an impromptu address, gave the Association some very helpful advice. He urged that the Veterans do not lose everything in their power to develop a proper national spirit in Canada, to be the kind of people that will make a robust and virile Canadianism. The public should not be allowed to get the impression that the G.W.V.A. was merely an association of knockers, but should be taught to see that the men who had stood for Canada in the great war would stand for Canada at home. The speaker urged that the Veterans observe the first Canadian's birthday by fittingly celebrated. He suggested also that at the close of each meeting that "O Canada" be sung. He would set as the National Anthem. In conclusion the speaker invited the Veterans to take part in the service of intercession Sunday June 30th, by attending St. John's church.

The invitation was accepted. One member, however, had a question to ask, no doubt remembering the recent decision of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

"Are we going to pray for the Hun or for our own Canadian boys?" he inquired. Because if we are to pray for the Hun, I for one will not attend the service.

We will pray for wounded Germans," said Canon Davidson.

"The only Germans I'll pray for are dead ones," said another speaker.

A shake-up in the Entertainment committee resulted in the following new committee being selected.: Comrade H. Mann, chairman, Comrades G. Coleman, J. Bainton, O. White, C. Mongour, J. C. Smith, W. Dalliday, Harry Armstrong, and Jas. Cummings. Which had been approved by the Investigating committee were accepted and six new applications were turned over to committee for investigation.

At the next meeting of the Association some action will be taken in regard to the foul question.

Prison Populations Affected By War

At Portsmouth Women Have Greatly Increased While Men Decreased.

KINGSTON, June 18.—Inspector of Penitentiaries W. S. Hughes, who is in the city, points out that the war has made a great difference in the population of all the penitentiaries of the country, and not the least in the population of the Portsmouth penitentiary.

To-day, for instance, there are no fewer than 37 women in the Portsmouth institution,—a record number —and there were no women at all in the Portsmouth penitentiary now there are only about 300. Some former inmates, as is generally known, have gloriously redeemed themselves at the front and have more than justified the chance given them.

Former Peterboro' Resident Dead

Late Dr. William J. Delaney, Formerly Resided Here

("Waterbury American").

WATERBURY, Conn., June 18th.—Dr. William J. Delaney, one of the borough's best-known and most prominent citizens, died at his home on Church Street, Friday, after an illness of several weeks. He had been in ill-health for 18 months, but it was not until a short time ago that his illness took a more serious turn, finally resulting in his death. Dr. Delaney was a native of Peterborough, Canada. He received his early education in his home town, and later studied medicine at Magill College in Montreal, graduating from that institution. He was also a graduate of the College of Surgeons in New York City. He had been a practicing physician and surgeon in Naugatuck for 25 years and was regarded as one of the hardest workers in his profession. He served as a member of the Board of Education for 13 years, proving a very valuable member. He was a member of the Grand Medical Association and was for some years its president. He was also a member of the A. O. H. and Waterbury Lodge of the B. P. O. E. Dr. Delaney was well known to a great many people, not only in Naugatuck, but in Waterbury, and the news of his death brings sorrow to many hearts. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Katherine, and three sons, Donald, William and Edward.

The funeral of Dr. Delaney took place on Monday morning at 8.30 from the late residence of the deceased on Church Street. Services were held at St. Francis's Church at 9 o'clock. The body was taken on a morning train to Hartford for burial.

Peterborough Girl Has Charge Of Girl Labour Battalions On The Pacific Coast

Miss Maud Perry Has Recruited Two Thousand Girls For Service in the British Columbia Fruit Fields.

PLANTED ONIONS

Miss G. Maud Perry, formerly of this city, now national service secretary of the Dominion Council of the Y.W.C.A., has assumed full responsibility for providing an adequate supply of labour to garner the fruit crop of British Columbia, and has now an army of 2,000 girls in the fields.

Greater Production.

The Department of Agriculture, with the experience of last year, decided to take measures to ensure to the fruit and produce growers of British Columbia that there would be an ample supply of labour. With the greater production movement prevalent over the province, consistent with the demands brought about by the war, the farmers grew apprehensive as to whether the demand for labour could be met, as the past winter went by, with the enforcement of conscription the situation looked more and more serious. Farms became depleted of male help, and things looked like a waste from lack of labour.

Applied to Y.W.C.A.

In desperation the Government applied to the "Y" as a medium to secure female help. The Department was referred to the National Council, who decided to send Miss Maud Perry, to Vancouver with the mission of supervising the work. The choice of Miss Perry was made because of her great experience in such enterprises as the Council was called upon to perform.

Headquarters at Vancouver.

On February 1 Miss Perry arrived in Vancouver to take up her important task, and immediately worked out plans for securing the services of young girls. An appeal for registration of all girls willing to assist in the national crisis was met with an enthusiastic response, and in a short time the required number was over registered.

Government Impressed.

The Provincial Government was at once impressed with the thoroughness in which Miss Perry went about her task, and felt relieved at securing so capable a woman to solve the difficult problem and keeping their eyes with the fruit growers.

Great Success.

The efforts of the army of girls under Miss Perry have met with the greatest success, and the Government officials have paid her many high tributes. In a letter received by her from R. H. Hefmer, superintendent of the Government Experimental Farm at Okanagan Valley, he tells how her efforts have been an unbounded success and the girls have made good.

Planted Onions.

Not only are the girls' efforts confined to fruit picking, but their fields of endeavour are widening daily. Only a few days ago J. Bain, Government inspector of seeds, asked for ten girls to plant onions at Lulu. The request was met by an immediate response, and ten girls sent by Miss Perry, and clad in farmerette costumes, set about planting a car load of onions at 50c per hour and an 8-hour day, glad of the opportunity of performing a definite war service.

Towards July the girls, who make up any lack of strength by unbounded enthusiasm, will be next assisting in bringing in the harvest.

ANCIENT FOOTWEAR.

And the Old Ceremony of Barring the Feet at Worship.

The India Hindus and Mussulmans alike wear both sandals and shoes (slippers) and the latter boots also. The sandal (the word is Persian) was evidently the original covering for the feet over all southern and eastern Asia, while the shoe was probably introduced into India by the Persians, Afghans and Mongols, together with the "up tilted" (Hittite and Etruscan) boot.

Both are usually made in India of leather, but never of pigskin, and, while the shoes are always colored red or yellow, the boots are generally brightly parti-colored, both among the upper classes being also richly embroidered in gold and silver and variegated silk thread and with bangles, bugles and seed pearls after the manner of the ancient Persian boots represented on Greek vases.

But, of however rare and costly elaboration, the invariable rule is to remove them after entering a private house just when stepping on to the mat of carpet on which the visitor takes his seat. They must be cast off, the right boot or shoe first, before the worshiper enters a temple or mosque, and it is still regarded as an absolute profanation to attempt to enter either fully shod.—Westminster Gazette.

Another year of war and we will pay a sweet penny for our clothes. The prices of woolen goods are soaring and clothiers have difficulty in getting a stock at all. And Canada is only beginning to feel the pinch.

PILES ENTIRELY CURED.

Mr. Wm. Woodall, 197 St. John St., Carleton, St. John, N.B., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles and am pleased to say that two months have been entirely cured. For years I was a great sufferer from this distressing ailment and can say that three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me. You may use this letter for the benefit of others.

STILL IN BUSINESS

The drastic order of the War Trade Board prohibiting imports of Fruits and Vegetables has been greatly modified on strong representations of deputations from the Wholesale Fruit Houses. The final result is more encouraging, otherwise for 6 or 8 months of the year very little, if any, fresh Fruits or Vegetables would have been available.

Concert Was Well Attended

An Interesting Programme Provided—Proceeds in Aid of St. Alban's Mission

A delightful al fresco concert was held on the grounds adjacent to the Orange Hall, Brownton, last evening, in aid of St. Alban's Mission Church, and attracted a large number of supporters and friends from the vicinity and the city. The Rev. J. Price very acceptably filled the role of chairman, and the various items of the program were creditably rendered and enthusiastically received. Refreshments were provided by the ladies of St. Alban's, to whom thanks are due, as also to the members of the orchestra and other contributors to the programme who so kindly volunteered their services for the occasion.

The Programme.

Selection—Orchestra.
Song—Mrs. H. Loader.
Cornet solo—Mr. G. Gazley.
Action song—The Loader Children.
Selection—Orchestra.
Song—Rev. C. A. G. Spence.
Recitation—Miss G. Jay.
Concertina solo—Mr. H. Loader.
Comic song—Mr. M. E. Ketcheson.
Accompanist—Mr. F. Loader.

The above artistes each gave two numbers, the Loader children being enthusiastically recalled, while Mr. Ketcheson could not satisfy the audience, having to respond three times.

W. J. LUDGATE A WEEK END VISITOR AFTER ABSENCE OF 33 YEARS

After an absence from Peterborough of thirty-three years, Mr. Wallace J. Ludgate returned for a few days' visit, over the week end, with his sister, Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mrs. A. E. Coutlhard. He was deeply impressed with the advancement of the city to its present flourishing condition, undreamed of in the old days, and now a great potential force in the Dominion. He sustained what he termed the surprise of his life in the sight of the massive plant of the Quaker Oats Company on the site of the old Dickson raceway, and the old Rogers flour mill' long since obliterated. Mr. Ludgate also visited the Life-Lock and was pleased to know that Mr. R. B. Rogers was the Chief Engineer of the Trent Canal when that work was accomplished. Mr. Ludgate was an admiring junior of Mr. Rogers when they attended the old school at Gore's Landing.

On Sunday Mr. Ludgate motored to Rice Lake and revisited the scenes of his boyhood. The old school, of which the father of Judge Barron of Stratford was the principal, has disappeared except the ruins of the basement, but the school gate is just as it was forty-one years ago. Mr. Ludgate's father owned a big lumber mill near Gore's Landing in those days and was otherwise a prominent figure in the lumber industry in its palmy days. Rice Lake revisited, recalled the boyhood games and sports to Mr. Ludgate, especially ice boating when he used to sweep down the lake at sixty miles an hour when the wind was blowing hard. Mr. Ludgate is a constructing and designing engineer of pulp mills and saw mills in Seattle, Wash.

A BIG STRIKE FACES TORONTO

(Special to Examiner)

TORONTO, June 18.—The possibility of a strike such as recently occurred in Winnipeg faces Toronto, declaring that they were victims of a raw deal, when the city council refused a conciliation board to hear grievances. The civic employes union will hold a special meeting at the Labor Hall tonight, if the temper of the men is anything like that shown by the union officials today, there will be only one outcome and that is a strike. Mayor Church anticipated this and made an effort to get the board of control together to hold a special meeting this afternoon to discuss the situation.

THE ACT HAS BEEN AMENDED

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., June 18. — The fulfilling of the regulations requiring men who may be reasonably suspected of falling within class one of the Military Service Act to carry documents showing age, nationality, marriage, former discharge, exemption or other reasons for his being in mufti, have been found somewhat difficult in certain cases. An order-in-Council of May 22nd specified the class of documents which must be carried in the various individual cases and provide very severe penalties for failure to carry such documents or have them on his premises.

An Amendment.

In cases it has been found difficult for men to secure the necessary documents, this was specially true of passports, marriage certificates, etc. As a consequence, an amendment has been made which without limiting the generality of the provisions as to the character of the evidence, permits the submission of prima facie evidence to show that the person in question has satisfied the requirements of the authorities.

FOREIGNERS ON A RAMPAGE

Canadian ress.

WINDSOR, June 18.—Four hundred foreigners mostly Austrians and Russians came here from Ford, Ontario, today to make a demonstration in favor of one of their number who is under arrest charged with inciting his comrades against registration. When searched by the local police one hundred of them were found lacking their papers of nationality as required by the Military Service Act, and are now confined to jail here, to be arraigned on charge of violating the Military Service Act. Some of them had extensive Bolshevik and I W W propaganda in their pockets.

GERMAN WAR SPIRIT LAGS.

Youths No Longer Display Enthusiasm to Join the Army.

WASHINGTON. — German youths no longer rush to the colours with the enthusiasm that marked the mobilization of 1914, according to an article in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung, telling of the wartime impairment of the German educational system.

"The spirit of voluntary service which at the beginning of the war revealed itself in its fairest aspect has now disappeared," says the article. "Everywhere we hear lamentations over the increasing distaste shown for military service."

Scholastic standards in the public schools have fallen so low, it is said, that "promotions no longer represent any definite standard of accomplishment." Scholastic efficiency has suffered considerably because pupils subsisting on war diets for long periods are found to be generally undernourished.

Juvenile delinquency has spread to an alarming extent, and it is announced that "already the number of violent crimes committed by youths in the city of Berlin is more than three times the number reported in 1914."

"Thus," concludes the article, "dark shadows are falling over the brilliant picture of 1914. Every disciplinary influence, every effort of the still fundamentally sound German nation must be exerted to oppose this tendency, and to lead the children back to the path of rectitude."

It Took Tom Spring 76 Rounds To Whip Jack Langan

One of the most terrific heavyweight championship battles in ring history was fought 94 years ago to-day at Chchester, England. It was a contest between Ireland and England, with Langan, called "Irishmen Jack, representing the Auld Sod and Tom Spring, the champion, defending the pugilistic honours of John Bull's isle. In the end Spring was the victor but only after 76 terrible rounds, lasting about two hours and a half.

The title holder and the Irish champion had met once before, at Worcester, and Spring had been awarded the victory, only after 77 rounds. Langan's showing was so good that the fans decided he was entitled to a return match. Spring was at that time about 30, while Langan was about 4 years younger. The Irishman had all the better of it in the matter of skill and cleverness but Spring was one of those human bulldogs who do not know when they are beaten. The ring was pitched in the middle of a field. The champion had an advantage of a dozen pounds over his opponent, was taller and had a longer reach. The first few rounds were about even but after that the fortunes of war varied. By the fifteenth round Spring was reduced to fighting with one hand, his left being out of commission. There was hardly a round that the pair did not go to the mat together. Despite the fierceness of the battle, neither man lost his temper, and they "kidded" each other goodnaturedly throughout the long contest. By the 30th round the champion's right hand was also out of commission and his tactics consisted of throwing his opponent as often as possible. Several times Langan alighted on his head with such force as to stun him. Under Queensberry rules Spring would have been done for but this was in 1824, and the champion had only commenced to fight. In the 75th round the game Irishman had to be carried to the ring. His seconds and the crowd urged him to quit, but he refused. In the 76th round Spring gave Langan a mere push and he toppled over and was unable to get up.

A FAMOUS ENGLISH JOCKEY.

Fred Mitchell, of England, is Assisting in Red Cross Work.

Freddy Mitchell, one of the most famous of European jockeys, is making his debut in the United States as an emissary of the Red Cross in behalf of the Allies. Mitchell is to French and English racegoers what Tod Sloan and Johnny Reiff are to Americans. The youngest son of one of England's noblest families, headed by his father, Sir Robert Mitchell, Freddy married against their wishes at the age of eighteen and sought solace on the backs of fleet horses whose fame has spread through two continents.

Freddy Mitchell is the famous English jockey and trainer who was never known to put a bet on a horse. During his twenty years on the English and French turfs he rode astride 495 winners—over the jumps and on the flat. His career began when he finished in the money at the Grand National Steeplechase in England at the age of fifteen.

Twelve years ago Mitchell went to France and settled at Chantilly and was caught there in the German drive to Paris at the beginning of the war. It was this sportsman's wonderful courage which helped more than anything else to turn back invaders.

TOWER OF LONDON.

It Once Had a Menagerie With a Murderous Orang Outang.

It is not generally known that until the year 1834 there was a menagerie of wild beasts in the Tower of London. In his book, "London Survivals," the Rev. P. H. Ditchfield writes:

"A word or two may be said about this collection of beasts. It commenced with the present of three leopards from the Emperor Frederick to Henry III.—an appropriate gift, as our sovereign bore three of these animals on his shield of arms, and then a white bear was added, for which the sheriffs of London were ordered to provide a muzzle and an iron chain to secure him when out of the water and a long, stout cord to hold him when fishing in the Thames. We fear his successors at the zoological gardens do not enjoy the like diversion. Then came an elephant. In the time of Edward II. there was a lion, for which the sheriffs, who must have deemed these creatures troublesome beasts, had to provide daily a quarter of mutton.

"Paul Hentzner saw here in 1598 three lionesses, a lion of great size—called Edward VI. from his having been born in that reign—a tiger, a lynx, a wolf, 'exceedingly old,' a porcupine and an eagle. James I. often visited the menagerie and used to enjoy baiting the lion with dogs or seeing a fight between a bear and a lion. In 1754 there were two 'man tygers'—orang-outangs—one of which killed a boy by throwing a cannon ball at him."

DRYING OUT GASES.

Various Methods by Which the Moisture Is Eliminated.

In the manufacture of gases like oxygen, acetylene or illuminating gas, to be used immediately in chemical processes, it is often necessary to free them from all moisture.

One of the commonest means is to bubble the "wet" gas through concentrated sulphuric acid or through a heap of glass beads covered with this liquid. Concentrated sulphuric acid has a powerful tendency to absorb moisture from other substances—a property which is aptly illustrated when a splinter of wood is dipped into the liquid. The acid extracts from the cellulose (which is the principal constituent of wood) all the hydrogen and oxygen, which cellulose contains in just the proper proportions to form water. The only other component of cellulose is carbon, and this alone is left, leaving the wood charred as if by fire.

Another way to dry a gas is to pass it through small chunks of calcium chloride. This extracts water or vapor from everything.

The most efficient of all methods is that adopted by the bureau of standards at Washington, where a machine is used which, by lowering the temperature of the gas passed through it, freezes out all the moisture and leaves the gas absolutely dry.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Working Butter.

Butter is worked enough when the salt is evenly distributed. Just when this point has been reached cannot always be told from the appearance of the butter immediately after working. But butter that has not been sufficiently worked will show white streaks or mottles after five or six hours. Whenever such streaks occur the butter must be reworked until all the streaks have been removed. To avoid mottled or streaky butter the only safe rule to follow is to work the butter twice. The first time it is worked lightly, just enough to fairly distribute the salt. It is then allowed to stand six hours or longer, when white streaks will be noticeable. The butter is then worked again until the color is uniform.—Chicago News.

THE MIDNIGHT SUN

Really Seen but Once a Year In the Polar Regions.

A SWING ROUND THE HORIZON.

For One Whole Day, About June 21 at the North Pole and About Dec. 22 at the South Pole, Old Sol Keeps His Blazing Face In Full View.

"The midnight sun" is one of those seemingly mysterious natural phenomena which exercise a perpetual charm over the popular imagination. The northern part of Scandinavia has acquired for itself the distinctive name of the "Land of the Midnight Sun," but the title should be extended to include a complete circuit of the earth along the arctic circle. Then, too, the southern hemisphere has a precisely similar phenomenon, which occurs along the antarctic circle, including a portion of Wilkes Land.

Properly speaking, a midnight sun is seen but once a year in either hemisphere.

Confining our attention to the northern hemisphere, the midnight sun is visible near the arctic circle on the date of the summer solstice, which occurs about June 21 at the time when the sun in its apparent annual circuit of the sky reaches its greatest northern declination, which means its greatest distance north of the equator. This distance in angular measure is about 23½ degrees, which is precisely equal to the inclination of the earth's axis of rotation from a perpendicular to the plane of its orbit around the sun.

The arctic circle is situated this same angular distance (23½ degrees) from the north pole. When the sun is directly over the equator, about March 21, its light reaches simultaneously both poles of the earth. As the sun begins to move northward the light quits the south pole, which then enters its period of six months' night. But at the same time the sun rises higher at the north pole, which in its turn enters upon its period of six months' day.

In the meantime, along the arctic circle, the days grow longer and the nights shorter, as the sun comes continually northward, until, at the solstice, when the sun is 23½ degrees north of the equator, there will be one period of twenty-four hours during which the sun does not set at all in the arctic circle.

At the hour of midnight on that day the sun, describing a circle through the sky, just touches the edge of the horizon in the north, like the bob of a gigantic pendulum, and then, without disappearing, immediately begins to rise again to describe the other half of its sweep in the sky.

This is the phenomenon called the "midnight sun."

Conversely at the time of the winter solstice, which occurs about Dec. 22, when the sun is at its greatest southern declination, there is one absolutely sunless day on the arctic circle, when the sun skims just under the southern horizon at noon.

As a matter of fact, owing to the effects of the refraction of the atmosphere, which means the power of the air to bend the rays of light so that the sun appears to be above the horizon by about its own diameter, when it is really its own diameter below it, the phenomena just described are visible half a degree (about thirty-five miles) south of the arctic circle.

After the day of the solstice the sun begins to dip below the horizon again, because it is then going south once more, and the nights, beginning with a length of only a few minutes, gradually increase until they, too, for one single occasion, attain the length of twenty-four hours.

Within the arctic circle the days and nights, alternately, greatly exceed twenty-four hours in length. At the very pole, as we have seen, they each last six months. In Lapland they may be a month long and at the North cape three months.—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Shoes For Soldiers.

A study of the orders given by Napoleon indicates the care he exercised to have a sufficient supply of shoes provided. On one occasion he wrote, "You know that shoes are always needed in war, and at another time he said to Baron Lejeune, "Shoes help on marches, and marches win battles." To Sir John Burgoyne's question addressed to Wellington, "What was the first requirement of a soldier?" "A good pair of shoes," he replied. "And the second requirement?" "A good pair of shoes for a change." "And the third?" "A pair of soles for repairs." —Scientific American.

Clocks That Time Speeches.

On the speaker's desk in the United States house of representatives is a little clock-like machine with a dial graduated in minutes from one to six and a single hand that goes once round the dial in six minutes. This is started and stopped by a tiny lever at the top. The speaker uses it in timing members in a debate wherein the speeches are limited.

The inventor, C. H. Graves of Philadelphia, designed it for keeping time on long-distance telephone calls, which are limited to three minutes. At the bottom of the dial is a scarlet mark. When you get your connection over the wire you press the little lever, which stands at O, and set the machine going. When the pointer is approaching the red mark you know your time is rapidly drawing to a close.

It is astonishing how few persons have any idea how long three minutes are. Nine out of ten will hurry their long-distance calls so that they use far less time than they pay for.

ULTRA VIOLET LIGHT RAYS.

How Man May Some Day Extract His Food From the Air.

Science begins to dream of a day in which man will gather his food direct from the air and digest it without much aid from the various ferments and juices which are now mainly instrumental in that work.

The chief agent in this mighty revolution, according to no less an authority than Bertholet, will be the ultra violet light rays. These are not visible to the human eye. They do not appear upon the spectroscope. They affect the photographic plate, however, and are probably discerned by some of the lower animals, whose sense of sight is much more acute than that of man.

Much is known of their chemical effects. Few microbes can long withstand their power. The redness and pain of "sunburn" are their work. They are particularly injurious to the eye, which upon exposure to them becomes totally blind in a little while.

Through the agency of these rays Bertholet has actually combined carbon dioxide and water vapor into sugar and other carbohydrates. He has inclosed carbohydrates, fats and albuminoids in sealed vessels of quartz and has seen them digest under the rays. The process is very expensive, of course, but it is hinted that modern inventive genius will so cheapen it in time that fields of wheat may be replaced by factories where food is manufactured from the gases of the air.

And should the men of that day be troubled with indigestion the same agent that makes their food will come to their relief. Stomach troubles will disappear at once before a little bulb of light rich in the ultra violet rays.—Boston Herald.

DESPONDENT FARM BOY HANGS HIMSELF IN LONDON
LONDON, Ont., June 18.—The body of Pte. Joseph Henry Elkerton, of Elora Ont., was found hanging by a piece of tent rope to an overhead water pipe in an ablution room at Carling Heights, by a comrade, Pte. A. H. Girvin, at an early hour this morning. Elkerton was attached to the 1st Depot Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment. He was a draftee under the Military Service Act, and had been despondent and homesick for some time. Although every effort was made to restore him when the body was cut down, life was found to be extinct.

Rain Reported In Saskatoon

Whole Province Urgently Needs Moisture, Says Report of Department.

SASKATOON, June 18.—A light, steady rain started falling here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Meagre reports received indicated that there had been quite general showers over the country west of here, where it was badly needed to save the crops.

REGINA, June 18. — Depressing crop conditions prevail throughout the southern half of Saskatchewan, while the condition of the northern section are still fair. According to the weekly report issued by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, high winds and dry weather retarded the growth to an extent ranging from 10 to 60 per cent, and the crops on light lands is almost beyond rescue. Rain is urgently needed all over the Province.

ROBBERIES BAFFLE POLICE OF LONDON

Thieves Loot Whole Shops and Leave No Clue.

LONDON, June 18.—The London detectives are having an embarrassing time. They have been unable to counter the actions of a clever gang of thieves who loot shops when closed and who up to the present have got away with the plunder in every case.

The thieves' latest exploit has been to loot a West End furrier's of furs valued at $15,000. When the assistants unlocked the shop in the morning they discovered that practically everything of value had been removed. The thieves had succeeded in opening the front door and had managed to carry off 50 coats, 1,600 opossum skins, 60 leopard skins, 50 skunk ties and a number of fur sets.

The premises are in a main road and the windows were not even fitted with shades, but nobody saw the robbery, though the management estimates the time for removal of the goods at more than an hour. After clearing up the stock the thieves re-locked the front door and departed.

Other exploits of apparently the same gang have been reported since. Several tons of sugar were removed from a warehouse and two heavy safes have been removed from another establishment. The value of their contents was $2,000. No clue to the thieves has been discovered.

ITALIANS STILL HOLD THE PIAVE RIVER LINE

A Million Dollar Conflagration In Pembroke

The Italians Are Resisting Enemy Attacks On The Piave River Battleline

Vigorous Austrian Advances Were Crushed by Counter Attacks—Five Thousand Prisoners Captured by the Italians—Austrians Are Surprised at the Sudden Check to Their Offensive.

WEDNESDAY MORNING BULLETINS

Wednesday Morning Bulletins:

ROME, June 19.—Last night's official says: The Italians captured 1,850 prisoners during the day and prevented renewed attempts of the enemy to establish positions on the right bank of the Piave. Vigorous Austrian advances were crushed by counter attacks. Five thousand prisoners taken by the Italians since the offensive began.

AUSTRIANS SURPRISED.

GENEVA, June 19.—News from Austria indicates that the Austrians are much surprised at the sudden check to their great offensive in Italy.

AERIAL ACTIVITY.

LONDON, June 19.—British brought down twenty-five planes on Monday and the French thirty-five. Five British planes failed to return.

VIENNA REPORT.

VIENNA, June 19.—The War Office last night says the Austro-Hungarians have captured thirty thousand prisoners and 120 guns since the offensive began

DISASTROUS FIRE.

PEMBROKE, June 19. — A disastrous fire which started shortly after six last night, destroyed most of the business section of the city. The loss is estimated at a million dollars.

Tuesday Evening Bulletins:

SHIP CONSTRUCTION.

LONDON, June 18. — Bonar Law stated this afternoon that for the first time since the U boat warfare began, ship construction had exceeded the destruction of vessels.

STRUGGLE RAGES.

ROME, June 18.—The violence of the battle somewhat decreased along the mountain front, but is increasing along the Piave river. From Fossalta to Cape Sile the struggle rages without pause.

MOTHER DIED.

LONDON, June 18.—Mrs. Ida Cavell mother of the nurse murdered by the Germans, died to-day at the age of 81.

THREE DAYS' FIGHTING.

LONDON, June 18. — After three days fighting the Austrians have not gained the objective they hoped for on the first day of the offensive.

Japan Will Raise The Army To Twenty-five Corps

Abolition of Brigade System and Also Changes in Navy Under Consideration—Increasing Pressure by Entente For Intervention in Russia.

FRENCH OFFICERS IN TOKIO

TOKIO, June 18. — An important council, attended by Prince Fushimi, Field Marshals Yamagata and Terauchi, (the Premier), Lieut.-Gen. Oshima, the Minister of War, and others, was held in the General Staff Office here. A joint conference of the Field Marshals and the Admirals has been summoned for June 10.

The Entente Governments of Europe are bringing increasing influence to bear to induce Japan to intervene in Russia. Among the several French officers who have arrived in Tokio to consult with the General Staff is Major Pichon, who was head of the French military mission to Russia and whose recall was demanded by the Bolsheviki. Major Pichon is striving for intervention in Siberia as a military necessity with the same energy that he opposed Roumania's entrance into the war as an ill-advised step. Major Pichon formerly was military attache at Bucharest

Apparently, Japan is divided on the question of intervention, but the army is undergoing severe training. Regiments frequently are heard tramping through the streets of Tokio at night on their return from long marches and manoeuvres.

The partisans of intervention are finding support from A. I. Konovaloff, formerly Minister of Trade and Industry in the Russian Provisional Government, and especially from Jules Destree, who was appointed Belgian Minister to Petrograd in August, 1917. M. Destree, who is a Socialist, arrived in Japan after vainly seeking to return to Europe across Finland. He suffered great hardships in his journey and lived for seventy-five days in a railroad car.

"It is urgently imperative for the defence of the interests of the Entente that there shall be a liberation of the Russian people from Germanic domination," M. Destree declared. "The Trans-Siberian Railroad is the only remaining communication with the outside world and this could be destroyed at any time by the German prisoners, of whom there are 20,000 under arms in Siberia. I saw armed Germans at every station, ostensibly allies of the Bolsheviki. The destruction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad would mean the complete abandonment of Russia to the Teutons.

LONDON, June 18.—A despatch to the Times from Tokio quotes military correspondent of the Tokio newspaper Asahi as saying that the business considered by the Council at the General Staff Office on June 7 was the abolition of the brigade system for the army, the adoption of a corps system similar to the German, and the increase of the army to twenty-five corps of two divisions each, with each division containing three regiments.

Alterations also are contemplated in the navy, the correspondent adds.

GRAIN MARKET

The weather map was again in favour of the bears, and in spite of all the bulls could do to prevent it the selling pressure continued, and prices began to give way sharply, the market closing very weak. July corn was off 1 7-8c. The threatened hot wave in the south, on which the bulls had reckoned to send up the market, has apparently failed to materialize, and conditions are now everywhere favorable for an early crop. Oats were slightly easier but changes were but fractional. Barley is very weak, and is again quoted 5c lower. Rye still continues weak, and is down another 10 cents.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday: 47 cars, with 733 cattle, 302 calves, 401 hogs and 203 sheep and lambs.

Market was quiet and trade slow yesterday. There was a light run of fresh cattle in, but with about 700 left over from Monday's market there was plenty to choose from had trade been at all active. The decline of a dollar on grass cattle Monday gave a weaker tone to the market all round, but prices to-day held about steady. A few stable-fed cattle fresh in were held over for yesterday's market. The stable cattle are now about all in. There will be some good cattle to come in from grass feeding.

Hogs steady at $18 fed.

ENTHUSIASM HAS GIVEN WAY TO DEPRESSION IN GERMANY

People Expected a Quick Victory on Western Front, and, Above All, a Quick Peace—Economic Situation Serious

GENEVA, June 19.—The enthusiasm created by the first German offensive has passed and a feeling of profound depression reigns among the German people, according to an interview with a neutral diplomat who has just arrived in Geneva from Berlin, in La Suisse. The people at home expected a quick victory from the early reports in official bulletins and, above all, a quick peace. The principal question asked in Berlin last week was: "Have we entered Paris?"

The economic situation in the interior of Germany, the diplomat declared is becoming more and more serious. German, both military and civilians, now realize and virtually admit that the constantt arrivals of fresh American troops will turn the tide of the war.

The diplomat concluded his interview with a statement that during a recent secret sitting of the Reichstag the question of autonomy for Alsace-Larraine was discussed officially for the first time since the beginning of the war.

Fine Of $40 Was Imposed In Case Of Theft

George Enilman, an employee of the Leonard Construction Co., was fined $40 and costs yesterday afternoon for stealing a gold watch from a fellow employee. Enilman says that he had lost some tools and went to a tool box of a truck which was not in use to find if they were there. He found a box of Forest and Stream tobacco there and inside a watch. When confronted by Detective Meagher with the theft, he denied all knowledge of the watch and objected to being searched. He was told if he did not voluntarily submit he would be taken to the police cells The watch was found on him when searched, but not in the tobacco box.

Kenny, it seems, boards in the same house with Enilman, but Kenny says Enilman was only in his room once to his knowledge. His Worship said the explanation was self-condemning. To meet the demands of justice he was compelled to make a conviction.

A fine of $40 was imposed with suspended sentence.

DEPORT THEM AFTER WAR.

Sentences on Alien Citizens of U. S. Affirmed by Secretary Baker.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — Sentences ranging from eighteen months' to twenty years' imprisonment imposed by Courts martial upon so-called conscientious objectors who refused military service at Camp Upton, N.Y., and Camp Borden, Ga., were approved yesterday by Secretary Baker.

Most of the men objected to fighting against Germany or Austria because they have relatives there. In approving the findings of the courts, the first of the kind to reach the department, Mr. Baker went on record as favouring the return of such men "to the countries of their preference" after the war.

Tea in India.

For years past India, the great tea-producing and exporting country, has received large imports of tea from other countries. The imports have continued and even increased during the war. In spite of the glutting of the market with Indian tea, owing to the shipping restrictions. The imports are mainly low-grade teas, which are "transformed" into Indian teas by mixing with the genuine article. The bulk of the imports are from China, the Shan States, Ceylon and Java; but it is curious to learn that last year 16,000 pounds of tea went to Indian from the United Kingdom.

Oyster Farms.

One of the large salt-water farms of Japan consists of 50 square miles covered with 5 to 15 fathoms of water. Here the pearl farmer plants rocks and stones which are soon covered with oyster spat. The oysters are then left in special beds until the third year. When they grow large enough, a tiny speck of irritating substance is introduced into the bodies of these oysters and three or five years more are necessary for the foreign substance to become hidden in the layers of nacre which make up the pearls.

MERTON GRAY'S PLEA

CHAPTER XCVI.

I continued to see Merton. Why should I deny myself the pleasure his society gave me if George did not care? It was the old story of a girl marrying a man who gave less of himself than she thought that she had a right to expect. It seemed to me I had given all of myself, my love, and had received very little in return.

I suppose many girls would have been satisfied with the material things George gave me that they would have considered the lovely home, the beautiful clothes, the outings, etc., enough. Unfortunately, I was not like this. There had been so much of tenderness in my own home. Dad and the boys were so devoted to mother—so considerate—that I was ill fitted to make excuses for the lack of this in my own life. So when Merton seemed to enter into my feelings, to give me the understanding which George denied me, I simply accepted it as my right, never thinking.

"Helen, I can keep still no longer. You are unhappy, dear. Let me try to make you happy!" he said to me. I had been crying over George's neglect, and he had asked me the cause.

A. BARBEAU,

PHONE 1017 85 GLADSTONE AVE

I did not tell him in so many words but he shrewdly guessed, and taxed me with it.

AN UNCERTAIN MOMENT

"You do care for me, don't you, Helen?" he went on.

"Of course I like you," I said carelessly.

"You know that isn't what I mean—I love you, Helen. I think I have from the very first. I can't endure to see you unhappy. Had you been happy and contented—had I not seen and sensed your need of love and companionship—I would have kept still; but what is life without love? Tell me that you love me!" he urged.

"Oh, don't Merton!"

"You must, Helen. Do tell me—dear."

"Really, Merton, I do not know," I answered distressed. "I'd like to be with you; I enjoy your society better than any man I ever have met. You see, I am honest. But I do not feel hurt and unhappy when I do not see you, as I do when George leaves me, and——"

"That is natural in one so young as you. You feel you have a right to claim his time and attention. If you were mine I venture to say you would feel just the same."

"Don't say any more, please," I begged. And he promised. For the remainder of our walk we chatted upon indifferent subjects. When we neared home, Mrs. Sexton joined us, so preventing a recurrence of the subject when Merton took his leave.

"Has Merton been making love to you?" she asked, but in a way to give no offense.

"Why do you ask?"

"I know the signs, my dear. Don't let him do it. He is dangerous."

"Dangerous! What do you mean?"

"He is a fascinating man, a talented man, a popular man. Most girls would be flattered by his attentions to the extent of being foolish. I hope you are not one of that sort! In fact, I am sure you are not."

After she left me I wondered if I were "one of that sort" and if Mrs. Sexton was not mistaken in her thought of me.

MOVING ON.

The next morning at breakfast George said:

"How would you like to move on, Helen? Have you had enough of Newport?"

"Where would you go?" I asked, evading the question.

"To Bar Harbour for a few days. I think you will enjoy it there. I shall be able to be with you more. I am not so well acquainted with the crowd up there, as I am here; they don't leave a fellow alone a minute."

I could have laughed aloud. As if anything on earth could make George go anywhere that he didn't want to! But I only said:

"If it will be as you say let us go at once. I am tired of depending on others when I want an escort. It will be delightful to have my own husband."

He looked at me in a peculiar manner, but made no remark. When we arose from the table, however, he said:

"You had better let Celeste commence the packing. I think we will go on Saturday."

As it was Thursday, it would give us little time.

After he left I wondered if Merton Gray's attentions had had anything to do with his decision to leave Newport. I had enjoyed myself in a way—the novelty, the gayety; but I had tired of it very quickly, and then my loneliness had reasserted itself. I had not been at all clever and I realized it. I had played into Julia Collins' hand instead of using the weapons Mrs. Sexton had taught me to use. Would I ever learn?

Friday we went bathing in the early morning for the last time. I swam away out, then suddenly became cramped. I tried to attract George's attention, but failed. I was sinking. Drowning.

Monday—When Love asserted itself.

Your Bad Taste In The Morning Is Due To Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapour form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is effected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Bob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Self Belief the Key to Success.

Do you still believe in yourself? If so, you cannot become a failure. You can at worst only have failed to learn as yet the science of success, of which self respect is the key. In the great gamble of life we can afford to lose everything but our self respect. Money lost is little lost; friends lost, much lost, but self respect lost, and all is lost. Self belief is the husband of self respect, just as self respect is the mother of self reliance. Believe in yourself and you will win through, for self belief is the mainspring of human activity and the principal source of human improvement. It inspires you to do things. It teaches you to try again. The man who retains his belief in himself will never give up trying, and success is the reward of persistent effort. Self reliance will pull us through many a struggle from which the coward flees in vain and in which the weak succumb. The ability to "get up again" is the reward of the self reliant.—Sarnia Post-Intelligencer.

Rules For Success at Golf.

Writing in the American Magazine, Jerome D. Travers calls Harry Vardon the greatest golf player he ever met and says the bulk of his success might be set down to these few simple rules:

Control of temper.

Refusing to worry over any bad lie or any hard luck.

Playing easily within himself and never pressing.

Playing always for the hole, even when 200 yards away.

Studying his game and practicing at every opportunity.

Making a point, even in practice, to follow all simple rules, such as keeping one's head still, looking at the ball, etc.

Keeping the body under control until perfect timing is developed.

Using an easy, natural upright swing that stays as long as possible in line with the intended flight of the ball.

Details.

Details are something beneath the notice of the majority. It requires a rare sort of mind to accord to them the proper importance.

It is necessary for every great artist to understand details in order that he may know when they should be ignored. Gulliver discovered this interesting fact when he woke up one morning. The perfection of any masterpiece depends upon the strategic elimination of its details.

Those who see only those things which lie between the little and the great see neither of these. It requires the same capacity of imagination to master details that it does to master immensities. To see big one must also be able to see little.

Controlling events means controlling details.

Nothing succeeds like details.—Life.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Heathen Hospitality.

African jungle people are not very particular concerning their food. One of our missionary women was down with an attack of fever some time ago. This was a source of sorrow to these poor, unlearned yet sympathetic natives, who in their own way are really compassionate and want to help. One of these "bush mammies" tried to express her sorrow because the "white mammy missionary" was so ill. After a time she left the station with a bright idea in her head and started for the jungle. A little later she returned with a large tropical leaf from one of the trees. Upon it were several big, crawling green worms, which she had caught and brought to the sick missionary. She thought they would be nice and tender for her to eat during her illness.—Christian Herald.

A Trick of Oratory.

Victor Murdock says that the best advice he ever received in regard to public speaking was from a hack driver. After making one of his maiden speeches in Kansas he was being driven to the railway station by the polite liveryman.

"Like the speech?" asked Victor.

"Yeh," answered the driver, "only you'd get more hand claps if you'd always put the names at the last when you say anything."

Victor didn't understand, so the driver explained:

"You spoke of Henry Clay and Grant and James G. Blaine and then went on to tell about what they did. You ought to go over the things they did and then say, 'That's what was done by Clay and Grant and James G. Blaine!' Always put the names last, and the crowd'll take more interest."—New York Sun.

They Rarely Are Idle.

"I guess it is nothing more than an idle rumor."

"Idle? I guess not. It is the busiest old rumor that ever happened."—Brooklyn Eagle.

DALLES OF THE ST. CROIX.

Its Quaintly Shaped Rocks Formed by Plunging Waters.

At Taylors Falls, the terminus of the Taylors Falls branch of the Northern Pacific railway, the dalles of the St. Croix form a most interesting feature. The St. Croix river here tumbles over a bed of trap rock. The theory of its production is that a great outburst of lava was overwhelmed by a glacier. This very hard rock has been weathered into a great many quaint and curious shapes, and the vertical cliffs of from one to three hundred feet in height form a little canyon where the water is very deep.

Among the quaintly shaped rocks are the Devil's chair and Pulpit rock, in proximity to each other. These are on the Minnesota side of the river, and the trains pass beside them. On the Wisconsin side of the river is a remarkable profile rock. It is known as "the Old Man of the Dalles" and has a resemblance to the profile of George Washington. Minnesota and Wisconsin have set aside the land bordering the river as an international park.

Among the interesting features of the place are the cistern-like holes, known geologically as potholes. These range from one and one-half feet in diameter and six feet in depth to ten feet in diameter and ninety or a hundred feet deep. These potholes indicate the presence of former rapids high above the present surface of the water. The stream by its great eroding power and carrying pebbles and stones in its circular movement slowly excavated these potholes.—Exchange.

One Way to View It.

Queen Victoria made a visit to the Trossachs in 1859. On the road between Callender and Kilmanog the Laird of Leny displayed a number of banners bearing words of welcome. But on the return to Callender the mottoes were indecipherable through the backs of the banners. Some one suggested that with a little extra expenditure "Welcome, Victoria," might have been inscribed on both sides. "There's nae need o' that," said old James Buchan of Kilmanog. "The queen will just think that the English letters as seen through the bunting are Gaelic."—London Express.

Welsh National Costume.

When the French made a half hearted attempt to invade Great Britain in 1797 a landing was made at Fishguard, Wales, but the soldiers of Napoleon were frightened off by the sight of a great number of Welsh girls and women, whom they mistook at a distance for soldiers on account of their red dresses and tall black hats. That is still the national costume of the Welsh women.

NUXATED IRON

Physicians Have Noticed How Quickly Pale Anaemic Persons Gain Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Women Soon As the Blocks of Nervous, Run-Down Weaken.

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy people you meet to what they owe their strength and vim and many reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. Ernest Fraschi, Editor, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency, but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic Nuxated Iron and iron to quickly enrich the blood, make beautiful, healthy women and strong, vigorous men. Thousands apparently sicken that my patients get full organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety. I always prescribe Nuxated Iron in its original package. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks time, in many instances."

Lack of civilian crews is holding up the despatch of two U.S. hospital ships.

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is All the face is clear."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Newspaper Clipping

By SUSAN CLAGETT

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Hugh McIntosh sorted his letters rapidly, pausing for an instant to look at the superscription upon a small, square envelope, the handwriting of which he did not recognize. This he laid aside for the moment for more pressing business and then forgot it.

This was strange, for it was an insistent thing, lying as it did alone upon the desk in front of him. Once his eyes fell upon it and he stretched out his hand to take it up but was interrupted and not until he left the office, hours later, was he conscious that the letter was still unread.

He picked it up and slipped it into his pocket, thinking to read it at his leisure and again it was forgotten. Yet he was neither a careless nor forgetful man, but at this time he was absorbed by an important case that claimed all his energy and determination to carry it to a successful issue. Beside this, he believed it to be an invitation which he had no time to accept.

Two months later as he was passing the White House he collided with a woman in white who had suddenly stopped in his path to read the suffrage banner held aloft by a very tired-looking girl. With an apology he was about to pass on, when he caught a side view of the face under the broad-brimmed hat. "You," he said, stopping short and holding out his hand. "I thought you were in California."

"I was until two months ago," Mary Bowie answered, "and it is good to be back, even if my throat does contract with an ache every time a uniform passes me. War seemed farther away, out there, but here, where almost every other man you meet is in khaki, it is very near."

"Yes," he said, looking at her with appreciative eyes, "living in Washington we are in the midst of things and the war is brought very close. But suppose we forget it for a time. Come and take lunch with me. I know a place where they give the wonderful rolls and a delicious salad. That is, of course, unless you prefer a hotel."

"My tastes are still simple," she replied with a laugh. "Rolls and salad sound good to a hungry woman."

"It is rather a shabby little place," he answered, almost in apology.

"What matter? Washington is a city of extremes. Two blocks up the avenue from the White House is shabbiness indeed. Walk down Seventeenth street until you reach the Corcoran Art gallery. What do you pass? Gentility, nothing more until you come to the wonderful group of buildings further on. That is the one thing about Washington—its strong contrasts."

"I did not bring you to lunch to talk about contrasts and extremes. I want to hear about yourself. Why didn't you let me know you were in town?"

"Don't you read the daily papers?" she asked carelessly. "I believe I was announced even to the details of my traveling dress, which was an old one, by the way, and did not deserve notoriety."

"I never read the society news and frivolity does not sit well upon you, my dear young lady. What reason did you have for not sending me your card?"

"Are you sure I did not?"

"Quite sure. It would have reached me if you had sent it."

"I forgot your address and did not think to look in the directory. You can give it to me now, if you will."

He looked at her steadily. "Are you quite sure that was the reason?"

"Why not? It is the best I can think of on the spur of the moment," she returned lightly.

"Why should there be a reason?" he asked again.

"Why do you always look for one?" she countered back. "Think of it as a woman's whim."

"Neither whims nor frivolity becomes you," he replied shortly, "but I will give you my card." He drew a flat case from his pocket and, not finding what he wanted, laid several papers upon the table. Uppermost on the pile was the unopened letter received two months before.

Mary Bowie's eyes widened, then became expressionless as she glanced from it to her companion, still searching for his elusive card. As he raised his eyes they, also, were caught and held by the square envelope.

"I forgot it," he said simply. "It reached me when I was absorbed in an important case. Of course it was inexcusable. I meant to read it when I had leisure, but whenever I started to open it I was interrupted. If you will pardon me I will look over it now."

"Let it wait. An hour or so will now make little difference to your correspondent."

"I have never corresponded with a woman in my life, and I doubt if this is anything more important than an invitation."

She placed a hand over the letter, still lying on the table. "Just a little longer," she said gayly. "There is no telling what news it may contain and you may wish you had read it alone."

He shook his head as he slit the envelope. "I will not have it longer upon my conscience."

As he opened the sheet he found it blank. Curiously, he further unfolded it and a newspaper clipping dropped upon the table. It fell right side up and held his gaze. Over and over he read the printed words, then raised his eyes to the girl's face.

"You were right, it does contain news." He touched the envelope. "I have never seen your handwriting. Did you direct this?"

For answer she took a pencil and card from her bag and wrote his name upon it.

He placed it beside the envelope and studied the two. His glance again fell upon the printed slip which, after a moment's hesitation, he read aloud:

"Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowie announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Mr. William Berkeley. The wedding will take place in the early fall."

For a time he looked absently at the clipping, then his eyes sought and held hers.

"Not if I can prevent it," he said at last. "Do you think I will let you go out of my life without protest?"

"I have never been in your life." The reply came a trifle breathlessly.

"You have probably not realized it any more than I, but this," touching the slip of paper, "makes it very plain to me. The trouble has been I have never had time for play, but in the back of my mind has always been the certainty that you and I would live out our lives together. There has been no time for play nor for that delightful experience, courtship, and courtship is what a girl wants, is it not?"

"Surely it is her right." The reply held a touch of asperity.

"I suppose so and now I have no time for it. This letter came two months ago. It is now October, I will have to take you whether you will, or no. The courtship can come afterward." He looked at his watch. "There is just time to reach the city hall before it closes. Will you come with me and from there to some clergyman? I am afraid to let you out of my sight, Mary."

"And Mr. Berkely? I gave him my promise."

"This is a question between you and me. I love you. I hope you care enough for me to marry me. Some promises should be broken before they break one's life. And, Mary, we can be very happy together. If I had time you would find it out before, but I am pressed for time and the knowledge must come later. Will you come?"

She had risen and was fumbling rather aimlessly with her glove button.

"I think I had better tell you something first," she replied a little unsteadily. "I found I did not care for Mr. Berkely and at the eleventh hour broke my engagement. I discovered before it was too late that I cared for another man."

"And that man?"

"He was very stupid." She looked at him squarely now. "I had to find some way to make him know his own mind for I was sure he cared for me, but for many years he had taken me so as a matter of course that he did not realize it. You asked me if I directed that envelope. I did not, but I know who did. It was addressed to you at my request, and I think, Hugh, as you are willing, we will forget there is such a thing as a big wedding. I would rather go quietly with you to St. Mark's parsonage."

THE SPRING DRIVE

Our boys are going "Over the top" and into "No man's land" this spring. No one has any doubt of their ability to get there. There will also be a spring drive on this side of the ocean, because March is the year's "nine Monday." It is the most fatal month of the year. March and April is a time when resistance usually is at lowest ebb. It is a trying season for the "run-down" man. But medical science steps in, and says, "it need not be"! We should cultivate a love of health, a sense of responsibility for the care of our bodies. Do not allow the machinery of the body to clog. Put the stomach and liver in proper condition. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to be had at most drug stores in tablet or liquid form, tablets fifty cents a vial, composed of native herbs. This puts the stomach and liver in proper condition. You may be plodding along, no spring, no elasticity, no vim, but as soon as you have put the body into its normal physical condition—oiled the machinery, as it were—you will find new vim, vigor and vitality within you. A little "pep," and we laugh and live. Try it now. Send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10c. for trial pkg. The prime necessity of life is health. With spirit and energy you have the power to force yourself into notion. The Golden Medical Discovery is the spring tonic which you need.

CONDUCTED BURIALS IN STATE

Large Amounts of Money Spent by Colonists of Virginia in Exercises Over Their Dead.

In colonial Virginia funerals were social as well as solemn occasions, as is shown by Mrs. Mary N. Stanard in her interesting review of the seventeenth-century customs of Virginians. When death entered the planter's home messengers were sent on horseback overland, or by sail or rowboat up and down the rivers to notify friends and relatives, while in the kitchen the big pot was put into the little one; for not only did the colonists bring with them the English custom of the funeral feast, but much of the company that would be ere long at the door would arrive hungry after a journey of many miles and would remain several days, consuming a great quantity of food and drink. The funeral expenses of John Smalcombe, who died in 1645, included a steer about four years old and a barrel of strong beer, which together cost nine hundred and sixty pounds of tobacco—nearly four times as much as the coffin, which cost two hundred and fifty pounds. Powder "spent at this funeral" cost twenty-four pounds of tobacco.

Snow Worms.

In Germany the term "snow worm" is applied to the larva of a beetle often found in the snow. Many species of insect are commonly found on glaciers. The most abundant of these are the springtails, which hop like miniature fleas or wriggle deftly into the cavities of the snow, but are so minute that the passerby needs to look for them in order to see them. Snow-loving springtails are not confined to glaciers; they occur in great numbers on the surface of melting snow on bright, sunny spring days through the northern United States.

Varied Interests.

Yes, by all means go in for a change of work, and know the vigor, enthusiasm of fitness that will come to you as a result. It is foolish, almost suicidal, to keep everlastingly pegging away at the same thing. Fresh thoughts always come with fresh tasks, and everyone of us should, if we have our own best interests at heart turn our spare hours over to some work that is absolutely new and strange to us.

His Part in the Drama.

Two women who claimed the same man as a husband were airing their troubles in court.

"Who's the skinny fellow over there?" asked a visitor.

"He's the bone of contention," chuckled the court attendant.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Are Your Pulley Problems Well in Hand?

Have you reduced "belt slip" and weight-friction to a minimum? Can you show, despite increased price of coal, that your power bills are less, because you are getting more results from each unit? Many Superintendents are showing these results to-day, because they are replacing metal pulleys by Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys.

$10.00 per pulley per year is the smallest average saving of power costs by such replacements.

This is a big claim, but it has been proven over and over again. Write for more information.

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

So It May.

She was a beautiful woman—and his wife. But one night, getting home late and having some excited conversation with her in the hall, he said to himself:

"A thing of beauty may be a jaw forever."

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Ordered the Kings Around.

Prince Metternich, prime minister to the emperor of Austria, was once asked under what circumstances had Napoleon, whom he had often met, given him the most striking impression of prestige and sovereignty. It was, he said, one morning at Compiegne, when they returned from a drive in the forest. They returned to the castle about noon. The emperor, leaning his back against the chimney, chatted with his guests while awaiting the summons to lunch. There were a number of personages and members of the imperial family present. Napoleon began to feel the pangs of hunger, so he turned to Murat, "King of Spain, go and see why we do not lunch." The emperor resumed his argument, but the delay was still prolonged. He grew impatient and, turning to the other side, he said, "King of Holland, try to find out whether we are to lunch today!" Metternich had never before seen an emperor send kings to the pantry to hasten a meal.—Baltimore Star.

Starting Forest Fires.

Engines—portable and locomotive—are bad enough. But when it comes to deliberate, willful carelessness the campers are the most criminal miscreants of them all. Hunters, hikers and automobilie parties are prime offenders against the fire laws of the state. One-third of all the forest fires must be charged against these mental and moral defectives. They make a high grade moron look like a modern Solomon. They should be abated as supreme nuisances. To build a campfire and go off and leave it burning or half put out or to build it in such a way and of such size as to make it a constant source of danger while it burns—can you imagine anything that is a more infallible index of inferior mentality in the individual who builds the fire? Most of them look intelligent and appear to have common sense until they build a fire in the woods. They ought not to be allowed to carry matches.—Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life.

Honesty in War.

The French marshal Turenne was not only a great general, but a man of singular honesty of character as well. Many incidents which are related of him show his modesty, generosity and honesty, as well as his courage and military ability. A little story of one of his German campaigns illustrates his rare scrupulousness, even in time of war. The authorities of Frankfort believed, from the movements of his army, that he intended passing through their territory. They sent a deputation to him which offered him a large sum of money if he would alter the direction of his march and leave Frankfort unmolested. They were surprised in more way than one by his answer. "Gentlemen," said he, "my conscience will not permit me to accept your money, for I have never intended to lead my army through your town."

White Crowned Sparrows.

Caterpillars, beetles, ants, wasps, bugs and black olive scales make up only a small amount of the food of the white crowned sparrow. Like most of its family, it is a seed eater by preference, and weed seeds comprise about 75 per cent of its total food.

LAUGH AND GROW FAT.

"Laugh and grow fat," is an old saying laden with value for nervous people in particular. Drop the worry habit and use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you will soon get the nervous system restored to good condition. Digestion will improve, appetite will return, and you will find such symptoms as headache and sleeplessness fast disappearing.

Easy to Forgive.

A business man made an appointment with a friend a few days ago, and when the time rolled around he forgot the matter entirely.

The incident worried him so much that he dreaded to meet the friend and for several days tried to keep out of the latter's way.

Finally, however, the inevitable happened, and the two met fact to face in the lobby of a downtown club.

Before the business man could voice his explanation the friend extended his hand and began to apologize humbly:

"I must beg your pardon, old chap, but really I quite forgot about our engagement the other day, and I am indeed very sorry to have disappointed you."

When he fully recovered from the shock the business man exclaimed, with a magnanimous wave of his right hand:

"Don't worry, old man; even the best of us will sometimes forget."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cure For Nosebleed.

I sometimes read in the daily papers of death caused by bleeding at the nose. Here is a cure discovered by me and not known or practiced by any physician. I am an old shipmaster, have tried it in a number of cases and never knew it to fail. It is very simple. Any one can perform the operation.

Place the patient in a sitting position or propped up in bed, and with the forefinger press gently in the hollow of the throat just above the breast bone, and the bleeding will gradually cease.

To avoid bleeding at the nose, especially in the case of children, get a large bead the size of a large marble, put it on a silk or woolen string and tie it around the neck so that the bead hangs in the hollow of the throat and wear it night and day.—New York Sun.

A Remarkable Stork.

The whale billed stork is found on a lake south of the White Nile. The lake has never been mapped and is bordered by extensive swamps. It is hard to tell where swamp ends and lake begins, for most of the water surface is covered with a dense mat of tangled vegetation. On this mat the whale billed stork builds its nest. It is a very rare bird and is known to the Arabs as the Father of the Shoe, because of its huge shoe shaped bill. It is of solitary habits, blackish gray in color, with wide spreading long toed feet adapted for standing on the quaking surface of a floating field of vegetation. Its habits are sluggish, and it lives mainly on fish. Colonel Roosevelt describes it as "hunting sedately in muddy shallows or standing motionless for hours, surrounded by reed beds or by long reaches of treacherous ooze."

One Way of "Beating the Bounds."

The Cossack can do much in war, but in peace time he is not so handy. Then he is either a fisherman or a farmer, but he knows little about land surveying and less still about land registration. When disputes arise there is a method of settling them. When the boundary has been settled it is registered not upon parchment, but upon boys' backs. All the boys are collected and driven like sheep along the newly surveyed boundary. The procession halts at each landmark, a certain number of boys are chosen, thoroughly whipped and then sent home. This is done in the belief that an unmerited whipping would always remain in the memory—a truly wonderful method of "beating the bounds."—London Chronicle.

CAUGHT IN A TRAP

Swinburne's Odd Adventure on the Coast of Normandy.

FACED A MADDENING DEATH.

A Perilous Feat That For a Time Entombed Him in a Narrow Tunnel of Solid Rock and Came Near Putting a Premature End to His Mortal Career.

In his youth Swinburne was a famous swimmer, and for years he used to retire in summer to the picturesque little village of Etretat, on the Normandy coast, there to breast the waves and to wander about the chalk cliffs and gaze forth from some coign of vantage upon "the blown, wet face of the sea."

One day he met with a singular adventure, which has never been told in print, and came near putting a premature end to his mortal career.

At one point of the coast a vast natural arch nearly 100 feet in height is formed by a flying buttress at right angles to the general line of the cliffs, which plants its foot below high water mark on the shingle beach. The central mass of this buttress fell or was eaten away by the waves in prehistoric ages, leaving a pointed gothic doorway of remarkable symmetry and mightier than any ever built by man.

It is a famous landmark of the coast and is to be seen in countless marine pictures painted in the latter half of the last century.

The outer springer or pier of this gigantic arch is submerged at floodtide, but when the water recedes it is seen to be pierced by a small hole or tunnel, also of natural formation, passing clear through the substance of the chalk from one side to the other. This hole is partly choked up with the flint pebbles of which the beach is composed, but space enough remains for a man to crawl through.

The passage is about sixty feet in length, but is bent in its course, so that when halfway through daylight cannot be seen in either direction. It was a local feat of the athletic young fishermen of the region to wriggle their way through the tunnel at low tide.

Swinburne had witnessed one of these performances and made up his mind to attempt the passage himself. He chose a day following one of the fierce storms of late August. When he reached the spot the sun was setting and the beach was deserted. He did not think it worth while to remove any of the rough tweed outing garments that he wore, but got down on his hands and knees and began worming himself into the darkness of the hole.

At first all went well, but as he proceeded the passage narrowed and the slimy walls of the chalk rock so impeded his movements that he was unable any longer to use his arms freely but could only push with his feet and undulate his body. He had reached the bend of the tunnel and the darkness was absolute. He still pressed on, but only to find himself wedged in yet more tightly.

A minute more and he realized with horror that he could no longer move an inch either forward or backward. The waves had heaped the pebbles up in the center, and he was now firmly embedded within a hundred thousand tons of solid rock.

It was evening. There was no chance of any one's coming to his rescue. No one had seen him enter the tunnel, or had been informed of his purpose. His presence there might not be discovered in days or weeks, and meanwhile the tide would have risen and fallen many times, and he would have been helplessly drowned.

In black darkness, powerless to stir, he must lie and wait for the certain end. The recession and rise of the tide would take, be calculated, not less than six long hours, and his best hope was that madness would render him unconscious long before the end came.

But as he lay there a sound came to his ears that chilled his nerves with a fresh terror. It was the sound of a wave breaking at the farther mouth of the tunnel. The tide was rising and in a few minutes it would begin to fill the narrow passage.

The realization of this fact paralyzed him for a moment; then it stimulated him to almost superhuman effort. Forcing himself on his left side, he succeeded in getting his right arm out beyond him. It gave his body a little more play.

By desperate but systematic wriggings and twistings he was able to work away from beneath him some of the loose shingle, and to gain a little forward. The exertion was tremendous and far beyond his natural strength, but he was working for life or death. It was a race between him and the tide.

The end was sudden. The tunnel abruptly enlarged. He could now crawl on hands and knees. As he scrambled forward, trembling and gasping, a rush of water met and submerged him, but it carried him with it as it receded. It flung him forth into the open air like a wreck of seaweed, bruised, choking and exhausted, but alive, with the blessed sky above him. Another wave caught him and drove him up on the beach, and he retained just sense and strength enough to scramble up a little farther, beyond immediate danger.

"I know," he said afterward, "the feelings of a soul saved from hell."—James Welton Gray in St. Louis Republic.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night, if you will get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

COULD NOT RAISE HAND ABOVE HEAD

Mrs. Smithson Was Nearly Helpless —Says Tanlac Is "Worth Its Weight in Gold"

"The more I see of Tanlac and the way it relieves suffering the more wonderful it seems to me, and I wish I could put a bottle of it in every home in Toronto," said Mrs. Ellen Smithson, of 222 Parliament street, Toronto, the other day.

"For the last eight years," she continued, "I have suffered tortures from rheumatism all over my body. My arms and shoulders were as sensitive as a boil and I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes on them; in fact they couldn't have pained me worse if the muscles had been tied into knots. At times when these sharp, shooting pains would strike me, I would almost jump out of my chair, and many a night I have actually jumped up in bed screaming with the pain. Nearly every morning I would wake up to find my left arm without a bit of feeling in it, and I would have to massage it for some time to start up the circulation. I had no strength in that arm at all, and many is the plate I have dropped to break all to pieces because I forgot, and would pick it up with my left arm. Why, I could not even lift the kettle from the stove or raise my left hand above my head. It is simply impossible for me to describe the misery I suffered all these years, and although I took every kind of medicine I could get hold of nothing did me any good.

"My daughter had been taking Tanlac and had gotten such wonderful relief through using it that I decided to see if it would help me too. I have taken three bottles now and it has done me a world of good. That terrible rheumatism has almost gone, the soreness and stiffness have entirely disappeared from my arms, and limbs and I can use my left arm now just as well as I ever could. All the numbness and weakness are gone and I can lift things about without the least bit of trouble. For the first time in eight years I am able to rest well at night and sleep in comfort without being troubled with aches and and pains. I just can't express how thankful I am for the way Tanlac has helped me and my daughter, and we both think that Tanlac is worth its weight in gold. I have told all my friends and neighbours about the good Tanlac has done me and I am sending a bottle to my daughter-in-law at Oshawa."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Co. Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co.; in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

AUSTRIAN OFFENSIVE HAS FAILED SAYS SEMI-OFFICIAL REPORT

Enemy's Casualties Have Been Tremendous

SITUATION ON THE ITALIAN BATTLEFRONT IS IMPROVING

Several Austrian Attacks Have Been Repulsed and Number of Positions Recaptured.

ITALIAN RESERVES

(Special to Examiner)

LONDON, June 19.—The Italian situation is more favorable than it was yesterday, it was learned from an authoritative source today. The danger in the Montello sector is greatly lessened.

Between the Brenta and the Astico rivers the Austrian gains were again reduced.

Three Austrian attacks were repulsed between the Brenta and the Piave.

The Italians have large forces of reserves at strategic points back of the battle front, ready to fling into the fighting should the Austrian drive become seriously menacing it was learned authoritatively today.

Positions Change Hands.

In the Polants region, the Italians pushed the Austrians back to the Piave river and captured Capodargine, cutting off the Austrians in the Meolo salient (four miles west of the river), but the Italians later were forced to fall back to the Polants still retaining a gain of a kilometer (about two third of a mile) The Austrians have made a further slight gain at Montello.

(Special to Examiner)

ROME, June 19.—Enemy officers, captured in yesterday's fighting admitted today that the Austrian offensive has failed, a semi-official statement said.

Both Austrian officers and men taken prisoners are profoundly affected by their enormous losses and their failure to attain a single objective.

The enemy's casualties have been tremendous, the twenty seventh and thirty second enemy divisions, withdrawn from the Mount Crappt region, were reduced to a few thousands.

On the Montello Crest, the thirty first division lost two thousand men. Here a small Italian assault group penetrated the enemy lines and wounded and captured Major General Von Kronstatt, a division commander, who later died in a hospital.

The 106th Hungarian infantry regiment was entirely wiped out.

The fourteenth enemy division, operating in the Candelu sector, suffered frightful losses.

Why Roumania Concluded Peace

King Ferdinand Attempts to Give An Explanation at the Opening of Parliament

QUEEN OPPOSED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, June 19. — "Roumania concluded peace because to resist further would have exhausted the country to a point of destruction," said King Ferdinand in his speech from the throne at the re-opening of the Roumanian Parliament at Jassy Monday. The peace treaty was then submitted to the Legislature for approval. The King said that Roumania had accepted peace forced upon her as a necessary condition to her existance. The treaty manifestly imposes sacrifices, but the Roumanian people would examine it with the manliness which an exact comprehension of the interests of the state demanded. Queen Marie, who has opposed the peace treaty, did not appear at the opening of Parliament, and the diplomatic corps was not invited to attend.

Turn Big Guns On The Capital

Paris Is Threatened With Intense Bombardment Within a Few Days

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, June 19.—With the Germans fifty miles from Paris the sole topic of conversation is the victorious stand the Italian armies are making and their successful counter-attacks which cause keen delight here. The announcements in Swiss newspapers, attributed to the inspiration of the German general staff, predicting that Paris will be subjected to an intense bombardment within a few days are meeting with cynical comment untinged by any touch of perturbation. M. Puech argues that the guns with greatly increased range may some day hold Paris and its suburbs under fire, when panic and serious disorders might develop among the millions of inhabitants, while there would certainly be certain destruction of supplies and valuables in the city, material wealth of which runs into many billions. The exodus from Paris would immediately become general if Paris became a target for an intense bombardment, the deputy predicts.

WHAT A CHEESE BOARD CONTRIBUTED IN MILK

One Day's Yield Yearly Since 1915 Amounts in Value to $14,000.

BELLEVILLE, June 18. — At the opening session of the County Council of Hastings Warden Montgomery referred to the impression which had gone abroad that the farmers were not loyal, and that they were kickers because of the action taken by certain sections, and declared that this sentiment did not represent 2 per cent. of the farmers of the county. He read figures to show that the farmers who are patrons of the factories selling on the Belleville Cheese Board had contributed $14,000 to the Red Cross and Patriotic Society by giving one day's milk yearly since 1915. This was on only one Cheese Board, and was only one of many ways in which Hastings had contributed.

Runaway Kills J. Doris, Keene

Had Begun Work as Hired Man With Fred Eason, of Otonabee Team Ran Away in the Village This Morning

DIED AT NOON

John Doris died shortly after one o'clock this afternoon in Keene from injuries received in a runaway in the village this morning. He was recently engaged by Mr. Fred Eason, of Otonabee and had just commenced work as a hired man this morning. One of his first duties took him into Keene, and as he was about to climb into the waggon after completing his work in the village the horses bolted. It was reported that Mr. Doris was struck heavily by the waggon, was knocked down and run over. The fact that his hat was found in the waggon indicated that he was in the act of climbing into the seat.

Mr. Doris was removed to his home in the village, and was unconscious for several hours. Shortly before he died he recovered consciousness, but it was only momentarily. Dr. Harrison attended him.

Mr. Eason, deputy-reeve of Otonabee, arrived a few minutes late at this morning's session of the County Council, but within a few minutes he was notified of the accident and returned home.

John Doris was about forty years old and the son of Mr. Edward Doris, of Keene. The deceased is also survived by his sister Mary.

Action For Damages Heard This Morning

The first case at this morning's sitting of the County Court was Francis E. Trennum vs. Wilson Harlow for fraud. Two thousand dollars is the amount claimed by the defendant for the inconvenience and expense it has caused him. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. G. G. Thrasher of Hastings, and J. A. O'Brien for the defence. Mr. Trennum, a miner residing in the Township of Belmont, claims that Mr. Wilson Harlow by fraudulent misrepresentations, sold east half of Lot 4, Township of Belmont, to his prospective wife, then Rebecca Walter. This occurred about November 15, 1911. In 1916, Mr. Trennum, who was then living at Alexander Bay, N.Y., wished to sell the lot to a mining engineer who asked to see the abstract. Mr. Trennum did not have the abstract in his possession, but sent to Mr. Harlow for it. In a few days he received the abstract by mail but was surprised to find that a reservation of the mineral and rock rights of the lot were made in it because they belonged to the Crown. Under these conditions Mr. Cowan, the mining engineer, refused to buy the lot.

Mr. Wilson Harlow refutes the charge of fraud and claims that he did not know of the reservation made by the Crown.

After many statements pro and con the plaintiff amended his charge of fraud. The case was settled by the defendant, Mr. Harlow paying over to Mr. F. E. Trennum $200, the sum paid for the land. Each side paid their own costs.

CANNERS WANT LAW IN ONTARIO RELAXED

Ask That Children Be Employable and Women Work Nights.

TORONTO, June 18.—A deputation of canners from all over Ontario, headed by David Marshall, M.P., of the Dominion Canners' Association, waited upon Sir William Hearst, Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, and Dr. W. A. Riddell at the Parliament Buildings to-day requesting that the Government should assist the canners by changing some of the labour requirements passed at the last session of the Legislature.

The canners claim that the regulations, which forbid the women being employed in canning factories after 6.30 at night, works a great hardship on their industry, and they ask that new regulations should be passed by which they be allowed to employ women until a later hour in the evening.

They also ask that they be allowed to employ children between 12 and 18 years of age in the canning factories during the summer holidays.

They were told that their requests would receive consideration and that some of the regulations would likely be modified.

NO SUCH AIMS COULD BE ATTAINED

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—Baron Burian, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, in an interview published by the Vienna Frendenblatt regarding the latest speech of Lord Milner, War Minister, declared: "Regarding the alleged efforts of the Central Empires for world domination, let Lord Milner make a sincere attempt for further enlightment on this point. He will be astonished how tremendously far our aims are from that.

"I agree that no such aims could be attained."

HINDENBURG IS CONSERVING HIS RESERVE FORCES

Nothing But the Continued Arriva of the Americans Can Give the Allies the Advantage in Man Power

THE FINAL TRUMP

(By Henry Wood.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 19.—Despite the four great drives, the Germans have undertaken on the French front since March 21, in which many divisions have been engaged in two, three or four times, Von Hindenburg is still jealously guarding his reserve divisions.

The Allied reserves are being nursed along in a masterful manner yet, owing to the present numerical superiority of the Germans. Nothing but the continued arrival of Americans can give the Allies the necessary advantage in man power when the enemy plays its final trump. This card is likely to be thrown down within the next two months.

Heavy Losses.

It is now established that the second German shock division ordered back from repose, with the Fifth Prussian Guard, under orders to prevent a serious American success, at any cost, was the Twenty-eighth German division. This division, originally engaged May 27 on the Chemin Des Dames, suffered such losses in capturing Californie Plateau and crossing the Aisne region that the Kaiser personally promised it relief within three days.

The Twenty-eighth, however, was ordered to push southward as rapidly as possible. Arriving at Vaulgonne, it encountered American troops for the first time, suffering casualties that brought its loss of effectives up to 25 per cent.

Ordered Back.

When finally ordered to the rear for repose its companies were reduced to an average of sixty men. Yet on June 7 this division, together with the Fifth Prussian Guard, was sent back into the line to relieve the 197th and 237th divisions, which were practically annihilated before the American onslaughts in the region of Neuilly La Poterie. The 197th was completely "hors de combat," while the 237th lost from 25 to 50 per cent. of its effectives. The Twenty-eighth and Fifth Prussian Guards were relieved in turn on the night of June 9-10. On the 11th, the Americans completed the capture of Belleau Wood.

Disastrous Fire In Pembroke

One Man Lost Five Hundred Thousand Dollars Worth of Liquor

(Canadian Press)

PEMBROKE, June 19.—A property loss of six hundred thousand dollars, exclusive of one extraordinary loss of five hundred thousand dollars, in destruction of immense stock of wines, is estimated this afternoon as results of fire which swept the commercial centre of this town last night and this morning. The liquor belonged to J. O'Rjelly cigar manufacturer and were stored in the basement of the destroyed Woolworth Building. Thirty families who lived in flats or small houses are homeless today as result of the fire.

GERMANS LAUNCH NEW OFFENSIVE NEAR RHEIMS

Cathedral City Is Hemmed In on Three Sides—French Resist New Enemy Thrust.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 19.—The Germans last night, after violent preparation bombardment, began an attack on the Rheims front, between Vrigny and La Pompelle, the War Office announced to-day. The front of the New German attack is a semi-circle drawn by the enemy about Rheims in the recent offensive on the Aisne front. The Rheims region comprises the left flank of the German attack. Ground was given by the French on both sides of the Cathedral city. The forts have held against the German onslaught and have since remained in French possession. Rheims, however, was hemmed in on three sides by the enemy and it has been considered only a question of time when the Germans would make a concentrated movement to oust its defenders. The front of the present attack from Vrigny west of the city to La Pompelle around a semi-circle to the east, is approximately fourteen miles.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

Last night at six o'clock the Germans delivered a violent preparatory artillery fire along the whole front of Rheims from the region of Vrigny west of the city as far east as La Pompelle. At nine o'clock the enemy infantry began an attack on the French positions between these two points. The French troops resisted the German attack with complete success. The counter barrage of the French artillery was very effective. Between Vrigny and Ormes the German assault troops were stopped by the French fire and forced to return many times to their lines of departure and were not finally able to reach their objectives.

Around Rheims violent combats developed, during the course of which the enemy suffered heavy losses and was everywhere repulsed.

PRISONERS TAKEN.

East of Rheims the fighting likewise ended to the advantage of the French. The Germans, having been successful in penetrating the woods north-east of Sillery, were driven out by a counter attack. Prisoners taken in the region of Rheims declared that the town was attacked by three divisions, which were ordered to take the place at all costs during the night.

The French are resisting the new German assault with entire success. On the western front of the attack the enemy was not even able to reach the front line. In the centre the Germans suffered heavy losses and were compelled to retreat and on the eastern end of the attack the French were equally successful.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, June 19.— British troops last night successfully raided the German lines in the neighbourhood to the south of Rebuterne and north of Albert, the War Office announces to-day. A British post recently taken by the Germans near Vieux Berquin, on the northern side of the Lys salient, was recaptured. Some prisoners and two machine guns were taken.

THE STATEMENT READS:

A raid attempted by the enemy in the Locre sector was repulsed by the French troops. Hostile artillery was active yesterday evening in the Ancre Valley about Mercourt and during the night has been active in the neighbourhood of Merris, on the Flanders front. We carried out a successful raid last night south of Hebuterne. In the Vieux Berquin sector a party of our troops attacked and recaptured one of the positions taken by the enemy in this locality on the night of June 14th. We secured a few prisoners and two machine guns.

Cheese Sold For 22 1-4 cts.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie Bought the Entire Board at the Above Figure

1986 BOXES BOARDED

At the regular meeting of the cheese board this morning in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, Mr. G. A. Gillespie bought up all the cheese at 22¼c. Cooke, of Belleville, started the bidding at 22¼c for selection. Mr. Gillespie got the preference at the same price for the board. Other buyers present were Morton and Thompson.

Prices Advanced.

The board showed a falling off on account of the fact some of the farmers do not now attend, and two factories have been burnt out this year. On the same date last year Mr. Gillespie bought up the board of 2638 boxes at 21¼c.

The following factories boarded cheese:

Soft Collars Are All The Rage Now

Dealers Say That Greater Numbers Than Ever Are Being Sold

Haberdashery merchants in the city state that never has there been such a demand for soft collars as at the present time. They came into vogue last summer, and throughout the winter and up to the present time have remained very popular with the young men. Stiff collars have just about doubled in price, and, although most of the soft collars are more expensive, they seem to have displaced the starched collar.

Dealers also state that the same condition obtains all over the continent, and manufacturers are scouring the country for the silks and linens that go into their manufacture. Hundreds of dozen more are now made daily than was formerly the case, and it is probable that the demand will continue. Returned soldiers who have been discharged into civilian life once more invariably demand soft collars, and as the number returning increases more and more soft collars will be sought.

EXCLUDING ENLISTMENTS

It is evidently the intention of the government according to press reports, to make the most of the one hundred thousand men limitation of the Military Service Act. In order to secure the largest possible quota, the decision has been arrived at to exclude from the number secured the men who voluntarily enlist before they are called. For instance if a man is ordered to report for service and actually gets into uniform before the date named in the notice, his report will be cancelled and he will not be counted among the 100,000 men authorized under the Act. The same procedure will be followed in the case of a man joining the army before an order for service is issued to him. The importance of this new ruling is that if the arrangement is carried out and dated back to the beginning of the conscription operation, thousands of men who have joined the army will not be considered as part of the reinforcements under the Act. In the Toronto military district alone it is stated that thirty per cent. of the men who have joined the army would not be counted as being secured by tre operations of the Act. The intention apparently is to secure the full one hundred thousand from men ordered to report and who wait or have waited until the day named in the notice sent them. In this way the number of recruits added to the army since the Act went into operation will not be confined to 100,000, but will extend well over that mark.

LETTERS TO THE SOLDIERS.

In England now, and perhaps in France, are many Canadian young men called out for service by draft methods. Thousands of them have been required to become soldiers in circumstances of extreme difficulty and hardship to them or their relatives. The hard needs of the war have forced the calling up of only sons of widows, of brothers supporting families, and mainstays of aged parents. Many of these young men would have enlisted long ago had they not felt their family circumstances restrained them by a superior obligation. Now, that they are in khaki, taking a man's part in the service of their country, they are entitled to the fullest moral support from their relatives and friends. They depend in a degree far from being understood, upon letters and encouragements from home to keep their minds easy and cheerful.

In the painful circumstances of the calling up of many of these men there may be temptations by those at home in writing to make matters worse by enlarging on their difficulties or trials. These writers should reflect that no possible good can be accomplished by sending worrying or discouraging news or comments. The boys at the front should understand that those at home are getting along bravely, are content, and hope those at the front are doing well. Letters bright to be cheery, communicating bright, interesting news, and showing confidence and appreciation of the need of stout hearts. Men at the front hunger for news from home. When their correspondents write in hopeful and cheery style, they feel immensely cheered. They face their trials and risks in the field with good heart, feeling that all is well at home.

The civilians at home, guarded from the great menace of Prussianism, have a plain duty towards their defenders. It is to make their minds as content and easy as possible. What is termed morale is a state of mind, and the people at home have a very important part in building it up or pulling it down. The scores of thousands of letters that go to the Canadian boys at the front are as important as defence against the Hun as a reserve line of trenches.—Mail and Empire.

SCRAPS OF PAPER.

Without wishing to indulge in captious criticism it may be mentioned that there are no honours coming to the individual who is responsible for the certificates that are being given to people who are called upon to register for National Service. The regulations provide that these certificates must be carried at all times, and must be produced at the request of any proper official. And this important document that must be so carefully preserved consists of what? Merely a scrap of ordinary, flimsy paper—not even card board. The material is such that people will have to exercise the greatest care to preserve the certificate intact for a few months. By securing a wallet which the document will fit, a man may be able a year from now to show that he is registered, but what about the women who will have to carry the certificates in handbags or in one or other of the mysterious carrying places made use of by the fairer sex. It is suspected that the official who designed the registration certificate is the same man who invented the exemption certificates which, composed of card board, were made in a size that would not fit an ordinary pocketbook, and which in most cases have to be carried loose in the pocket liable to be lost and certain to be damaged. The law requires that both registration and exemption papers must be carried constantly. In that case a little ordinary common sense would have revealed the necessity of adopting a more convenient and more durable certificate. If the documents had been composed of parchment such as is used in soldiers' discharges papers, there would be some chance of keeping them intact. Under the present circumstances the certificates stand the same chance as that famous scrap of paper so much was heard of at the beginning of the war.

HEROIC WOMEN.

The letter of Lieut. Quinney in these columns Monday, while particularly devoted to praise of the Y. M.C.A. war work in France, also paid a tribute to the splendid results secured by the Salvation Army representatives at the front. The reference is timely in view of the cabled dispatches from overseas which have made frequent mention of the heroism of Salvation Army women while close up to the front line with the American army. No fewer than six of these brave women were in Serchepreyr when that town was shelled by the Germans and an International News Service correspondent describes them as "making apple pies and frying doughnuts, hundreds of them, with a steel helmet on and a gas mask slung over the shoulder."

The work of the Salvation Army at the front is appreciated by the fighting man. One American chauffeur refers to it in this breezy style.

"There's one organization over here that is doing more than the people in the States dream of. Ask any soldier or officer about The Salvation Army and see if every guy doesn't boost it to the clouds. I know, because I hear the gang spouting praises every day and I've seen The Salvationists deliver.

"You don't have to give a red penny. If you're broke you're more welcome than a guy with his pockets bulging. I always doped the Salvation Army wrong at home. I thought a sandwich or a cup of coffee meant that you had to say a string of prayers and stand up in a crowded hall and testify what a wicked sinner you'd been, but there isn't any testimony or preaching mixed up in their army work. Not so's you'd notice it.

"I've sampled their hospitality in every sector and I never had to say 'Amen,' though inwardly I have when I left canteens late cold, wet nights with a warm, full stomach. Remember that line about reaching a man through his stomach? Well, it's right.

"The poet who pulled that knew what he was talking about. Fellows don't want too much religion. Little is all right. A fellow doesn't need much preaching out here. He thinks religion and prayers to himself. Instinct before a battle. I wrote to the folks to drop in money whenever they saw anyone with a Salvation Army tambourine.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There are still people who imagine that they do not have to register because they are over sixty years of age. Once more remember that every one who has reached the age of sixteen must register.

Ottawa is talking about fuel rations for next winter. A good supply of wood in Peterborough would be very useful when the cold breezes blow again.

Would Restrict Power of Senate

Strong Resolution Passed at Recent Session of Bay of Quinte Conference.

The appended strong resolution requesting the restriction of the Senate's power to veto legislation passed by the House of Commons, was passed at the session of the Bay of Quinte Conference, recently held in Lindsay:

Whereas the Senate of the Dominion of Canada recently vetoed important amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada sent up to them by the House of Commons, whereby further and necessary protection was to be given to girls and young women.

Therefore be it resolved that this Bay of Quinte Conference hereby expressed its entire disapproval of that action.

And further we believe the time has come when steps should be taken by the Dominion Government to have the Senate of Canada brought under such restriction that it cannot thwart the will of the people of Canada as expressed through their representatives in the House of Commons.

NOTHER VICTORY FOR THISTLE BALL CLUB

thews-Blackwell Team Beaten in City Twilight League Fixture at Riverside Park By 18 to 4---Orientals and Riversides Will Clash To-morrow Night.

is Yeotes' Thistle team annex- heir second victory last night in City Twilight League game at rside Park, when they took the hews-Blackwell team into camp e tune of 18 runs to 4.

game was a runaway affair in tter stages, after the M. B.'s had things interesting in the first frames. Incidentally the losers much better team than the indicates, and when they get in- nape will give all the League a battle. They have had little practice, and to make matters for them last night every break against them, the Thistles forging, scoring five runs in one in- with only one hit, and three in another after the side should been retired.

Thistles played their usual game, both in the field and . Neary was in good form on bber, striking out ten men, and as given snappy support, espe- in the pinches.

son, who pitched for the losers, d out in whirlwind fashion, but ally weakened. His support him at critical times and his ce fielding helped to keep him hole.

star fielding play was contrib- by Shaughnessy, left fielder for ews-Blackwell, whose catch of tt's long drive to left was the ndividual stunt of the season.

Thistles opened the scoring in cond innings when Shaw and y, the first two men up, singled. ed ball and an error by Jobbitt d Shaw to score. Mahood struck d Mahood was walked after- scoring when Carson missed t's return throw.

thews evened up in the third they sent two runs across. Job- ingled between short and third ole second, Carson fanned, but hnessy singled, to score Job- by Close and Lowe sent hnessy home after Montgom- d flied out to Cherrett. Mat- was the third out, going out by rike-out route.

The balloon went up in the fourth, however, when the Thistles bagged five runs and put the game on ice. Passes to Murphy and McLeod, Shaw's hit by pitcher, a couple of errors, a passed ball, a wild pitch and Neary's triple did the damage, and from then on it was a procession. The winers got three in the fifth, four in the sixth and four in the seventh. Mahoney twirled the last innings for the losers. The box score:

Cheap Power Was One Reason For Mr. Low Locating New Factory In Peterboro'

Renfrew Town Council Was Dickering With Power Interests While Mr. Thomas Low Was In Peterborough Looking Over a More Attractive Proposal

("Renfrew Mercury.")

Renfrew is not to have Mr. Low's additional shell-making plant, after all. As noted last week, Renfrew town council was negotiating the purchase of some extra power from the Calabogie Light and Power Co. to be sure of enough to supplement the town's present surplus from its own two plants. The Calabogie Co. asked a price of $30 per horse power and put on some restrictions about labor conditions that Mr. Low resented. Shortly thereafter there came to him a telephone request from the financial institution interested in the idle cordage plant building at Peterboro, urging him to visit that city and take stock of the situation before making any final decision where he would manufacture the shells. He had been written to on the matter the week previous and had not even answered the letter. But resenting somewhat that he should be asked more for power than the Renfrew rate, and even more resenting the other restrictions sought to be imposed, he determined to go to Peterboro to investigate the proposition there.

As was also noted in last week's paper, while Mr. Low was starting for Peterboro the town council was meeting to consider the power situation. The reasons given by the Calabogie Company for asking $30 per horse power were two fold. One, that that was the rate now being charged by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for power along the Trent waterway; the other, that the contract was for an uncertain term, which would prevent the Calabogie Co. selling that amount to possible permanent users. While council remembered that when the First Chute bylaw was being voted on the Calabogie Co. had stated, in the effort to defeat that bylaw, that it would supply power in Renfrew for $18 per horse power, it was not on the whole felt that the request for a higher rate was unreasonable, under the cost conditions under which the Calabogie plant was constructed, and for a short and uncertain contract. But council also realized that there was something natural in Mr. Low's dislike to being charged $30 per horse power, while all other town industries were being charged only $20. It did not take the majority of the council long to decide that the town wanted this new industry of Mr. Low's, and that the council would be justified in offering him the power at $20, using all it could of its own surplus and buying the balance from the Calabogie Co., even at $30, and selling it to Mr. Low at $20; because if the town had developed the First Chute it would have cost it for some years a good deal more loss than carrying the difference between $20 and $30 on 200 or 300 horse power for a time. So the council committed to the chairman power to carry on negotiations with the Calabogie Co. that night for revised conditions. Failing to get the management by telephone, Mr. M. J. O'Brien himself was communicated with; and there was very quickly an adjustment of conditions that enabled the council to wire Mr. Low that they were now able to promise him conditions that would be satisfactory to him. However, while pleased with the action of the council, and appreciating Mr. O'Brien's prompt elimination of the conditions that he had thought were offensive, Mr. Low found such enticing conditions at Peterboro—a factory of 77,000 square feet already built, and equipped with motors and sprinkler system, right alongside the railway track, with a promise of ample power at a price lower than that quoted by Renfrew, and housing and labour conditions favourable—that after a meeting with the Industrial Committee of the Peterboro City Council, he decided to buy the factory. As his contract required him to start work on shell making within 21 days, the finding of a fine building all ready for occupation, was a considerable inducement to the purchase.

Of course Renfrewites, in varying degrees, regret that the town is not to have this additional factory. Even those who felt that in the light of present housing and labor conditions here the town would have difficulty in assimilating the new industry, regret that Mr. Low's business activity is to be diverted even partially from the building up of Renfrew.

In dealing with the Calabogie Power Co. this came to light: That there was some reluctance to promise the power for a short time industry, because all the Calabogie surplus "could be sold to-morrow." The Mercury understands this means that negotiations are in progress for industries of a permanent character that will, if the negotiations are concluded, use up all the power now developed at Calabogie.

Hotel Proprietor Is Under Arrest

TORONTO, June 18.—That Richard Goggin and William Lahey, farmers of Madoc, Ontario, came to their death in the Kerby Hotel on June 8 as the result of poisoning by gas, was the verdict returned by Coroner M. D. McKecham's jury at the Morgue last night at the conclusion of a lengthy investigation. Goggin and Lahey came to Toronto to attend the farmers' convention in Massey Hall on June 7. On the afternoon of June 8 they were found dead in their rooms at the Kerby hotel. The verdict of the jury found from the evidence given that John Moir Blackwell, proprietor of the hotel, was guilty of gross negligence in not thoroughly investigating the smell of gas which had been brought to his attention by a maid at 7 a.m. One juryman dissented to the use of the words "gross negligence," but his objection was over-ruled.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Letter From France Bewails County Council's Isolation From Good Roads Policy

Dr. N. H. Sutton Says Peterborough Men Are Subjected to Chaffing Over the County's Self-Imposed Ostracism From the Provincial Good Roads—Ultimatum From Crown Attorney.

G.W.V.A. LETTER RECEIVED

A resolution from the Great War Veterans' Association recommending that financial assistance to the Y. M. C. A. war work be withheld until a complete statement of the Red Triangle's receipts and expenditures has been given to the public, opened a desultory discussion at this morning's session of the County Council.

"I haven't changed my opinion of the Y.M.C.A.'s work," Warden Anderson remarked. "I feel that the work they have been doing is necessary for the welfare of the soldiers. I did feel that the "Y" asked the people for a very large sum of money for the number to be served, and in view of the profit made in the sale of articles to the soldiers here and overseas. We have to trust people in these affairs, although it is evident that the accounting is not as detailed as many would prefer."

"In regard to the War Veterans' resolution, I observed that the Brockville Veterans endorsed the sending of support to the Y.M.C.A. Other branches have knocked it."

It is understood that the Knights of Columbus will appeal for public support for their second year's operations among the soldiers in France and England; hence a decision on the Y.M.C.A. request was deferred until later.

A LETTER FROM OVERSEAS.

Council smiled tolerantly yesterday afternoon at a letter from Major N. H. Sutton, of Peterboro, who is serving with the Army Medical Corps in which he lamented the fact that Peterboro is the sole remaining county in the province that has not adopted the Good Roads system. Major Sutton stated that this peculiar isolation is reflected upon the Peterboro men at the front, who, he said, were continually chaffed about the backwardness of Peterboro, as evidence in refusing to adopt the Good Roads system. The paper published by the War Records office for the Canadian soldiers overseas contained an item referring to the fact that this county alone was the good roads blacksheep of the province. Among the officers and men, this fact was the subject of raillery at the expense of every man who claimed Peterboro as his home, and Major Sutton expressed the hope that the County Council would soon relinquish its solitary position outside the Good Roads fold.

The communcation was respectfully received, and in a brief discussion that followed, it was pointed out that some of the counties that rushed into the Good Roads system would be glad to be out of it again, and apparently Peterboro's County Council are confident that they are not overlooking any particular advantages the Good Roads system may offer at this time.

REQUEST FROM GALWAY'S FAIR

The Galway Agricultural Society, whose annual exhibition is held at Kinmount, asked the council to increase its grant of $75 to $125.

Reeve John Clark is president of the Fair Board. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Warden Anderson's Address.

To the Council of the County of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—It is needless for me to refer to the anxiety of all as a result of the strenuous position the British Empire has been forced to take. It is but history repeating when her brave soldiers go forward to battle in the interests of democracy. It is gratifying to be able to say that she (the Mother Country) has her colonies' support, the splendid behaviour of her colonials is a credit not only to the colonies but indicative of the unity of the Empire.

It is my duty and I consider a privilege to emphasize the fact that citizens of this county are putting forth their best efforts with a view to winning for the British Empire a continuance of her proud position among all nations.

The prospects of a harvest at present elicits from us expressions of sincere thankfulness and recognition of an all wise and kind Providence.

Although the renovation of the Court House, offices and surroundings will be completed this year, the greater part of the work was carried on under my predecessor as Warden, Mr. Brown, and although I acted in the capacity of chairman of Construction committee last year and the work not being completed I did not think it advisable to make a special report on such construction, etc., and I will now allot to Mr. Brown to make a complete report at the time or session he considers opportune this year, he being the construction chairman this year.

There is considerable attention to be paid the bridge department this year, for instance, some construction that has become absolutely necessary and the establishing of the proper position of this county with regard to the Kinmount bridge. No further reference is necessary now, as Mr. McIntosh, the chairman, after conferring with the special committees and the members as a whole, will be in a position to report to you at the proper time.

The chairman of the Finance committee has his report ready to submit to you for consideration.

The grants already made have been as a result of his attention provided for. Other grants are still for you to decide. The Red Triangle appeal was referred to this session and I am informed other appeals will also be made to you.

The Clerk I understand has several tenders for debentures which no doubt will receive proper attention.

In conclusion permit me to thank all for the united support and concentrated efforts put forth in the interests of the County at large.

Again I extend welcome to Mr. Moore, the new Reeve of Lakefield and would say that the municipality is very fortunate to have such a competent representative to send to the county in time of emergency.

Respectfully yours,

W. A. ANDERSON,
Warden

Crown Attorney's Complaint.

The following letter was received from Mr. D. O'Connell of Toronto, in behalf of Crown Attorney Hatton:

Toronto, May 9, 1918.

I am instructed by Mr. G. W. Hatton, County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace for the County of Peterborough, to communicate with the County Council of the County of Peterborough in reference to his claim against the Council for proper office accommodation required to be supplied by the Council to him under Section 377 of the Municipal Act.

It appears that Mr. Hatton has not been provided by the Council with proper offices as required by this section of the Act, since his appointment to the offices of County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace on the 16th day of October, 1914, though he has demanded the same upon more than one occasion. On the 10th of March, 1916, he wrote you a letter, requesting that allowance be made to him, for the expense incurred during the preceding year for these purposes, and that if proper accommodation were not supplied in the future, that he be reimbursed for the outlay to be incurred by him in this connection. His request has not been complied with. He has incurred expense in supplying office accommodation, fuel and light to the extent of $350 a year and therefore claims the sum of $1,050 for these expenses up to the 16th of October, 1917, for which amount I must ask you to have the Council make me a remittance.

Mr. Hatton also instructs me that you have shown him a room in the reconstructed Court House, which the Council intends for his use. This room is altogether unsuitable for his purposes in the discharge of his duties as Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace, and if the Council intend to persist in its intention to supply this room and no other I must ask you to be good enough to inform me of the fact, as in that event Mr. Hatton intends to bring an action for the purpose of compelling the County Council to provide him with proper accommodation.

Mr. Hatton says that the County Council at one time offered him an office on the third floor, which was altogether unsuitable and not such accommodation as required by the Act, and which of course he refused to accept. This offer cannot be in any way regarded as a discharge of the Council's obligations under the Municipal Act.

I should be pleased to be informed by you when this matter has been brought to the attention of the County Council, and of the decision arrived at by it in the matter.

WILL TAKE NO ACTION.

The council decided, on a motion by Reeve Welsh, seconded by Deputy Reeve Eason, to take no action with Mr. O'Connell's request.

Over this question of quarters at the Court House for the Crown Attorney, a long drawn out controversy has dragged along with periodic flashes of heat. It was stated yesterday that in Mr. R. E. Wood's time the Crown Attorney's office adjourned the law library. Mr. Wood had informed the council that he didn't need this room, that he seldom used it, and eventually it became an annex to the library.

Mr. Hatton's demand has been sidetracked since the fire, but a room has been set apart for him immediately opposite the County Clerk's office, on the east side of the corridor. But the Crown Attorney objects that these proposed quarters are inadequate and generally unsatisfactory.

The council ignored this remonstrance yesterday afternoon, and proceeded to obtain from Mr. Hatton, County Police Magistrate Langley and County School Inspector Lees, an idea of the furnishings they will require for their new offices.

TIRES MUST NOT BE EXPORTED NOW

Hides and Leather Also on Banned List by New Order.

OTTAWA, June 18.—An order-in-Council has been passed prohibiting the export from Canada of hides and leather. It is explained that there has been an extensive export to the United States of Canadian hides, and stocks in the country are so depleted that in order to provide for our own requirements it was felt the export for the time being should be prohibited.

Another order has been passed prohibiting the exportation of tires for motorcycles, motor vehicles and all other tires containing rubber is prohibited to all destinations outside of Canada except under license issued by the Customs on the approval of the War Trade Board.

The United States derives $700,000,000 annually from liquor taxation.

In Old Age

Health and comfort in old age depends largely on keeping the liver and kidneys in healthful action.

Pains and aches, stiffness of the joints, lumbago and rheumatism tell of poisons left in the blood by sluggishness of the liver and kidneys.

People in advanced years hold Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in high esteem because of the promptness and certainty with which they awaken the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

WHY TRADE SHOWS DECLINE

Loss of South African and Australian Shipping Service and Congestion on Land Were Causes.

OTTAWA, June 18.—That the decrease of over ninety-two millions in the trade of the Dominion for the first two months of the fiscal year ending May 31, as compared with the same period in 1917, is due almost entirely to the curtailment of shipping facilities is the opinion expressed in official circles here. In this connection it is pointed out that since this period last year the Australian and South African steamship services have been discontinued, and this would materially affect the total trade figures.

Another contributory cause has undoubtedly been the congestion of the land transportation facilities of the country. In this connection it will be recalled that as the result of a conference held in Ottawa early in the winter, arrangements were made for the all-rail carriage of large supplies of wheat for Great Britain and her allies. It was subsequently stated officially that although the plan had been adhered to the quantity of wheat carried all-rail was only fifty per cent. of the amount it was expected would be carried.

The exchange situation as it affects the United States and Canada and the restriction of imports recently decided upon by the War Trade Board will considerably reduce the total trade of the Dominion for the current fiscal year.

Modish Linen Suits Beautifully Tailored

Summer suits in summer shades—an array clear and cool looking as a summer rainbow, these fresh, crisp looking costumes have just arrived from the hands of clever designers.

All are tailored and smart as well-made linen suits can be. There are wide belts and narrow belts, plain sacque coat styles and coats that button closely in front. But all are alike in their snugly-fitted shoulders and plain skirts gathered at the back under the belts.

—Cotton tricotine and the most wonderful shade of mauve have been used in designing a refreshingly novel suit. Superbly tailored in the very newest lines, sacque coat, belted, with long shawl collar. Plain and modishly cut skirt. Moderately priced at..... $18.00

—Another stunning model is of cotton gabardine in a pretty castor shade combined with a corresponding plaid. The coat is sleeveless, very smart in the plain color and plaid trim. Plaid is used for the skirt with pearl buttons and straps for trimming. The price is $19.50

The Vogue Of The Sleeveless Coat

—And what smart things they are too. We are showing a particularly distinctive model of elegant quality black charmeuse lined with soft white satin. The white satin is cleverly brought out to form a rolling long revered collar. It has a wide belt and deep pockets trimmed with rows of tiny black charmeuse buttons. A charming coat, priced at $25.00

GREAT WAR ORDERS LOBBY

Disclosed in U. S. With Ramifications Throughout Country—Controlled by Brokers' Trust.

WASHINGTON, June 19.— A sensational blow by the Department of Justice has disclosed the presence here of a great war orders lobby, with connections throughout the nation and controlled by a "brokers' trust." Raids in many big cities returned a mass of evidence, officials say, showing existence of a conspiracy between manufacturers and their percentage brokers here.

M. Fine's New Store

The newly fitted-up premises to be soon occupied by Mr. M. Fine, at 427 George street, is nearing completion. The front has been changed so as to have the main entrance in the centre instead of in the side, as formerly. The interior has been completely altered and fitted up for the varied stocks of ready-to-wear and general goods to be carried. This store and store premises can now be classed among the largest in the city, and will add quite a new feature to the business houses in this section.

Mr. Fine is now holding a hurried removal sale in his present store, having marked down all goods for quick selling in order to save the trouble of moving them to his new premises.

Wind and the Sun.

Wind does not always go down with the sun, but may blow from high to low after sunset. If wind starts to fill up a low pressure area before sunset it is liable to keep pouring in until it is filled and equilibrium restored. If wind stops exactly at instant of sunset one may rest assured that the area of barometrical depression is filled. If wind blows from sea to land by day it may stop at sunset and reverse direction. If it does the cause is that at sunrise the sun's radiant energy heats the land more than it does the water. The land warms the air, increases its rarity, and it rises, producing a lower pressure area, and cooler air from over the ocean rushes in to fill it. After sunset land cools in less time than the water, and the direction of flow is reversed. But this may not always occur. Local causes, as fog, saturation of air, electrical conditions and others may prevent.—New York Journal.

Sometimes Happens So.

The family had gone off for their holiday in a taxi. Twenty minutes later the taxi snorted back up the road.

"Forgotten the tickets?" cried a neighbor.

"No," said the irate householder, "but my wife's just remembered that she's left a kettle boiling on the gas stove."

He dived into the house and came back the next moment with a ghastly calm on his face.

"All right now?" said the neighbor cheerily.

"Right! I'd forgotten that I'd turned the gas off at the meter, and now we're two hours and a half to wait for the next train."—Glasgow Dispatch

Father of the Dreadnought.

To the late Admiral Cuniberti, member of the Italian naval engineering staff, is due the credit of having suggested the modern Dreadnought. It was he, also, who suggested the modern type of scout, and he was one of the first to study the question of the application of liquid fuel to marine boilers. It was his influence which led to the adoption of this fuel in the Italian torpedo boat service.

Mr. G. H. Roper Has Returned From The "Y" Conference

Secretary of Peterboro' Y.M.C.A. Relates Some of His Impressions —Meetings Well Attended.

Mr. G. H. Roper, Secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Y.M.C.A., who was the local representative at the Y.M.C.A. International Conference held at Springfield, Mass., from June 7 to June 14, inclusive, has returned to the city.

At the conference were over 800 delegates from all parts of the North American Continent. Dr. John R. Mott, head of the International Y.M.C.A., presided. A review of the association work of the Y.M.C.A. was held and it was shown that in spite of the war the association has more than held its own. The theme of the conference as outlined by the different speakers, was ungrasped and undeveloped opportunities. The outstanding speaker was Dr. H. Gulick, New York, who has been overseas with the American and French armies. Dr. G. L. Meylan, also of New York, who had charge of the Y.M.C.A. in the French army, told of the wonderful results that had been achieved and the wonderful influence that the "Y" had upon the men because previously there had been no recreation provided by the French authorities. Amidst cheers from the delegates Dr. Meylan announced that the Italian commander has also asked that Y.M.C.A. workers be sent to work among the troops of Italy. The American army has officially delegated the Y.M.C.A. to take over all kinds of recreation, etc. The Y.M.C.A. has been heartily endorsed by Generals Pershing, Bliss and March, and by Secretary of War Baker. At the close of the conference Dr. Mott announced that $100,000,00 would be needed to carry on the work for the coming year. $54,000,000 had been subscribed last year. From now on 100 men would be needed every month for overseas Y.M.C.A. work and nearly that number would be needed at home to replace the men who had enlisted, been drafted, or had gone to France as "Y" representatives.

The conference was closed by Rev. (Gypsy) Smith, who came especially from New York for that purpose.

About 30 delegates attended the conference from Canada, from Winnipeg to Halifax.

Request To County To Aid Catholic Army Huts Work

Delegation of Knights of Columbus Relate Results Already Accomplished—Non-Sectarian in Character—Recreation For All Men

A deputation from Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus presented to the County Council this afternoon a request for a grant to the Catholic Army Huts Association which is now in its second year of service overseas. Mr. J. J. Duffus introduced the deputation and the subject of their quest in a brief address, which was elaborated by Mr. V. J. McElderry and Mr. John R. Corkery. The other K. C. representatives present were Dr. McNulty, W. Merrill, J. J. Sullivan, F. F. Garden, J. J. Dorris, Richard Sheehy, John Corkery, senior, J. F. McCarthy.

Mr. Duffus recalled the fact that the Catholic Army Huts Association had been formed by the Rev. Father O'Gorman, who went overseas as a chaplain. In its first year the revenue required for its activities was contributed for the most part by Catholics, under the supervision of the Knights of Columbus. In the present campaign, an appeal is made to municipalities to assist in this work among the soldiers. There was no question of its need and of its accomplishments, Mr. Duffus declared.

Mr. J. V. McElderry said that the revenue for last year's work of the Catholic Army Huts Association was raised by private subscription, and a short time ago a complete statement of the receipts and expenditures had been published and approved. In the new campaign, which has been necessarily expanded, it is hoped to raise $200,000 in Ontario, and the other provinces are expected to make proportionate contributions. The municipalities are being approached, and thus far the Association has been cordially received and generously assisted. Essex county recently gave $20,000 to the Y.M.C.A. and $6,000 to the Catholic Huts Fund, and this week Victoria county gave $3,000 for the Y.M.C.A. work among the soldiers and $2,000 to the Catholic Army Huts.

Mr. McElderry stated that the Army Huts provided recreational accommodation for the men overseas. They were not denominational; every man was cordially welcomed. The Catholic Army Huts are equipped with an annex for Catholic religious services which in the first years of the war were held in the Y.M.C.A. huts, upon which the Catholic chaplains depended until the Army Huts were provided. "It would be odious to make comparisons," Mr. McElderry concluded, "but we feel justified in asking you for a grant of in the neighbourhood of $3,000."

Mr. John Corkery, Jr., emphasized the statement that the objects for which the Association was formed have been successfully attained. The annual report showed that soldiers of all denominations and races had participated in the advantages of the Catholic Army Huts. That report showed how the money received last year had been disbursed.

Mr. Corkery indicated how the demand for comforts at the front had grown in the past two years. "This demand will remain for some time to come for the war does not appear to be near the end to-day."

Warden Anderson assured the deputation that their request would be duly considered before the present sessions are closed.

League Fixtures For To-morrow

Tomorrow evening the Twilight League, will hold a league fixture at 6.30 p.m., at Riverside Park. The Riversides will clash with the Orientals and it promises to be a fast game. The battery for the Riversides will be Kirn and Phelan ,for the Orientals Galbraith will be on the mound and Gurgoyne behind the bat.

The lowest priced tea is not cheapest. A pound of Salada yields so many more cups of satisfying infusion than ordinary tea that it is the most economical in use, besides being so delicious.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS

LAKEFIELD, June 19.—Pte. Allan Ray is in the village, the guest of his aunts, the Misses Ray.

Pte. Roland Darcy, of the R.A.F., is spending a few days' leave in the village with his family.

Mrs. Wm. Leonard, who has been visiting in Winnipeg for the past few weeks, has returned to the village.

Mr. and Mrs. John Blewett have moved to their summer home near Burleigh Falls for the summer.

Mr. W. M. Graham spent a couple of days at "Viamede" this week.

Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald has commenced work on the fine new bungalow he is erecting on his lot on Queen street.

Public Meeting On Friday Next

A public meeting has been called for next Friday evening, June 21, to organize a local branch of the Navy League of Canada. Mayor Duncan, will preside. A letter has been received from the Governor-General who is Vice-President of the Navy League for the Empire, who says in part.

"Let me venture to hope that you will render such aid as is within your power to establish a branch of the Navy League in your community to carry out the suggestions contained in the letter, and that you will join the League."

Indians At Great Council Discuss Patriotic Work

Chief Danny Whetung, of the Chemong Indians, attended the biennial meeting of the Grand Council of Indians of Ontario, at the Christian Island reservation last week. Twenty-one bands were represented, and among the subjects discussed was that of contributing to the Government's war funds and for other patriotic work. The reserves will be expected to put portions of their annuities at the use of the Government, to give outright where possible, and in some cases Indians have given half their annual grants from the Government.

The Chiefs were also urged to do their share in the Government's greater production campaign this summer, and in every way possible to realize the obligation that rests upon them as heavily as upon the white people.

FISHING GOOD AT CHEMONG

From the reports received it appears that the fishing is good at Chemong and that many of the city anglers are taking advantage of it. At present the water is a little high but is rapidly receding.

MR. LOW BUYS SOME MORE PROPERTY IN RENFREW

Those who have felt that in locating his new shell factory at Peterboro, there might be danger of Mr. Low's attention being diverted from Renfrew will be satisfied to learn that he has dropped another anchor in Renfrew, by purchasing from Mrs. E. Mackay the vacant lots between Raglan and the extension of Lorne street that he recently opened.—Renfrew Mercury.

"Barber's Itch"

Annoying, isn't it? But you can soon get rid of this form of eczema by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving.

This soothing ointment heals the irritated skin and keeps it soft and pliable. By its antiseptic influence it prevents the spreading of skin trouble.

You will not suffer from tenderness of the skin if you apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving. It acts as a food for the skin, keeping it smooth and velvety.

The Death Of A Lakefield Resident

Lakefield, June 19. — At the residence of her son, Mr. Fred Erskine, Mary Jane Reid, widow of Alexander Erskine, passed away on Monday, June 17th, in her 86th year.

The deceased lady, who had been a resident of Lakefield for a number of years, and was held in high esteem by all, is survived by her son, Mr. Fred Erskine. A daughter pre-deceased her by several years.

The funeral will be held at the residence of her son, at 9 o'clock, on Wednesday morning, and will proceed to the Little Lake cemetery, at Peterboro.

Fire Broke Out In A Storehouse

Fire broke out in a storehouse owned by Mr. D. F. Drummond, at the rear of Rishor's wholesale warehouse, about 5.30 yesterday afternoon, presumably from a spark from an engine setting fire to the shingles. The only damage by fire was to the building but the contents were seriously damaged by water. The Examiner had two carloads of roll and flat newsprint stored in the building, which will be practically ruined. White Bros., carters had a large quantity of sugar which will be greatly damaged. Mr. Drummond had a number of implements in building and they have been considerably damaged as well.

WEDDING BELLS

SHEA—LEAHY.

St. Mary's church, Lindsay, was the scene of a very pretty June wedding yesterday morning when Miss Rose Ada Shea, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Shea, of Glenelg street, Lindsay, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Robert Joseph Leahy, son of Mr. Wm. Leahy, formerly of Peterborough, but now of Parry Sound.

Monsignor Casey celebrated the nuptial mass, and there was a large gathering present of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride who entered the church and was escorted to the altar on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. James Cuddahee, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Cote, organist, was handsomely gowned in silk crepe over silk, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary McEvoy, was gowned in blue crepe and wore a hat to match. She also carried a bouquet of carnations.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Michael Fox, of Lindsay, as groomsman.

During the mass Miss Ella Brady rendered Millard's "Ave Maria" in excellent voice.

HARRIS—LEAL

The marriage took place this afternoon in the Manse of St. Paul's Presbyterian church of Robert Alfred Harris to Kathleen Gladys Leal, both of Marmora. Rev. Mr. Pogue, officiated.

OBITUARY

MISS IRVINE THOMPSON.

Another old and highly respected citizen of Port Hope has been called home in the person of Mrs. Irvine Thompson. A kind and sympathetic neighbour and friend always willing and ready to lend a helping hand, Mrs. Thompson made a host of friends who will learn of her death with profound regret. One son, John of Ottawa, and two daughters, Mrs. Reginald Black, of the Gardens, and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, Peterboro, are left to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother.—Port Hope Guide.

WANTED TO THANK DONORS

After This, It Would Be Folly to Say That Sailors Do Not Appreciate Gifts.

Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson writes in the Woman's Home companion:

"As for knitted garments, I wish you could have been with me one day at a certain naval base near New York, when the crew of a ship which had been accidentally sunk in our very harbor entered the chaplain's office to receive their fresh supply of knitted garments. They had all lost their clothing, barely escaping with their lives.

"The boys lined up like the well-trained sailors they were, tucked their supplies under their arms and marched out again, headed by an officer. But the moment they broke ranks outside headquarters each boy became absorbed in his own particular package of knitted garments and comfort bag, turning the sweaters, the helmets, the wristlets and even the bags inside out, poking inquiring fingers into every corner.

"'What are they looking for—sizes?' I asked the young officer at my elbow.

"'Dear, no,' said my guide with a laugh. 'Letters, notes, the addresses of the lady who knitted the garment or filled the bag. They want to write back and say thank you.'

"After watching their frenzied search for notes and addresses, nothing can ever make me believe that the boys do not appreciate such gifts."

JOKE ON DESTROYER CAPTAIN

Spent Hours Searching for Convoy Which It Turned Out Never Had Been Lost.

Humorous stories as well as tragic tales comes from the seas, even in war time. A British naval officer was relating with great glee to his friends at the club a story about one of his majesty's destroyers which was detailed to escort a transport filled with troops.

This transport, it seems, was commanded by a captain who, unlike most of his class, was meek and mild. The night was dark and dirty and naturally no lights were showing. In the storm and darkness the destroyer lost sight of her convoy. Her commander, who was one of the nervous, peppery sort, dashed up and down and around and about but could not pick her up. Of course the naval officer blamed the captain of the convoy for not keeping in touch and said things about the seamanship of the convoy's captain that would not read well in print.

Finally after several hours vain search the destroyer's commander thought his best plan would be to run for the nearest port and there see if he could get any news of the missing transport. The destroyer thrashed her way through a heavy sea at a speed of 20 knots. Just as she entered the harbor she picked up a plaintive wail from the convoy: "Need we follow you any longer?"

Poor Consolation.

"Oh," said he, with affected indifference, "there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught."

"Better," the girl who had rejected him replied pointedly, "better from their point of view, because they may never be caught."—Exchange.

REGISTRATION IS WELL UNDER WAY

Several Hundred Citizens Have Fyled With the Goverament Record of Their Status.

Through splendid organization and well chosen deputy registrars, the registration in the city is moving splendidly and the booths have been crowded each night. At Powell's butcher shop alone 80 people were registered in three hours last night. The Empress has been perhaps the busiest spot as yet and is today still a centre of considerable activity. No definite estimate of the number who have registered can as yet be made.

BAND CONCERT WAS APPRECIATED.

The programme given last night by the Salvation Army Band, was greatly appreciated by an exceptionally large audience at Victoria Park.

BATTLE CONTINUES ON THE ITALIAN FRONT

The Germans Have Been Unable To Advance On The West

The German Forces Have Been Unable To Advance On The Rheims Battlefront

Terrific Fire of the French Was Too Much For The Enemy—Heavy Concentration of Enemy Troops on the Italian Front—Forty Thousand Peasants Revolt in the Ukraine.

THURSDAY MORNING BULLETINS

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 20.—Forty thousand German troops which were concentrated around Rheims, met with such awful fire from the French defence that they were unable to make the slightest advance.

Naval Operations.

LONDON June 20.—As a result of recent British naval operations at Zeebrugge, twenty-one German destroyers, a number of submarines and a large number of other craft are penned up in the Bruges canal docks.

On the Italian Front.

ITALIAN FRONT, June 20.— One million Austrians and seventy-five thousand cannon have been concentrated on the Italian front. The Piave river is badly swollen from floods. Many bridges were swept away. The Austrians on the western side of the river are cut off from supplies. The battle broke furiously again yesterday on the Piave.

New Offensive.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 20.—Fresh divisions are ready to be hurled against the British on the western front. The next few days will witness another attempt of the Germans to reach the Channel ports.

Peasants Revolt.

LONDON, June 20.—Forty thousand peasants have revolted and armed themselves in the Ukraine.

Wednesday Night Bulletins:

Meat Rejected.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Hundreds of thousands of pounds of meat intended for use on the American battleships has been rejected as unfit for eating, it developed at the inquiry today.

Conditions Bad

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—The Vienna "Arbeiter Zeitung" received here to-day says conditions in Austria are at the breaking point on account of under feeding.

Prisoners Taken.

ROME, June 19.—Italians have captured, since the beginning of the offensive, 9,011 prisoners, and taken many guns and several hundred machine guns, the War Office announces.

Vienna Report.

VIENNA, June 19. — Austro-Hungarian troops have crossed the Fossetta canal at some points the War Office announces.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards.—Receipts yesday were 68 cars, with 779 cattle, 302 calves, 1399 hogs and 473 sheep and lambs.

The market is steady at last Monday's decline for grass cattle but with a little better enquiry for anything of choice quality, whether off the grass or stable fed.

Calves continue firm and about 50c higher than last week.

Sheep are $2 to $3 lower than last week. Lambs choice steady.

Hogs steady at $18, fed and watered. It is a general complaint among the packers that too large a percentage of heavy hogs are being marketed. The most desirable weights for the export trade at the present time are from 180 to 210 or 220 pounds, with a preference for the 210-pound hog as against 220 pounds. Hogs weighing 250 to 300 pounds are decidedly too heavy, and will probably be subject to a dollar discount on the regular market price.

GRAIN MARKET

Need of rain in some of the corn growing districts and a falling off in receipts spelled opportunity for the bulls yesterday and they proceeded to rout the bears by putting up the corn market two cents above Tuesday's close. Oats also acted stronger with light receipts and some enquiry for export. There was a better cash demand at Winnipeg and this gave a stronger tone to the options market. July oats at Winnipeg closed 1 1-8 up and October 1 3-4c up. Oash oats at Fort William 1c higher. The hay market is easier and is quoting $2 per ton lower track Toronto.

SCOTCH SOCCER CLUBS PAY 10 P.C. DIVIDEND

GLASGOW, June 19.—The big success which attended Soccer football in Scotland during the season which has just closed is reflected in the balance sheet of the famous Rangers Club, which won the championship of the Scottish League. The receipts totalled the large amount of $56,745. Among the big items spent was $13,335 for players' salaries and transfers, while the Government benefitted from the entertainment tax to the extent of $17,490. After paying all expenses, a net profit of $14,210 remained, out of which a dividend of 10 per cent. was paid. $5,000 was placed to the reserve and $3,270 carried forward to next season.

Western Grain Prospects Good

Deputy Minister of Agriculture Reports That Crops are O.K.

WINNIPEG, June 20.—Fine looking wheat from 16 to 20 inches in length has been brought back by J. H. Evans, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, from a trip which he has taken through the Red River Valley.

"The crops could not look better," he remarked, in commenting on his trip. "Of course: there are a few odd fields where the farmers have been careless in their cultivation, but you see new lands being prepared for next year in a reckless fashion. On one large farm I saw seven tractors at work on a 400-acre plot, which had been broken and cultivated this year."

The sample of wheat brought back by Mr. Evans was taken from an 800-acre field of wheat, which had been lightly touched by frost. This, however, instead of harming the growing crop, has but strengthened its roots, so that it is now in an ideal condition. Taking a trip south last Friday through Crystal City, Mathers Winkler, Morgan and Killarney, Mr. Evans stated that the crops looked O.K. and except for a few fields which have suffered from the frost, better crops could not be expected anywhere.

Regina, Sask.— Much needed rain fell in Saskatchewan last night. From the Swift Current district comes word that a heavy rain started yesterday afternoon, with every indication of continuing. In the Regina district rain fell late yesterday afternoon, and the skies suggested more to come. From the north similar reports have reached the city.

Sceptre Of Starvation Hangs Over Austria

"When Sanguinary Defeat on Italian Front is Known" Hints Vienna Press and Food Scarcity is Felt by Bulgars.

FOOD SCARCITY IN BULGARIA

Washington, June 20. — Austria's grave food situation coupled with the apparent failure of the new offensive against Italy, is exciting pessimistic comment in the Vienna press. An official despatch from Zurich to-day quotes the Arbiter Zeitung of Vienna as saying

"The situation will be still more serious in Vienna when the sanguinary defeat of the Imperial forces on the Italian front becomes known."

Amsterdam, June 20. — According to the Germans of Berlin, the food situation in Bulgaria brought about Radoff's resignation.

The food problem in that country, the newspaper adds, is becoming increasingly difficult. Its supplies are entirely exhausted and the nation is asking advances of grain to cover the time until the next harvest. The Central Powers, however, Germania declares, cannot give Bulgaria this aid to the extent desired.

Norwood Correspondence

NORWOOD, June 19 — Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing and Rev. and Mrs. Eyre spent Wednesday in Colborne.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Keefer spent a few days of last week in Toronto.

The village council met on Wednesday evening for June, as a Court of Revision, to hear and determine the several complaints against the assessment roll for 1918. The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

When Love Asserted Itself

CHAPTER XCVII.

I never shall forget my sensations when I so nearly drowned. I was a good swimmer, and never hesitated to go even farther out than George, who swam indifferently. I went down, down, down! The water not only seemed to close over me, but it seemed to wrap me round and round, like a great sheet. Twice this happened, then I felt myself lifted up in strong arms, after which I knew no more until I opened my eyes and found myself lying on the beach, with George bending over me, chafing my hands and one or two others trying to help bring me out of the unconsciousness into which I had drifted.

"Thank God!" I heard George say, but his voice sounded miles away. The ringing in my ears, like rushing water, made all other sounds faint and distant.

"That was a close shave for both of you, Howard! I thought, at one time, you were both gone," one of the men said. Then, as I stirred, "There comes the doctor now, but I guess she's all right."

I struggled to sit up. Gradually I sensed who was talking—what they were saying. George! I was deathly pale, I had never before seen such a look on his face, not even at the time when I cut my wrist in the car.

The doctor looked me over, then turned to George.

"You get home immediately!" he said. Then followed directions as to what he should do. For the first time I noticed that George was shivering violently. "You need care more than your wife does."

One of the early bathers had gone for a car, and we were helped into it and taken back to the hotel. Celeste got me to bed but George refused to do as the doctor ordered, and sat in a chair beside me. He kept hold of my hand until the medicine the doctor gave me took effect and I slept.

But before I closed my eyes, he told me he thought he had lost me—thought that he never could get me ashore. Just once, he leaned over and laid his face to mine.

"Thank God I still have my little wife!" he said, then leaned wearily back in the chair.

Disarranged Plans.

I slept for hours. When I awoke, I was nearly as well as ever. But George was in bed, quite ill. The doctor was there, and said that he would have to remain in bed for a few days, anyway. He looked so serious when he said it, that I was frightened and I questioned him closely.

It was his heart, the doctor told me. Not being a very good swimmer, he had not known how to spare himself, and I had been a dead weight.

"It was a miracle that he saved you—that both did not drown," the physician said. "At that early hour the guards are not on duty. It is a foolish thing to go out as far as you did, unless they are."

It was my fault. I had been to blame. Had I remained near to George, near the shore, it would not have happened.

All day messages poured in. It had gotten about, and we were fairly besieged with congratulations, and with condolences when they found George was ill from the effects of the strain. About three o'clock, I was called to the telephone. It was Merton Gray.

Merton Gray is Anxious.

"I have just heard," he said, "You are all right?"

"Right as can be, but Mr. Howard is quite ill."

"That is too bad—thank God you did not drown. You will not be leaving as you planned, will you?"

"No—that is not quite so soon. George will be in bed for several days, the doctor tells me."

"I shall see you again, if that is the case."

Someway when I hung up, it was with the same indifference with which I had done so, after receiving messages from casual acquaintances. Death had been so near—George was so ill—that everything else seemed trivial by comparison.

Later, I was again called to the telephone. This time the message did not leave me so indifferent. It was from Julia Collins. After asking me all sorts of questions, each time calling George by his first name, she proceeded to scold me for putting him in such danger. That she did it in her playfully sarcastic manner made no difference. She intimated that I wanted to show off before him and had gone out so far I couldn't get back. When I explained that I had been taken with cramps, as are many swimmers, she replied:

"I know! They all say that when they get into trouble."

I hung up the receiver—after telling her she could not see George for several days—hating her worse than ever.

To-morrow—An Undesired Visit.

NOT BOTHERED BY WORRY

Trouble in Colored Man's Case Most Certainly Did Not Induce Insomnia.

Representative Carter of Oklahoma was telling some of his colleagues in the cloakroom of the house the other day a story of a negro in his state who, under persuasion perhaps, had forsaken the Republican party and cast his fortunes with the Democrats, says the Washington Post. He gained a local reputation and soon his former associates in the old organization began to talk among themselves. Finally they determined to get the deserter back, if possible. A committee went to the recalcitrant and urged him to come back, but the Democrat was stubborn.

"Well, if you don't give up the Democrats we're goin' to tie your hands and feet, put a gag in your mouth and take you down to the old cave you know about and drop you in," they threatened.

The threat had its effect to the extent that in confidence the deserter told a white friend, a lawyer, of what he had been told.

"Don't pay any attention to them," advised the lawyer. "They wouldn't attempt anything like that."

But the negro wasn't satisfied. He continued talking about what his brethren were going to do to him.

"If they were to do anything like that," said the lawyer, "they would be arrested, and if you should be found dead they would be hanged."

"That's all right," said the negro, "but it wouldn't do me no good to have 'em hanging if I was dead."

"I knew there had been something wrong with you," said the lawyer. "I have seen you brooding for some time, and if you don't stop it the first thing you know you will go out and commit suicide over your troubles."

"Naw, indeed," said the negro, "'tain't no chance of dat. Whenever I gits to worryin' 'bout mah troubles I les' nachilly goes to sleep."

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Try Magnesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomachs and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsini bismuth, soda charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in your stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn, and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that, provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

Pathetic War Incident.

Lieutenant Turner of Saskatchewan lost his eyesight at Ypres. Some time ago he was taking his coat from the checker in a prominent London restaurant when a man beside him, noticing his blindness, took it gently from him and held it while he slipped his arms into the sleeves. Believing the service was rendered by an attendant, Lieutenant Turner offered him a shilling as a tip.

"That won't be necessary," kindly said a friend of the lieutenant, with an apologetic nod to the man who had held the coat. "The man who helped you was General ——."

The blind soldier blushed and asked the pardon of the general, but the latter was equal to the occasion.

"I won't accept your apology, but I'll accept your shilling and I'll treasure it as a souvenir of one of the best soldiers who ever fought for Canada and the allies."

Fish Wear Out Bridge Piles.

John Shafer, jr., deputy in the office of County Surveyor Frank Haycock of Hennepin county, New York, says that fish have butted and rubbed up against the piles on the bridge at Orono, Lake Minnetonka, until that aged edifice has become weakened, necessitating its closing.

Shafer and Edward Terrell, another deputy, were sent out to inspect the span.

"Yes, sir," said Shafer, "those fish kept on butting up against that pier until the wood was almost worn away. In order to get there we had to pound the water around the place to keep the finny things away until we could finish our inspection.

"Why, those fish are so numerous at Minnetonka this year that they get pushed through the narrow passage so swift that they simply wear out the wood."

Trophies of German Airman.

From an illustration appearing in a recent issue of La Guerre Aerienne it is gathered that Baron von Richthofen, the well-known German in command of a German fighting squadron or "flying circus," has a special hobby for souvenirs of his combats. The walls of his "den" are decorated with the numbers or distinguished marks of machines he has shot down, while the chandelier consists of a rotary engine from a victim's machine.—Scientific American.

Origin of a Word.

Few words have so remarkable a history as the word "bankrupt." The money lenders of Genoa, Venice and Florence had benches or stalls in the bourse, or exchange, in former times. At these benches they conducted their business. When any of them became insolvent his bench or bank was broken, because he had no further use for it, and the name banko rotto, or broken bench, was given to him. When the word first came into use in England it was nearer the Italian than it now is, being "bankerout" instead of bankrupt.

A Bold Monarch.

Charles IX. of France was bold enough to interfere with the attire of the women of his realm. In 1561 he forbade the ladies to use any "bands of embroidery stitchings or fixings of silk, excepting only a bordering the width of a finger or at the most two borderings with chain stitchings."

Keeps His Word.

"Is Bliggins a man to be trusted?"

"In some respects. If he owes you something and says he can't pay you, you can place absolute reliance in his word."—St. Louis Star.

In the Same Boat.

As a general thing, when a young man is unable to give a girl all the luxuries to which she feels entitled he is in the same boat with her father.—Galveston News.

LIFT OFF CORNS FREEZONE IS MAGIC

Costs few cents! Sore, touchy corns lift right off with fingers. No pain!

Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. It doesn't hurt one bit. Yes, magic!

Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

Woman Might Better Have Refrained From Attempt to Relieve an Embarrassing Situation.

The conversation in the lobby of a Washington club turned to the way in which we occasionally sink deeper and deeper trying to extricate ourselves, when Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont recalled a little incident along that line.

One of the features of an entertainment that was given for charity some time since was a vocal selection by a woman. Midway in the audience a meek-looking little man listened attentively.

"That is the most atrocious singing I ever heard," remarked a woman to the meek little man. "I wonder who the vocalist is?"

"She is my wife," was the startling rejoinder of the meek little man.

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" responded the other, greatly flushed. "The fault may lie with the music, which is really barbarous. Have you any idea who composed it?"

"Yes, madam," replied the other, administering yet more embarrassment. "I did."

Infantry Decides the Battle.

While there have been many discussions as to the relative value of the different branches of an army, there is no doubt, according to a writer in the Scientific American, but that it is the infantry that wins battles.

While it is probable the success of a battle will depend to a large extent on the support of the field artillery, it is certain that the principal and most important arm is the infantry, which in practically every case must decide the final issue. The cavalry may be the first to be drawn into a battle and the artillery may destroy the enemy's artillery, but a battle is never won until the infantry has driven back the enemy's lines.

The usual mode of advancing for the infantry is to deploy them in a line with a long interval between each soldier. This naturally is for the purpose of offering a smaller target for the enemy. It makes it more difficult, however, for the leaders to keep as good control over the men, and for that reason one of the objects of field artillery is to make the enemy's troops deploy early.

An Endowed Flagstaff.

What is thought to be the only endowed flagstaff in the world is that belonging to the Royal Asylum For the Deaf and Dumb at Margate, England. This staff was erected in the first year of the reign of King Edward VII. in commemoration of his accession to the throne. The cost was defrayed by the pupils and friends, and the collection taken was so large that it enabled the purchase of twenty flags.

Even when the staff and the flags had been paid for £40 remained in the treasury. This sum was invested for an endowment fund, and the interest is used every other year for painting and repairing the pole and tackle.

Some of the various flags bought are the royal standard, which is flown on the king's accession day, his birth day and his coronation day; the stars and stripes, run up on the president's birthday and election day; the French flag, used on the president's birthday; appropriate banners for St. David's, St. Patrick's and St. George's days; the union jack for the anniversaries of famous battles, and flags for the church's high festivals.—New York Tribune.

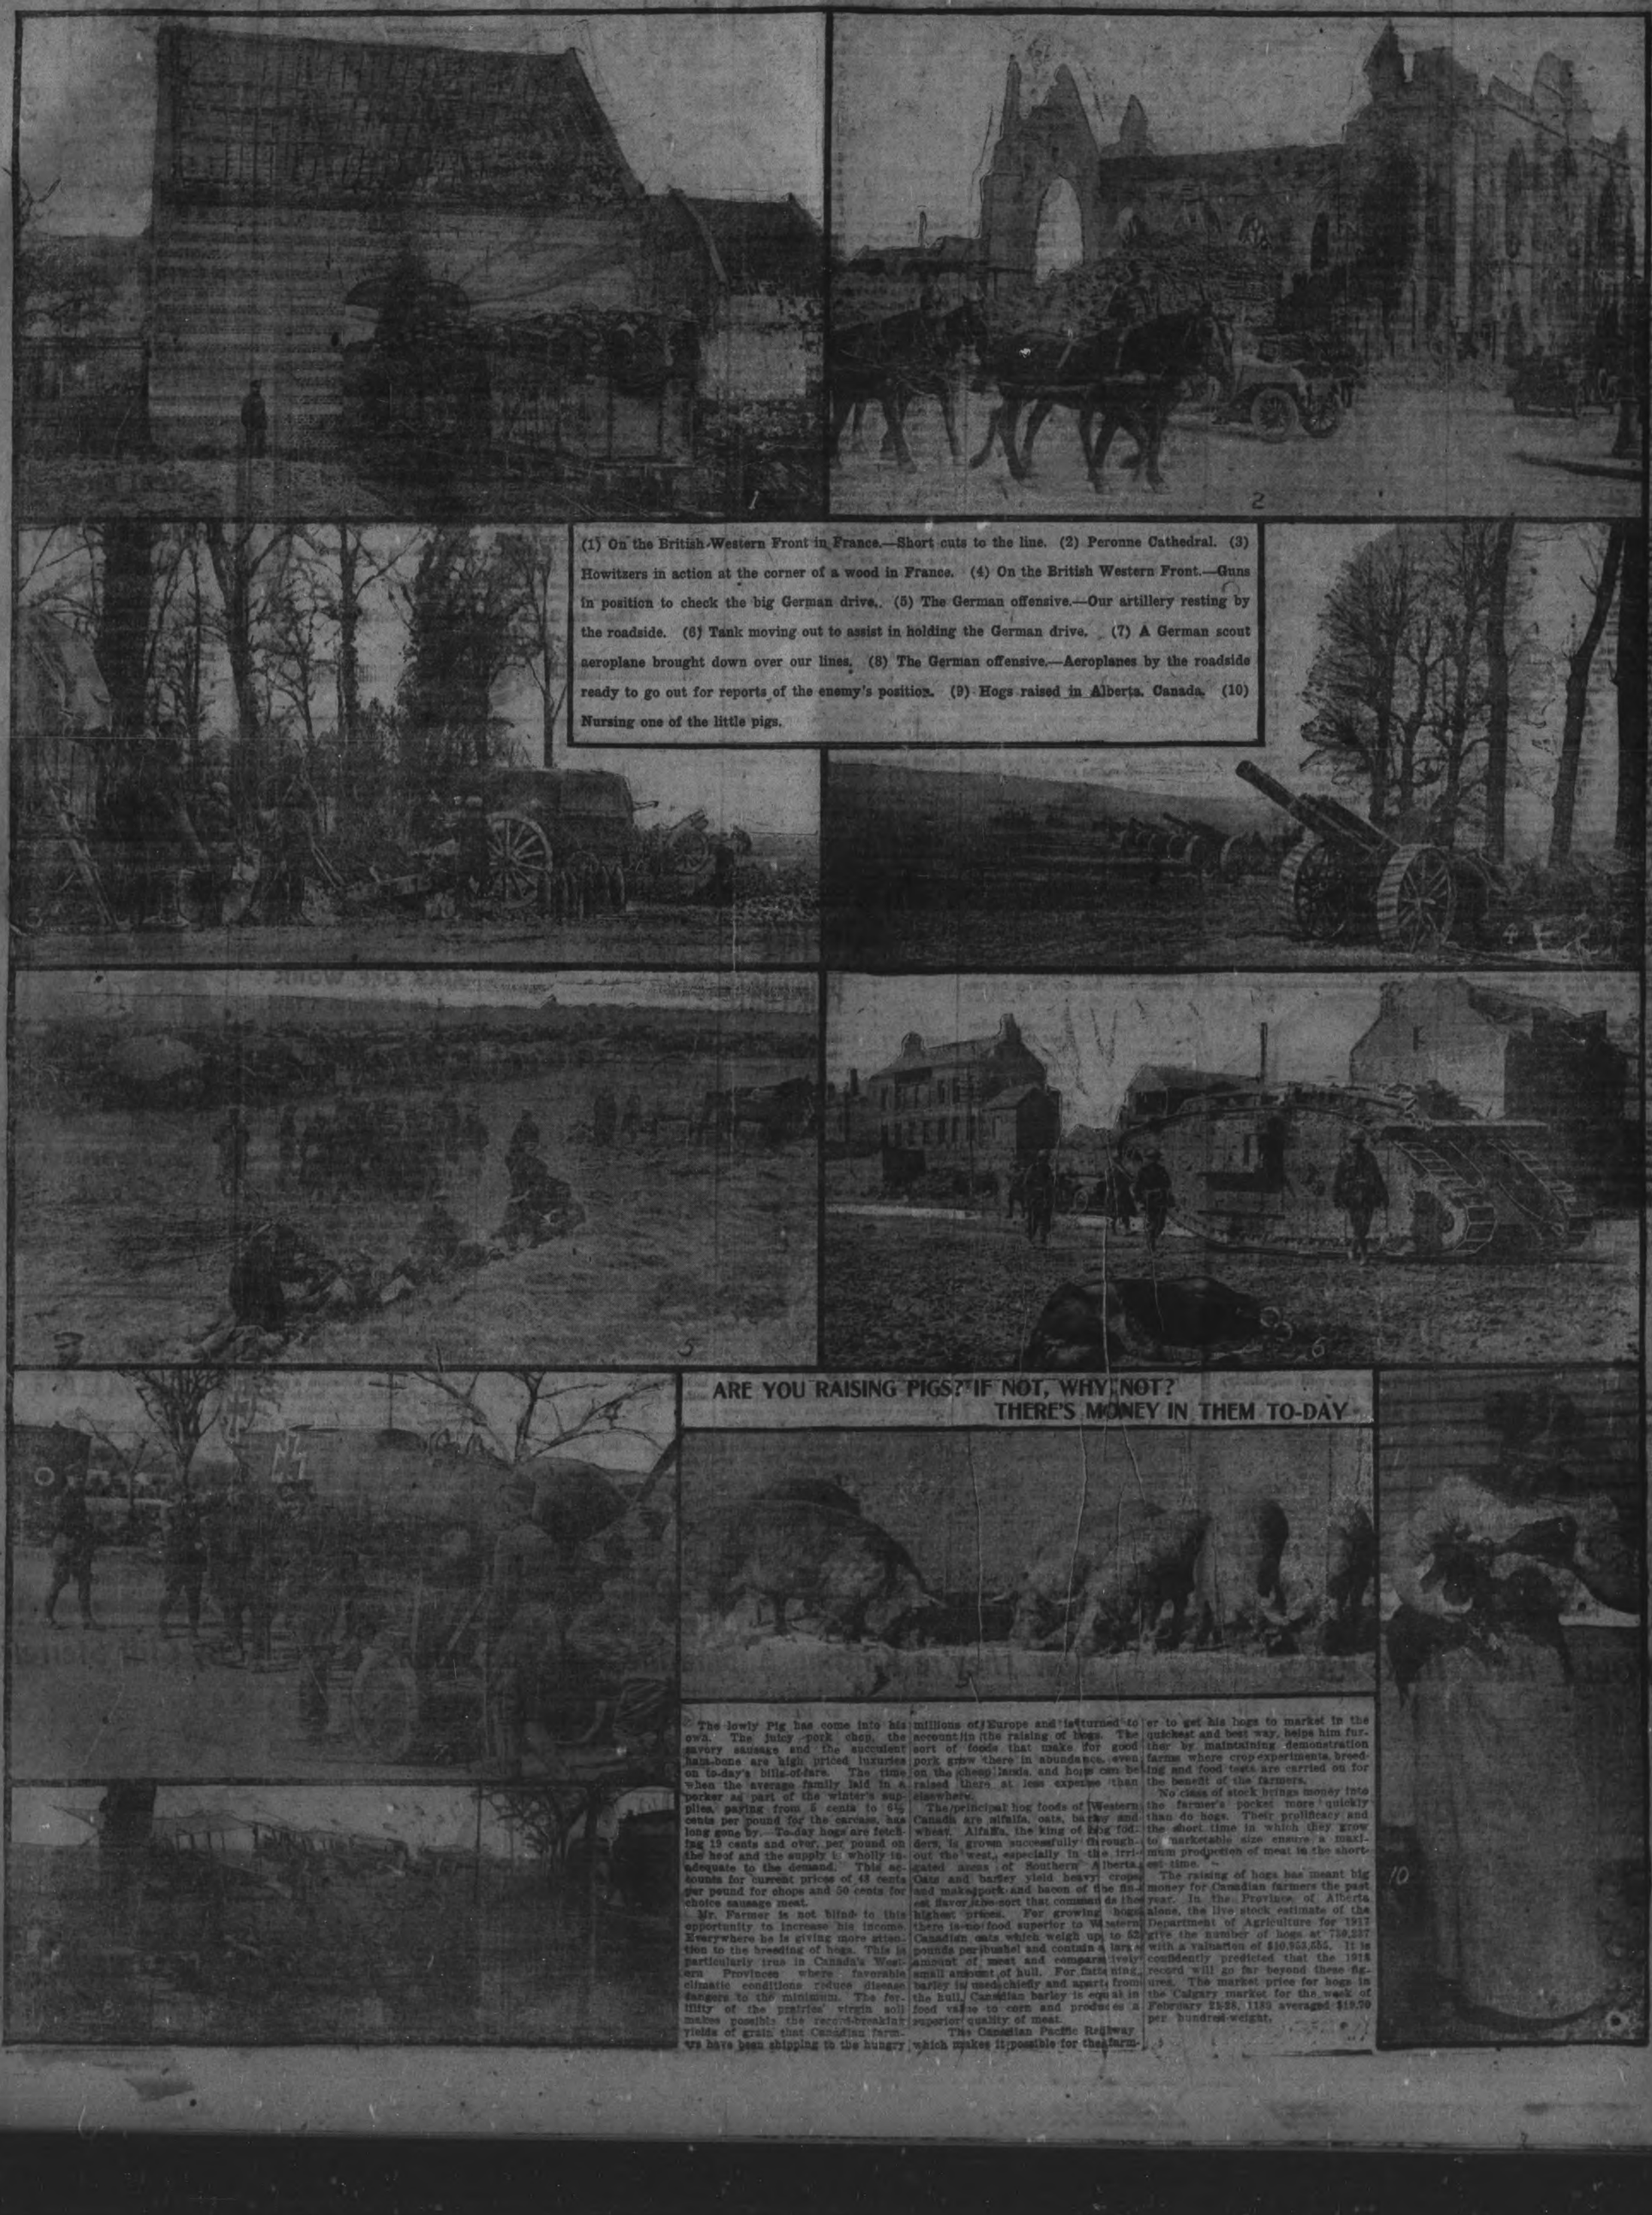
HOLDING THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE--Howitzers In Action



(1) On the British Western Front in France.—Short cuts to the line. (2) Peronne Cathedral. (3) Howitzers in action at the corner of a wood in France. (4) On the British Western Front.—Guns in position to check the big German drive. (5) The German offensive.—Our artillery resting by the roadside. (6) Tank moving out to assist in holding the German drive. (7) A German scout aeroplane brought down over our lines. (8) The German offensive.—Aeroplanes by the roadside ready to go out for reports of the enemy's position. (9) Hogs raised in Alberta, Canada. (10) Nursing one of the little pigs.

ARE YOU RAISING PIGS? IF NOT, WHY NOT? THERE'S MONEY IN THEM TO-DAY

The lowly Pig has come into his own. The juicy pork chop, the savory sausage and the succulent ham-bone are high priced luxuries on to-day's bills-of-fare. The time when the average family laid in a porker as part of the winter's supplies, paying from 5 cents to 6½ cents per pound for the carcass, has long gone by. To-day hogs are fetching 19 cents and over, per pound on the hoof and the supply is wholly inadequate to the demand. This accounts for current prices of 43 cents per pound for chops and 50 cents for choice sausage meat.

Mr. Farmer is not blind to this opportunity to increase his income. Everywhere he is giving more attention to the breeding of hogs. This is particularly true in Canada's Western Provinces where favorable climatic conditions reduce disease dangers to the minimum. The fertility of the prairies' virgin soil makes possible the record-breaking yields of grain that Canadian farmers have been shipping to the hungry millions of Europe and is turned to account in the raising of hogs. The sort of foods that make for good pork grow there in abundance, even on the cheap lands, and hogs can be raised there at less expense than elsewhere.

The principal hog foods of Western Canada are alfalfa, oats, barley and wheat. Alfalfa, the king of hog fodders, is grown successfully throughout the west, especially in the irrigated areas of Southern Alberta. Oats and barley yield heavy crops and make pork and bacon of the finest flavor, the sort that commands the highest prices. For growing hogs there is no food superior to Western Canadian oats which weigh up to 52 pounds per bushel and contain a large amount of meat and comparatively small amount of hull. For fattening, barley is used chiefly and apart from the hull, Canadian barley is equal in food value to corn and produces a superior quality of meat.

The Canadian Pacific Railway which makes it possible for the farmer to get his hogs to market in the quickest and best way, helps him further by maintaining demonstration farms where crop experiments, breeding and food tests are carried on for the benefit of the farmers.

No class of stock brings money into the farmer's pocket more quickly than do hogs. Their prolificacy and the short time in which they grow to marketable size ensure a maximum production of meat in the shortest time.

The raising of hogs has meant big money for Canadian farmers the past year. In the Province of Alberta alone, the live stock estimate of the Department of Agriculture for 1917 give the number of hogs at 750,237 with a valuation of $10,953,655. It is confidently predicted that the 1918 record will go far beyond these figures. The market price for hogs in the Calgary market for the week of February 25-28, 1189 averaged $19.70 per hundred-weight.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Coalless Monday

By MARCIA MEREDITH

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Will you please get off the wire?" The voice, though young and feminine, was not entirely pleasant.

"I believe I took my receiver off first," came back good-naturedly. "I am trying to get the janitor. Are you the janitor's wife?"

"How ridiculous! Where is the elevator boy to answer the 'phone? I want the janitor."

A laugh came back through the telephone. "Everybody wants the janitor. The last I heard he had gone out to try and buy soft coal. I dare say you're in the same boat that I am—frozen to death in your apartment. You know it won't do any good to kick, but, like me, nothing else will keep you warm."

There was no answer. Freda Tilson's receiver slammed back on the hook that held it, and if she had been inclined to talk to herself in her little apartment she might have muttered something about an "impertinent creature who dared to talk to a girl when he did not know her, and that she hadn't the most remote idea who it was. That would have been a fib, however, for she really did know that it was the young man who dwelt in bachelor state in the somewhat more spacious and luxurious apartment in front of her own, the greater luxury and higher rent of his apartment being due to the fact that while he managed to draw to himself a weekly check for $75 for writing "thrillers" for a popular weekly, she pounded a typewriter somewhere in the "downtown" district to the tune of sixty a month.

To her, having an apartment of her own, with a little place she could call home, was a luxury that she had earned by much economy in the way of amusement and pretty clothes. His living there was put down to his New England origin, for Victor Paige was more of a miser than a spendthrift, and he would rather dine alone on the simple fare that his visiting colored housekeeper made for him than to spend many ducats in alluring restaurants. Now it happened that the typewriter that Freda Tilson pounded was located in the very office whither Victor Paige occasionally strolled to deliver his manuscript, and mayhap chin with the editor. Perhaps she felt a secret grievance, because, though she had noticed the coincidence that he frequented her office and also abode under the same roof, he had sought no excuse to speak to her as they passed in the halls going home or venturing forth. It does seem strange that Victor never sought the excuse, for Freda would have been good to speak to. And there was nothing repelling in her round blue eyes. But then, Victor came from New England.

As Freda performed the task of dusting and straightening up her little apartment, clad to the chin in a sweater and wearing gloves on her hands as she worked, she listened intently for a ring at her doorbell that would mean that the letter she was waiting for had come. When all chance of the delivery was over she descended to the entrance to make sure that the boy in attendance there had not failed to deliver it to her.

Strange that Victor Paige should have gone forth at the same time. He waited while she made her complaint.

"In the first place," she said, "it is perfectly ridiculous that on the one day in the week when we have to be home, and when it would really seem that apartments and houses ought to have enough coal to make them comfortable, we should be made to suffer in this way. How I am ever going to write on my typewriter, with hands stiff from cold, is more than I can tell. It seems most extraordinary that my manuscripts did not come by the mail this morning. My office is closed, and it is absolutely necessary for me to typewrite some revised manuscript that the editor was sending by special delivery. Are you quite sure nothing has come for me?"

The dusky skinned attendant nodded in the negative.

"And is there no hope of any heat?"

Again a negative nod.

"Well, then, the only thing for me to do is to go and get some oil. Thank goodness, I bought a stove."

Now it was Victor's inning. Having heard Freda's plaint and the unsatisfactory replies, he did not mention the frigid atmosphere that prevailed in his apartment as well as in hers.

"I say, Obadiah—beg pardon, I forgot your name was Hannibal—you haven't seen anything of a stray messenger boy with a typewriter, have you? Of course you haven't. But, you see, the place I usually dictate my copy is closed, and I was going to pound it out for myself today, so I sent for a typewriter. But I guess they had too many orders before mine. Well if there's no hope for heat I'll have to burn oil."

And he returned to his rooms, calling the name of Dinah, who came every day at noon to keep house for him, blessed, because she had suggested to him that when steam heat failed the temperature could be improved by burning oil stoves.

The fact that fate had some deep design in choosing to have Victor Paige and Freda Tilson take apartments in the same house really might have been suspected when, a quarter of an hour later, another accidental meeting occurred. It was at the corner grocery. Freda came hurrying in with the base of an old stove, her self-consciousness at having to carry this awkward burden only making her cheeks pinker and her eyes rounder.

"Please fill this with oil," she told the grocer's boy, and then blushed a little redder as she realized that Victor Paige was standing at her elbow. He took his hat off, and then, when Freda averted her look he awkwardly waved his hat in the air and stroked the cat with the brim of it to try to convince [illegible] that he had meant to take it off anyway, and that he was not a bit embarrassed by Freda's hauteur.

"We ain't got no oil—all sold out," came from the grocer's boy, just as Victor Paige was inquiring of the grocer himself whether it happened that oil stoves were a part of his equipment. In the grocery store back in his New England home town he recalled that such trifling articles were always sold. And as the grocer assured him that the only places to get such things were the household furnishing stores, and they were all closed because it was coalless Monday, he confided to him. He knew the grocer didn't care, and he didn't care whether he did care, but he spoke in a loud, clear voice. Could it have been that it was for Freda's benefit?

"You see, the woman that keeps house for me suggested that if I bought some oil I could manage to keep warm, even when the steam was not up in the apartment, and I was such an ass as to forget that one really needed something to burn it in. I have a gallon of oil, but what good does that do?"

Freda did listen, and for just one moment she was tempted to tell her neighbor that between the two they might manage to get some sort of result. But she didn't tell him. She hurried home, walking faster and faster as she heard his footsteps behind her. He overtook her just as she reached the landing off which both their apartments opened, and would have spoken to her only that she closed the door rather unceremoniously in his face. She knew she had been rude, but for some unaccountable reasons she took satisfaction in her heartlessness.

A half hour later, when Victor Paige answered a slight ring at his doorbell, he wore a skating cap, a bathrobe, an overcoat, hockey stockings and galloshes. He found Freda Tilson on the landing. She was very sorry to disturb him, she told him, but she had received word from the editor in the office where she worked that, because he had been unable to dispatch some copy for her to do at home, he would like her to put in the day taking dictation on the typewriter from Mr. Paige. Wasn't it funny that Mr. Paige happened to be connected with the same office? Did he wish to come into her apartment, or should she come into his? There was small choice; both were arctic.

Ten minutes later Victor Paige, carrying an odoriferous gallon of kerosene, some ill-kempt notes on stray bits of paper, and a dish of apples—Victor could not write without apples for refreshment—went into Freda's small apartment. When lunch time came Freda had forgotten her resentment, and Victor, truth to tell, was as much in love with her as he had ever been with any girl.

"If I had some eggs I'd make an omelet and ask you to lunch," she said, just a little timidly.

And although Victor knew that his Dinah was coming to make lunch in his apartment that day, he hurried to get some eggs that he was right in guessing she had left in his ice box. And so they lunched, and so they worked on through the afternoon.

"What's the use of resisting the inevitable," he said as she handed him the last page of his manuscript from her typewriter. "We can't either of us get along without the other. We would both have been miserable today alone—"

"It does seem strange. Do you believe in fate?"

And apparently Victor did, for he was always sure it was fate that threw him and his wife together that coalless Monday.

It Changed His Mind.

A switching engine prevented a Chicago man from committing suicide the other day. With a rope around his neck and fastened to the rails of the Rock Island railroad he was crawling between the ties, prepared to jump from a viaduct, when a switching engine came along and cut the rope. As he had lost his chance of hanging himself, he thought better of his project.

Strenuous Reform.

"Tommy, you mustn't play with that little Grubbins boy. His manners need mending."

Facts About Furs.

The costliest sable is the Yakutsk or Russian skin that runs "silvery"—that has, in other words, a number of equally distributed white or silvery hairs among the soft and silky brown ones. The black silver fox is most valuable when there is no silver in it—when it is a pure rich black throughout. Ermine, contrary to the general belief, cleans well and is an exceedingly durable fur. Sea otter skins measure 48 by 24 inches. The best color is a dark bluish brown, almost black. Fisher is a large marten found in Canada and the northern United States. The skin measures 30 by 12 inches.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

Few People Know This
Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.
The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.
The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.
Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.
When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.
Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.
Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

AUSTRIAN FORCES ARE TRAPPED ON THE PIAVE RIVER BANK

Elements Are Aiding The Italian Forces

Piave River Has Changed From A Sluggish Stream To A Rushing Flood

Austrian Forces Have Been Cut Off on the West Side and Are Subjected to a Severe Mauling by the Italians.

SITUATION IMPROVES

(Special to Examiner)

..WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 20—The elements are aiding the Italians. Heavy rains in the mountain regions have changed the Piave from a sluggish stream to a rushing flood, destroying bridges and cutting off Austrian forces on this side of the river from their source of supplies and reinforcements.

BRIDGES CARRIED AWAY

British airmen report that twelve of the fourteen bridges flung across the Piave by the enemy have been carried away. Trapped on the west bank, Austrians detachments are subjected to almost constant mauling by the Italians' artillery and bombs dropped by Allied airmen, with no avenue of escape.

The Austrians thus caged in have an advantage in defensive positions and are yet too well supplied with ammunition to warrant a frontal assault. There is every possibility however, that exhaustion of their ammunition and food supplies, together with the pounding they are undergoing, will eventually force them to lay down their arms or sacrifice themselves in desperate assaults on the Italian lines.

ENEMY LOSSES

Frantic efforts to restore the position so far have been frustrated by the swollen current and the accuracy of the Italian artillery.

The enemy's losses on all parts of the front in the first three days of the offensive are now estimated at 150,000.

The heaviest fighting is still around the bridge head the Austrians have established on the lower Piave from where they are trying to push westward toward Venice. The enemy now holds the west bank of the river from Meserada to Fossalta and San Bona Di Piave, a front of 18 kilometers (about 12 miles).

Austrian artillery is pouring thousands of poison, tear, emetic and mustard gas shells into the rear areas. Schio, Bassano, Asolo and Treviso, have thus been rendered practically untenable.

GHASTLY WOUNDS

A number of the wounded displayed ghastly wounds, in support of the claim that the enemy is using explosive bullets.

On the lower Piave, Austrian detachments wearing Italian uniforms sought to advance, but the subterfuge was discovered and they were dispersed.

Several spies, disguised as Italian peasants have been shot.

LONDON, June 20.—Italian forces are now counter attacking at various points along the whole Piave river front, it was learned to-day.

On the middle Piave, the Italians have driven forward to the west bank of the river, splitting the Austrian forces in that region, and rolling them back to the north and south.

The enemy detachments on the Lower Piave have been pushed back until now they hold only a third of their original advance toward Venice. The Italians also made further slight gains at Nervesa, in the Montello region.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 20.—Deserted by his staff on the Montello Plateau, Major-Gen. Kronstadt of the Austrian army, fought single handed against the Italians until he was wounded seriously. The General died later in a hospital. It seems that the General and his staff became lost in the woods on the Montello and ran into a unit of Italians. When the staff saw the Italian soldiers they ran away. The General was called upon to surrender, but he refused to do so and opened fire on the Italians in reach of his shots until he was wounded.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 20.— Italians have won complete control of the air along the Piave line, where the most determined fighting of the present Austrian offensive is in progress. Yesterday no Austrian machine was aloft on this front. In general the situation of the Austrians along the Piave appears far from satisfactory to them. Prisoners taken by the Italians all declare the Austrian army has little food. Some of prisoners have not eaten for forty-eight hours.

CONGRESS IS READY TO DECLARE WAR ON THE TURKS

Special to The Examiner

WASHINGTON, June 20. — Congress is ready to declare war on Turkey the moment official verification is obtained of the seizure of the American Consulate at Tabriz and the attack on the American hospital at Tabriz, Persia.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, June 20.— The Associated Press war summary says today: The Austrian pressure on the front from Lake Garda to the Adriatic is growing weaker, although fighting is still strenuous along the Piave river from Montello to the sea. Since Sunday the enemy has been held almost completely in check on the Piave line and has made no gains on the Montain front. Repeated efforts to approach from the bank of the river between Montello and San Donaly Piave has been repulsed sanguinarily by the Italians, and only around Capo Sile have the Austrians made any progress.

The temperature last night went down dangerously low, and there was a narrow escape from a killing frost. The official instruments in my care indicated 35 degrees at 6 o'clock this morning. It is quite possible if not probable that tender plants were nipped in more low-lying situations, as there is generally several degrees difference between a high section and a lower one even if in the same neighborhood.—W.P.

AMERICANS ON THE WAY

One Division is on its Way to the Piave Front—Italy's Brilliant Fight

THE TURNING POINT?

(Special to Examiner)

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Italy's brilliant fight against the Austrians is expected, by well informed American officers, to mark the turning point in the war this year.

The news today that many of the bridges thrown across the Piave by the Austrians have been swept away by the swollen river was decidedly encouraging. Those enemy forces which have crossed to the west bank of the river are in a precarious position and if Diaz follows up the advantage created by nature, the capture and destruction of a considerable part of the Austrian army is almost inevitable.

American participation in operation in both Italy and France is another factor counted on to swing the tide against the Kaiserbund. It is known that at least one division of our troops is moving toward the Piave front.

Americans Drove The Germans Back

Enemy Did Not Wait to Fight Once the Barrage Hit Them

(Special to Examiner.)

(By Lowell Mellett.)

With the Americans on the Marne, June 20th, 4 p.m. — The Americans squeezed the Germans out of a salient a kilometer (two thirds of a mile) deep and the same distance in width, west of Torcy (six miles north west of Chateau Thierry) early this morning.

The Germans did not remain to fight after they were struck by a barrage, beginning at one o'clock, when the infantry went forward there was no one to oppose them.

Windsor Street Car Men Strike

Discharge of Conductor Resulted in Tie-up of Entire Force

WINDSOR, June 20. — Trouble between a newly-appointed superintendent of the local street railway system and a conductor who happened to be a returned soldier, culminated in a complete tie-up of the entire plant at eleven o'clock yesterday morning. From that hour not a wheel turned anywhere on the system, which included the inter-urban car lines to Amherstburg and Tecumseh.

At seven o'clock last night the street railway company admitted its defeat and offered to reinstate the conductor and pay him for all lost time. The offer was promptly accepted by the men who thus gain a moral as well as practical victory.

The cause of the strike was the action of Superintendent W. D. Hayes, who "fired" Conductor George Sanderson because the latter insisted that the superintendent put a ticket from his pass-book in the fare box on his car. Hayes, it is said, told the conductor he did not require to carry a pass-book, being an official of the company. The conductor insisted, however, and the outcome was the discharge of Sanderson by the superintendent. Thirty minutes later every car on the system had ceased to operate. No violence was offered anywhere, the men quietly leaving the cars after bringing in their cars.

Shortly before seven o'clock last night the union in session at their hall were notified that the company had "reconsidered" its action in discharging Conductor Sanderson and that he would be put back to work with pay for lost time. This announcement was greeted with cheers, but not without fighting their victory, the men declared they would not have their rights overlooked in future.

The citizens meanwhile are using taxis where they can be obtained, but most of them are taking a short course in pedestrianism.

Admits Failure Of The U-Boats

Naval Critic of Berlin Newspaper Sees Little Hope For Improvement

LOSSES HEAVY

(Canadian Press.)

London, June 20.—That German U-boats are unequal to the warfare against them, was virtually admitted by Captain Persius, the naval critic of the Berliner Tageblatt.

Captain Persius writes: "Every layman knows that U-boat losses are unavoidable owing to the continually increased sharpness and effectiveness of the defense measures of the enemy, which will further increase as the war progresses. Our enemies are both carrying on a war and a living. From the beginning of the U-boat war it was a mistake often committed amongst us to underestimate the resources of our enemies."

LIEUT. H. M. HASTIE MEETS DEATH

DECEASED RESIDED IN PETERBORO—WAS INTERESTED IN Y. M. C. A. WORK.

Mr. David Hastie, Lang, received word this week that his son, Lieut. Harry M. Hastie has been killed in an accident in England, on June 12.

Lieut. Hastie was formerly a resident of Peterboro, where he was interested in Y.M.C.A. work. He later removed to Montreal and enlisted there with the Grenadier Guards. Later in England he was transferred to the Flying Corps., to which he was attached when he was killed.

THE OFFICIAL DESPATCHES

Raiding Parties Active on the Western Front—A Number of Prisoners Taken by the British Forces

SITUATION UNCHANGED

Canadian Press:

LONDON, June 20.—British raiding parties were active in several sectors along the front last night, taking prisoners and inflicting losses upon the Germans in numerous clashes, the War Office announced to-day.

The Statement Says:

"A number of raids were carried out by us last night in the neighbourhood of Boyelles (south-east of Arras), Lens and Givenchy, and in Strazeele and Ypres sectors (in Flanders.) Some of these enterprises led to sharp fighting, in which the enemy suffered many casualties. We captured eighteen prisoners and three machine guns."

In the neighbourhood of Morlancourt (north-east of Amiens), hostile raiding party was caught by our artillery and dispersed. Hostile artillery active during the night north of Albert and in the La Basse canal sector.

French Official.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, June 20.—French troops entered the German lines between Montdidier and the Oise river last night and captured twenty prisoners, says an official statement issued to-day. There was nothing of importance on the rest of the front.

OUTPUT OF EIGHTEEN POUND SHELLS TO BE DOUBLED

Peterborough Manufacturers Will Benefit by the Increased Weekly Outlay—An Urgent Request.

OPEN WARFARE

(Special to Examiner)

OTTAWA, June 20.—The Imperial Munitions Board has been urgently requested by the British Minister of Munitions to double the output of 18 pounders empty shrapnel shells and the Board is communicating with the manufacturers with a view to having the orders carried out. The order will mean an increased weekly outlay to Canadian manufacturers of munitions to a million and a quarter dollars per week. The present output of shells of that calibre is about 120,000 a week, representing an outlay of $600,000. The stimulus in the manufacture of shrapnel is believed here to be largely due to the system of more or less open warfare which has been inaugurated by the offensives. The manufacturers are responding to the request in a satisfactory manner though certain of them have permitted staffs to leave on account of the slack period.

This will mean additional business for Peterboro manufacturers including the new industry being established here by Mr. T. A. Low of Renfrew.

Reeve Griffith Escaped Collision

Accident This Morning on the C. P. R.—Freight Trains Derailed

Reeve W. E. Griffiths of Belmont, who is attending the County Council, received word this morning of an accident near Ardendale on the C.P.R. when two freight trains were derailed and badly damaged from a head-on collision. Mr. Griffiths, who is a conductor on the C.P.R., had been at the County Council with his together, likely have been on the train. This is the fourth time the Reeve has missed almost certain injury by being absent on some other business.

SERVICE BOARDS ARE A PRACTICAL IDEA

One Is On View In Window of Examiner Office.

In the window of The Examiner office can be seen a service board painted white with a wide red band around the edge. On the board are printed four maple leaves, two red and two blue. This indicates that four members of one family have gone overseas, two being killed, as designated by the two red maple leaves. These service boards are more practicable than the service flags that are seen in different parts of the city. The boards are made by a veteran of the great war, and any family that would like to show in this practical and decorative way their contribution to the glories of the Empire, should secure one of them.

EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT ..TO WARRANT A TRIAL FOR TREASON

REGISTRATION NOTES

The work of registration has advanced so far that the bulk of the work is about completed. To ascertain from each of the deputies, at the places, the number registered up to the 19th would mean that a personal call would have to be made on each and the returns taken and collated. This would entail too much additional work to warrant the endeavour. So soon as the returns are in the facts as to the total registration will be given publicity if the regulations of the Registration Board so allow.

The evening registration has been largely availed of. It has proved to be a convenience to the people and a distinct help to those engaged in the work. The afternoon registration has, as was expected, been availed of by those who could make it convenient to come during those hours.

A visit to the places found all the workers cheerful, busy and efficient. Without exception the workers reported that the men coming into register were giving the information asked for on the card, with the greatest readiness and cheerfulness. Women are going to places in large numbers and such places show a preponderance of women as registered over the men. George street Sunday school registered 13 women to 1 man. Down in the south ward the public place in the crowded district showed a registration of 17 men to 1 woman.

One of the places carrying the heaviest registration is at the office of Mr. Geo. Howson on Water street. There nearly 1,000 people have registered so far. On the other hand places do not seem to be favoured, and the registration is comparatively light. Despite the fact that places have been provided, and scattered all over the city, there is a preference to register "down street," whatever that means. So the centre of the city has the preference.

Attention is called to the local advertisement, in the papers, with reference to the registration of those unable to attend at public places. The fact has been repeatedly stated in the press, and may be here stated again, so that all may avail themselves of the information. Make the wishes of the person, unable to come to register known to the deputy in charge of the nearest place, and an assistant-deputy will be advised to go to the house and take the registration at once. A little care and thoughtfulness will help to facilitate this part of the work. If for any reason any one has not asked to have attention, 'phone, or advise, the Registrar, at 'phone 261W.

Railway Material Will Be Utilized

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 20.—Just who to negotiate with, is the problem which faces the government here regarding the large quantity of railway materials formerly designed for the Russian government, which is now lying at the Vancouver docks. The materials in question include about 150 miles of light weight rails and some 4,000 cars on a broad gauge system, which the latter cannot be utilized on Canadian roads. The government here has been endeavouring to secure the materials, but has considerable difficulty in finding the responsible party with whom to negotiate. Since the materials were ordered a long time ago there have been several changes in the Russian regime and the country has ceased to be at war with Germany. The government is hesitating to propose a price for further inquiry, but it is hoped that the materials will be secure.

Five cups of Salada cost only one cent. The economy is obvious when compared with the yield from low-priced, ordinary tea.

Premier's Residence Was Stoned —Martial Law Will Likely Be Proclaimed--People Are Starving

STRIKE THREATENED

Canadian Press.

LONDON, June 20. — Serious rioting broke out in Vienna yesterday says an exchange telegraph despatch from Amsterdam. The mob broke into a number of bakeries, stoned the residence of the Premier and also one of the wings of the Hofburg Palace. Cavalry is being rushed to capital to restore order. It is probable martial law will be proclaimed. The rioting was in protest against the reduction of bread.

There have been reports from various sources recently of troubles in Austria notably in the capital because of the bread ration reduction forced by the virtual exhaustion of the Austrian grain supply. The bread allotment to each individual in the city of Vienna is now less than one and a half pounds weekly, it was stated in despatch from Copenhagen on Thursday. Protests against this rationing have been vehement from various quarters.

MAY CALL STRIKE

(Special to Examiner)

AMSTERDAM, June 20—Cavalry regiments have been rushed to Vienna, where extremely serious bread riots have broken out, according to advices from German sources today.

The mob are reported to have stoned Premier Von Seydler's residence and to have plundered bakeries. Establishment of martial law is declared likely.

The Burgomaster has declined to guarantee a return of order, his demand for dried vegetables, to make up for the lack of bread, having been refused by government officials.

(Special to Examiner)

ZURICH, June 20.—There is enormous feeling in Vienna regarding the reduction of the bread ration, according to dispatches received here. What is practically a general strike, is said to be formulating in Vienna and Neustadt.

The trouble is spreading to the provinces.

Canadian Press.

AMSTERDAM, June 20.—A Vienna despatch to German newspapers says that the reduction of the bread rations in Austria has caused immense excitement throughout the duel monarchy. All Austrian newspapers without distinction of party protest against the measure. One demands its removal and asks the immediate help from Germany and Hungary.

The Vienna city council on Tuesday passed resolution of protest and the labor council in that city emphasized its similar protest by the passage of a resolution renewing its demand for a speedy general peace. Strikes in Vienna and elsewhere have been frequent.

London, June 20.) — Heavily censored private despatches received in Stockholm indicate that peace demonstrations were held in Berlin, Hamburg and Cologne and that several workmen were killed and many persons arrested before the police and the military dispersed the demonstrants.

KEEP RECORD OF "C" MEN.

Ottawa Sends Out Orders for the Discharge of Men in C Category.

Ottawa has sent out instructions that the commanding officers of units may discharge C2 and C3 men whose services are not required or of special use to the organization. The option to deal with the C. 3. as to whether C Class will be required or discharged is left with those who get their discharge will likely have their names transferred to the Ontario registrar in order that a record and check may be kept on them, so that, if C category be called they may be ready for service. This order covers men who joined the army as "A" category men and who have been reduced in their grading while in training. A great number of C men are on the strength of the Special Service Company and Garrison Regiment at the Exhibition Camp.

(a) In consequence of British command of the Seas, apart from air raids and a few spasmodic dashes of enemy cruisers, the territory of the British Empire has been held inviolate from enemy invasion. The British Empire is the only nation engaged in the War which has conquered enemy territory and lost none of its own.

(b) The lines of communication between all the arteries of war have been amply defended and maintained and protected for the transport of over 13,000,000 men from port to port. Moreover, under the guardianship of the Fleet, over 2,000,000 horses, 26,000,000 tons of munition and war supplies, and 53,000,000 tons of coal and oil have been conveyed to meet the needs of the allied armies. Within the British Empire itself, the navy has safeguarded the ocean carriage of nearly 140,000,000 tons of food and material.

(c) The maintenance of the blockade of Germany has resulted in the complete stoppage of her ocean-going commerce. The German flag has been swept from the Seas, and only on one occasion, the 1st of June, 1916, has German naval power ventured to challenge a fleet action.

(d) The conquest of German Colonies in Africa, Asia and Australia has been the direct result of the application of sea power in support of the operations of military force on land.

On the naval side of war nothing can be more calculated to stir the pride of the British race than the magnificent bravery and chivalry of the Officers and Men of the Mercantile Marine. It was the arrogant hope of the enemy that the methods of frightfulness that were so ruthlessly practised in the destruction of merchant vessels at sea and their crews, would, in effect, increase the difficulties of manning and operating the British Merchant Service. In this respect, the enemy has been completely disillusioned and the fearless bravery, cool skill, and irrepressible sense of public duty of every section of British Seafarers, no matter on what class of craft they have been employed, are the admiration of the civilized world.

It may be declared in the fullness of conviction that as an instrument of war, the British Navy at the opening of this year is the most powerful and the most highly developed weapon which has ever been devised."

Grateful for these glorious deeds and remembering the objects of the Navy League of Canada, every patriotic citizen of Peterboro should become a member. The annual fees are nominal. They are 25c for school children, $1.00 for associate members and $2.00 for full members. 50,000 members from Ontario is at present the aim of the Ontario division headed by Commodore Aemelius Jarvis, of Toronto and Peterboro should do its share in providing this total. Remember tomorrow night's meeting.

"Sailor, what of the debt we owe you?
Day or night is the peril more?
Who so dull that he fails to know you,
Sleepless guard of our island shore?
Safe the corn to the farmyard taken;
Grain ships safe upon all the seas;
Homes in peace and a faith unshaken—
Sailor, what do we owe for these?

THE ALIEN QUESTION.

The situation around Windsor, where hundreds of aliens have refused to register for National Service, acting on the advice it is said, of agitators from Chicago, and where the outlook for trouble was so imminent that the soldiers were ready to act, shows the need for more vigorous action on the part of the government towards such people. It is bad enough that those of foreign birth are permitted to remain at home and take the positions left vacant by the Canadian boys gone overseas to fight for their country, and it is infinitely worse that the law of the land should be ignored by these foreigners. Although emphatic warning had been given that everyone must carry papers after the first of June to show that he did not come within the first class of the Military Service Act, it was found that out of the men arrested at Windsor no fewer than fifty-seven foreigners had no papers. How many more foreigners are wandering around Canada, without the legal documents, and laughing at the regulations, it is impossible to guess, but if the inquiry by the Dominion police as to the carrying of papers is not more vigorous in other sections than it has been here, it is not difficult to imagine that there is a large number of foreigners who are calmly ignoring the law.

There is need of the government tackling this problem firmly, and at once. The Canadian Courier sees in the National Registration scheme an opportunity for doing this, which is emphasized in the current issue as follows:

The date on the cover of this issue is the day set for the beginning of the man-power census. A year and a half ago we urged on this page that such a census should be taken as soon as possible. At various times since we have urged for a reorganized census of our resources, including man-power, and everything else. We believe this man-power census will fill the bill. It should effectively settle the case of any alien enemies as well as those enemies who are not aliens but patriotic loafers. Talk about drafting an alien enemy, known to be such or unable to prove that he is anything else, is as foolish as putting an alien enemy in charge of a munition factory. You cannot conscript an alien enemy into a soldier fighting against his own race, whatever may be his country. We are not used to the kind of a soldier who is led from behind by a revolver or a whip, and we don't expect to be. But we can at least make alien enemies work. No alien enemy given his food and raiment by this country should be a free agent. If he is known to be an alien he should be given precisely the sort of work and wages that the country chooses to give him, and if he won't work under those conditions he should be allowed to embark on a good healthy hunger strike. We have had experience of aliens who have held up the mining industry in the west; not less experience of non-aliens who on a moment's notice have become I. W. W.'s, because of some piffling grievance that never should have caused the stoppage of a hand or a wheel. What is needed back of the man-power census is a clear understanding that the government of this country on behalf of putting the nation's weight into the war, and backed by all the machinery of justice and main force, proposes to turn every human ability to account. They have made far more progress that way in the United States than we have done. Loafers long ago were given short shrift over there. Non-essential industries were put on short notice. Before the war is over we shall be much better posted on what are the really essential industries of this country. And the man-power census will, or ought to, contain all the information on the subject.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The United States is about to declare war on Turkey. This is much earlier in the season than usual, as the annual attack generally takes place on Thanksgiving Day.

A traveller bound from Montreal to Washington, covered the 170 miles from Montreal to Kingston in 90 minutes. No, not on the Grand Trunk—in an aeroplane.

The story of the German failure at Rheims will not make very cheerful reading in Berlin.

People who do not register may find themselves without anything to eat if a rationing scheme is introduced.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

THEY MEAN BUSINESS.

(London Free Press.)

British seamen will not enter a German port for a period of five years and eight months after the war, because of the U-boat crimes. Nor will they tolerate a German on a British ship. And the important thing about this decision is that it will be carried into effect.

KAISER'S SPACE LESS.

(Philadelphia Record.)

There are one or two things in common about Attila and Wilhelm; both seriously disturbed the peace of the world and their methods were equally barbarous. But Attila actually conquered the world for a time, and Wilhelm never will. And Attila gets just 38 lines of notice in a modern encyclopaedia!

DEMOCRACY'S FAILING.

(Calgary Herald.)

The great trouble with a democracy seems to be that every man has an idea that he knows just as well as every other man what should or should not be done in the matter of government, particularly in crisis periods.

JOINT HOLDERS OF THE RECORD.

(Springfield Republican.)

Captain Persius admonishes his German readers that Great Britain "has never yet lost a foreign war." Neither has the United States, and we do not mean to break the record.

AS REVISED.

(Buffalo News.)

I dream of the beauty
And ease of the farm,
But if I don't try it
'Twill do me no harm.

THE BUSTLE AGAIN!

(Rochester Herald.)

They say that the bustle will be back next fall, and we'd like to know what the dickens the bustle has got to do with winning the war.

TITLES.

(London Advertiser.)

A number of writers do not appear to see any difference between titles and distinction. A preacher or a motorman gets the name to indicate his occupation. A title is usually given to indicate a lack of occupation.

SOME HERE TOO.

(Toronto Star.)

About half the work of registration has already been done in Toronto. But it is a curious fact that no matter what is going on there are always some who know nothing about it until it is over and past. Saturday is the last day for registering, and the penalties for those who neglect to register are heavy, but it is safe to predict that many will neglect, forget, not know. How do people manage to cut themselves off entirely from the currents of life swirling all around them?

ABOUT CARS.

(Brantford Expositor.)

For public information the occupation of the owners of cars in Ontario is here published as follows:

Farmers	23,409
Skilled trades	10,937
Merchants, manufacturers, etc.	14,825
Physicians	2,906
Other professions	3,394
Commercial travellers	1,079
Taxicabs	1,662
Miscellaneous	20,950
Total	78,861
Licensed drivers	8,214
Increase over 1916 registration	3,690

It will be seen that more farmers own autos than any other class in the community. Such being the case the marvel is that the agitation for highway improvement does not make still greater progress.

Australian Pearls.

Pearls found on the coast of Australia are of many shapes and colors. Those under ten grains are sold by the ounce, above that by the grain. Color has a deal to do with the value. The white pearls go mostly to Europe and the yellow ones to India. In Australia an ounce of good white pearls will fetch up to $500, but sometimes realizes only a fifth of that amount. The yellow pearls may be rated on an average at about half the value of the white ones. The seed pearls used for cheap jewelry can be had for $5 per ounce and discolored pearls for 7s. 6d., but if the discoloration is peculiar the value is sometimes enhanced. For the low class of seed pearls there is a constant demand among oriental physicians and apothecaries, who grind them into a powder and administer it to patients as a cure for many ills.

Tinted Specs For Artificial Light.

For viewing objects illuminated by artificial light when it is desired to see such objects exactly as they would appear in daylight, H. E. Ives, the English physicist, suggests colored glass spectacles. The glass would be covered with a collodion or gelatin surface, stained with aniline dyes carefully selected to filter out the light rays peculiar to artificial light. For each kind of the latter a special formula would have to be followed in preparing the spectacles. These spectacles would be useful in many industries, as, for example, the making of artificial teeth, where color has to be most accurately matched. They might also be lent to visitors at picture galleries by night or on dark days, when artificial illumination is employed, in order to insure the most favorable view of the pictures.—New York World.

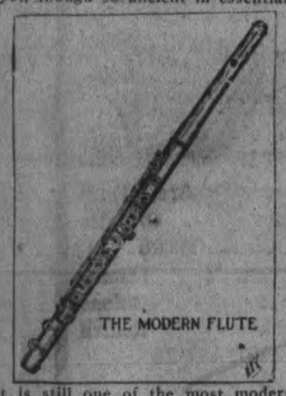
MUSIC IN THE HOME

The Flute, A Good Home Instrument; Harmonizes Well With Paino; Ancient of Invention But Most Modern in Orchestral Use.

By H. H. Kinzett.

Though the Flute is modelled upon the rude instrument of prehistoric times, for it has been in constant use in various forms for countless ages, yet, though so ancient in essentials,



THE MODERN FLUTE

None esteemed it more than the beauty loving Greeks, and to the Phrygian Olympus is the honour due of introducing flute playing into Greece. So prominent was it that professional services were employed in its use; while among the players trials of skill were frequent.

It owes its present form to the inventive genius of Theobald Bohm, who in 1832, and in spite of much opposition, succeeded in introducing it into the musical world, whereby its distinctive merits has gained the front rank in the orchestra; for though the old time flute is to be found here and there, none who played on it alone could hope to find a place in the moodern orchestra.

Unlike its ancestor which had soundholes bored to suit the fingers, Bohm's flute is divided into mathematically accurate divisions, with a key system to suit. The instrument might be likened to a row of reeds in a harmonium, which being chromatically arranged, the lifting of the fingers secures a scale of perfect equality of intonation.

Before this splendid invention flutes of different sizes were necessary, treble, tenor, alto, bass, for extreme keys were almost impossible on the whole time flute; those mostly used being in D and E flat. On the modern instrument, music in any key can be played, while instead of several, the player has only one to keep up, and the tone with one flute is certainly better than with several with the constant changing, for it is a singular fact that as a wind instrument gets warmer, owing to the rise in temperature it gets sharper.

The highest part in the music of an orchestra is generally given to the flute, for it is the most acute, so that any melody the composer desires to predominate of the body of the harmony, can be safely entrusted to it, while it is so agile that anything in the way of scales, runs and appeggios can be executed with ease and certainty.

Its services in orchestral work are constant; it doubles the first violin in the melody, either in unisons or octaves, or in combination with other wood-winds, being the soprano it takes the highest parts for it is so extremely brilliant in solos. Not only is rapid execution its special feature, but it is equally capable in sustained notes of long duration with high tone; the opening chords in Mendelssohn's "Mid-summer Night's Dream," being a case in point.

Beautiful solo work and obligatos abound in the works of the old masters, Handel's "Hush ye pretty warbling Choir," "Will the Sun forget to Streak," and "The Soft complaining flute," are exquisite; while Haydn's "Creation" is full of charming flute melodies, Berlioz also has a striking melody, a most unique piece for two flutes and a harp in his "L'Enfance du Christ," while in the works of more modern writers, the flute takes a formost place, for it is undoubtedly the composer's peculiar vehicle for conveying the female voice; the songs of birds; the sweet liquid voice of Nature.

For the most part the flute is made of loco-wood, though other kinds are used, body ebony, metals of various kind, ivory, even glass. The sound is produced by blowing with the mouth into an oval aperture on the side at the thick end. The keys work in such a way that the holes are open when not in use, thus lessening the length of the pipe, and heightening the pitch. It has a compass of three octaves from low C in the treble cleff, with all the chromatic intervals.

The flute is quite adapted for home work, harmonizing well with the piano. A strict course of earnest study is necessary in mastering this noble instrument, but it is impossible in a written treatise to explain the difficulties the student will have to surmount, which can only be obtained by oral instruction.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Paspebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

Banjo Once Taboo In Musical Society

This Popular Instrument Not Hard to Learn.

The origin of the Banjo is obscure. It is claimed to be the invention of a plantation hand who made the first one out of an old cheese box; though this story has no foundation in fact. But as most instruments of this nature are to be found among many savage nations, the most likely supposition is that they were introduced by some superior race, perhaps for a religious or political motive.

No doubt the Guitar was so introduced by the Arabs to the West African negro and the Sene-gambian modification, the "cenia," may very possibly be the parent of the African Banjo, though others have derived it from bandore, a negro corruption of the Greek word pandoura, a musical instrument with three strings.

Whatever its origin it certainly bespeaks some knowledge of musical culture, for without it no one could gauge the results that would follow the stretching of strings over a sounding board, or the intervals required from the varying vibrating lengths of the strings, and though the Banjo is not in the front rank of musical instruments it is yet far in advance of any made by the Indians.

However this may be, it was certainly introduced into America by the African Negro, and it is the chief musical instrument of the plantation; and the statement that it is more African than American is perfectly true, but it is equally true that though its melodies are the production of Africans, or Afro-Americans they are distinctly due to American surroundings and influences.

At one time the Banjo was tabooed in musical society, and much scorn was poured upon it, indeed many books on music quite ignore it even now; but it has been so improved in make and production of tone that it is possible to obtain the most accurate, rapid and pleasing execution of really good music.

The Banjo is an instrument of the Guitar family. It has a long neck on which are the strings and tuning pegs, terminating in a tightly stretched vellum drum-like body. At one time it was without frets to guide the stopping or tune of the strings, but now the neck has a fretted fingerboard.

The Melody-string, or Chantrelle, so called from its position and use in "thumbing," which, unlike other instruments of this character, is placed on the bass side of the lowest tuned string, the tuning peg being placed half-way up the neck instead of at the head. This string is sixteen inches from the neck to the bridge, the other strings being twenty-four inches in length.

The Banjo in use by all professional players has five strings; the first, second, third, and fifth, are of gut, the fourth is silk covered with fine wire. These five open strings are named G.B. G.B.D. and should sound like the same notes on the piano only an octave lower.

The Banjo is not hard to learn; like all instruments, practice is the principal thing required. Scales in all keys must be assiduously practised, and after a time the ear will become accustomed to the intervals between the notes. Then it will only be necessary to take the pitch of the fourth string from the piano or other musical instrument to tune the others in accord.

The left hand should encircle the neck of the instrument, the thumb and first finger should be behind the first fret, the fingers curved and held over the strings ready for action.

The right hand is placed over the bridge with extended thumb and fingers, ready to pluck the strings, the Banjo meanwhile being firmly pressed against the body with the inner part of the arm.

There are a number of excellent instruction books on the market to select from.

A Proposal To License Teamsters

Matters Will be Dealt With on Saturday Next

The Board of Police Commissioners will act at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon next to deal with the question of licensing teamsters. The matter was brought up in Council some time ago, but has not yet been dealt with by the Commission. Representatives of the parties interested in this matter will be given an opportunity to present their views at the meeting.

RESULT OF INQUEST AT PERTH.

The adjourned inquest into the deaths of Knight Butland and S. M. Martin, the C. P. R. engineer and brakeman killed in the recent collision between a freight and passenger train near Glen Tay, was heard at Perth on Friday last, when the jury returned a verdict that the deaths of the two railway men were caused through the collision caused by the train crew forgetting train No 22, (the express train)

Previous to the inquest warrants were issued by the Crown authorities against Newton Lebo and Roy Campney, engineer and conductor respectively on the freight train, on a charge of manslaughter. Both were admitted to bail and committed for trial at the fall assizes in Perth.

Miss Constance Boulton Is Of The Opinion That Women School Trustees Are Essential

An Interview With the Examiner This Morning Miss Boulton, Who is a Member of the Toronto School Board, Makes Some Interesting Observations.

"WOMEN ALDERMEN"

Miss Constance Boulton, organizer for the campaign for the Navy League of Canada, which will be held in the fall, is a firm believer and agitator in the cause of women school trustees.

When seen this morning at the Empress Hotel, where she is staying during her work in the city, Miss Boulton, who has been on the Toronto School Board since January, said that women trustees are absolutely essential. "Not," she said, "that I think women should neglect their homes and go into public life, but I do think that those who have time and ability should certainly go in for the work.

IMPORTANT WORK.

The teaching profession, she said, is absolutely the most important in the country. The school board is the administrative body by which the teacher is chosen. A man has a great deal of his time taken up while a woman of leisure who has the ability to take up such work as the school board requires, has the time to go intelligently and carefully into every phase of the school life. She may visit the school, become acquainted with the teacher and her methods, in fact get into closer touch with the process of education so important to the welfare of the country than any man. Therefore, I contend, women trustees are essential.

WOMEN ALDERMEN.

Since her election to the Board in Toronto, Miss Boulton says she has received the greatest courtesy from the men trustees. Presently, she believes, women should be elected to the Council, where, too, their influence could be a distinct asset to the public good. "They would be splendid but I don't want to be one," she said. "My election to the school board I received reluctantly, though I admit I did feel honoured."

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Miss Boulton is intensely interested in the reorganization of the educational system with the idea of paying more attention to vocational training. She believes in teaching children to use their eyes and hands at practical education, rather than burden their poor little brains with a lot of academic teaching which they loathe. Her resolution on her election was to extend domestic science and manual training to all schools in Toornto. This movement is in progress.

THE NAVY LEAGUE.

Miss Boulton is most enthusiastic in the interests of the merchant marine. Very little, she says, is done for the sailor, who faces the perils of the war the same as the soldier. To him fell the responsibility of transferring the soldiers across to France, and at his hands not one has perished. He is the backbone of the whole war situation—and what has been done for him? His dependents are not provided for by any pension, and are left, should he perish, penniless.

The Royal Navy has called upon the merchant marine to fill up the ranks and take up the work in the submarines, mine sweepers, and destroyers, on account to their experience.

In the interests of these men Miss Boulton will speak to-morrow night at the Council Chamber, at 9 o'clock.

A Grand Medicine For Little Ones

Baby's Own Tablets are a grand medicine for little ones. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are absolutely safe; easy to give and never fail to cure any of the minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Jas. S. Hastey, Gleason Road, N. B., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them perfectly satisfactory for my little one." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DREW FOR FANCY CAP

The fancy crochet cap donated by Mrs. Albert Merritt, Brownton, to the Prisoner's Fund of the Peterboro Progressive Club, was drawn for yesterday at the club-rooms. The winning ticket was No. 12, held by Mr. Hogg.

Mrs. Ridyard, 463 Albert street, who sold the tickets for this cap was able to turn in the treasurer, the handsome sum of $25.00.

The club is most grateful to both these ladies for their efforts and to the friends who bought the tickets.

Will Mr. Hogg kindly call at Mrs. Ridyard's for the cap.

Simple Home Treatment To Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture.)

Two or three minutes use of a delatone paste will banish every bit of hair from your face, neck or arms. This paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. After the paste is removed, the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone and it will be clear and spotless. You will not be disappointed with this treatment if you are sure to obtain real delatone from your druggist.

A Statement Is Expected To-day From Government

Guelph Excited By Gossip About Jesuit College—St. Stanislaus Novitiate, Near Royal City, and the M. S. A. Subject of Discussion

LACKS FOUNDATION

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

GUELPH, June 20.—The next step of the Guelph Ministerial Association in reference to the recent visit of the military police to the Jesuit Novitiate here, will be decided upon at a meeting of the Association this afternoon.

The proposal to have a public meeting next week to protest against the action or inaction of the authorities in regard to the Novitiate will be discussed at the ministers' meeting to-day. The Government statement explaining the whole affair is expected from Ottawa to-day and much depends on what is brought out in this statement.

GUELPH, June 20.—Considerable excitement in Protestant ministerial circles at Guelph has been caused by allegations which have been made that there are young men at the St. Stanislaus Novitiate near Guelph who are of military age and have entered since the Military Service Act came into force, thereby securing exemption. So much exercised over the matter are the clergymen that Rev. W. D. Spence, president of the Ministerial Association, went to Toronto and laid before The Toronto Star the views of the association on the matter.

A Statement from Authorities.

After a conference lasting several hours the following statement was authorized to be published:

"In answer to the enquiries the rector of St. Stanislaus' Novitiate answered that many rumours had gotten abroad as to the institution harbouring deserters or defaulters under the Military Service Act and orders-in-Council, and he wished emphatically to deny these and any other allegations of a like nature.

"Particular pains had been taken at alal times to accept none into the order that were subject to the Act or any regulations or orders-in-Council.

"Representatives of the Government had visited the Novitiate and had made enquiries, all of which had been fully answered, and the representatives had been given every opportunity to make any investigation they saw fit.

"It is understood that an official statement will be issued promptly by the Government, dealing with the whole matter."

Attack of the Cossacks.

The Russian Cossacks have a form of attack which is peculiarly their own. It is known as the "lava." Cossack horses are specially trained to carry out the maneuver. The leading sotnia (squadron) spreads out to right and left, and the others, at full speed, form up on either side of it in a semicircle or half moon. Every man with a lance is attended by a man wearing a sword, and all the officers are in front of the men of each sotnia. The other squadrons do not wait for a special order, but at once adopt the same formation, endeavoring to surround the enemy from another side. With loud shouts reminiscent of the red Indian war-whoop the Cossacks rush down on the foe, and even though the first assault be repulsed another "lava" pours down on the shaken enemy. This system of attack takes its name, of course, from the liquid products of volcanic activity. —London Mail.

Ancient Astronomy.

A most interesting discovery in Egypt has been made, where an observatory has been found at Meroe at the bottom of a well in an underground bathing establishment, the advantage of such an observatory being that the stars could be seen by day as well as by night. This observatory, it is claimed, was evidently a copy of the famous observatory at Assuan, where the circumference of the earth was first determined—a work which was said to have been done at the bottom of the well. The chamber in which the astronomer's instruments were placed was ideally fitted for its purpose. Only a strip of sky was observable. On one of the stucco walls the astronomer has left a record of his calculations.

Must Have Some Evidence.

"I tell you, Jack," said the enthusiast in the Berliner Illustrirte Zeitung, "I have a new car that is wonderful. It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it. It makes no noise at all, and there is no smell of gasoline. And speed! Why, it goes so fast that you can't see it!"

"Indeed!" replied his friend. "You can't feel it, hear it, smell it or see it. How under the sun do you know you've got a car, then?"

Millbrook Happenings

MILLBROOK, June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Bigelow, of Bethany, motored to Emily on Sunday, and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lowes.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hanna were guests of Superintendent Sergt.-Major Norman Hanna and Mrs. Hanna, at Camp Borden, last week.

Monthly Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the Methodist Church on Monday morning. Mr. C. E. Weeks, of Lindsay, was the principal speaker, and his address on "The Leadership of the Pulpit" was most helpful and inspiring. A hearty vote of thanks was given him for his splendid address. Mr. Weeks was a former resident of this village.

Soldier's Letter.

Following is a letter from Sig. W. J. Collins:

Seaford, Sussex.
May 24, 1918.

My Dear Mother and Father,—Just received a letter from home with the sad news that Bobby Cochrane had been killed in action. If I go back I may have the chance to look up the spot where he is buried and send the photo home. The weather has been fairly fine this last week, and I hope you are also favoured the same way.

I just took part in a little wrestle with my bed-mate, Raymond, with the result that we both went through the window. I cut by right hand, not badly, but it makes it "bally" awkward to hold a pen. From now on we both intend to wrestle in the open. Raymond and I get on very well, but I miss my old chum, Lou Sutton. He and I understood the other's little characteristics and anything of mine he used with as much regularity as I did, and I can assure you that I did the same. As soon as the Canadians are moved down when the new formative begins we will likely be put on draft. Now don't worry, but if they put me on draft I will go with the greatest readiness.

At present, Stevenson, one of the signallers of the 38th, and I, are instructing some of the officers in the rudiments of the art of signalling, especially how to write a message. Last week we had a major, several captains, and some subs., so you can picture we two privates saying in a deep voice, you may have a smoke. While they are taking this course they are under us. During the smoking period, after having received several cigars, I called to Steve in a somewhat stage whisper the many advantages of a nice piece of pie between hours. One of the officers took the gentle hint and we had several pieces. Oh, I can tell you we are taking advantage of our position.

I met Norman McGill down street last week and we had a talk about home. I also saw Ken. McBean, who had just come from hospital. We had another good talk to-day and intend to go down street soon.

By the way, I feel fine, so never think that I'm not. I was swimming in the Channel with the result that my back is nicely sunburned. I hardly think that the food question is quite so bad over here at present. The harvest, or at least the greens, look fine, and they are allowing more meat to the public per individual.

Has Inky learned to drive the car yet? I suppose she will want to learn. Has Mickey taken her fishing, though I suppose papa does now he is home? Well, when you are having your dinner by the roadside, think of me and be glad I'm not there, for if I was you would be compelled to have just double the rations.

Give my warmest regards to all.
With love and kisses to all,
Your affectionate son,
"TOOT."

Hit the Ditch.

Mr. Wesley Husk's driver took fright at an automobile on Sunday evening at Mt. Pleasant and took the ditch. Wesley gave it a touch of the whip and brought it to the road again but it reared and fell, but was not seriously injured.

Cavan Orangemen Meet—L.O.L. District of Cavan.

A special meeting of the Orange District of Cavan was held in Millbrook on Saturday, June 15. Lecture repeated by Bros. Chas. Lunn and Ernest Leith. Minutes of last meeting were read, and on motion approved and adopted. Moved by Bro. Aiken, seconded by Bro. Earle, that the secretary be and is hereby instructed to correspond with Harry Brown, secretary of Victoria County Orange Lodge to the effect that this district expects that there will be one thousand Orangemen to take the train for Lindsay on the 12th. Moved by Bro. Reynolds, seconded by Bro. Paul, that we attend Divine service in St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, on Sunday, July 7, the members to meet at the Lodge Room, Millbrook, at 7:00 p.m. Carried.

Moved by Bro. Aiken, seconded by Bro. Lunn, that Bros. Fallis, Leith and Fowler, be a committee to arrange with the minister to preach on that occasion. Carried.

Moved by Bros. Reynolds and Paul, that Bros. Aiken and Fallis be a committee to wait on the G.T.R. agent to arrange for train accommodation. Carried.

A very appropriate speech, re the Grand Lodge was delivered by Bro. Aiken, and greatly appreciated by the brethren.

Lecture was repeated by Bros. McWells and Williamson. Altogether the meeting was one of the best ever held in the village, and was well attended.

FEW NIGHTS WITHOUT FROST.

A farmer in the city to-day stated that he believed there had been more nights with frost this month so far than there had been without. On his farm where a good deal of fruit, such as currants, apples, etc., were raised, the late blossom has been badly killed by frost. Twenty currant bushes which were covered with bloom, were struck with frost, and now he says there won't be a pint of currants on the lot of them. Late apple blossoms were touched and dropped off the trees completely before the apples were formed.

INCREASE IN FOOD SUPPLIES NOW IN COLD STORAGE

OTTAWA, June 20.—The Cost of Living Branch reports to the Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, as follows, concerning food in cold storage:

Reports from the cold storage companies for June 1st indicate an increase in quantity in store of butter eggs, pork, mutton, lamb and fish; and a decrease in the quantity of cheese, beef and fowl, compared with May 1st of this year.

Quantities in Store.

As compared with June 1st, 1917, we have more butter in store, more beef and more fish. We have less cheese, eggs, pork, products and fowl than a year ago. The most striking comparison is in the case of beef, of which we have 11.72 per cent. more than on June 1st, 1917. Since the purchasing commission of the allies is fully aware of this fact, and we have the statement of these gentlemen to the effect that a large proportion of this stock is already under contract to them, we find no grounds for alarm.

The most striking feature recently in the market situation of storage products has been the great rise in the price of beef. There has been a general rise in all beef products throughout the Dominion, but the west, starting from Port Arthur and Fort William, has suffered the worst. Naturally the consuming public has resented the rise very much.

Profiteering.

The matter has been carefully investigated with the view of detecting profiteering and while the merchants in some localities have apparently used the general rise in prices to cover an undue increase, we have not been able to find any evidence that the general increase throughout the country was due to unlawful action on the part of the meat packers. The increase is general throughout the whole of North America, and is fully as marked in the case of live cattle as in the case of meat. On ascertaining these facts, we might have stopped for this office has no jurisdiction over the matter, but we have been able to go further, and have found that the increased price is due entirely to the war situation.

Some Amounts.

The amount of food commodities in storage June 1st, 1918, were: Butter, 2,251,673 pounds; cheese, 2,466,997 pounds; eggs, 8,422,588 dozen; beef (fresh and pickled), 19,333,470 pounds; pork (fresh and pickled), 31,218,944 pounds; bacon, ham and smoked meats, 14,721,221 pounds.

Build Up The Blood

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient in quantity or quality. The blood circulates through every portion of the body. It takes nourishment from the food and distributes it to the various organs and muscles; it takes also any medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerves. Hence if the blood is poor, the body becomes weak and the nerves shaky, and the victim may be subject to headaches and dizziness, poor appetite, indigestion, a constantly tired feeling or perhaps to rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia. Poor blood is the forerunner of nearly every ailment to which mankind is subject, and you can only enjoy robust health by keeping the blood rich red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich red blood which carries new health and new strength to every part of the body. When one becomes weak and pale Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will restore the blood, bring the glow of health to the cheek, and make weak, ailing people energetic and strong.

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NOTHING CAN COMPARE WITH IT

Mr. Fred Adams, New Rose N.S., writes—"I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest satisfaction with this medicine for it never fails to relieve a cough and loosen up."

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

"The prospects for an extremely high vegetable yield this year are of the brightest, provided the weather keeps right," declares one of the officials at the Experimental Farm Ottawa "Keep hoeing." There is an inclination on hot, drowsy June days to let the garden "go hang" but that would be a pity, for gardens need continuous attention and soon show neglect.

Keep hoeing although it is warm. Go on with successional sowings of lettuce, corn, beans, beets, radishes, etc. Only in this way will you be making the most of the ground at your disposal. Remember that the peas need hilling when they are six inches high to prevent their being broken in the wind.

Cut the weeds down in the morning so that they will wither during the day in the hot sun. Then you can rake them up in the evening. The ground between the vegetable rows should be constantly stirred. Do not be satisfied merely with keeping the weeds in check but increase the fruitfulness of the ground by continual cultivation.

Trades Council Are Pleased With New Industry Now Here

The Trades and Labour Council last night expressed their gratification at the coming of the Renfrew Manufacturing Company to Peterborough, and especially approved of their decision not to ask for concessions from the city. It was hoped that other industries locating here might be led to emulate the Low company's action.

The Council room was placed at the disposal of the Moulders who, during their strike, are meeting daily; and no charge will be made the Moulders' local for the use of the room.

Boys Get Sugar and Porter.

One of the members flouted the wisdom of closing the restaurants on Sunday evenings largely because of the sale of ice cream, stating that the young men were now drinking porter and sugar in the Temperance Hotels, which were open on Sunday nights.

The distribution of coal to Peterborough homes, especially to the working class, was the principal subject discussed last night. It was asserted that the distribution is not fair. Many orders have been filled and others have been accepted, but as many other citizens have failed to place their orders, and have been applying for weeks. At the next meeting of the City Council, a Labour delegation will seek the fullest information on the coal situation, and especially the steps that should be taken to secure an equal distribution.

The retailers, it is contended, advance various excuses to many consumers and in the meantime some of their regular customers are getting orders filled to the extent permitted by law.

Mr. A. Murray will be the chief spokesman of the denutation to the City Council and will be supported by other members of the Labour Council.

ORPHANAGES WERE SPECIALLY COMMENDED BY GRAND JURY ALL INSTITUTIONS SATISFACTORY

The report of the Grand Jury of the June session just closed was as follows:—

To His Honor Judge Huycke,

Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough:

The Grand Jury beg leave to report that we concur with your Honor that the representatives from our County and especially the Committee of whom Reeve Anderson was Chairman, are to be highly complimented on building up from the ruins and relics of by-gone days a Court House that the County and City will take a pardonable pride in.

The general lay-out of the structure with its beautifully furnished Hall of Justice, and the various well-equipped offices in connection therewith, also reflects great credit on the architect and builders. The imposing Court-room with its handsome dark quartered oak furnishings, the plain richness of which leaves nothing to be desired and creates the pre ading impression of dignity which is in keeping with the respect we have for the Judiciary of our County in the capacity as a safeguard that our laws shall ever remain inviolate.

Comparatively speaking our duties have been light as only two cases came before us, and we are pleased to observe so little serious crime in our midst at the present time.

In accordance with our duties as Grand Jurors, we visited the following institutions:—

The Gaol which had only inmates—we found the premises clean and in good condition with the exception of a cook stove which should be thoroughly repaired, or replaced by a new one; further the floors are in need of paint.

Nicholls' Hospital with 40 patients.

St. Joseph Hospital with 18 patients.

House of Providence with 70 inmates.

Protestant Home with 34 inmates.

House of Refuge with 37 inmates.

Children's Shelter with 8 inmates.

St. Vincent Orphanage with 38 inmates.

Your Grand Jury are pleased to observe and to express their appreciation of the fact that each institution was found in charge of capable and worthy superintendents, and in conversation with many inmates were assured by them that everything was perfectly satisfactory and the attention and care was the best.

We cannot speak too highly of the good work carried on by the Orphanage and Children's Aid. Both these homes were scrupulously clean and very neat, orderly, and homelike and are very worthy of the liberal support of all citizens.

In reference to the House of Refuge, while everything was clean and orderly, and in the superintendent and his wife we found two of the most diplomatic people who have shown wonderful capacity in looking after the aged and unfortunate of our County, we would however, recommend to those who have the supervision of this institution that proper fire escapes be constructed to the top flat which is at present occupied, and while the walls and porch require repairs, we are informed that there are others under consideration. We would further recommend that a hedge be planted on either side of the driveway of the approaches to the House, also a few more shade trees be planted in the front of the House which would relieve the monotony of the landscape.

Your jurors desire to congratulate Your Honor on the very able and considerate manner in which the duties of your high office are discharged. Our deepest respect is due to the judiciary of our Country. Your Honor has our thanks for your admirable conduct of this sittings of this Court.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,
E. F. MASON
Foreman.

Plans For Three New Bridges Before The County Council

Plans for the erection of new county bridges, the Dunlop bridge in Monaghan, the Alma street bridge in Norwood and Robinson's bridge, between Asphodel and Dummer, were laid before the County Council yesterday afternoon. Reeve Squire was informed that some of the townspeople have expressed the opinion that a new bridge on Alma street was unnecessary. Norwood's Reeve demanded the names of any objectors, but Reeve McIntosh would not divulge them. There has been no action yet on these proposed bridges.

Tax Church Property.

The Finance committee this morning, with Mr. Eason presiding, received a letter from the County Orange Lodge, asking the Council to approve a movement in the province whose object is to secure the taxation of church property. The letter was signed by J. H. Spence, County Master, and W. G. Bartley, secretary, and enclosed the Lodge's resolution moved by E. F. Reid and seconded by W. G. Morrow. No action was taken during this morning's session.

Agricultural Grants.

The grants to the county agricultural societies remain the same as last year, viz.: $175 each to the Norwood and Peterborough fairs, and $75 each to Keene, Lakefield and Galway.

Repair Long Swamp Road.

The Council agreed to make a grant of $100 for repairs to the Long Swamp road on the boundary between Peterborough and Victoria counties on condition that Victoria give $100. Reeve John Clarke, of Galway, stated that Victoria Council met last week and decided to give $100 for this work.

For Care of Victoria Park.

A deputation from the Horticultural Society, composed of Mr. Walter Stocker, Cecil Williamson and Sam Jordan asked the Council to renew the agreement by which the County contributed $100 annually to the Society for the care of Victoria Park. It was a ten year agreement which terminates now.— Referred to the Finance committee.

Lakefield Bridge.

Reeve Moore reported the Lakefield bridge in need of repairs and paint. He and Reeve Nicholls, of Smith, were authorized to have the necessary work on this bridge done under their supervision.

Millbrook Epworth League Notes

Millbrook, June 19. — Last Monday evening's session of the Epworth League, was replete with good things. Capt. (Rev.) Spencer gave a splendid address on the subject, "My Experiences in France," which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. He painted a vivid picture of the condition of things "over there." He said that during the time that he was in France and England he had come in contact with some of the most generous, noble hearted heroes that ever lived. In hospitals where many have suffered and died, Captain Spencer, as chaplain, had many opportunities to see how rationally and courageously our brave boys suffered.

He had many trophies to show the audience.

The musical part of the programme was also a treat. A chorus by the Misses Patience, and May Byam, Ella Elson, Lila and Stella Pethick, Mrs. Higgs. Mr. J. L. Byam, and Rev. W. H. Higgs, was greatly enjoyed, as was also a solo by Miss Ella Elson. The piano duet by the Misses Stella Hetherington and Phyllis Richards, was also well rendered.

The League meetings are a real help to all who attend and a hearty invitation is extended to everyone to be present at any or all of its sessions.

$150 Increase For Turnkey At Jail

A request from the townships of Dummer and Asphodel that Garvin's bridge on their dividing boundary line be assumed by the County was followed this morning by an inspection trip by a committee composed of the Warden and Reeves Nicholls, McIntosh, Webster and Brown. Their report will be presented later.

The Finance committee this morning increased the salary of Mr. Ray, turnkey at the Court House, from $700 to $850.

Reeve Griffith made a plea yesterday for the Council's assistance in repairing the road leading from Trent Bridge. It was extensively used, he stated, especially by Havelock residents who motor to the summer resort.

The Bilious Habit

Some people have bilious spells about every so often until they get to be a habit.

The liver is at fault. Get the liver right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the bile will not collect in the blood until it poisons you.

There is no one organ in the human body which has so great a control of health as the liver. Hence the far-reaching effect of this treatment.

Oh, Say, Won't It Be Swell!

NEW YORK, June 19.—(In pursuance of General Crowder's order men ushers and venders at the Polo grounds soon will give way to girls.)

Scene, the Polo grounds. Time, any Saturday afternoon in August. Weather clear, 90 in shade.

First Usherette (to perspiring citizen looking for his box seat)—I'm sorry, but your seat is occupied by a young lady in a stunning crepe de chine creation, and really you wouldn't want me to chase her out, would you? I can give you a seat just as good on the other side. What? You want your seat? Well, of all the nerve! You can just go and find your seat for yourself.

Second Usherette—Say, ain't they the fresh goofs? Expect you to put out that girl just so as he could get seated himself. And his wife probably slaving away looking for bargains in the department stores! And did ye notice the waist that girl has on? I see they are selling them at Stacy's for fourteen ninety-eight, only hers has succotash trimmings. I see they are going to wear Dutch necks again. I look like a fright in a Dutch neck. I think they ought to bar everything Dutch, don't you?

Irate Citizen—Say, will you please call the sewing circle to order and give me my seat, if it isn't too much trouble.

First Usherette—Well, I like that! Listening in, eh? Just like a man. Can't you men find anything for yourselves?

At this point a girl vender of ice cream unwittingly permits a cone's contents to slide down the Irate Citizen's back.

Venderette (very sweetly) — That will be a dime please.

Irate Citizen collapses.

Art in a Butcher Shop.

When hotels have anniversaries or department stores end half centuries of service flowers are always present in abundance and a butcher uptown had observed this. Yesterday, when he noted by his calendar that the next day would end ten years of faithful service, he decided that flowers were in order. So, fearing that others would not remember the date he ordered. They came and the butcher arranged them as artistically as his art in dangling sausages allowed him. But when customers began to come in later he noticed smiles. At first he took this for commendation and smiled back, but later he walked all the way around the wreaths and inspected them more carefully. And then it was that he decided flowers could never become his friends. For resting in a cluster which was supported by the sausages was a banner reading, "Rest in Peace," and the ribbon which upheld the standard of the roses and was propped against the liverwurst, "We will meet you over there." Which brings to mind the immortal inscription by the reporter who interviewed the champion schweitzer cheese devourer of the world.

Bit of Finnish History.

Finland, which has declared its independence from Russia, has long been a buffer state between the latter and Sweden. After Peter the Great conquered Finland in 1721 and annexed its easternmost province, Viborg, Sweden made repeated but unsuccessful efforts to regain this province. Finally Alexander I, in 1809, brought all the Finnish territories under the Muscovite yoke. Since about 1890, however, Finnish liberties have been greatly curtailed. The powers of the Finnish diet were cancelled and its constitution practically abrogated. In 1903 a Russian dictator was appointed and the country flooded with Russian spies; arbitrary arrests and banishments became daily occurrences; no means of Russification was left untried. The Finns are of Mongolian extraction and number about 3,000,000.

Old Turkish Customs.

As long ago as 1613 Coryate visited Constantinople and has left a minute account of its manners and customs. Among other matters he notes that "it is the custom that whensoever any fire ariseth in the city to hang up him in whose house it beginneth, as now a cook in whose house it begun was hanged up presently after the fire ceased." The Turks themselves, it appears were models of good breeding. "The Turk doth never at the saluting of his friend at any time of the day or when he driuketh to him at dinner or supper put off his turban, as we Christians do our hats one to another, but boweth his head and putteth his right hand upon his breast, so that he utterly disliketh the fashion that is used among us of putting off our hats. Therefore, when he wisheth any ill to his enemy he prayeth God to send him no more rest than a Christian's hat."

Resistance by Air.

The effects of air resistance are well shown in the twelve and a half miles Simplon tunnel, where an exceptionally high amount of energy is required for running the electric trains. The tunnel, which is fifteen feet wide and eighteen feet high, with a sectional area of 250 square feet, has a ventilating current of 3,530 feet cubic of air per second, maintained by two large blast fans at the Brigue end and two exhaust fans at Iselle. Trains going with this current encounter less resistance than in open air up to fifteen and a half miles an hour, but at higher speeds or in the opposite direction the resistance is much greater than outside. Moving by gravity down the seven per one thousand maximum gradient, a train, even though going with the current, cannot exceed thirty-five miles an hour on account of the braking by the air.

Impertinence of Genius.

Dr. Johnson once called upon David Garrick in London and was shown into his study. Unfortunately, a door being open, he strayed into an adjoining room, which contained the novels and lighter works which had been presented as tributes to the highly admired actor. Johnson first read a bit from one and then another and threw them down, strewing the floor with the expensive volumes. Garrick was angry at finding Johnson there and said, "This is a private cabinet, and no company is admitted here."

"But," said Johnson, with impertinent coolness, "I was determined to examine your valuables, which I find consist of three sorts—stuff, trash and nonsense."

Memory.

The brain is like a phonograph. It is full of records, and you need only to set the needle and touch the spring of memory to hear its melody. Of course this leaves you with considerable responsibility as to the choice of records with which you stock up.—Los Angeles Times.

Her Luck.

"I proposed to Miss Slathers last night."

"That girl's lucky, all right."

"Oh, you flatter me."

"I'm not thinking of you. She won a bet when you proposed."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Only Way.

"My brother has made a name for himself, and that is more than you can say," snapped Mrs. Gabb.

"What did he do?" asked Mr. Gabb. "Adopt an alias?"—Montreal Star.

Good Roads System Bears Greatest Burden On Farmers

County Council's Discussion Yesterday Disclosed Reasons Why Peterborough Holds Aloof From the Provincial Policy — Where Do the Auto License Fees Go?

NO PLAN SUBMITTED

The County Council's opinion of the Ontario Good Roads policy might be pieced together from an informal discussion that took place at yesterday afternoon's session while the committee on Roads and Bridges was at work with Reeve McIntosh in the chair.

The discussion was diverted to the question of the Good Roads scheme by Warden Anderson's denial of a report that a tentative plan of county roads system, prepared by the Department, had been submitted to the Peterborough County Council.

"We have never had such a plan before us," said the Warden, who appealed to the Council to vouch for his assertion.

Reeve Matheson of Havelock, said he had seen a copy of a plan for Peterborough County in the office of the Havelock Standard, and he understood that it had been left there by Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P. for East Peterborough. Reeve Matheson said he understood that Mr. Thompson purposed sending a copy of the plan to Deputy-reeve Eason of Otonabee, who is chairman of a special committee appointed to bring in a report on the Good Roads question.

Warden Anderson—I asked Mr. Eason three or four weeks ago about it and he said he didn't know anything about the plan.

And that was the cue for a "panning" of the Good Roads question that left little doubt of the Council's opposition to its principal features, which it was stated imposed a financial burden upon the farmers.

The Council is anxious to build up as complete a good roads system throughout this county as can be constructed with due regard to economy. It was stated that between $30,000 and $40,000 will be paid to the Provincial government this year in licenses by the automobile owners of the city and county.

"Give us that money and we will do our own road building," was one terse statement.

Warden Anderson—There is no reason for taxing the automobile owners of this county if their money is not to be used on this county's roads.

County Clerk Elliott interjected the remark that the Government might as well take the county's auctioneer and peddler's license fees.

Reeve Griffiths—As long as we sit quiet they will do as they like. They think we like it when we say nothing.

Mr. Elliott stated that the automobile licenses last year amounted to $1,000,000 and only $300,000 had been paid by the Government into the Good Roads system.

"Mr. Squire (a Good Roads official) has influenced twenty County Councils in the past two years," Mr. Elliott said. "You never get him or Mr. McLean to argue the question. They are itinerant missionaries preaching the Good Roads system."

Some Anxious to Get Out.

The Warden referred to the significant fact that some municipalities are trying to separte themselves from the Good Roads system, but they found it as difficult to get out as it was easy to get in. London is kicking against the demands made on it in these times to meet the Good Roads expenditure.

"Three-quarters of the people don't own automobiles. They don't want to pay the burdens of the system, especially the people in the cities who have enough local taxes to meet," the Warden remarked.

In the discussion it was agreed that if the auto license fees were allotted to the municipalities from which they were collected, the municipalities would have plenty of money to build and maintain the leading highways, and the side roads would be repaired out of current local levies. There was some implication that the bulk of this auto revenue is being used to open up Northern Ontario where prominent public men are believed to be financially interested. In other words the counties on the front are being deprived of the automobile revenue, and are urged to adopt the Good Roads system, which it was stated, places the bulk of the expenses on the municipalities and especially on the farmers. Roads might be built for $1,500 a mile that would only give permanent service at an outlay of $5,000. The Government pays 40 p.c. of the cost of construction and only 20 p.c. of the maintenance. Hence, cheaply built roads would prove a boomerang to the farmers for the reason that the Government would be contributing only 20 per cent. of the upkeep.

Another condition that was mentioned as an objectionable feature was the Government prerogative of ratifying the appointment of construction supervisors or road engineers. In Northumberland and Durham, it was stated, a liveryman, a defeated politician was appointed to this position despite the sugary affirmation to the farmers that the talent of the country comes from the farms. In his case, it was pointed out, the rural talent was passed over and a livery stable keeper appointed as a road builder.

In short, Peterborough's County Council are "from Missouri" on the Good Roads System. They have to be shown the alleged outstanding advantages, and have already indicated an impatience with assurances and statistics. Automobile owners pay their fees, ostensibly for road building, and not as a luxury tax, and yet the money is largely diverted to other uses than local road building, it is contended, whereas a simple and efficient system of paying for improved roads is obviously suggested by returning the auto fees to the municipalities to be spent on road work.

High Cost of Patches.

There is no economy in patches. You may have a frugal wife who persists in patching your trousers, but you always feel miserable and degraded in such garments. They make you feel like a thief, or like 30 cents in counterfeit money. You are forever trying to hide them from view. . . . . I have worn them myself and I know how uneasy a man feels in good society when he expects each gust of wind to fan his coat tails aside, exposing his wife's needlework, Zieg writes in Cartoons. A patch in the seat of your trousers, if it be accidentally exposed in public will reduce your market value 90½ per cent. If you cannot afford so sudden and enormous a decline in your stocks, and are not prepared to cover margins, you'd better accept a fool's advice and unload your holey belongings upon the ragman before your wife gets out her darning needle and patch bag.

Gallows Work.

A curious note in "Pepys' Diary" refers to the unpopularity of hangmen in those days. Commissioner Pett, who had traveled, told Pepys "how despicable a a thing it is to be hangman in Poland, although it is a place of credit, and that in his time there were some repairs to be made of the gallows there, which was very fine, of stone, but nobody could be got to mend it till the burgomaster or mayor of the town, with all the companies of those trades which are necessary to be used about those repairs, did go in their habits with flags in solemn procession to the place, and there the burgomaster did give the first blow with the hammer upon the wooden work and the rest of the masters of the companies upon the works belonging to their trades that so workmen might not be ashamed to be employed upon doing of the gallows work."

"Sleeping" Bullets.

The distance which a bullet travels is divided into three parts. The first distance the bullet travels in a wabbly manner, either up and down or side wise; the middle distance it "sleeps" or moves on an exact plane, and the third distance, being partly spent, it wobbles in a serpentine movement again. When the bullet "sleeps" it cuts a clean hole through the part of the body hit, but when it is on the first or final distance it tears a jagged hole and moves either up or down and is likely to remain in the body. When the battle range is regulated in such a manner that the line of soldiers is exposed to the range of the "sleeping" bullets there is less work for the ambulance corps.—Chicago Tribune.

In Honor of Minerva.

The most notable festival at Athens was in honor of Minerva. All classes of citizens on this particular day marched in procession. The oldest went first, then the young men, then the children, the young women, the matrons and the people of the lower orders. The most prominent object in the parade was a ship propelled by hidden machinery and bearing at its masthead the sacred banner of the goddess.

Opposite Reasons.

"Papa, why does the pretty lady frown?"

"Because, my son, the men watch her when she goes down the street."

"Then, papa, why does the homely lady frown?"

"Because they don't." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Home Wrecked.

"Yes, a sad affair. She charges him with excessive cruelty."

"You surprise me. Gabson doesn't look like a man who would beat his wife."

"Oh, he didn't do anything of that sort. He got hold of a gas mask somewhere and when Mrs. Gabson started one of her monologues he put it on."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

NUJOL LABORATORIES,
STANDARD OIL CO. (New Jersey),
BAYONNE, N.J.

Gentlemen:—

I have now much pleasure in stating, with full knowledge of the importance of such a claim, that the benefit I have received from the use of Nujol is incalculable.

While I am in the prime of life, I had suffered for a considerable time with constipation in an aggravated form, partly induced from a sedentary occupation.

My knowledge of mechanical affairs responded to the suggestion of lubricating parts of the human system, and with the idea in mind, I sent for a supply of Nujol.

A very few doses effected a marked change in my condition, but to thoroughly rehabilitate my system, I extended the treatment to more than one bottle, with the result that within a surprisingly short time, regular and proper movements were obtained and my health was improved generally.

I intend to always keep Nujol on hand for the correction of any slight irregularity, and firmly believe that all suffering from constipation and elderly people particularly will find it invaluable.

Yours very truly,
(Name and address on request)

January 10, 1917.

Enjoy the same healthful relief from constipation that is now benefiting the writer of this letter and thousands of other grateful users. Simply try Nujol—a few doses are generally effective—and mark how gently and surely it restores the natural regularity of the bowels.

Nujol relieves without artificial stimulation, griping, or dangerous reaction. It is absolutely pure and drug-free. Pleasant and safe to take, even for infants, invalids and old folks. Obstinate or occasional cases soon yield to the action of Nujol. Use this wonderful remedy and be "regular as clockwork."

DELIGHTED WITH VICTORIA PARK

Prospects for the G.W.V.A. band are announced as excellent after last night's meeting, when a goodly number of bandsmen announced their willingness to assist. Practices will commence as soon as the 93rd instruments are handed over to the Veterans.

PROSPECTS FOR GOOD BAND

The general concensus of opinion seems to be that Victoria Park never presented a more beautiful appearance at this time of the year than it does at present, but it remains for visitors to call attention to the beauty of this delightful spot. During the past few days visitors from Winnipeg, Toronto and other places, have spoken in terms of high praise of the splendid appearance of the park, and caretaker William Pearson has been frequently complimented.

CAT IMPRISONED IN A CHIMNEY.

ONE OF PETERBORO'S NIGHT SONGSTERS HAD HARROWING EXPERIENCE.

"Nigger," the feline mascot of the Bank of Ottawa, had a very harrowing experience during the last week. In some way the cat got into the chimney of a neighbouring grocery store. Two or three bricks at the base of the chimney had to be removed to liberate the cat. To-day "Nigger" looks rather wild, with his fur covered with soot. The cat has fasted for five days and no doubt it feels the pangs of hunger.

WEDDING BELLS

O'BRIEN—SCOTT

On Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Church, Clydesdale, when Miss May Scott became the bride of Mr. Michael O'Brien.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Meagher, Lakefield. After the ceremony at the Church, the wedding party motored to the home of the bride's uncle where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to fifty friends. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, will reside in Clydesdale.

OBITUARY

CORNELIUS MORRISEY.

The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital, Rice Lake, Wisconsin, of Cornelius Morrisey, on June 13, 1918. The particulars of his death are not as yet known. He was a former resident of Peterborough, and leaves two sisters and one brother to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. David McGrath, 141 Hazlitt street, East City; Mrs. Jas. HAS BEEN APPOINTED CHIEF INSPECTOR OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Mr. W. I. Chisholm, teacher of agriculture at the Normal School, has been appointed Chief Inspector of Public Schools for Ontario. Mr. Chisholm recently received the degree of Doctor of Pedagogy.

Farewell Meeting Normal School Literary Society

Reference Was Made to Dr. Chisholm Who Assumes New Duties

The farewell meeting of the Literary Society of the Normal school was held last night after the regular school sessions. Mr. James Gregory, the president, occupied the chair. Besides the students and teachers, many friends and relatives were present. The meeting opened with a chorus of the pupils of the school singing O Canada. A vocal solo was then rendered by Miss D. Holland. The valedictory address was read by Miss Florence Annis. Besides the ministers and the citizens of Peterborough the members of the critic staff were also thanked for their encouragement and good training during the past year. Although they had found the studies arduous, most of them managed to mix a good share of pleasure with it.

Principal's Address.

Mr. Duncan Walker, principal, in his address, said that the teacher's profession was the noblest, most glorious and unequalled by any other calling in the world.

"You are missionaries going out into the world to educate your fellow men," said the principal.

He and the staff had learned to love the students because of their diligence and faithfulness to their studies. He referred to Dr. Chisholm who has been appointed Chief Inspector of Public schools for Ontario.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

To-morrow at 8.10 the staff and students leave by boat for Stoney Lake on their annual excursion to enjoy the lake breezes and in some cases to recuperate after the strenuous studies.

TEMPLE BAND TO VISIT LINDSAY

Commissioner Richards, has invited the Temple Band to accompany him on a special week end campaign in Lindsay, next week end. The boys will leave here on the 5.35 train and do a musical festival on the Saturday evening and assist in the open air and inside meeting conducted by the Commissioner on Sunday. Adj. McElhiney will accompany the band while Mrs. McElhiney will conduct the services here.

A Comedy of Errors

The Fire Marshal of the State of Wisconsin has issued a bulletin which he terms a "Comedy of Errors." It should have been called a tragedy. It says:

He looked for a gas leak wth a match, and found it.

He lighted a match to see if his gasoline tank was empty. It was not.

He smoked while filling his auto tank, but will do it no more.

He smoked in bed, so did the bed clothes.

He threw the matches into the waste paper basket. He is wiser now.

He threw a cigarette stub into some rubbish.

He saved his oily waste and oily rags and they burned his shop.

He washed his hands in gasoline near the stove. The doctor washes them now.

He did not worry about fires as he had "plenty of insurance," and forgot the safety of his wife and children upstairs.

He stuffed up the chimney holes with paper and rags.

She cleaned her gloves with gasoline and saved fifteen cents, but paid the doctor and druggists fifteen dollars.

She poured kerosene into the lamp while the wick was burning.

She put gasoline into the wash boiler on the stove to make the washing easier.

She used the wrong oil can.

She burned sulphur all over the house to fumigate it.

She used the wood box back of the range as a waste paper receptacle.

She gave matches to her children to go out to burn leaves in the yard. The cotton dresses burned easier than the leaves.

She swung the gas bracket too close to the curtains.

She fixed up a fine tissue paper shade for the lamp.

She filled the tank of her gasoline stove while one burner was going.

The comedies have turned to tragedies; many of the scenes of action were in ashes and too many of the actors are maimed or asleep; others will follow, no doubt, as they are prone to ignore the advice of others, instead of profiting by the errors and sufferings.

SMALL STORES need advertising as well as large ones. If the small dealer fears that his little ad. will be lost in a newspaper carrying large ads., he should be reminded if this were true, it would follow that his little store located in a city with large stores, would also be lost.

Social and Personal

Danny Simons, comedian, an old Peterborough boy, gave an entertainment to 5,000 soldier boys at the training camp in Superior Wisconsin. A large stage was built in the centre of the mess rooms and there Dan gave his "Highland Soldier Act" to the music of a full band. And when he finished the soldiers gave "three cheers for Danny Simons." Dan is not coming home this summer, as he is now on his way to the coast playing in vaudeville

Mr. and Mrs. Bartz and little son motored back to-day to Detroit, accompanied by their sister-in-law, Mrs. James Scannell, Downie street.

Mr. Jas. A. Thorndyke, Mr. and Mrs. David H. Porter, of Oakwood East, motored to the city on Sunday and spent the day with friends.

Mr. John Galvin of Loyola College, Montreal, is spending the holidays at the home of his parents, 563 Gilmour street.

Mr. E. A. Allen, Toronto, western Superintendent of the Canadian Express Company, is registered at the Empress. He will inspect the offices of the company in Peterboro.

Mrs. Colbeck and Miss Harvey, Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Connal.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McMartin and Mrs Vincent Scott were Peterborough visitors at the Leahy-Shea wedding in Lindsay this week.

The friends of Mrs. E. G. Clarke, Park street, will be sorry to learn of the death of her father, at Stirling, Ont.

Mrs. J. R. Stratton is in town, the guest of Mrs. K. G. Lech, 415 Stewart Street.

Mrs. W. Willoughby, Washington, D.C., was at the Empress today en route to Stoney Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Howard, are visiting Mrs. Howard's mother, for a few days.

Major Gifford M. C., and Mrs. Gifford, whose wedding was solemnized yesterday at Kingston, who is in the city today en route for Stoney Lake, where they will spend a few weeks.

Miss A. Mabel Howell, auditor of the Grafton Company, is in the city today, registered at the Empress.

SOLDIERS' WIVES' AND MOTHERS' CLUB

Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club will hold their monthly tea Friday, June 21st, instead of next week. Adjutant McElhiney will address the meeting. All members are requested to attend as there is important business to come before the meeting. Mrs. Simmons' talent tea realized $16.50. Thanking all who helped to make it so splendid a success.

Austrians Captured.

ROME, June 20.—The War Office tonight reports that from Montillo to the sea the battle on the Piave continues most bitterly. More than twelve hundred Austrian prisoners have been taken and numerous machine guns.

Lace sets consisting of hat, scarf and parasol to match are among the novelties.

Italians Have Re-captured Several Positions Lost In Recent Austrian Offensive

A Large Force of Allied Airmen Have Reached the Italian Front and Are Doing Effective Work—Food Agitation in Austria is Getting Worse.

FRIDAY MORNING WAR BULLETINS

PARIS, June 21.—The Italian transport "Santa Anna," en route to Malta, was torpedoed and sunk. Six hundred and forty lost.

Effective Work.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 21.—A large force of allied airmen have reached the front and are doing effective work.

Squadron Attacked.

LONDON June 21. — A British squadron was attacked on the night of June 19th north of Heligoland, by German airplanes. No hits were made by the enemy. One enemy plane was brought down.

Positions Recaptured.

LONDON, June 21.— Tne Italians again hold Capo Sale and several other villages taken by the Austrians in the last offensive.

Home Rule Withdrawn.

LONDON, June 21.—It was stated last night that both conscription and Home Rule had been withdrawn by the government in Ireland.

Food Agitation.

AMSTERDAM, June 21.—Food agitation in Austria is the greatest since the war began, a report reaching here says.

Thursday Evening Bulletins:

Americans Advance.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS ON THE MARNE, June 20.—The Americans made an advance of five-eigths of a mile north-west of Chateau Thierry during the night. The Germans now hold but one small salient in Belleau Woods.

Counter Attacks.

LONDON, June 20. — Italians in counter attacks have gained further ground along the Piave. By this action the positions occupied by the Austrians have been divided.

Bread Ration Reduced.

AMSTERDAM, June 20.—The Cologne Gazette says the bread ration in Germany will have to be reduced the same as in Austria until next harvest.

Cannot Restore Order.

LONDON, June 20. — A despatch from Vienna says the Burgomaster of Vienna informed the Austrian Premier that on account of the bread ration he cannot guarantee order in the capital.

AMERICAN TROOPS WILL SOON BE FIGHTING ON ITALIAN FRONT

Italian Ambassador in Washington Has Important Conference With American Secretary For War—Elements of All Armies on the Various Fronts.

DEPARTMENT REVEALS INFORMATION

Washington, June 21—American fighting troops will be sent to the Italian front at an early date, but the War Department is not yet ready for military reasons to indicate the details of the movement, or state when or how many American soldiers will be devoted to the movement.

That the troops would be sent became assured after Count di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, had visited the War Department for a conference with Secretary Baker. Mr. Baker would not disclose the matters considered in this conference or say that the use of American troops had been discussed with the Ambassador, but when asked regarding the sending of American troops to Italy, he stated:

"The unity of purpose of the Allies, it is thought, will be exemplified by their being on all fronts, elements of all armies. It is known there are Italians on the French front, and British on the Italian front, and the appearance of Americans, however small the number on the Italian front, would show the unity of purpose."

Major General March, the Chief of Staff, also authorized the statement to-day that the 32nd National Guard Division, consisting of Michigan and Wisconsin troops, was now in the Alsace sector. His announcement read:

"There is now no military objection to making public the fact that the 32nd Division of the army is now fighting in Alsace on German soil."

It has been previously announced that the American troops are fighting in Picardy, also northwest of Chateau Thierry, in the Champagne section, in the Woevre, in the Toul sector, and on the Lorraine front.

The 32nd Division was trained in Texas under G. Haan, and was under his command when it left America. It is composed of Michigan and Wisconsin troops.

GRAIN MARKET

The latest food administration order in the United States prohibiting the carrying of cash grain without a regular grain dealer's license brought about a rush of selling orders in the corn market yesterday, and an immediate slump in prices.

Although some of the big interests got into the market later and bought on the break, July corn closed 4c below Wednesday's close. Oats weakened slightly but a good cash demand and light offerings prevented any material break. Winnipeg cash oats are quoted 1-4c to 1-2 lower.

Manitoba wheat — No. 1, northern $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2 tax, in store, Fort William.

American corn—Not quoted.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 79c to 80c, nominal; No. 3 white, 78c to 79c.

Barley, malting, $1.23 to $1.25.

Ontario wheat—No 2 winter, $2.22 basis in store Montreal.

Peas, No. 2, nominal.

Buckwheat—$1.80.

Rye—No. 2, $1.90.

Ontario Flour — War quality $10.65, Toronto-Montreal, $10.65, new bags.

Manitoba Flour — War quality $10.95, Toronto.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40; bran, $35; feed flour not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1 $13.00 to $14.00; No. 2, mixed, $12.00 to $13.00; straw, car lots, $8 to $8.50.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday were 33 cars, with 242 cattle, 1127 calves, 1127 hogs and 236 sheep and lambs.

The market cleaned up for the week end practically steady at Monday's decline for anything of fair to good quality in the butcher cattle line. There was in fact a good demand for choice steers and heifers, grass or dry fed. There is a lot of half-fat common cows being marketed, for which there is a very poor market. Some of this stuff should be kept out on the grass while it is good and plentiful, as good fat butcher cows are always pretty sure of finding a good and ready market.

Sheep have declined sharply $3 to $4 this week, and at this are in poor demand. Choice lambs are steady to firm.

Calves continue very firm.

Hogs are steady.

A FINE CELEBRATION.

(Ottawa Journal.)

It is a fine Fourth of July celebration the Emergency Fleet Corporation has planned for the United States—the launching on that day of sixty-three ships to help to defeat Germany. Mr. Schwab, the director-general of the corporation, wants a splash that will reach the ears of the Kaiser at Potsdam. Wilhelm may not actually hear the splash but eventually he will be drowned in the wash from it.

GOOD CAST OFF
CLOTHING WANTED

I will pay highest cash price for good cast-off clothing from the wardrobes of gentlemen and homes of well-to-do people.

Please do not offer me any trash or worn-out garments; I only buy and sell GOOD clothing that may need cleaning or a little repairing.

'Phone 889J and I will call at your residence and make a good offer for any cast-off Tweed, Serge or Worsted Suits, or single garments. My aim is to give the best service to my customers. I remove all strains, and clean, press and repair all clothing I handle by the best methods.

SUITS FOR SALE.—Any quantity of fine cast-off suits, made of good material, well-cleaned renovated and repaired. Some of these suits are nearly as good as new.

I can also fit you with a pair of good strong Military or Black Boots or Shoes, Khaki Overalls and Shirts at very low prices.

RUBBER HOSE FOR SALE—Factory ends, in first-class condition, and in lengths of 20 to 40 feet.

Where Quality Does Count!

BECAUSE an egg, aged in cold storage, has lost its flavor; has nothing to do with the eggs which the farmer brings fresh from the barn.

Because you can't make a good cup of coffee with poorly nourished and improperly roasted coffee beans; has nothing to do with the coffee you can make with

SEAL BRAND COFFEE

"SEAL BRAND"—from the best plantations, cultivated by experts. Then, blended and roasted and ground by those who have made a lifetime study of the subject.

"Seal Brand" is a rich, full-bodied, delicious beverage—wholesome, invigorating, fragrant.

In ½, 1 and 2 pound tins—in the bean, ground or fine ground for percolators.

"PERFECT COFFEE, PERFECTLY MADE" is our new booklet, we are mailing free to coffee lovers. Write for a copy. 198
